WOUNDED, DAZED, BUT ANSWERS PHONE

Unique among news photographs is this one of a man automatically reaching for a telephone after a bullet had entered his head. According to San Francisco police, Attorney James J. Cronin, Jr., called an ambulance after firing a .38 calibre bullet into his head. A news photographer arrived before police, snapped this shot as the dazed man reached for the telephone which rang just as the photographer entered the office. — Central Press Canadian.

U.S. Pulls Off Diplomatic Coup Against Communists

Lake Success, N.Y., Sept. 1 — (AP) —Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb took over today as president of the United Nations Security Council, determined to end Russia's Jakob A. Malik's month-long stalemate of pending council moves to localize the Korean war.

A spokesman quoted Jebb as saying:

"We shall turn the calendar back to July 2. We shall pretend that Malik has never been president and get on with our work."

At today's council meeting Jebb was reported to have planned as the first order of business the seating of a representative of South Korea and the refusal of a place to a North Korean envoy.

Had Prevented Action

Malik had, through one parliamentary move or another, prevented this action while he held the presidency during August.

Then, the British spokesman declared, the council would take up an American resolution declaring the North Koreans to be the aggressors and calling on all U.N. members to refrain from aiding.

"The Soviet Union will probably veto this, and then we shall go on to our next piece of business," he said.

That would be consideration of communist China's charges, presented by the Soviet Union, of American aggression against Formosa and air raids on Manchuria. The council voted yesterday, 8-3, to hear the air-raid charges.

The fact that the two Russian-backed items are on the agenda was taken here as conclusive evidence that Malik would be present and would not renew his boycott of the United Nations which ended when he assumed the council presidency Aug. 1.

Makes Surprise Statement

U.S. delegate Warren R. Austin took the council by surprise yesterday by admitting that an American fighter plane might have strafed a Manchurian airfield by mistake Aug. 27.

He asked for a full U. N. on-the-spot investigation of the charges, and promised, if they were proved, that the U.S. would pay an indemnity and take "proper disciplinary action" against those involved.

When the delegates got their breath after this statement — much franker than is usual in diplomatic parleys—they speculated that the United States may have pulled off a significant diplomatic coup.

They pointed out that it is highly unlikely that either communist China or north Korea will permit a United Nations investigating committee into their territories.

Placed in Dilemma

If they refuse, these sources said, the world will conclude that either the charges were frivolous propaganda or that the two communist states have secret reasons for refusing an inquiry.

The council yesterday defeated a Soviet move, 2-8, to pursue charges of "terrorism" in Greece on the agenda.

Jebb called the Russian charges "as revolting as satan rebuking sin," coming from the representative of a power which uses slave labor and "transports millions to Siberia in cattle trucks."

House to Meet On Labor Day

Ottawa, Sept. 1. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent served formal notice on the Commons today that the government wants it to meet morning, afternoon and night until the end of its emergency session.

He gave notice that he will move Saturday to add an 11 a.m., to 1 p.m. sitting to the customary afternoon and night sessions. This would begin Monday—Labor Day.

In addition, the House is foregoing its customary Saturday holiday to meet tomorrow at 11 a.m. However, the Prime Minister's notice does not indicate there will be further Saturday sittings.

Crash into Bridge Fatal to Youth

Kitchener, Sept. 1 —(CP) — When the car they were driving in crashed into the Freeport bridge, five miles from here, early today Lloyd Lohnes, 18, of Kitchener, was killed and Howard Strome, 17, of Waterloo suffered undetermined injuries.

The car, driven by Lohnes, was proceeding towards Preston when it failed to make the curve at the bridge.

MATERIALS UP

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP) — A July increase of 5.8 points above the June level in the wholesale price of general building materials was reported yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics. It was a 23.6-point increase over July 1949.

Weather Ship Pushes Farther North Than Any Ship Has Ever Travelled

Ottawa, Sept. 1 (CP)—A United States ship recently pushed to what is believed to be the northernmost point in the western hemisphere ever reached by a vessel under its own power, the external affairs department announced today.

The ship, the United States coast guard's Eastwind, moved to within 445 nautical miles of the North Pole while passing the north-eastern tip of Ellesmere Island, 1,500 miles north of Churchill, Man.

The vessel, along with three United States navy ships, sailed into Canadian Arctic regions in July to supply the joint Arctic weather stations operated by Canada and United States. The stations are on Ellesmere and Cornwallis Islands.

The Eastwind and the U.S.S. Edisto smashed through heavy polar pack ice of up to 30 feet in thickness while moving to supply one of the stations on Ellesmere Island. This was the heaviest ice encountered in five years of Arctic supply operations.

The Edisto and the Eastwind carried helicopters, and they were used extensively in short-range ice reconnaissance. They also were used to transport Canadian government surveyors and other field technicians to locations where astro positions, terrain elevation, Geology, wild life and other reconnaissance field studies were accomplished.

Long-range ice reconnaissance was furnished by the R.C.A.F.

While in the north, the senior United States official on the supply mission—C. J. Hubbard, chief of Arctic projects in the United States weather bureau — was killed in an R.C.A.F. plane crash on Ellesmere Island that claimed nine lives.

The senior Canadian representative in the mission was J. W. Burton of the Arctic division of the resources department.

The ships, now back in east coast ports, were under command of Capt. G. E. M. Peterson of the U.S. navy.

GUNS ARE MORE IMPORTANT THAN BUTTER--CLAXTON

Canada Must Play Part Halting Red Aggression

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 1—(CP)—It's guns before butter nowadays for Canadians.

The Commons was told yesterday by government spokesmen that Canada, ready to play her part in stopping Russian aggression, plans to spend large sums on an acceleratedd defence program and on rearming Europe.

Defence Minister Claxton said parliament at this four-day-old emergency session will be asked to vote another $140,000,000 to $150,000,000 for Canada's defence needs this fiscal year, as well as "very substantial" sums to help arm Europe. The last regular session of parliament earmarked $425,00,000 for defence purposes.

"The events of the last few months have shown that the communists are prepared to run great risks to extend the sweep of the iron curtain," the defence minister told the Commons.

"It is sometimes said that the democracies have a choice between guns and butter. For me there is no choice. We must continue to develop our resources, expand our economy, extend the area of all the freedoms within the nation, and at the same time, with other nations, meet the threat of aggression by the one thing that will stop it—trained, united strength."

Pledged to Bear Share

Mr. Claxton made the statement after External Affairs Minister Pearson, in an outline of foreign policy, pledged Canada to bear her "proper share" of the burden of collective defence against Soviet aggression.

Revised Marriage Law Effective On October 2nd

Toronto, Sept. 1 — (CP)—Ontario's revised marriage law becomes effective Oct. 2, it was disclosed today by the Provincial Secretary's Office.

The legislation, passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature, will allow, in addition to religious marriages, the performance of ceremonies by county and district judges and by magistrates.

Another provision is that a judge may declare a person missing for seven years to be presumed dead so the way is cleared for the other party to marry again.

Publisher Says Attacks Made on Gordon Over Rail Strike Were Leftist-Inspired

Toronto, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Frederick I. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, said today in an address that attacks on Donald Gordon over the rail strike were leftist-inspired.

Describing the Canadian National Railways president as a "fearless and capable" public servant, he said the criticisms show that "when the leftist hierarchy and their political puppets don't get what they want they bitterly attack those who oppose them."

"All too frequently these attacks are headlined and broadcast by newspapers and radio stations with an eye on leftist circulation," he said in an address prepared for delivery to a Canadian National Exhibition directors' luncheon.

"Don't blame our governments if this continuous propaganda is interpreted as reflecting the will of the people. Those contrary-minded show no such zeal in making known their views and in defending members of parliament and public men from the unfair and unworthy attacks that are made upon them."

Speaking on the C.N.E.'s Press and Radio Day, he called attention to what he termed "a menace which overshadows the press and radio of this country at the present time."

Mr. Ker, who is a director of The Canadian Press, noted that the American Newspaper Guild (C. I. O.) was certified last April as bargaining agent for editorial employees of The Canadian Press. The certification was resisted by the National News Service "on the grounds that it seriously endangered freedom of the press."

Because of its opposition to the union, which he described as "pledged to the C. C. F." through its affiliation with the C. I. O., The Canadian Press was "bitterly criticized by the interested labor leaders."

"This is a matter of the utmost importance to the security of this country, and yet what individual or group of individuals, what political party, Chamber of Commerce, Bar Association or other organization has publicly come to the support of The Canadian Press, creating a reflection of public opinion contrary to that advanced by a minority group seeking an insidious control over the National news service?"

Army Probe Into Bomb Blast Is Continuing

Petawawa Military Camp, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP)—An army investigation into a mortar bomb explosion which took the lives of four soldiers and injured another four continued into its second day today.

Meanwhile medical authorities at nearby Pembroke cottage hospital said the condition of Cpl. Nicholas W. Puddicombe, 21, of Ottawa—most severely injured in yesterday's blast—still is in a critical condition.

Although the nature of his injuries was not disclosed, it was indicated that Puddicombe was badly wounded by flying shrapnel.

Three privates, also injured, are being treated at the military hospital here and are expected to be released shortly. Their injuries were described as "slight."

All of the dead and injured were members of the 1st and 2nd battalions, Royal Canadian Regiment. Three of the dead and the three slightly-injured privates were of the 2nd battalion which forms part of the special brigade earmarked for possible duty in Korea or elsewhere.

Bodies of the dead, after examination by the district coroner, are being removed to homes of next-of-kin for burial service. The dead are: Cpl. K. R. Ray, 1st Bn., of Rosemount, Que.; Pte. W. E. Brayley, 2nd. Bn., Rothesay, N.B.; Pte. D. J. Murphy, MM, 2nd Bn, Montreal; Pte N. E. Hughes, 2nd Bn, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Cpl. Puddicombe, a permanent force soldier with three years service, apparently had been instructing members of the 2nd battalion in two-inch mortar drill at the big weapons range here. It is believed the bomb burst prematurely when inserted in the mortar barrel.

A court of inquiry, launched immediately by Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, general officer commanding central command, is investigating the circumstances surrounding the blast including a scrutiny of a shipment of mortar bombs to see whether the bombs themselves may be defective.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 1—Synopsis: The remains of the tropical storm in the Mississippi Valley is weakening and rain today will be mostly confined to southwestern counties and the Niagara Peninsula with cloud extending northward to Georgian Bay.

Cooler air covers northern regions of the province. Skies are mostly cloudy in those regions this morning but will clear later today.

The cloud will slowy clear from southern regions and Saturday will be mainly sunny with little change in temperature.

A weak disturbance over northern Manitoba will move southeast and bring some cloud and widely scattered showers to northern regions Saturday.

Stratford CNR Motive-Power Workers on Job

Stratford, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Nearly 1,200 railway workers who refused to return to their jobs until the end of the full period of grace allowed by Federal legislation ending the rail strike, went back to work today.

Canadian National Railways motive - power shops workers were back at their tasks for the shift starting at 8 a. m. and they swung back into work with a lower-than-usual rate of absenteeism and only one of the 1,160 was late, probably a record.

"There won't be any overtime as things look right now," said J. L. Whitty, general foreman, "we'll just have to push our schedule back nine days."

Only 35 men failed to turn up for work, five less than the average rate of absenteeism among these shop workers, believed, to be the only rail workers in Canada who did not report immediately after the Dominion government passed special legislation to end the work stoppage.

Wilson to Retire End of Season From Boat Racing

Detroit, Sept. 1 — (CP)—Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, 38-year-old driver of the Canadian Harmsworth challenge boat Miss Canada IV, announced his retirement from powerboat racing last night on the eve of this year's Harmsworth race here.

Wilson said he will retire at the end of this season for both personal and business reasons.

"Win, lose or draw" in the Harmsworth this weekend, he would quit his racing career but would "most probably" take another crack at breaking the world water speed record at Picton, Ont., in the latter part of September.

He said he had "done my best for Canada" in boat racing, "although my best has not always been good enough. My only hope now is that another Canadian will step into the picture and carry on in this wonderful game."

Wilson, a powerboat enthusiast for 22 years, made an unsuccessful bid to win the Harmsworth Trophy last year with Miss Canada IV, owned by his father, E. A. Wilson of Ingersoll. He will try again today and tomorrow against a three-boat United States team.

HEAVY RAINFALL

Hamilton, Sept. 1—(CP)— The Dominion Meteorological Bureau here reported today that 4.96 inches of rain have fallen in Hamilton since Sunday morning. This is a record in this area since 1937.

STARTLING PURGE CONDUCTED BY COMMIE RULERS

Six Members of East Germany's Party Fired

Six party members, including a former politburo member, were thrown out of the socialist unity (communist) party, the official party newspaper Neues Deutschland announced.

More expulsions were predicted.

The party newspaper gave two reasons for the purge—associating with "American spies" and exhibiting anti-Russian feeling."

Those ejected from the party were:

Paul Merker, state secretary in the agriculture ministry; Leo Bauer chief editor of radio Berlin; Bruno Goldhammer, deputy to propaganda chief Gerhardt Eisler; Willi Kreikemeyer, general director of the Soviet-zone railway system; Lex Ende, former chief editor of Neues Deutschland and later editor of the communist Friedenspost; and Maria Weiterer, an unidentified party member.

Russia Upholds Claim to 12-Mile Limit in Baltic

Both Denmark and Sweden had challenged the Soviet position in notes delivered to the Kremlin by their representatives here.

In a reply to Denmark the Soviet Union said that there is no definition by international law of territorial waters. (Presumably a similar reply will be made to Sweden).

The Swedish Foreign Office announced July 25 that Sweden and Denmark regarded the Russian claim as "an encroachment on the freedom of the open sea." In notes to the Soviet government the two Scandinavian countries said that "limits of the territorial waters of European states have been established for centuries, and as far as the Baltic states are concerned have been fixed at three or four miles."

WILL TAKE UP CHALLENGE

London, Sept. 1 — (Reuters)— Prime Minister Attlee will take up Winston Churchill's challenge about the supply of British machine tools to Russia when he broadcasts Saturday night. Churchill made the charges in a radio talk last Saturday. The opposition leaders said the management of a British machine tool firm had informed him they were filling Russian orders for machine tools which could be used in the manufacture and repair of tanks.

U.N. Troops Poised For Counter Blow, Haman Retaken

Enemy Drive Viewed as Last Major Effort to Take Pusan

Tokyo, Sept. 1 — (CP) Storming forward over their own dead, North Korean troops hammered today at two vital sections of the Allied defence line in their biggest offensive of the war.

On the south central sector along the Naktong River they shoved American troops back as far as 10 miles from flat country between Hyonpung and Yongsan.

Farther south, where the communists are making an all-out drive toward the key port of Pusan, American troops fought their way back into the town of Haman, which the reds had taken during the day. The Americans pushed on to occupy ridges east of the blazing city.

Biggest Threat Near Haman

It was to the north of Haman that the biggest threat was developing. Jumping off at midnight Thursday the communists swiftly drove a salient four miles wide and eight to 10 miles deep east of the Naktong River.

The town of Yongsan itself had been abandoned, with the Americans pulling back to high ground to the east. They dug into positions from whence they will try to check the red drive, aimed at the Taegu-Pusan highway, main artery of communications and supply for the defenders.

The communist offensive cut quickly through the old Naktong bulge from which the Americans drove 12,000 reds two weeks ago.

An American intelligence officer said still another major red offensive may develop elsewhere and he said the largest mass of enemy infantry still is presumed to be in the Waegwan area, northwest of Taegu.

Heavy Toll of Enemy

The communists were paying a heavy price for the ground they took. An officer of the U. S. 2nd Division told an Associated Press correspondent: "Bodies are stacked up by the hundreds, but they are still coming."

Air observers in the southern front also reported a terrible toll in North Korean lives, where aircraft and artillery backed up the American counter-attack.

However, the North Koreans had far from exhausted their effort and were expected to renew their assaults in the Haman sector under cover of darkness.

The Tokyo headquarters summary issued shortly after midnight said allied forces were "poised for an all-out fight" to restore positions four miles east of the Naktong - Nam River junction. This summary evidently was well behind field dispatches however, as it had the reds still holding Haman, which Americans have recaptured.

Assault Was Expected

Gen. MacArthur's intelligence officer described the assault as all-out. But he said it was expected.

Fifty thousand communists were involved — 30,000 in three divisions. Another 20,000 Reds were in reserve.

An American division pulled back eight miles to heights at Yongsan, on its own left flank. The position was only 12 air miles west of the main highway from Pusan to Taegu, Allied communications and supply hub in the central sector.

The red bridgehead was reported in field dispatches as wider and deeper than the one established on the east side of the Nakkong two weeks ago. That one was wiped out by a reinforced United States division.

U.S. Battalion Right Way Back

Field dispatches said the reds crossed the Nakkong in 17 points cutting off two American battalions who were fighting their way back to the new lines.

The entire might of the United States seventh fleet's carrier planes was ordered into the battle. They joined American and Australian fighters in close support of ground forces.

One unarmed American observation plane was shot down by the first Yak fighter reported in action over the front since the earliest days of the war.

American helicopters hovered over the battle. While bullets whined around, the 'copters whirred close to the ground and picked up American wounded where they had fallen.

Some United States field officers regarded the offensive as the communists' last major effort to take Pusan and Taegu.

Criticizes Those Who 'Chisel' U.S. Tourists

In a prepared statement predicting 1950 would see the province enjoy its fifth consecutive record year in the number of tourists from the United States, Mr. McCall said the "single dark spot" has been the number of complaints from failure to give visitors a proper premium for U.S. funds.

"Chiselling for 50 cents on a $5 transaction can cost us thousands of dollars in goodwill and future business," Mr. McCall said. "A few of these people—and they are relatively scarce— can destroy completely our reputation for fair dealing and honest value."

DOGS SLAUGHTER SHEEP

Ajax, Ont., Sept. 1—(CP) — Farmers said Thursday that packs of wild dogs have slaughtered sheep valued at more than $1,000 in the last week near this village 25 miles east of Toronto.

Girl, Blind and Deaf, Having Time Of Her Life at Summer Camp

Hamilton, Sept. 1 (CP) —The person this story is about will never read it nor hear it for she is blind and deaf.

It is a story about a young woman, Mary Tate of Brantford, who despite these crippling handicaps is having the time of her life.

Because she is blind and deaf she has not been able to learn lip-reading and is unable to talk. But her friends at the annual camp for the blind at nearby Ancaster know she is happy.

Yesterday Mary took a swimming lesson in the pool, pitched horseshoes and made a perfect score in a bean-ball contest.

Col. E. A. (Eddie) Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, says that Mary is a living example of the courage of the sightless.

Camps for the blind have been in operation for three years in various parts of Canada. At first they were on trial. Now they've proved themselves entirely successful.

He said that in rehabilitating the blind it is not enough to give them a job and rehabilitate them economically.

"We've got to go a step farther and re-establish them socially and recreationally as well as vocationally, in order to make an all-round job and prepare the blind for life as normal citizens. Camp life gives them the feeling they can take part in games and parties the same as anyone else."

REV. HENRY HILL TO ASSUME DUTIES AT ST. THOMAS'

The Rev. Henry Hill, B.A., will assume his duties as assistant to Archdeacon Arthur Smith in St. Thomas' Parish on Sunday and will deliver the sermon at Evensong. Mr. Hill returned to his home in Kingston a few weeks ago from England where he spent two years in study at St. John's College, Cambridge.

THREE ENTITLED TO HAVE C.L.U. AFTER THEIR NAMES

Three local men have successfully passed the third year of their extension course at the University of Toronto and will now have the letters "C.L.U." tacked after their names. The three are Ralph A. Knowlton, Canada Life, Charles D. Lundy, London Life, and Ralph B. Morden, Canada Life.

Three other Belleville men were successful in first year examinations. All with Mutual Life, they are Perry Everett, William Holway and Donald Williams. A fourth man, McKinley Rankin, of Madoc, associated with Sun Life, was also successful.

The initials C.L.U. stand for Chartered Life Underwriter.

CHILDREN'S POOL AT VICTORIA PARK OPEN OVER HOLIDAY

With a holiday weekend coming up, the parks commission has decided to open the children's swimming pool in Victoria Park for Saturday, Sundey and Monday. Arthur Keegan, in charge of the park, said this morning that the pool had been cleaned out for the summer, but that water will be put in it for the Labor Day holiday. Benches are also provided. They will be there until colder weather sets in.

THREE BELLEVILLE RAILROADERS HAD PICTURE TAKEN

The three Belleville men in charge of the first passenger train to leave the city Thursday morning after the strike had their pictures in the Peterborough Examiner last night. The three, engineer Robert Gladwell, fireman Stanley Schreider and conductor Lorne Alexander, were met at the Peterborough C.N.R. station and were mugged by a staff photographer. The train, No. 93, left here at 6.15 a.m., Daylight time, and was 17 minutes late getting into Peterborough. It continued on to Lindsay and Toronto.

CUSTOMS RETURNS SHOW INCREASE

An increase of $51,257.26 in customs and excise returns for Belleville was reported today for the month of August as compared with the same month last year.

Returns for the month totalled $567,515.32 as compared with $516,258.06 for the same month in 1949.

C.N.R. PAY CHEQUES FOR FIRST AUGUST PERIOD DELAYED

Pay cheques for striking railway employees have not yet arrived in Belleville. The period covered by the cheques is from August 1 to August 15, but A. M. Shea, general superintendent, said this morning that this office has had nothing official on the time of arrival of the cheques. Normal pay would have been Wednesday or Thursday the 30th or the 31st, but the strike will have affected the clerical work in Toronto, thus slowing up the arrival of the two-week pay.

Parked Truck Obscures View Of Oncoming Car

A parked truck which obscured the view of an approaching car on Dundas Street was said responsible for a two-car collision at the corner of Dundas and George Streets yesterday. Damages of about $150 resulted to both cars.

Bruce A. Gunn of Detroit, Mich., was proceeding east along Dundas Street, when Vincent Turcotte, Sulphide was on George Street proceeding south. Turcotte had stopped for the stop sign on Dundas Street and then proceeded to enter the intersection only to strike the Gunn car broadside. Turcotte told police that a parked vehicle had prevented him from seeing the car approaching on Dundas Street.

Miss Verna Rox, who has been summer supervisor of the playground at the CNR Athletic Association grounds, was presented with a piece of luggage at Wednesday night's strikers' entertainment.

The gift was presented on behalf of the children who have used the playground and the men who have worked there. Clement Bowler and Bruce Nicholl spoke on behalf of the men and the children respectively during the presentation ceremonies. Miss Fox was employed for the summer by the Belleville Recreation Committee. Her term of employment ended August 31, and she is now planning to return to her school teaching job in Toronto.

About 300 children were enrolled at the playground, with the average daily attendance approximately 175. This was Miss Fox's first playground effort.

Following a brief but very successful season, the activities of the Belleville Playground Committee through provision of supervised children's playgrounds was brought to a close for the season Friday.

Throughout the season a total of nine supervised playgrounds were operated in various sections of the city but with the end of August and the commencement of the Fall school term supervision comes to an end and the playground equipment will be taken down and stored for another season.

"It was the best thing ever done in the city," stated committee chairman Enos David today when he announced that the season's program was now concluded. "I have received hundreds of comments from local residents complimenting the committee on the playground program."

Mr. David paid tribute to the work of the playground supervisors who he said did a very fine job in arranging program for the kiddies despite the lack of equipment at some of the smaller playgrounds. "The supervisors deserve every credit," he said.

Learned Great Deal

Mr. David said the committee had learned a great deal this year which could be used to advantage for playground operation another year.

This year a large percentage of the money raised for operations of playgrounds had been contributed by private donations but Mr. David said he could see no reason why the money could not be provided through taxation. "This", he said, "was the fair way." He said it was just as important that children should receive supervision throughout the vacation months as during the school year.

Appreciation of the playground committee to the Ruddy Sign Company through its local representative for their gesture in donating the use of one of their billboards to assist in the money raising campaign, was expressed by Mr. David.

Children Appreciated Effort

Almost without exception children in the city have appreciated efforts of the recreation committee in providing supervised playgrounds and there was very little rowdyism or malicious damage done to playground property.

Within the past week there had been some damage done at the East Belleville playground with a few locks being broken and other mischief perpetrated. On the whole, however, the children showed every co-operation with little trouble being experienced.

And the four or five lads responsible for the damage at the East Hill playground will possibly think twice before repeating their deeds. Fortunately the names of the lads responsible were secured and they will be asked to pay damages—out of their own pockets.

No Crime to Kiss Girl in Dark at Party Courtmartial Rules

Shrewsbury, England, Sept. 1—(Reuters)—It is no crime to kiss a girl in the dark at a party, an army court-martial decided here yesterday.

Capt. Anderson Murray Marshall was before the court on a charge of assaulting Miss Vera Burns at an army party.

Miss Burns said that towards the end of the party she heard someone calling her on the terrace. She went out, and found Marshall there.

She said Marshall said he would go away if she gave him a kiss. The answer was no. Miss Burns said Marshall grabbed hold of her and kissed her. She threatened to call someone, so he kissed her again.

"I got upset," she told the court, "and slapped him across the face with his hat."

Marshall said the girl was standing close to him and he thought she was expecting to be kissed—so he kissed her three times.

Marshall was acquitted.

As they parted this time, he and Miss Burns shook hands.

SKID PROVES FATAL

Toronto, Sept. 1—(CP)—Donald James Shipley, 18, injured Wednesday when his motorcycle skidded on wet street-car tracks, died last night. He was the 31st person to die in a Toronto traffic accident this year.

Log Crashes Through Roof After Heavy Blast

Dynamite being used to blast a well in front of the property sent an eight-foot log sailing through the air and into the roof of a new house at Carrying Place last week. The house is owned by Alex R. Ambroise, RCAF member at No. 6 R.D., Trenton.

The heavy log one foot in diameter crashed through the shingles and roof over the living room smashing rafters but Mr. and Mrs. Ambroise and their small child who were in the house were uninjured.

Workmen were blasting for a well in rock and shale and several heavy logs bound by a chain were placed over the hole prior to the blast. The chain gave way when the dynamite detonated and one of the logs was blown skywards with the force of the explosion. The well was about 40 feet from the single storey residence.

J. B. McCormick New Director Of Kingston Centre

Kitchener Sept. 1 (CP)—James B. McCormick, manager of Waterloo Memorial Arena since Jan. 1, 1947, today tendered his resignation to become director of the Kingston community centre at basic salary of $5,000.

Mr. McCormick's resignation is effective Oct. 15 when he will assume his duties at Kingston's $800,000 centre.

The Kingston Arena, now under construction, is expected to open Jan. 1. The community centre also embraces a baseball park and agricultural grounds.

Mr. McCormick came to Waterloo from Montreal, where he was supervisor of recreation at Westmount for eight years. He also served as director of recreation in Waterloo in 1949.

Strike Equipment Removed From Recreation Park

The CNR Athletic Association grounds have once more undergone a transformation. What was strike headquarters for nine days for 1,200 local railroaders is again an athletic field and the only sounds now are the cheers of children playing games.

The big tent used as a rendezvous for the strikers has been taken down, and the only thing left to mark its spot is a blanket of wood shavings used to sop up the water that soaked the ground.

Public address and generating systems have been returned to their owners, the portable stage has been taken down. Only sign that anything out of the ordinary took place on the grounds is a placard which hangs on a section of snow fence. It says "C.B of R.E. Local 126" and is the only reminder of a nine-day tieup of a country wide transportation stoppage.

Both Loudspeakers Fail in Their Appeal

With U.S. 25th Division, Korea, Sept. 1—(AP)—Some one in American headquarters decided it would be clever to put a loudspeaker in front of the North Korean lines and urge the reds to surrender.

Somebody in North Korean headquarters thought it would be clever to place a loudspeaker before United States lines and tell the Americans to go home.

Both loudspeakers opened up simultaneously Wednesday night, about a mile apart.

SEARCHLIGHTS BLAZE

Singapore, Sept. 1 — (Reuters) — Searchlights blazed over Kuala Lumpur last night for the first time since the Japanese invasion, as British and Malayan troops sought out a guerrilla mountain hide-out. British troops in the area were reinforced and Europeans warned not to travel outside the five-mile limit following reports of guerrilla concentrations 12 miles north of the capital.

Back Yards, Swimming Holes, Parks, Street Corners Vacated As Children Troop to School

(By The Canadian Press)

Things will be a lot quieter around the house next week.

The annual hush will descend, too, on back yards, swimming holes, parks and street-corners across Canada. The youngsters who have been whooping it up all summer will be back in confinement behind their school desks.

A cross - Canada survey by The Canadian Press indicates that the serious post-war shortage of both teachers and classrooms has almost been overcome. What pinch still remains will be felt largely in suburban and rural schools and the lower grades of city schools.

The textbook supply is reported adequate.

The majority of schools reopen Sept. 5. But in Quebec, where Labor Day is not observed, 600,000 students enrolled in Roman Catholic schools will return a day earlier. In Saskatchewan, rural schools reopen Aug. 1, other schools open on the usual date.

About 750,000 students are expected to enroll in Ontario—20,000 more than last year. In many schools there will be curriculum changes.

Education Minister Dana Porter says that the changes will be slow and experimental in aspect. Revisions already made include:

Abolition of high school entrance examinations, reorganization of grades to eliminate the dividing line between primary and secondary schools, redistribution of the teaching load in some subjects to permit greater emphasis on individual instruction.

New Schools Ready

About 50 new elementary schools, and about 25 new secondary schools constructed at a cost of more than $10,000,000, will be ready opening day.

In Quebec, too, a heavy school building program has begun to ease overcrowding. Crowding in Roman Catholic schools has been virtually overcome.

The teacher shortage in Protestant schools is still fairly acute.

In New Brunswick the teacher shortage is being overcome by the use of "local licence" teachers, who qualify for their jobs after a two-week training course.

A schoolroom shortage will be relieved in rural Nova Scotia by three new high schools at Brookfield, Tatamagouche, and Syd River.

Newfoundland is in the midst of what might be termed a 'school boom.' Some 75,000 students are expected to go back to school this year — a record for the island.

A shortage of teachers still exists in Manitoba. Aside from a few urban areas, schoolroom congestion should be slight.

Saskatchewan, unlike other provinces, has no crowding in its schools. Since 1940 the total school population of the province has been decreasing about 2,000 a year. The teacher shortage remains, especially in rural areas. Crowding occurs in only a few schools.

One Vancouver high school is introducing radar and radio courses, but otherwise the curriculum is much the same in British Columbia schools.

CEASES PUBLICATION

London, Sept. 1 — (Reuters)—British Ally, the Russian-language weekly published by the British embassy in Moscow, ceases publication next Sunday, it was announced tonight. The Foreign Office said that Russian restrictions on its circulation had "strangled" the magazine. It said British Ally was the last "accurate printed scource" in Russia of information on British policy.

Achievement Day For County Girls Held at Stirling

The annual achievement day for Hastings county girls' garden clubs was held in Stirling community hall Wednesday with 49 girls, representing eight clubs participating. Clubs represented were Marmora, Stirling, Queensboro, Wallbridge, Plainfield, West Huntingdon, Zion and Eldorado.

Each of the club members, with the exception of the Marmora Club, exhibited five each of beets, carrots and onions and five other varieties of vegetables. The girls were also required to judge two classes, carrots and tomatoes ,and give reasons for placings. They also answered a garden quiz.

The club members were required to judge menus and plan menus, as well as judge school lunches.

Miss Elsie Irvine, home economist for the county, was in charge of the day's program, assisted by Miss I. Lindsay of Perth, Miss Jean Noble of Bowmanville, F. Stone, assistant agricultural representative for Hastings, and A. O. Dalrymple.

DIVER KILLED

Paris, Sept. 1 — (Reuters) —A diver was blown to pieces at St. Nazaire yesterday when he accidentally set off an explosive charge aboard a launch. Two mechanics were badly injured and the launch sank. The explosive was for demolition work aboard the British troopship Lancastria, sunk with loss of more than 2,000 lives by German air attack in 1940.

Letters to the Editor

The Changing Hours Of Labor Groups

Editor,

Ontario Intelligencer Ltd.

The growing movement for shorter working hours is most vividly typified by the present railway tie-up. The troubles of the railways are in our minds because they are on everyone's lips, in short newsworthy. There are many other examples which individually seem unimportant, but which collectively are making quite as profound an impact on our society. May I cite a few examples;-

1. Grocery stores in Belleville now close all day Mondays.
2. General Merchants in Belleville other than grocers, close on Wednesday afternoons.
3. Barbers in Belleville close all day Wednesdays.
4. Banks, lawyers and business offices close on Saturday afternoons.
5. Manufacturers, as do laborers generally, do not operate at all on Saturdays.
6. During July and August lawyers close at 4 p.m.
7. Doctors are almost never in.
8. Many restaurants close a day or a half day in each week each one on a different day.
9. The practice of closing entirely for a week or two weeks in the summer is becoming common.

These are random examples right here in Belleville. The situation is equally chaotic, and different, in any city or town you care to name.

To the consumer things are getting quite out of hand. On Mondays I can buy hardware, but not groceries. On Wednesday afternoons I can buy groceries, but not hardware. When I can shop in a hardware store, half the time they haven't got what I want and cannot get it because of the railway strike. When I shop in a grocery store I find they have what I want, at a price I cannot afford.

There must be a moral in all this, but for the moment it eludes me.

Robt. B. McCulloch.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) —Base metals pushed higher for a fifth successive session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The remainder of the market encountered considerable selling pressure following strong gains in previous sessions this week. Volume for the first three hours was 1,067,000 shares.

Base metals opened under downward pressure but renewed demand boosted key issues into new high ground. The strong gains of earlier markets have pulled the average price level of the list to the highest point since 1937. Consolidated Smelters was again higher and Anacon Lead continued in heavy demand. New Calumet and Waite Amulet jumped briskly.

Industrials slipped slightly in early dealings but were recovering at the half-way mark. Steels, utilities and foods were firmer while leading papers, liquors and refining oils tended easier.

Western oils firmed in dull dealings. A handful of issues crept into plus territory for gains ranging up to 10 cents.

Gold stocks were held to a narrow price path. Senior producers brightened but leading juniors weakened. Ventures Ltd., a holding company, boomed to a new high at $8.50 in heavy trading.

Business Spotlight

Investigate Before Investing Good Rule to Follow

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Word of higher prices continues to dot the news.

This was to be expected, for we already were in a resumed boom before the Korean fighting started. There was some possibility of that boom easing off, but the increased demand of the international situation makes it likely that it will be with us for some time.

It is in the interest of both business and consumers that prices don't run away, and both sides can do much to prevent them from doing so.

Business can help by keeping prices as low as reasonable profits will allow, and thus stave off controls which it won't like. The individual can help by refraining from panic-buying and by turning away from price tags which are unduly high.

Strong Upward Influence

In addition to the real causes for the present boom, it can become a partly-psychological state wherein people run thither and yon, grab up this and that, and get ideas of "get rich quick."

At best there will be a strong upward influence, and only sane thinking offers any prospect of keeping it under control.

One of the strongest inflationary influences at the moment is fear of inflation, which causes people to turn cash money into stable goods, houses, stocks, and so forth. Ordinarily this is a most laudible thing, and probably still is. But the old rule of investigate before investing holds, for along with opportunities are plenty of pitfalls.

More Competition

We don't know what changes in values are in front of us, including the value of money. But our economy has shown a great adaptability which in the main has worked out well for most people. Probably it can continue to do so if we keep our heads.

The government's action yesterday in lowering barriers against United States goods probably is intended as one step towards increasing the supply of goods and therefore of competition, and this may help in restraining prices.

If they are not restrained, we may expect other measures.

Civic Workers Meet to Consider New Wage Offer

Hamilton, Sept. 1 (CP)—Hamilton civic workers meet today to decide if they will accept a new wages-hours plan and go back to work after nearly three weeks on strike.

The strike has pulled out nearly 1,000 city garbage collectors, grave-diggers, street, waterworks and sewer maintenance men.

Representatives of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union (C.C.L.) agreed to refer to the members a settlement formula drawn up yesterday after a six-hour meeting with Board of Control

The formula offered a three-year contract with a progressive cut in working hours to 40 hours a week by Jan. 1, 1952, with no cut in take-home pay.

The proposed three-year contract calls for an immediate cut to 42 hours a week. There is to be a cut to 40 at the end of 1951, A cost-of-living bonus of $1 a week to start Jan. 1, 1951, with a sliding scale of additional bonuses. Workers would get an extra 50 cents a week for each rise of 1⅓ points in the Dominion bureau of statistics' cost-of-living index over the figure for August.

The union had struck for a 40-hour week and a general two-cents-an-hour increase — the settlement recommended by a minority report of a conciliation board which tried to settle the long-standing dispute between the city and the union. The majority of the board recommended a five-cent increase for some classifications of workers, but no general increase and no change in hours.

The city had offered to settle on the basis of the majority report. Later, it offered the formula agreed on last night but with a 42-hour week starting Jan. 1, 1951, instead of immediately.

TWO MEN FOUND DEAD

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) —Bodies of two middle-aged men were found last night in a cot in the basement of a Toronto rooming house.

Edward Brearley, 56, of Haliburton and John Brown, 65, of Toronto were believed to have died from the affects of gas leaking from a pipe.

CURE FOR BOREDOM

Calgary — (CP) — Calgary radio hams held a quaint contest when they got together for their annual ham fest. They sent Morse by tapping the key with their toes.

Canadian-Born Tenor Makes Hit As Guest Soloist

Toronto, Sept. 1—(CP)—It takes more than an appendectomy to silence the golden voice of Joseph Victor Laderoute, internationally known tenor who comes from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

He underwent the operation last Monday. Last night he was guest soloist at the weekly Toronto Promenade Symphony concert and he literally brought down the house.

Mr. Laderoute's numbers were in keeping with the orchestral program, devoted to Viennese music because it was in Vienna that guest conductor Nicholas Goldschmidt received his musical education.

He sang Franz Schubert's "Serenade" and "Ungeduld" adding as an encore a devoutly-rendered Ave Maria by the same composer: "Morgen" and "Devotion" by Strauss: an aria from Mozart's Don Giovanni and Lehar's "You Are My Heart's Delight."

John L. Watson wrote in the Globe and Mail that "his voice though light, is extremely pleasant and he sings with clarity, ease and authority."

"He tended to over-romanticize Schubert, but he displayed real art and understanding in two of Richard Strauss' lovely songs and of course brought the house down with Lehar's grand old war-horse."

DISPEL DEMONSTRATORS

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP) —West Berlin police used high pressure water hoses today to disperse several hundred communist rowdies demonstrating in front of city hall.

The demonstrators, Germans who live in the west sectors but work in east Berlin for communist controlled agencies, were protesting a recent western ban on their exchanging their east mark earnings for west marks.

Fortune in Gold On Exhibition In Toronto

On display are five chunks of ore from the famed Old Croesus Mine, long defunct, near Matheson, 40 miles east of Timmins. They were purchased in 1912 for $13,700. Their gold content now is worth about $25,000 but Duncan G. Sinclair, assistant deputy minister of mines, said their value as collector's items runs to more than $1,000,000.

Mr. Sinclair, who has been with the department 27 years, said yesterday he had never seen ore with a higher gold content.

The ore, weighing about 75 pounds, has a 60 per cent gold content. It has been exhibited all over the North American continent. When not on display it is kept in a locked box at the Ontario Parliament Buildings.

Pope Pius Resumes Daily Audiences

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, Sept. 1 (Reuters)—Pope Pius today ended his 18-day vacation—the only one he will take during the present holy year—and resumed his daily audiences at which he personally receives between 200 and 300 people.

He is expected to remain at Castel Gandolfo possibly as late as November before returning to the vatican.

Nuclear Power Costs About Same As Ordinary Fuel

Birmingham, England, Sept. 1 (Reuters)—Six hundred tons of fuel with a one-per-cent use of uranium could produce all Britain's required electricity, an atomic expert said today.

Sir John Cockcroft, director of Britain's atomic research centre at Harwell, said that nuclear power costs would not be much different from the cost of ordinary fuel.

However, before nuclear furnace of this kind could operate, they would require much higher temperatures than the present atomic piles at Harwell, he said.

Sir John told the physics section of the British Association for Advance of Science that, if such a project were found feasible, construction of an experimental power plant would take from three to five years.

KU KLUXER ARRESTED

Conway, S.C., Sept.1—(AP)—Sheriff C. E. Sasser said last night that the Grand Dragon of Ku Klux Klan in South Carolina has been arrested and charged with "conspiracy to stir up mob violence." Sasser said the charge was brought against Thomas L. Hamiltin in connection with a Klan parade staged last Saturday in a Negro section.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC

One of the long weekends of the year is at hand, the Labor Day weekend, which in Canada and the United States attracts the greatest throngs of holidayers to the highways and roads. Labor Day holiday is looked upon as virtually the end of summer, though the season does not end until almost three weeks later.

This year will be no exception to the custom of travel and celebration of the day. It is the time when the hint of approaching autumn is in the mind of everyone and is therefore one of the great occasions of the year. And so it is to be expected that possibly there will be record crowds on th roads and highways this weekend with many returning from the summer's holiday at camp and others going back to the camp for the long weekend.

There will be an endless procession of motors on the highways and therefore it is customary to point out the need for extra care and caution in driving at this time.

Every motorist and motorcyclist, every pedestrian who has occasion to use the highways or roads has every reason to drive or walk with caution and observance of the highway traffic rules and regulations so as to avoid any mischance or accident. With congestion on many roads to be expected there will be required of every driver and pedestrian the exercise of care at all times and places so that the happy occasion of this last holiday of the summer may not be marred by reason of accidents.

Carefulness is the watchword of road travel at all times and particularly at this season. It has its own abundant reward in safety and it behooves him who uses arteries of traffic to observe regulations governing travel with every precaution. He has the right to expect of every other driver as well as of himself the fullest obedience to the rules and regulations of traffic which are aimed to safeguard all who use the roads.

In that way travel will be safe for all.

END OF RAILWAY STRIKE

The end of the nine-day railway strike came with characteristic precision and thoroughness and observance of the rules of railroading which mark the life and actions of the employees in the railways' service. The union heads had announced that they would obey a work directive and would call off the strike immediately the directive became law. Each man felt it his duty and went to his job with the result that the great railway systems which thread the Dominion began to move. It was one of the marvels of modern railroading the precision with which every employee fitted into his place and went about his task to carry out his duty.

As a result the giant railway systems were soon functioning. All the regular passenger and freight trains were moving normally by noon of Thursday.

Provisions had been softened in the final passage of the bill by Parliament, the Labor chiefs stating in their broadcast that there had been "distinct gains" in the legislation from the point at which the negotiations with the railways were broken off on Saturday.

Matters for negotiations now include these main points:

The railways offer the five-day, 40-hour week as of Sept. 1st, 1951, with no loss in the take-home pay of the present 40 hours. The unions want that set-up as of June 1st, 1951, though they would concede a three months' "transitional period" in which no overtime would be paid up to 48 hours a week.

The railways offer an increase of four cents an hour starting today. The unions want seven cents, going back to June 1st last.

The question of inclusion of the hotel and water-transport employees in a general settlement, which apparently is not yet settled.

LOOK TO YOUR BRAIN STEM!

Scientists of Northwestern University have announced that they believe they have discovered the physiological mechanism that controls sleep and wakefulness in human beings. They call it the brain stem. It is a nerve tissue structure extending from the top of the neck to the brain, says Baltimore Sun.

The doctors who made the experiment say they produced all features of wakefulness by electricity stimulating the brain stems of sleeping animals. Now that they have found the brain stem can turn sleep off and on, they think it may be possible for other investigators to discover just how the stem works.

Think what that would mean. You are out in company in the evening. You begin to yawn. You can't keep your mind on canasta or bridge. It is most embarrassing. But you merely give a twist to your brain stem and you are as lively as the rest of them.

Or suppose you are fond of coffee, but do not dare drink it for fear it will keep you awake. So you have to be content with denatured coffee. However, you could drink as much coffee as you please if all you had to do to induce sleep was to manipulate your brain stem.

DREAM COMING TRUE

I saw them working at their dream!
The carpenters had just begun.
Still bare were rafter, studding,
beam;
No roof to shield them from the sun,
But measurements were being made
To carpet flooring still unlaid.

No word was spoken I could hear,
But what she said I'm sure
I know.
"Your chair the fireplace must be near
And there the bookcase ought to go.
Let's take the blue prints
now and see How wide these window drapes should be."

Joy in the noise of hammer blows,
Pride in the board being put in place;
Dust in the eyes, the hair, the nose,
But love for every inch of space.
The home begun, with much to do,
Their dream, long cherished, coming true!

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 1st., 1930

The present upper bridge structure once spanned the Moira River at Bridge Street where the lower bridge is now. Magistrate Mikel informs us that in conversation with Mr. James A. Roy, one of this city's oldest residents, he learned this fact. Mr. Roy states that he remembers fifty years ago when the steel work of the lower bridge was removed to the upper bridge and set up to replace the wooden structure. According to this the present upper bridge also did service for many years on Bridge St. before its fifty years of service as the upper bridge began.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pauley have returned home after a motor car trip through the Maritime Provinces.

Mrs. C. A. Heard, Cedar St., has returned home after spending a week with friends in Rochester, N. Y.

Miss M. Campbell has returned home after spending some time in New York City.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 1st., 1920

Mrs. Charles Pearce and daughter, Miss Winnifred Pearce, Benjamin Street, have returned home from Vancouver, B. C., where they visited friends.

The Rev. Dr. C. Graham Adams and Miss Adams of Rutherford, N. J., are visiting Mrs. F. W. Denike, Foster Avenue. Dr. Graham is a former resident of this city.

Mrs. W. L. Doyle has returned home from Buffalo, N. Y., where she visited friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burley of this city are spending a few days in Toronto.

The frame residence of Mrs. Charles Lake, situated in the township of Sidney, west of Foxboro, was destroyed by fire together with the greater part of the contents. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCreary have returned home after a motor car trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls.

Mr. John Hinchey has returned home from Toronto where he visited friends.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A Scottish friend of mine declares that the greatness of the Scottish character is due to the fact that in Scotland, the people eat the food that is grown in the same soil on which the people live. Grown out of the same soil, nurtured by the same air.

Down in England, they eat foods that are imported from all quarters of the globe. With what result? The English are a throughother, mixum gatherum sort of people, with all manner of flightly characteristics such as one would expect of people who eat beef from Argentina, wheat from Canada, fruit from the West Indies, fish from Portugal and foods of every outlandish description, hardly a potato or an egg of which is indigenous to the English soil. My Scottish friend thinks that the Labor government is little enough in the way of disasters that might befall a people so foreignly nourished.

As for poor America, and Canada, he believes we are on the way to complete and utter diffusion. We think nothing of drinking orange juice every morning, imported all the way from the Gulf of Mexico. We must have our lettuce and tomatoes even in winter, grown two thousand miles away on some soft Californian slope, with never a thought for what confusion we are introducing into our tissues.

A man, like a horse, in order to have character, should eat what is native and to hand.

Very well, then: let us now Canadianize ourselves by gorging on corn on the cob, big, home grown tomatoes, native apples, indigenous pumpkins, local cabbages, domestic capons, autochthonous turkeys, and see if by September's end we cannot, in true Scottish style, look down our noses at the lesser breeds of men.

GOLD PRODUCTION UP

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP)—Gold production in Canada was 2,199,944 fine ounces in the first six months of 1950, the highest for any similar period since 1942, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Production the first half of 1942 was 2,512,000 fine ounces and in the same period last year it was 1,962,720.

The increase was registered in all the producing provinces.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

LOVE LETTER TO A NATIONAL ASSET

Miss Judy Garland,
Calneva Lodge,
Lake Tahoe, Calif.

Dear Judy,

What with a non-stop phone, a couple of columns to write, and the arguments incidental to a new television show I'm working on, last Thursday was one of the longest days I remember, and by the time 7 o'clock rolled around I was as low as a policeman's arch. Too jittery to relax, I put my hat on and strolled over to Broadway, and on 46th Street I met a movie critic who was on his way to a private showing of your new picture, "Summer Stock." On the spur of the mood and moment I invited myself along.

A hundred minutes later I walked out of the projection room with a slaphappy grin on my face, and the midget miracle which had catapulted me out of the drench and into the dazzle was a chunk of talented girl called Garland.

You see, Judy, I hadn't seen you on the screen in quite a while, and I had almost forgotten how all-fired good you are. I found your portrayal of a farm girl in "Summer Stock" as convincing as a twenty-dollar gold piece, and when you leveled on Harold Arlen's old song, "Get Happy"—well, it was Al Jolsen in lace panties, Maurice Chevalier in opera pumps! From credit flash to fade-out, I was happy when you were happy and weepy when you were weepy, and by the time the picture was over, Babydoll, you had turned my personal jim-jams into jim-dandies.

Naturally, you're wondering why I'm taking heart in ball-pen and writing you this love-and-kudos letter right out in the open. Well, like everyone else, I read the front-page stories about you a couple of months back, and from the lines between the lines I sensed that you had been having a bout with the Jim-jams yourself, and that you no longer cared much whether school kept or not.

This letter — and I know it's plenty presumptuous—is to point out, in case you haven't thought of it yourself, how important it is to millions of people in this country that school continue to keep for Judy Garland and that she continue to do her stuff in the movies. "Aw, shucks," I can hear you say, "I ain't that important." Well, let's see if I can't get it across to you with a few succinct statistics:

Approximately sixty million people go to the movies each week, and at least half of them, at one time or another, figure to see a big razzmatazz musical like "Summer Stock". Okay—pick up a pencil and do a bit of multiplying and dividing, and you'll find that your inspired shenanigans in this one film will contribute three billion minutes or six thousand years of sparkle to this pesky persimmon of a planet. And that, my plum, is more than the average mortal could hope to accomplish in a hundred reincarnations.

It gets down to this, Judy: In an oblique and daffy sort of way, you are as much a national asset as our coal reserves—both of you help to warm up our insides. And the day you stop making pictures, you're going to take a lot of warmth out of the lives of the millions of Bills and Betties who live in furnished rooms and cook their breakfasts on hot plates—me-and-my-shadow folk for whom a Judy Garland movie is the best available substitute for the kiss in the dark that never happens.

It's probably silly of me to address you as if you were a two-bit Joan of Arc, but to my bedazzled eyes that's about the way you shape up in the entertainment world. And that's why I'm hoping that by the time you wind up your vacation at Lake Tahoe you'll have licked whatever was bothering you and be rarin' to strut your stuff again before the cameras.

One thing more: Next time you're down in the dumps—if there has to be a next time —it might help you to remember that you're only feeling the way most of us feel a good part of the time. Unfortunately, we're in no position to ease your headache. You, on the other hand, through the medium of the neighborhood theatre, can do more than a million boxes of aspirin to ease ours.

Your devoted fan,

Billy Rose.

Red China Trying To Build Case Against U.S.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Chinese communists for the second time this week have accused the United States Air Force in Korea of having violated the borders and dropped bombs.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, admitted yesterday that an American fighter plane might have strafed a Manchurian airfield by mistake Aug. 27.

Despite Austin's frank statement, it seems clear that the reds were trying—to build up their broader charge of "aggression" against the United States —and this time involving Chinese territory.

Such a charge of aggression—flimsy though it be— might be used in a big way if the time should arrive when Moscow would send its own or Chinese armies into Northern Korea. Such a move would be to block Gen. MacArthur's U.N. forces should they be sent across the 38th parallel.

Many military experts regard a communist move of this sort as a strong likelihood.

Apropos of this thought, two Chinese communist armies are reported massed on the Manchurian-Korean frontier, which is formed by the great Yalu River. The strength of these forces is variously estimated at between 175,000 and 200,000.

This situation is causing much concern in Washington. State Secretary Dean Acheson said last Wednesday that the United States by word and action is doing its utmost to keep communist China on the sidelines in the Korean fighting. He added that U.N. must decide whether its forces shall cross the 38th parallel when they push back the North Koreans.

That question of whether the U.N. armies should cross the border into Northern Korea is a momentous one. Military observers generally recognize that any indication this would be done might result in Russia herself occupying North Korea to keep the U.N. troops out.

However, that strategy would bring Russian troops face to face with MacArthur's command and should fighting develop between them it must mean another world war. Therefore Russia might send in her Chinese satellite to hold North Korea, thus lessening the danger of another global upheaval.

One thing stands out rather clearly in this complicated Asiatic picture. Russia doesn't want to see another world war develop at this juncture.

London Concert Band Wins First Prize

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) — The London Technical Concert Band won the President's Trophy and a $400 first prize Thursday at the annual Canadian National Exhibition Band Concert.

Playing under the baton of Martin Boundy, the London Ont., band won the adjudicator's nod in the class for bands with a maximum of 42 players. The Stratford, C.N.R. Band, conducted by Frank Strathearn, was second.

In the brass section, the Oshawa Civic and Regimental Band conducted by J. Broadbent, was awarded first prize of $350 and the Beare and Son Challenge Trophy.

The Oshawa Kinsmen's Boys Band topped the all-brass section for bands of not more than 35 players and the London Police Boys' Club Band took top honors for boys and girls under 22 years.

Honors in the under 18 years section went to the Guelph, Ont., Police Boys' Band.

SPLASHES ON CARPET

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) —Water was splashed Thursday on Queen Mary's $100,000 carpet, on display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The water dripped through the floor when a gander, on display of the storey above, took a bath in an improvised tub.

There was no damage to the carpet.

The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has pledged itself to raise $100,000 to pay for the carpet which was made by the Queen Mother to help earn dollars for Britain.

HEREDITY AND MENTAL DISEASE

Mental disease can be looked upon as a psychological disorder of the peronality. By personality the psychiatrist does not refer merely to the individual's character but rather to the person as a whole, the way he thinks, the way he reacts to situations, the way he feels, the way he loves and hates, the way he fears, etc. Mental disease, then, may be thought of as the result of being unable to meet and solve personality problems, to accept frustrations and disappointments, to accept oneself as he is, to use one's personality in his own environment. But just how much does heredity influence the personality? Can one inherit mental disease? These are complex problems and have been pushed about and argued for many decades.

First of all, let's talk about what we know heredity can influence. The color of eyes and hair, stature, and weight are largely affected by heridity. Color of eyes and hair are direct hereditary traits, but we all know that height and weight can be altered greatly by nutrition, climate, and disease. Thus we have a new factor (as nutrition, climate, and disease) called environment. So we cannot think of heredity alone in its role in psychological disorders but both heredity, and environment.

Then there are not just the effects of the physical environment such as climate, nutrition, and physical health or disease. We must also consider the effects of mental or psychological environment. Examples of this factor are the love and affection given a child by his parents, the psychological injury to the child through fighting or divorce of his parents, frustrations in love and business and the goals of life, and the adjustment to marriage and childbearing and death in the family. You can easily see how very complicated this problem becomes.

Now let us temporarily assume that there is a chance for inheriting mental disease, or at least the capacity to do so. Won't the essential determining factor lie in the person's environment rather than in his hereditary traits? Can we say that because Mrs. Jones is a neurotic woman, little Willie Jones is showing neurotic personality traits because of his heredity? Possibly. But on the other hand one may see in Willie's behavior the pattern of life and neurotic reactions to situations that he has learned from his mother because of her place in his environment.

A person's environment is not a steady force but is constantly changing and fluctuating. So must the individual's personality make changes and adjustments to it. It may be that the ability to make these adjustments is in part hereditary but even moreso acquired by living in the fluctuating environment.

To further augment our case against heredity as the prime factor in mental disease is the application of statistics. They have clearly shown that people with no hereditary background of mental disease have developed psychological disorders. Also the opposite is true; i.e., people with neurotic, psychotic, or psychopathic parents have very frequently shown no signs of developing mental disease or personality problems.

You'll have to make up your own mind, but I'm in favor of the environmental concept rather than the hereditary one in the genesis of mental disease.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The "Shot" Racket

I have a moderate anemia, the doctor says, and he wants me to start treatment by a series of injections costing $32. I have two children to support and I can hardly afford... (Mrs. S. H.)

Answer—It is just a racket and a shameful one. Medicine for anemia is as effective given in the way the gyp "clinic" racketeers prefer. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (send no clipping, please) for pamphlet The Gray Sickness—Nutritional Deficiency Anemia.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BEHIND THE SCENES

If we could but look behind the scenes of a play, and know all the plans and long hours of practice, trials and errors that led to its final success, we would appreciate the more its gift of entertainment and artistic triumph.

If we could but look behind the scenes and note the careful and self-sacrificing efforts that are going on night and day, in laboratories and experimental stations, where scientists are seeking out remedies for a safer and happier life for us all, we would pay greater honor to those who give their lives and strength to humanity as a whole.

If we could look behind the scenes and see the personal struggle of many men and women who smilingly and with great courage face the difficulties that may be theirs, we would be less complaining, more thoughtful toward others, and more inspiring human beings. The human heart is a closed chamber. Only its owner knows what goes on in there, so that to judge another is serious business.

Behind the scenes of human progress are to be found the most inspiring stories in all this world. Little by little they crop out, are recorded, and made examples by which we too may take heart and courage, and be among those who have helped to make a happier world. And in all these stories may be found instances of high resolve, undying courage, and personal unselfishness, as well as many a day of poverty and defeat.

Behind the scenes in Nature may also be found many a striking lesson by which we may all take heart. Think of the trapped animal who gnawed his feet off in order to gain his freedom again or the little bird, cheerful in the cold, with a song still left in its tiny heart! Everything in Nature has a continual struggle on its hands for survival, yet there is a continual rebirth of all her forces. Her life is perpetual.

There is a behind the scenes to every enactment in life. We need to take note of them. They are all significant!

DO YOU NEED A NEW WATCH

At a recent committee meeting, one member sat down at the table and laid his watch before him in plain sight. "I can stay until eleven-thirty," he said.

"No," replied the first man, "what I need is not a stop-watch but a go-watch."

Probably many of us would do better in life with a go-watch, if there were such a thing—a device not just to measure time, but to make us get started. We fail to accomplish so much because we never get to it. And that happens so often. The better job we want never comes because we never begin to look for it. The great book remains unwritten because we never put the first word of it on paper. The great invention never appears because we never get around to trying out our idea.

Of course, some people fail in their efforts because they lack endurance. But most of us have a certain doggedness that makes us want to finish what we begin. What we actually start to do, we do pretty well. But the things we just don't ever quite start to do—that's where we need a go-watch.

Record Enrollment of 1955 Will Strain to the Limit Accommodation at Schools

Trenton. (Special.)— When school opens Tuesday morning, Trenton's already overcrowded schools will be strained to the limit by this year's record enrollment of 1995 pupils. In addition to these students, there will be approximately 360 children of RCAF personnel attending Breadner Public School.

The following table shows that every school in town has an increase in enrollment over last year. Pupils of North Trenton School are included with Dufferin Street School.

Trenton High School	375	328
College	740	671
Dufferin	480	430
St. Peter's	400	375

Temporary rooms have been equipped in most of the schools to accommodate the increase in enrollment. The auditorium of Trenton High School will be used for a classroom and College Street Public School has added two basement rooms to relieve the crowding. A cloak room is being pressed into service as a classroom at Dufferin Street School.

Three New Teachers.

Three new teachers have been added to the high school staff. They are Mr. R. Sheffield, Oshawa; Mr. Stuart Foden, Toronto; and Mr. A. Frost, Honeywood.

Dufferin Street School will have four new teachers: Mr. A. Harris will teach grades 3, 4 and 5, from North Trenton School that are being moved to Dufferin Street School. A member of the supply teaching staff last year, Mrs. G. Hemstreet has been added to permanent staff and will teach grade 4, at Dufferin Street. An exchange teacher from England, Miss L. Holgate, will replace Miss Judge, who is teaching in England this year, Miss Holgate will teach grade 1.

The staff of College Street School will have six new teachers. They are: Mr. Robert Bodkin, Toronto; Miss Dorothy Harkness, Cochrane; Miss Joane Healy, Kirkland Lake; Miss Edna Moore, Trenton; Miss Beryl Gilbert, Trenton, and Miss Dorothy Baker, Ottawa.

Miss Elizabeth Galley, who taught at Ardberg last year will be teaching grades 1 and 2 at North Trenton.

Staff or 14 at High School

Trenton High School has a staff of 14, College Street has 21 teachers, Dufferin Street, 12 and St. Peter's 10.

There have been no changes in the principal's of the various schools from last year. W. G. Spencer is the principal of Trenton High School, V. P. Carswell, supervisory principal of public schools and principal of College Street School, Frank Sherbert is principal of Dufferin Street School and the principal of Breadner School is George Dwyer.

CNE Theme Song Is 'Rain, Rain Go Away'

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) — The rain-plagued Canadian National Exhibition had a new theme song today as it moved into the halfway mark of its annual 16-day extravaganza.

The theme song: "Rain, rain, go away."

Hollywood comedian Danny Kaye started it all when he fell with a resounding "boom" on a slippery open-air stage in the middle of the evening grandstand performance last night.

Soaking wet from a heavy shower that fell on the grounds, Kaye jumped up unhurt and singing "Rain, Rain Go Away," then continued his performance right to the end.

Heartily echoing the song today were C.N.E. officials, who have watched four straight days of rain and showers hold down attendance figures and interrupt some scheduled events.

Attendance yesterday was 178,000, 3,000 down from the same date last year. Total attendance, however, still is 7,500 more than it was at the same period last year.

Highlight of the program today—press and radio day— was the opening tonight of the big C.N.E. horse show which will continue until the exhibition ends Sept. 9. Tonight's performance has been thrown open to the public without admission in a bid to stimulate interest in the show. The official opening is tomorrow night.

In a wide-ranging program yesterday, Ontario cattle men and sheep breeders paraded their livestock before the judges in the livestock show ring.

Brig. John M. (Rocky) Rockingham, leader of Canada's new army brigade, paid a flying visit to the Ex to inspect the big tri-service defence display, and took the salute at a march-past of the army-navy-air force precision-drill team, a featured attraction at the nightly grandstand performance. He returned to Ottawa by air later in the evening.

A special attraction last night was a 10-minute performance by the crack Calgary Stampeders' MacCabees drill team. Dressed in eye catching red-and-white cowboy shirts and 10-gallon stetsons, they visited the C.N.E. yesterday while returning to Alberta after winning a drill-team competition at the MacCabees convention in Detroit last week.

Trenton Flyers Regain Top Position in Loop

Trenton Flyers regained top position in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League last night, when they downed 6RD 3-1. Both teams were below strength at the kick-off with play being wide open.

Whyte and Grignon gave the Flyers a two-goal edge in the first half booting in the only goals.

In the second half Loutit brought the Repairmen back into the game with a solo effort, but Silver put the game out of reach when he smashed in a penalty shot.

Lineup

6 R.D.: Warren, Batt, Rimmer, Eatherley, Fletcher, McNeil.

Referee, Les Digby. Linesman Brown and Carter.

SENT TO TRIAL

Newmarket, Sept. 1 (CP) — Melville Fountain of Bobcaygeon Ont., yesterday was committed for trial on manslaughter charges. He drove a car in which two passengers died after collision Aug. 5 near this northern suburban of Toronto.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Choose Your Beliefs With Care

By ROY L. SMITH

There is an old lie which says: "It makes no difference what you believe as long as you are honest in your belief."

As a matter of fact, it makes all the difference in the world what you believe for your belief makes you what you are. A cowardly belief will make you a coward, and a courageous belief can make of you an heroic soul.

Our Sons Discovered This

Out in the South Pacific our boys made the discovery that the Japanese soldier was the most dangerous enemy any man could face. His life was to him a matter o. indifference because he believed if he died in defence of his emperor he would go immediately to a hero's heaven, and enjoy a special status among a people divinely destined to rule.

The thing that made the Japanese soldier so dangerous was not the tommy gun he carried, nor the sack of grenades at his side. It was—of all things—his theology!

Beliefs Transforms Us

It would be easy to cite a long list of the world's great whose lives have been given new directions because they suddenly came upon a new truth to be believed. Some great light broke in upon their minds and they underwent a transformation which made them new creatures.

Saint Augustine is one of these notables. A wastrel a libertine, and the despair of his parents the young man suddenly awakened to the majestic meaning of the Christian faith and became one of the great scholars and thinkers and saints of all time.

A Redeemed Coward

This man Peter in this week's lesson is a thrilling example of what can happen in the life of a plain person when they are gripped by a great conviction.

As a prosperous business man of Capernaum, he had been engaged in the fishing business at the time he threw in his lot with the young prophet of Nazareth. Impulsive, headstrong, a powerful personality, he was one of those individuals who is built in only two gears—high speed forward and reverse.

> The Sunday School lesson for September 3: "Peter, Who Became a Man of Power," Matthew 16:13-17; Luke 22:54-62; John 21:15-17; Acts 2-5.

One of the most shameful episodes in the New Testament is that scene in which, terrified by the simple question of a teen-age girl, he denied ever having known Jesus or ever having had anything to do with Him. An hour before he had protested his loyalty to high heaven.

Yet oddly enough only a few days later Peter was chosen by the disciples to represent them in the supreme crisis of their lives. With superb courage he faced those who could very easily have done him to death, declaring his confidence in Jesus and defying those who treated Him.

What Had Happened?

Look at those two pictures of Peter and you declare they are not potraits of the same man. The coward could not suddenly become the rock. It is humanly impossible. "Can the leopard change his spots?"

But it did happen. Cowardice was displaced by courage of the highest order, because something tremendous had happened which changed Peter's whole system of belief.

Jesus of Nazareth had risen from the grave, and had walked among His disciples as one alive, living, breathing, talking, preaching and encouraging the terrified.

It is impossible to explain the Christian Church without the resurrection of Jesus. Except for the sublime fact, and the effect it produced on the thinking of such men as Peter, there would never have been any Christian Church. There would have been no Christians.

Peter the fisherman could not look upon a risen Christ and ever be the same again. There was a dynamic in that event which had the effect of transforming cowards and making heroes of them.

The Basic Test Of Christianity

The basic test of Christianity is not what Christians believe but what happens to them as a result of their believing.

This world is full of theologies, as was the world into which the Christian faith was thrust.

But it was not their theology which distinguished the Christians. They took the world captive because they outlived the pagans of their day. They lived a quality of life which was so superior that it made the non-Christian world wistful. It was a common thing to hear the pagans say, "See how these Christians love one another!"

No church need be concerned about its future, if it is bringing about transformations in the lives of stricken and terrified people. There is something about the great doctrines of the faith which changes men and makes them different. As long as that continues to happen there's a future for religion.

Ontario Liberals Meet in November To Choose Leader

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) — The Ontario Liberal Association today issued an official call for election of delegates to the Toronto convention Nov. 9-10 which will pick a provincial leader to succeed Farquhar Oliver, who resigned a year ago.

To each of the 90 provincial riding associations went an invitation to name six delegates and six alternates, said Secretary W. G. Hale, who reported that arrangements for the convention are well advanced.

Mr. Hale said preparations are being made for about 1,000 voting delegates and some 500 or more guests. In addition to representatives of the riding associations, accredited delegates will include Liberal Privy Councillors and Senators in Ontario; all Liberal candidates in Ontario in the last federal and provincial general elections; officers of the Ontario Liberal Association and its women's and young people's organizations, its management committee and committee chairmen.

Two Candidates In

Two candidates definitely in the field for the leadership are Campbell Calder, member of the legislature for London, and Walter C. Thomson, federal member for Ontario constituency. Others may enter the field before convention day.

Mr. Oliver, who represents Grey South in the legislature was elected leader after the resignation of Mitchell Hepburn in 1945.

The convention is also the association's annual meeting and in addition to selecting a leader will also consider a new Liberal policy statement being prepared by a committee under the chairmanship of Colin A. Campbell, former Ontario Minister of Public Works.

Active in convention arrangements are Norman Mathews of Toronto, association president, and William A. Bennett of Toronto, chairman of the general convention committee.

Keep Healthy for Beauty

No girl can look pretty if she neglects the fundamental laws of health says Movie Star Janet Leigh. Eat the proper food, get lots of rest, the star advises

By HELEN FOLLETT

THANKS to cosmetic chemists; orchids to beauticians! They direct the sisters toward the good looks goal, help them to get there. Fragrant creams lubricate the skin, tend to keep the surface smooth, add to a state of cleanliness. From the rouge compact we extract the understudy for the natural blush. Powder, lotions, nail pretties boost a lady's morale.

But that is not the whole beauty story. You must keep the complexion in a healthy state by being a follower of the Goddess Hygeia. If you do not eat properly you will not have a skin of good coloring; it will be a pale or yellow. If you keep late hours, tear around to parties, do not get sufficient sleep, you will be courting wrinkles; no magic cosmetic will erase facial furrows. You need sunshine, fresh air, exercise.

Lines of Fatigue

Nothing will wipe away the lines of fatigue except rest. You have to keep your motors recharged, you can't do it if you drive yourself to a state of exhaustion. A jittery nervous system will age you! for that there is no remedy but peace of mind. The penalty for nervous kinks comes in the form of sagging tissues, dull eyes, pouches under the soul windows, lagging footsteps.

To live well and happily, nutrition must be maintained. The boss of the commissary department must plan the family's meals carefully. They must include the proper proportions of fat, protein and carbohydrates. That means that one should have meat, eggs, sea food, dairy products, fruits, cereals and vegetables.

That women are learning more and more about balanced meals is proved by the fact that the young generation is made up of husky young men and women who, as a rule, are taller than their parents.

TO HOLD REUNION

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

The life of a king wasn't always the life of Reily in early England. At royal feasts, for instance, every sensible king was attended by his physician who warned him when he was to stop eating.

It must have been disconcerting when the royal doctor stepped up to the head of the table and said, "You've had your third fowl, bub. You'd better stop."

We are in debt to English cookery for creating the hearty meat and poultry pies which are so well liked today. Chicken pie with vegetables, brought bubbling hot to the table, is the kind of dish you can serve to guests without any last minute fuss or commotion.

The pie can be made hours before hand and placed in the oven 30-40 minutes before serving. If it is not eaten the moment it is taken from the oven, that is all right, too, since the pie dish and the crust will hold the heat a long time.

Use canned cream of chicken soup slightly diluted for the gravy and prepared pie mix, as time savers, if you wish.

Chicken Pie with Vegetables.
Serves 4.

In a large mixing bowl place 1 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt and 1-2 cup vegetable fat at room temperature. Chop the shortening with a pastry blender until the pieces of shortening are the size of peas. Sprinkle 4 to 6 tablespoons cold water over the mixture, pressing it together gently with the back of a knife until it forms into one lump.

Chill the dough in the refrigerator.

Simmer a 4-5 pound fowl in salted water until tender, about 2 1-2 hours. 20 minutes before the cooking is completed, add to the hot liquid 2 cups of sliced carrots, 2 cups of diced celery and 2 cups of small thick slices or balls of potatoes. Simmer until vegetables are tender. Remove the fowl. Drain the vegetables, reserving the liquid.

In a saucepan melt 4 tablespoons fat. Mix in 4 tablespoons flour without browning. Gradually add 2 cups hot broth in which fowl was simmered. Cook sauce 10 minutes. Add 2 teaspoons grated onion. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Combine sauce and chicken. Spoon the mixture into a round or square baking pan or casserole. Add the carrots, celery and potatoes.

Moisten rim of baking dish with water. Roll out crust to fit top of baking dish. Place crust on top dish, press edges of crust on rim of baking dish. Cut 4 slits in top to permit steam to escape. Bake in a hot oven 450 degrees 30-40 minutes or until browned.

Miss Goodenough Presented With Travelling Clock

A surprise party was held recently at the home of Miss Betty Gibson, Burnham Street, when several girl friends met to pay honor to Miss Helen Goodenough, who was leaving shortly to begin as nurse-in-training at Oshawa General Hospital.

After a social time spent in games and a general tete-a-tete, Helen was presented with a fine travelling clock, as a token of affection and esteem in which she was held by her friends, who also extended good wishes for her success in her chosen field of labor.

SEPTEMBER IS CHILD FOOT HEALTH MONTH

Bring your children in for an expert fitting!

We specialize in fitting children's shoes and every member of our staff has been specifically trained in this field. We realize as well as you do how important a child's shoes are in affecting his or her feet, posture and general well-being.

1. Three-quarters of an inch more than the actual foot measure should be allowed in the length of a child's shoe.

2. The heel must neither pinch nor slip and the heel seat must be wide enough to give the child a firm base with ankles straight and weight evenly distributed.

3. The natural development of growing feet depends on unhampered movement .. which requires soft, flexible leather and proper width.

4. The shoe must fit the curves of the arch with reasonable snugness and the outer arch of the foot must have firm contact with the sole of the shoe.

It takes more than 10 years for the 26 bones in your child's foot to develop. Watch that growth carefully! Select suitable footwear and replace with larger sizes whenever needed.

ALL FITTINGS CHECKED BY X-RAY

QUINTS' PRISON

Callander, Ont.—The five stolid 'teenage girls who set the world on its ear 16 years ago by getting born are living a quiet and almost anonymous life in behind a ten-foot steel mesh fence topped by barbed wire.

In Callander, which calls itself "The Fisherman's Paradise" and has long since taken the miracle for granted, a faded sign says: "To see the Dionne Quintuplets Turn Right 300 feet."

Short of a letter from the Pope or an accident (as in our case) you have about as much chance of seeing Marie, Emilie, Anette, Cecile, or Yvonne as you have of seeing the Hope Diamond.

They say that ten or twelve years ago when you followed that arrow into the country two miles east from Callander on a Sunday there'd be as many as 8,000 cars in the broad concrete parking area at the scene of the birth.

Oliva "Pop" Dionne was always the star of the show in those days, I'm told, scrawling his autograph at 25 cents the customer and watching with pleasure as the tossed quarters piled up in two milk buckets. Today he's a sharp tempered, unpredictable man, and when we met briefly yesterday I got one of the classic brush-offs, his customary treatment of the press these days.

It was Pop's fight to take his five daughters from the public gaze (he once bluntly announced that he hoped the public would henceforth keep its nose out of his affairs) that has now earned the girls their strange and unnatural privacy in behind the "Keep Out" signs.

In less than two years the five sisters will split $1,500,000 from Ontario's trust fund under the 'Quintuplet Act.' What use it'll be in their prison is anybody's guess.

Show Over ..

To visit now the scene of Mama Dionne's little surprise is somewhat like looking at a circus in winter quarters.

You round a bend of the highway and find that the asphalt road fans out to six or eight times its normal width and with buildings on either side. One lone car with Ohio license plates was pulled up in the area when we made our visit.

To the left we saw the high wire fence and behind it, stark and institutional, the huge, buff-colored, brick, Georgian-style home in which the Dionne's live. A blue Madonna stands in one second-storey window. The story is that "Pop" Dionne was asked to choose from a portfolio of architectural designs and selected this style in spite of the advice that it would look weird in this rough northern terrain.

Also in the enclosure are the chapel where the nuns, who teach the quints are living. Beyond is what was once the Dafoe Nursery, where some five million tourists ogled the infants. It is known as Villa Notre Dame the schoolhouse for the five girls and a small, carefully chosen group of French-Canadian girls of their age.

Directly across from the stark Dionne home is the dreary little homestead where the girls were born. It is the home now of one of the older Dionne boys and his family, and is in almost theatrical contrast to the foreboding brick mansion across the way. Fronting both places are large "No Admittance" signs.

Down the road apiece is the souvenir stand with a sign across its facade: "Oliva Dionne's Booth — Souvenirs, Gifts, Refreshments." Another booth, operated by Madam Legros, "Midwife to the Quints," is at the far end of the parking area.

The goods on display are relics from another decade. Pictures and postcards of the girls show them as babies. There is dust on the cash registers with the name Oliva Dionne printed on them. The Ohio tourists, I saw, were examining a doll that must have lain there 10 years.

Nearby was the wooden bin, once filled with stones which childless couples carted hopelessly away. It is empty now, for the pilgrims no longer come to the shrine of fertility.

Pop Says No

Writers and editors of the North Bay Nugget, who have chronicled the Dionne story from the beginning, said I would have no chance of talking with "Pop" or any of his famous brood. Perhaps rightly so, in view of his long fight for control of the quints, he's a suspicious and short-tempered man. I thought I'd have a try at it anyway.

As I approached the "No Admittance" sign the Chinese red door of the mansion opened. "Pop" Dionne and two of the quintuplets emerged and walked to the two-car garage. They skirted a big black Buick sedan and climbed into a panel delivery truck.

The girls were identically dressed in blue slacks and green sweaters. Their black hair was uncovered. From a distance they seemed slimmer and more graceful than they do in pictures.

I went through the barrier as the car came down the driveway. It stopped and Dionne, whom I recognized from pictures bounded out and said, "Where you think you're going Mac?"

He is a slim and almost handsome man. His brown worsted double-breasted suit must have cost plenty of quarters. The girls were out of sight in the van.

"I'm a newspaperman. . ." I begin.

"Yeah, I thought so," Dionne said. "Can't you read signs?"

"I'd like to arrange an interview," I said. "Your telephone isn't listed and I had no way of contacting you."

"Well, you can't see Mr. Dionne," Dionne said abruptly, apparently deciding I hadn't identified him. "He's out of town." He turned and got back into the car and drove on down the road.

I followed it down to the high wire fence. Two pairs of dark, curious eyes looked out from the narrow rear window of the truck

SPIRITED SWORD DANCE

Halifax —(CP)— Two women, neighbors at nearby Terance Bay, celebrated their birthdays together — and wound up in court. One charged that the other hit her with a shovel while they were performing the "graceful evolutions" of a sword dance. The magistrate dismissed the charge after warning against "double-barrelled" birthday parties.

Mayor in Exile Conducts City's Business as Usual

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 1 — (CP) —A government in exile, led by elusive Mayor Orville Hubbard of Dearborn, Mich., is carrying on that city's business from a hotel room in Windsor.

Mayor Hubbard, who has good reasons for not returning to Dearborn, held a meeting of his department heads Thursday. It was probably the first time a city administration was conducted across an international boundary.

The breezy, fast-moving mayor didn't seem to be minding his exile. Not as much as he would mind a return to Dearborn, or Wayne county.

He faces a possible nine-month jail term as a debtor if he returns to the domain of the Wayne county sheriff. Several months ago Mayor Hubbard lost a $7,500 libel suit to John L. Fish, Dearborn attorney who was unable to collect the money and ordered a body writ against the mayor. The mayor has stayed clear of the sheriff ever since.

The writ can put the mayor in jail for nine months.

WORKERS GRANTED WAGE INCREASE

Detroit, Sept. 1—(AP)— The United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.) said Thursday the Hudson Motor Car Company has granted a seven-cent hourly wage increase to 20,000 employees.

Delwin Craig, president of Hudson U.A.W. Local 154, said the company also would give an additional three cents to skilled workers.

Hudson thus becames the fourth automobile manufacturer to accept the current wage pattern. The others were General Motors, Chrysler and Packard.

Survey Shows 8,059 Lawyers in Active Practice

Toronto, —(CP)—Canada today has 8,059 lawyers in active practice, proportionately fewer than at any time since 1900. One-third are in Toronto or Montreal.

These and other facts were disclosed today in the first of a series of reports on a survey sponsored by the Canadian Bar Association and financed largely by the Carnegie Corporation of New York.

The report, released by C. P. McTague of Toronto, survey director is in effect a census of barristers and solicitors. It was published today in the Canadian Bar Review and will be followed later by studies of various other aspects of the profession.

A second report, about lawyers' income and fees and other economic aspects will be released soon. When all reports are complete, the survey council—21 lawyers and business men appointed by the bar association—will publish a summary of its findings.

2,943 In Ontario

The census shows these conditions:

Canada has one lawyer for every 1,681 residents—compared with one in 862 in the United States. The number of lawyers by provinces, with the respective ratios:

Newfoundland—55, for 6,327; Nova Scotia—269, one for 2,397; New Brunswick—214, one for 2,411; Prince Edward Island—41, one for 2,292; Quebec—2,603, one for 1,494; Ontario—2,943, one for 1,498;; Manitoba—459, one for 1,694; Alberta—430, one for 2,025; Saskatchewan—371, one for 2,320; British Columbia—668, one for 1,667.

Lawyers to favor practices in metropolitan cities or in small towns and villages, the report shows. Least well served are towns and small cities of 5,000 to 25,000 population.

Fifty-three per cent of lawyers practise with one or more other lawyers, whereas two-thirds of United States lawyers are in independent practice.

The number of women lawyers is increasing steadily; there was one 50 years ago; now there are 113.

Thirty per cent of all lawyers are King's Counsel, slightly more than half are 45 years of age or under.

Lawyers generally are older in Western Canada than in the east. Young men are most prominent in Prince Edward Island where almost 40 per cent have been called to the bar since the Second World War.

School Overcrowded

The report notes that law-school enrolment is at a new peak and says of suggestions that there is "overcrowding":

"The profession as a whole has a responsibility to the public to see that the legal knowledge and skills of the lawyers are available to every private citizen for the protection and the enforcement of his rights.

"Until there are enough lawyers to meet all the needs of the general public and until those lawyers are distributed in such a way as to be most readily accessible to fill those needs, the problem of overcrowding cannot properly be discussed."

In all of Canada the report says there are about 9,700 legally-trained persons, including 293 judges and some 1,300 lawyers either in government service or not in active practice. This leaves 8,059 available to the public.

Gil Hodges Proves Himself One of Strongest Players in Loop With 4 Homers in Game

By JOE REICHLER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Gil Hodges, called by many the strongest man in the National League, has just about proved it.

The husky Brooklyn first-baseman hit four home runs last night to record a feat performed only five times before in major league baseball. Hodges' walloping of four separate Boston Braves pitchers temporarily shared attention with the hot American League pennant race.

It happened at Ebbets field as the Dodgers trounced Billy Southworth's men 19-3 to gain half-a-game on the idle Philadelphia Phillies. The Phillies lead the National League by six games.

"I was really swinging for it when I realized I had a chance at the record," Hodges said after the lopsided affair.

Hodges also equalled the major league record for total bases in a game—17. The big slugger came up six times, singling and grounding out when he didn't connect for the circuit.

He hit homers in the second, third, sixth and eighth innings with the victims Warren Spahn, Norman Roy, Bob Hall and Johnny Antonelli. Two were on base when he powered his third-inning smack. On the three other occasions one runner was on.

Hodges now is even with his entire output of home runs—23. Gil's fourth round tripper made it 153 for the 1950 Brooklyn team, smashing the club's record of 152 set last season.

In the only other National League game, New York Giants squeezed out a 2-1 victory over Pittsburgh, gaining a tie with St. Louis Cardinals for fourth place. Jim Hearn, the Giants' bargain basement pitching sensation, chalked up his seventh triumph in limiting the Pirates to four hits.

Tigers Blow Game

In the American League, Detroit's stumbling Tigers blew a 2-1 game to Washington and dropped two games behind the league leaders, New York Yankees, who were victorious over Cleveland 7-5.

The American League battle also saw Boston's blistering Red Sox climbing to within half a game of Detroit by virtue of a 4-3 decision over Chicago White Sox. It was the Beantown band's 16th victory in 17 games.

Cleveland, in bowing to the Yanks and losing the entire four-game series, fell five games off the pace. The Indians are fourth.

Home runs by Johnny Mize, Clif Mapes, Yogi Berra and Phil Rizzuto, contributed to the Indians' sixth straight loss. They all came off 20-game-winner Bob Lemon with none on base. Tommy Byrne started for the Yanks and gained his 14th victory, although fireman Joe Page and Tom Ferrick came in for relief chores in the late stages.

The Tigers were victimized by a former Cleveland pitcher, Gene Bearden, who won his third game of the season, Art Houtteman limited the victors to five hits, but three straight in the third inning gave Washington both its runs.

After rain had delayed the Red Sox-White Sox game an hour in the ninth inning, Boston's Clyde Vollmer walked on four straight balls by Billy Pierce, forcing home the deciding tally.

The only other American League competition saw Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns splitting a twi-night doubleheader. The Browns won the opener 4-3 and the A's the nightcap 3-2.

Roger Bowman Hurls One-Hitter To Beat Orioles

(By The Associated Press)

Roger Bowman, one of the prized pitching prospects in New York Giant farm system, is the newest member of the "I almost made it" club.

Bowman, a lanky lefthander, pitched Jersey City Giants to a 6-0 one-hit victory over Baltimore Orioles in the only game played in the International league yesterday. A triple in the first inning spoiled his chance for a no-hitter.

Bowman fanned seven, walked three, and hit a batter in posting his 15th victory. The defeat eliminated the third-place Orioles from the pennant fight.

A scheduled game between Springfield and Syracuse was rained out. The other teams were not scheduled.

Happy Holiday

Canoeing comes naturally to Canadians whose forefathers moved a precious cargo of furs on Ontario streams and rivers. Today, there is an equally rich traffic on these water courses. Intercounty Team Leading When Rain Came

(By The Canadian Press)

The weatherman took a nasty slice out of Ontario baseball schedules last night raining out all Intercounty and sandlot games and forcing an exhibition contest between an All-star team of Ontario amateur players and Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League to fold up at the bottom of the fourth.

The All-Stars led the Leafs 3-2 when the rain began. The proceeds from the benefit game were ear-marked for minor baseball in Ontario.

The All-Sars jumped in with a run in the first inning when Tex Kaiser of the Intercounty League's Galt Terriers tripled to centre. He scored on Sherry Rowland's single.

Leafs picked up a run in their half of the first. All-Stars scored again in the second but again the Leafs tied.

Final run came in All-Stars half of the fourth when Danny Brown of Peterborough Marines singled, went to second when Charlie Walsh of Ottawa was walked and scored on a wild throw on a pinch-hit single by Goody Rosen, Galt's playing manager.

Jerry Creasy of Oshawa Merchants and Stan Stenoff of Toronto Mahers pitched for the All-Stars.

The Intercounty Baseball Association batting averages were released today making official what was generally known — playing manager Alex Kvasnak of Waterloo Tigers was the circuit's leading hitter during the regular schedule.

Other leaders:

Runs: Bill Flick, Stratford 48 (equals modern league high set by Cam Pickard, Galt, 1949; hits, Kvasnak 78, (modern record); two base hits, McCarthy 18 (modern league record); triples, Russ Evon, London 12 (modern league record); home runs, Tom McGrattan, Brantford and Thomas (Tim) Burgess, London, 8 each; sacrifice hits, John Lockington, Brantford 13; stolen bases, Kvasnak 19; bases on balls, Soddy Groat, St. Thomas 57 (new league high); strike outs, Don McCabe, Guelph 41; runs batted in, McGrattan 43.

Irish MisKimmons, Stratford, led in bases with 102. He was the R.B.I. runner-up with 40.

Wilson Ready For First Race With Miss Canada

Detroit, Sept. 1 — (AP)—The Harmsworth — speedboat race with the most illustrious history of them all — comes up today in its 1950 revival.

Every Harmsworth in the 48-year-old record of the international event has had a story of its own, and so does this one.

Into the morning hours today the American three-boat defending team hadn't yet been completed for the contest with Miss Canada IV, Harold Wilson's challenger from Ingersoll, Ont.

The first 40-mile race on the Detroit River's five-mile course was scheduled for 6:05 P.M. EDT, a second tomorrow at the same hour.

After a seven-day trial period, only Stan Sayres' Slo-Mo-Shun IV of Seattle and Detroiter Horace Dodge's My Sweetie has been chosen.

Jack Scafer's Such Crust I, which won the Harmsworth first race last year, and Walter Dossin's Miss Pepsi were ordered to perform again today for the selection committee.

Speeds of more than 95 miles an hour have been recorded in the trials.

The Harmsworth is a team race and Miss Canada IV will be going it alone against the Americans.

ATTEMPTED THEFT CHARGED

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP)—"You can take the next couple of hours off," Edward Fowler, 23, told an attendant at a Canadian National Exhibition midway exhibit yesterday. "I'm here to relieve you."

The attendant left, thought it over and returned with a policeman. The policeman said later that he found Fowler rifling a cash-box. He charged Fowler with attempted theft.

Berneice Crandall Repeat Winner Of Women's Swim

Toronto, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Berneice Looney Crandall, 23-year-old Ashtabula, O., housewife who last night picked up her 4th straight Canadian National Exhibition women's professional swimming championship, said a few degrees of temperature may have stood between her and a record.

Mrs. Crandall, married since her appearance here last year, got $1,500 prize money for her one hour, 24 minutes and 45 seconds in Lake Ontario, but said she had her heart set on a record.

She told reporters the water—at about 67 degrees — was a bit too warm. It made her sluggish.

Jean Lucille Pattison, Gananoque, Ont., climbed out of the water 13 minutes and 48 seconds behind Mrs. Crandall, while Marion Townsend, Hamilton, finished third in 1.50:23. They won $750 and $500 respectively.

The tall, fair-haired Berneice, a member of the swim-famous Looney family of Warren, O., set a torrid pace and led from the beginning. She used a sprinter stroke, 76-78, throughout and picked up a quarter-mile lead in the first mile.

Coaching the winner from her pilot boat was Berneice's aunt, May Looney of Warren, who won the title in 1934 and was runner-up three years later. She believed her niece could have broken the record this time.

"She had speed and endurance, but something went wrong. It was just one of those things," May Looney said.

Marian Sadlo, Whitestone, N.Y., whose father, Bill Sadlo, Jr. finished ninth in the men's professional marathon Tuesday collected the $200 fifth-place prize. Dorothy Evans, Toronto, won the sixth and last prize of $200.

Rachel Thomas, Charlottetown, grabbed the seventh position when Barbara Elliott Lorena, Oshawa, Ont., was pulled from the water a few yards from the finish line.

Doty May Take Case to Canadian Rugby Union

(By The Canadian Press)

Fred Doty, the little quarterback who can't play football this year, may take his case to the Canadian Rugby Union.

The pint-sized veteran who called signals for three Dominion championship teams for Toronto Argonauts, wasn't asked to turn out for the Scullers this year. But when Ottawa asked Argos for his release in order to sign him as a second-stringer, the Toronto Big Four club wouldn't let him go.

Argonaut president Bob Moran said he was getting back at the Rough Riders for their refusal to let Steve Karrys play in Toronto this year. Karrys subsequently abandoned his plans to live in the Ontario capital and has turned out with Ottawa.

A Big Four rule prevents a club from signing a player who formerly played for another club, even if he is out of football, without obtaining a release from his former club. Doty says he may get a court decision on the legality of the rule.

Second seeded Louise Brough bowed to unranked Nancy Chaffee, of Ventura, Calif., 6-2, 7-5 in the first upset of the National tennis championships at Forest Hills, N.Y. Barbara Scofield, Margaret Osborne Dupont and Pat Todd joined Miss Chaffee in the women's singles quarter-finals.

Australian John Bromwich and Czech exile Jaroslav Drobny were knocked out of the men's singles, Viv Davitt of Cornell University, edging Bromwich in five sets while Art Larsen of San Francisco dropped Drobny in four.

An all-star team of Ontario amateur players led Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League 3-2 in Toronto Thursday night when the game was called for rain in the bottom of the fourth.

The proceeds from the benefit game were ear-marked for minor baseball in Ontario.

The All-Stars jumped in with a run in the first inning when Tex Kaiser of the Intercounty League's Galt Terriers tripled to centre. He scored on Sherry Rowland's single.

Leafs got the run back in their half of the first, but three errors and three stolen bases gave All-Stars a second run in the second inning. Again the Leafs tied the score.

The final run came in All-Stars half of the fourth when Danny Brown of Peterborough Marines singled, went to second when Charlie Walsh of Ottawa was walked and scored on a wild throw on a clinch-single by Goody Rosen, Galt's playing manager.

Hugh Bolton, 190-pound defenceman with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior Association last year, has been signed with Toronto Maples Leafs of the National Hockey League.

PUPILS TO SEE FAIR

Toronto, Aug. 31 — (CP) — Some 3,500 senior high school pupils will be admitted free to the Royal Winter Fair this year, Dr. C. C. Goldring, director of education announced Tuesday. Preparatory work will be done in each class so that the visit to the fair will be the culmination of a period of study on some topic related to agriculture.

Search for Rare Type of Blood For Ailing Woman

London, Sept. 1 — (Reuters)—Only three people in 100,000 may have the rare type of blood which can help an ailing London woman.

A week-long search has been going on for blood donors of the correct grouping. An international appeal has so far been unsuccessful, although inquiries have come in from many countries.

Mrs. Kathleen Hall, 46, is waiting in hospital here for an operation to cure her congenital intestinal bleeding — a complaint which runs in her family.

Her blood pressure is less than one-half normal. Before the operation can be performed she must have blood transfusions to build up her resistance.

But no surgeon will operate unless emergency supplies of extra blood of her special type are also available. No other type will mix with hers.

Mrs. Hall's case was described last night as "not as urgent as when she entered the hospital last week." Rest and care have increased her reserves, but no further action can be taken until the right type of blood is found.

Test 700 Samples

Technicians said they tested 700 samples in four days. Of these only one sample closely approximated the correct type, but it was not quite right.

One person in 200 had blood of this type. But, additionally, the blood must come from an homozygous person; that is, a person who inherited the gene from both sides of the family.

Of the samples so far received, 250 had been of the correct grouping, but all were heterozygous.

Only one in 100 of the people with the correct grouping would be homozygous, giving a chance of one in 20,000 of the correct grouping being found for Mrs. Hall.

But, as well, two out of five persons satisfying these conditions would have blood of another sub-group designated by the letters O RH//CDU E. The chances are therefore three out of 100,000. The one homozygous donor whose blood had been offered was found to belong to the sub-group with the DU in the designation instead of the O RH//CD E.

Masked Marvel Irish Strong Boy In Main Bout

The Masked Marvel, who has fought his way into main bouts on a nice mixture of skill and villany, will have to have his mixtures blended to perfection this evening when he meets Tim Geohagen, the Irish strong man, in the main bout of the wrestling card slated for Memorial Arena.

The brawny boy from the auld sod, who delights in performing deeds of strength that tire the average man just watching him, is rubbing his bone-crushing hands in glee at the thought of being given the chance to unmask the Masked Marvel. The Marvel's green hood, which by an abnormal coincidence that will rectified tonight, is just the color so dearly loved by Irish Timmy, and he wants only to tear it off from the hooded man's noggin and wave it about in its tattered condition as he dances an Irish jig to the Marvel's discomfiture.

The Marvel, of course, has no intention of being unmasked. On the contrary he intends to reduce the Geohagen strength to the status of a fable, and an unreliable and unwarranted piece of hocus-pocus.

"This strong man is just another wrestler," he contends, "and I intend to finish him off with the same ease with which I have finished off other big men. Don't let this guy's strength fool you," he warned, "I'm no weakling myself."

In the semi-final, Ray Villmer, who comes from St. Loo and looks as though he were still coming, will try to escape the manglings of Wee Willie Davis, the hatchet man from Hollywood. At the same time, Villmer who is not called the "buzz saw" because he snores when he sleeps, will try to dismember the potent Davis. The battle of hardware should shake Memorial Arena.

Canada's Fall Pastime Getting Into Full Swing

(By The Canadian Press)

There are still three weeks of summer left, but by the end of the weekend, Canada's favorite fall pastime will be well away on the 1950 season.

Some of the country's senior football clubs have already played their slightly-out-of-season openers. All but one of them will have been in action by Monday night.

In the east, Hamilton Tiger-Cats open against Ottawa Rough Riders, still smarting from a 14-7 defeat in the Big Four opener last week. Toronto Argonauts meet Alouettes in Montreal Saturday then take on the Tiger-Cats in Hamilton.

The Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union schedule gets under way with Sarnia Imperials meeting Toronto Balmy Beach in Toronto Monday. Windsor Rockets are the only idle team.

Coach Les Lear of Calgary seems pertubed by his club's two losses, but as usual, he's driving the team hard in preparation for the games in Calgary Saturday and Edmonton Monday.

Edmonton's Annis Stukus is elated by his club's passing attack and says the ground offensive will be clicking shortly. Police have arranged for extra patrols at Edmonton's Clark Stadium, since nearly 100 fans crashed into an exhibition game with Montreal earlier.

Argos Rebuilt Club

On the eve of the Argonaut invasion, Montreal's Lew Hayman added 354-pound Urban Odson to the impressive string of American imports. He now has eight and must drop one of them after the Argo game. The one to be dropped won't be Virgil Wagner, Frankie Filchock or Eagle Keyes, his three stars of the Dominion championship club of last season.

Argonauts will be facing them with a question mark—a new coach and a rebuilt club. Coach Frank Clare probably will start Al Dekdebrun, Ulysses Curtis, Doug Smylie, Bill Bass and Rod Smylie in the backfield.

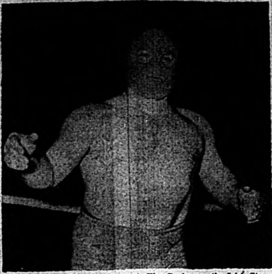
In Ottawa, the Rough Riders are desperate for a new back to replace Howie Turner, injured in an exhibition game. Gerry Morrical, 235-pound former Detroit professional, will play on a trial basis Saturday.

Coach Carl Voyles retired lineman Steve Levantis two days ago but put him right back on the Hamilton line last night. He explained "I decided we surely needed him." Voyles, too, is carrying eight Americans and must drop one after the Monday game.

Out in Regina, spectators are anxiously watching for Tom Casey and Jack Jacobs, who thus far have scored all Winnipeg's points in their two unexpected victories. The Winnipeg line has been a powerhouse, but the club still is working hard on perfecting a pass attack.

EARTH TREMORS FELT

Trieste, Sept. 1 — (AP) — An earth tremor was felt here last night. There were no reports of casualties or damages. The local observatory said the centre was about 180 miles east southeast of Trieste, inside Yugoslavia.



The Masked Marvel, who meets Tim Geohagen, the Irish Strongboy tonight in the main bout of the wrestling show being staged in Memorial Arena. The Marvel, who has been rising rapidly in wrestling's big time, fought his way into the main bout against Geohagen with a convincing win over Warren Bockwinkle here last week. Should he be defeated this evening Geohagen will have the pleasure of removing his hood and revealing his identity for good.

APPEAL TO P. M.

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP)—Representatives of Canada's 125,000 civil servants have appealed to Prime Minister St. Laurent to help them find relief from the high burden of living costs, it was disclosed Thursday.

The Civil Service Federation of Canada made public a letter which it has written to the prime minister urging him to allow the Federation an interview

With the railway strike over, the Federation hoped "that the government will find time to deal with the critical situation of its own employees with regard to adequate salaries."

GUERRILLAS ENTER GREECE

Athens, Sept. 1 — (AP) — The Ministry of Public Order said last night that a communist guerrilla band of 20 men entered Greece from Albania two nights ago. The announcement said one member of the band had killed his leader, surrendered to the Greek authorities and told them the group was an advanced intelligence group which had gone to Labania from Poland. Their orders were to reach members of the Greek communist underground.

Pigeons Dread One Stuffed Owl But Perch on Another

Stuffed owls may not do an exactly 100 percent job in keeping pigeons away, but at least they do create a bit of curiosity on the part of passersby.

With owners being pestered continually by pigeons which swarm around the property and do a really good job of messing things up, stuffed owls were recently set up on two Campbell Street residences.

The owls look extremely lifelike and would be enough to scare anything if they were encountered unexpectedly in the dark. But despite their records as being scarers of pigeons the owls (stuffed variety, that is) are doing only a 50 percent satisfactory job.

The less fierce appearing owl perched on the veranda roof of the residence at the corner of Campbell and Pinnacle Street is doing everything that is expected or asked of him—the pigeons are keeping their distance.

But across the street on the residence formerly occupied by Dr. G. H. Stobie and family, the stuffed owl is a complete washout.

For the first day after the owl was put out the pigeons kept a safe distance. But now the pigeons consider the old stuffy but one additional spot to perch.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

A penalty doubler says he can defeat the opponent contract. His double is based on what he holds and the information he has received or given to partner. He depends on a combination of both.

East had put in a defensive simple overcall in diamonds. South reached a contract of three no-trump and east doubled. West was the opening leacer from the hand you see here:

♠K 10 6 2
♥9 8 4 3
♣7 6 4

The opening lead that came from west was not the diamond suit his partner had bid. Instead, west started out with his fourth best spade. This let declarer make the contract. It started an argument.

West reminded that south had bid no-trump over the east diamond bid. Consequently, west contended, south had the diamonds stopped. So, leading a diamond would put his partner under the gun.

West went on to point out that his lead gave partner another suit to work on. Therefore, it was good judgment on his part. The fact that it turned out bad was unfortunate; not a wrong act.

There is no doubt at all that west was wrong in his lead. This is not the time for partner of the doubler to use judgment. Nor to pick out a lead of his own. Nor to figure out some stunt.

His lead should be in the suit the doubler expects. Absolutely. A lead in some other suit does not take the doubler from under the gun. All it does is take his best ammunition away too soon.

The doubler has said he can defeat the contract from what he already knows. Or, from what he has already told partner. His double is based upon partner not ignoring what he has said.

To defeat the contract a doubler depends on a lead in his bid suit. If declarer has the suit stopped he wants the stoppers knocked out quickly. Before the doubler's entries are used up.

Bridge plans are mostly betrayed by partners refusing to aid.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 1 —(AP) — Howard Hill, just returned from killing elephants, lions, rhinos and other African beasts with his bow and arrow, is home to assemble a movie from 38,000 feet of film he shot during a nine-month trip. He intends to call it "Timbo," a native term for elephant.

"I am the first person to kill an elephant with an arrow," he said, "except for the pygmies who use poison arrows.

"My arrows had to penetrate 31 inches of the elephant's hide. The only way you can kill an elephant immediately is to hit him in the brain, which is a target five inches wide and seven inches long. And he charges with his trunk up, so you have to shoot through the trunk and into the brain."

The lion, he found, is not as ferocious as his publicity has indicated. Lions may even ignore humans a short distance away, he said.

"But don't get me wrong," he added. "The lion can be a fighter when attacked. That's why the bow and arrow is ideally suited for hunting lions.

Arrows Better

"A bullet is a bruising blow to an animal. The lion is hurt by it and immediately connects the hurt with the gunshot and attacks where the noise came from.

"The arrow, on the other hand, merely stings. It is like cutting yourself with a razor while shaving. The lion doesn't know where it comes from, because there is no noise."

O.M.A. Makes Appeal For Country-Wide Daylight Saving

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 1—(CP)—The Ontario Municipal Association Thursday urged the Dominion government to regulate a country-wide system of Daylight Saving Time.

The resolutions committee recommended that no action be taken on the motion, presented by the city of Brantford, on the grounds that the matter was one to be settled within each municipality but a general vote from the floor over-rode the recommendation.

The meeting also recommended changes in provincial legislation covering unemployment relief, business assessment and highway encroachment.

Leaves Tip on Table—His Shirt Waitress Had Admired

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 1—(AP)—Waitress Louise Wolfe has received many tips, but never one like she received Wednesday night.

When one of her customers finished eating, he put the exact change on the table, then laid the tip beside it and walked out.

The tip was his shirt—a bright red and white, dotted Swiss job —that Miss Wolfe had complimented.

AT THE BELLE — Gene Tierney playing a gorgeous model and Dana Andrews as a hard-hitting New York detective with an abnormal hatred for hoodlums team again as they did in "Laura", in the new 20th Century-Fox melodrama, "Where the Sidewalk Ends," closes today at the Belle Theatre.

'Flying Dippers' Seen in Virginia

Two Fredericksburg women, Mrs. L. P. Hitt and Mrs. W. N. Le Couteur, sisters, saw the dipper from the lawn of Mrs. Le Couteur's home Wednesday night.

They described it as a "very bright light," not very large, that moved not too fast.

They said they watched the dipper for about five minutes as it moved northward. It looked like a quart sized cup to them.

Mrs. Le Couteur's husband vouched for the dipper. He said he had seen a similar dipper about two weeks ago but had said nothing about it.

fter supper ma said to pop, I wonder what's on the air, Wil-am? There surely must be somehing vital and instructive in hese exciting times. I was reedng an editorial in the paper, and pointed out that the radio was ever a greater force in holding he family together than it is rite ow in this decisive period in the verld's history, she said.

That's the truth, by gollies, pop aid. Tune in to something good nd see if he holds us together, he aid, and ma said, I'll look up he program in Cliff Clocker's ollum, he always recommends the serious high lites, she said.

And she opened the paper to the radio page, saying, Here's something, we'll be just in time, the heads of 4 women's organizations are going to debate on how far speetch should be free.

I'm afraid I'd feel embarrissed at being the only man present, pop said. What elts is on the menu? he said, and ma said, Well, there's an address on werld economic planning by Silas Egger. He seems to be a big man, the president of this and the vice president of that and the chairman of the board of something elts. Well, I dont know, it sounds like statistics, and anyway I never could take the name Silas quite seriously. Oh my, the Baffle Hour is about to start, and they always have the best mysteries. But of course you dont like mysteries, she said.

I like baseball, and that's a mystery to you, pop said, and ma said, Now William, if you want to listen to the ball game, you'll listen on the breakfist room radio.

The cabinet ministers spoke in debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, will resume the debate today, and will be followed by other party leaders.

Mr. Pearson, saying that events in Korea may be repeated on a "larger scale" in western Germany, called for a rearming of that former enemy.

Mr. Claxton did not disclose how much will be spent on European rearmament, but informed quarters outside the house reported that a bill authorizing the government to give western European allies more than $300,000,000 in arms aid will be introduced.

The defence Minister said more than 1,000 regulars are being posted to the army's special force. That move will enable the force to move to unit and brigade training in 10 weeks.

Various factors are enabling the force to complete basic and advanced—that is, individual —training in mid-November, months ahead of normal schedule. However, it would be a matter of weeks running into months after that before it took the field in Korea or elsewhere with 6,775 men in its ranks and front-line reinforcement camps, and with another 3,000 men waiting the call farther back.

Made No Reference

Mr. Claxton made no reference to reports outside the house that United States has been pressing Canada to speed dispatch of ground troops to Korea, and other reports that the force, a brigade in size, will do its formation training in Japan.

Mr. Pearson declared that Canada's part in the Korean war is limited solely to the defence of that Asiatic peninsula and does not include any intervention in Formosa or the restoration of the nationalist Chinese government in exile there.

He made clear Canada's dislike for a "preventive" war, as proposed by U.S. Navy Secretary Matthews, and said this country does not propose to "acquiesce quietly when others suggest this course of action."

Defining Canada's task in the Korean war, Mr. Pearson said:

"We should do our part. . . to defeat aggression in Korea, so that the lesson of the failure of aggression there can be learned elsewhere, where it needs to be learned.

"We should also speed our military preparations so that we may hope to be able to defeat any similar acts of aggression which—if the above lesson is not learned—that may break elsewhere, and we can never hope to do that alone."

Soviet communism, he said, may foment war anywhere.

"Tomorrow, there may be aggression against Indo-China or a civil war fomented in Germany.

"Soviet attacks will be made and whenever the members of the politbureau think the circumstances are favorable for the achievement of their violent purposes. Therefore, we must keep our eyes peeled for dangers that may arise in any quarter of the globe."

Great Danger in Germany

It was in Germany that perhaps the greatest danger of a large-scale Korea lay. West Germany was comparatively unarmed while the Soviet-dominated sector has powerfully-equipped forces.

"It is, I think, becoming increasingly obvious," said Mr. Pearson, "that the disparity between the military forces of eastern and western Germany must be redressed.

"It is no longer a question of whether or not Germany is to be rearmed, because the communist part of Germany has already been rearmed, and by Soviet Russia which controls it."

FRANKFORD

Merchants Win From Barriefield In Playdowns

Frankford (Special) —Frankford Merchants overcame a five-run deficit in the last three innings Wednesday evening to down Barriefield 8-7 in the first game of their best-in-three, third round series in the O.A.S.A. Intermediate C playdowns.

Barriefield built up a five-run lead by the sixth inning having counted twice in the first frame, twice in the fourth and three times in the sixth, while the Merchants collared lone tallies in the second and fourth.

The Merchant attack got into high gear in the seventh as they rolled for three runs. They knotted the count in the eighth with two runs and pushed over the winning tally in the ninth to win a thriller.

Rosenplott went all the way for the winners, giving up six hits.

Gill started for Barriefield but was yanked in the eighth in favor of Warwick. Warwick failed to hold the Merchants and was charged with the loss.

Rogers led the batters with three safeties. , Wickson for Frankford, and Friesen of Barriefield each had two hits.

Score by innings:		R.	H.	E
Barriefield	200 203 000-	7	6	6
Frankford	010 100 321-	8	10	5

STARTLING PURGE

The general charge of espionage was levelled at all 10 purgees. In addition they were accused of lacking confidence in the Soviet union.

Neues Deutschland said there was evidence they had been in touch with the American office of strategic services during the war. They were also said to have associated with Noel H. Field, former American state department employee who disappeared mysteriously behind the Iron Curtain in 1949.

The communists said recently that Field was an American spy but did not disclose what had happened to him.

Without party status, none of them can hope to retain their state jobs. Bauer is known to have been thrown out of the radio station already. Goldhammer has not been seen in Eisler's office recently.

The purge action, Neues Deutschland said, was taken by the party politburo at the direction of the party's secretary-general, Walter Ulbricht, named to that post five weeks ago. The same party post in Russia provided board to power.

Neues Deutschland admitted Joseph Stalin with his Spring that the Greman communist party's ranks are corroded with members who no longer can obey Russian dictates without question. This is the worst sin that can be charged against a communist.

Deprived of their government jobs but still retained as party members were Wolfgang Langhoff, manager of east Berlin's Deutschen Theatre, and Bruno Fuhrmann, Hans Teubner and Walter Beling, all of whom held minor state positions.

Cementmen Win From Planters By 6-4 Score

A stubborn Stephens Adamson softball team made things hot for Point Anne Cementmen last evening before dropping a 6 - 4 decision in their final scheduled game of the season.

The SACO crew, which has yet to win a game in the 'A' section of the league were never out of contention last evening as they made their most determined bid of the year. Errors proved their undoing, however, with the Cementmen collecting three unearned runs.

Stephens Adamson started the scoring in the bottom of the second with Grant Wright, who singled, taking second on an error to the second baseman, third on a fielder's choice, and coming home on a single by Bill Frain.

Point Anne came up with a single run in the top of the third on a double by Doug. Sword and a single by Jack Hunter. They added another in the fourth when Murney Green, who got a life on an error, came home on Graham Horwood's double to left field. Sword's home run in the top of the fifth with no one on gave the Cementmen a two-run lead. Walks to Graham Horwood and Logue, and a double by Doug. Sword produced two more in the sixth. A single and an error gave them their final tally in the 8th.

Score in Late Innings

Stephens Adamson counted their second run in the sixth on singles by Temple and Wright. A single, a walk, and an error resulted in one run in the seventh and they wound up their attack collecting a lone run in the eighth on a fielder's choice, an error, and two singles.

Grant Wright went all the way on the hill for Stephens Adamson, striking out four, walking four, and being nicked for ten hits and six runs. Jim Hunter did the firing for Point Anne, claiming the win with four strikeouts, one walk, and eight hits.

Best at the plate for the winners was Doug Sword with a home run and two doubles in five tries. Wright, Frain, and Sinclair had two for four for the losers.

Line ups:

Point Anne: Sword 3b; Jack Hunter lf; Baldwin ss; Horwood 2b, replaced by Whalen in 6th, replaced by Maracle in 9th; M. Green rf, c; G. Horwood cf; Brant c, replaced by Brannigan in 6th, c, rf; Jim Hunter p; Logue 1b.

PICTON

Wellington Wins First Game From Mountain View

Picton—Wellington won the first game of the finals of Picton and District Softball League, when they handed Mountain View a 17-2 trimming at Picton Collegiate Wednesday night. The series is three-out-five, with the second being scheduled for Friday night.

Herrington starred on the mound for the lakeside village team, allowing but three scattered hits. He struck out seven and gave one walk. He was given excellent support by the whole team both at bat and in the field and they had but three errors.

For Mountain View, who had played a grand brand of ball in the playoffs to eliminate Army, it was one of their poorest games and everything went wrong from the opening inning. They had nine costly errors and after three innings lost their fighting spirit. Rowe started on the mound and went to the end giving up six hits in three and a half innings. Minaker relieved him but Rowe returned in the seventh not because Minaker was weakening but of errors the team was committing. Rowe gave four more hits before the end. Minaker allowed eight hits, six of them in the sixth frame.

Johnson Leads Hitters

R. Johnson led the Wellington batters with four singles. He hit a four bagger in the first but was called out when he failed to touch second base. In his other time up, he was safe on an error. Morris had a triple and a double; Herrington, three singles McNeil, double and single; Greer and McFaul, 2 singles each; Moore and Holmes, doubles; Johnson a single.

Wellington scored one in the first when Morris tripled and scored on Johnson's no-count homer. Three in the fourth came on singles by R. Johnson, Greer, double by McNeil, single by Herrington, but he was forced at second by Johnson, a double play failing to click, McNeil flied out and Moore fanned.

Wellington went to town in the fifth with four more, on successive singles by R. Johnson, Greer McNeill, Herrington, Johnson, McFaul. Moore was called out when he stepped out of the batting box. Two more came in the sixth, when Holmes doubled, Morris grounded out, R. Johnson singled, Greer and McNeill safe on errors, Herrington flied out, Johnson grounded to first.

Four in the seventh came when McFaul was safe on an error, Moore flied out, Holmes singled, Morris on fielder's choice R. Johnson safe on an error, Greer safe on an error, two scoring. Rowe returned to mound. Three more in the eighth saw single by McFaul, doubles by Moore and Morris and a single by R. Johnson who was out stealing second.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

A tall, grave-faced man came across the carpeted floor toward them. He wore a dull gray suit, a wing-collar and black bow-tie and a few strands of black hair were carefully combed across his bald scalp. He stopped before them, inclined his head deferentially yet managing to convey a proper impression of hauteur, and murmured, "Is there something I can do for you?"

The floor walker inclined his head again and said, "If you'd care to be comfortable at one of these tables.." He led the way down the length of the room past half a dozen couples browsing at the showcases, to a cozily curved loveseat in front of a small table holding a crystal ashtray, cigarette humidor, and a large silver table lighter. He stood aside until they seated themselves then suggested "If you'd care to give me an idea of what you have in mind I will be happy to assign a clerk for further consultation."

Her face was radiantly flushed and her eyes were big with anticipation and interest as she surveyed the long rows of showcases discreetly lighted with individual fluorescent lights to best show off the gleaming jewels displayed inside. She laid her shining head on his shoulder and whispered "Could we go look Mark darling? Do we have to just sit here like dummies?"

"That's the protocol of a dump like this," he whispered cheerfully "We'll run'em ragged bringing us things until we see something we like." To the waiting floor walker he explained, "This is a very particular occasion. I don't know what my wife has in mind but I've an idea she's the type to wear rubies."

"Rubies? Yes sir. Very good sir."

The floor walker went to the rear to confer with a trio of lesser employees who were waiting patiently for the jewel-gazers at the showcases to express their desires.

Celia seized the opportunity to squeeze Mark's arm and whisper, "Everything in the showcases looks so beautiful but this place frightens me. Won't everything be horribly expensive?"

"Probably." His manner was that of a graceful nonchalance and he laid his palms open in a gesture. "But we can be sure of getting what we pay for in Voorland's place."

A clerk came up to their table. He was young and tall and skinny. He wore thick glasses and had a prominent Adam's apple. It bobbed up and down as he said, "Mr. Thurston suggests you are interested in rubies."

"It was just a thought," said Mark. "We might end up with an emerald necklace. Trot something out for us too look at."

"Of course. For a lady, I presume. A pendant, perhaps? Or a pin for evening wear?"

Mark scowled at him. "Do I look like a guy who would want a pendant or a pin for a wife like mine?" He turned to Celia and asked, "What do you think dear? I had thought of a glamorous bracelet."

"Oh, Mark, I'd love seeing everything before I make up my mind. I'm terribly confused. Everything is so beautiful ..."

The clerk cleared his throat and his Adam's apple raced up and down. "May I ask what price range you are interested in, sir? The ruby is an extremely evpensive gem, particularly in the larger sizes."

"So I've heard." For the first time in her life Celia discerned a tone of sarcasm in his voice. "The sky is the limit if you've anything that appears to my wife." His arm closed around her and drew her close to him.

"Yes, indeed. I quite understand," said the clerk nervously. He turned and went into an anteroom.

"I've always heard that rubies were awfully expensive, Mark darling," Celia said snuggling against him. "You know I don't care whether its expensive or not You've made me so happy just remembering our second anniversary..."

"Did you think for a moment I'd forget it, Ceil?" His arm tightened almost hurtingly around her slender waist as he drew her to him. She looked up to see his face taut with emotion that matched the husky passion in his voice. "After two thousand years maybe I'd forget, but after only two?" He laughed deep in his throat and released her, then leaned forward to uncover the humidor, took out a cigarette and lit it.

The clerk came back bearing two trays lined with white satin and displaying various pendants and brooches glittering with brilliant red stones varying in color from light crimson to the rich color of blood and reflecting flashes of fire from their facets as he maneuvered them beneath the overhead lights.

Celia clutched Mark's arm, a wave of gratitude flowing through her. "They're beautiful," she breathed. Her eyes sought Mark's but he was looking at the jewels, a deep frown wrinkling his forehead.

There was only one bracelet included among the assortment on both trays. It was heavy and solid white gold set with triple rows of rubies of less than a carat each.

Mark puffed on his cigarette for a moment then turned his gray eyes to his wife to watch with amused tolerance while she took up each piece to examine it, holding the pendants to her smooth throat turning the brooches this way and that to catch the red flame from the facets putting each one back with a sigh of regret. At last she picked up the bracelet which she slipped onto her wrist tnd held it up for Mark to see.

"They're all so beautiful," she said reverently. "This bracelet . can we afford to, Mark?"

His eyes were half-closed to exclude the smoke that rose from rapid inhalations of his cigarette. He shrugged and said carelessly "Nice, but hardly what I had in mind. Those stones are nothing but dinky chips," he went on turning to the clerk. "Haven't you a decent bracelet to show us?"

The young man's Adam's apple stood still in his astonishment "The..the stones in that bracelet are each three..three-quarter carat, sir," he gulped. "Perfectly matched and beautifully cut. I assure you it's a collector's item."

"How much?" Mark Dustin leaned forward to crush the butt of his cigarette in the crystal ashtray.

"Twenty-five thousand sir." The clerk's voice was steady now, muted and reverent as though he and God had got together to set this price on so rare an accumulation of stones adorning the bracelet.

"That's about what it looks likt," said Mark, while elaborate tolerance, when the clerk said the price of the bracelet was $25,000. He waved a smooth sun-tanned hand toward the two trays. You're wasting our time with junk like this. If you've nothing better than this to show us, we may as well go elsewhere." He started to get up, but the flustered clerk forestalled him with rapid jerks of his Adam's apple and an outstretched hand.

"I understand perfectly, sir," he stammered. "Perhaps you'd like to see Mr. Voorland himself. Rubies are a personal hobby with him and I'm sure that if he hasn't exactly what you want in stock, he'll be happy to have it made up for you."

Mark said, "I came in to buy something not to order it for future delivery." He took another cigarette from the humidor and lit it. "Tell your boss that," he added, and took a deep draft of smoke into his lungs.

Celia sighed and wistful eyes followed the clerk toq the rear as he carried the tray away. "I thought the bracelet was perfect, Mark. Did he say twenty-five thousand dollars?"

Mark chuckled showing strong white teeth. "Maybe he meant Mexican pesos," he teased. "That stuff was junk baby," he went on tolerantly. "Why do you suppose I haven't bought you any jewelry these past two years? I've been waiting until I could afford the best. When peoplt look at you I don't want them to feel sorry for me and whisper, 'Dustin must have hit a streak of bad luck. Look at that cheap little bracelet his wife is wearing.' You let me worry about the price," he went on confidently as a tall solid man approached them from the rear.

Walter Voorland had been designed by nature for the position he held as manager af the most exclusive and expensive jewelry shop in the most exclusive and expensive resort centre in the United States. He carried his well-fleshed body with an air of dignified respectability which held none of the subservience of the common shopkeeper yet with no trace of the insolent hauter too often found in such an establishment. He was a big-boned man wearing a conservative brown business suit, a soft white shirt and a subdued flowered cravat. His head was completely bald and pink and his ruddy face glowed with health and intelligence. His heavy brows were bleached light tan by the Miami sun, and his gaze was direct and pleasant and friendly. He had a firm handclasp for Mark Dustin and his voice was strong and warm with only a faint touch of his native Holland accent sounding through the cultivated tones:

TWO RED DIVISIONS SHATTERED BY U.S. FORCES

Two Hurricanes Menace Caribbean And Lesser Antilles

Antigua Isolated After Second Devastating Blow

Miami, Fla., Sept. 2 — (AP) — Two potentially dangerous tropical hurricanes—each growing in both size and intensity—threatened the western Caribbean and the lesser Antilles today.

Each came to a virtual standstill last night, about 1,200 miles apart. But the Atlantic hurricane picked up speed early today and began moving in a northwesterly course. The weather bureau at San Juan, Puerto Rico, said the storm probably would continue that pace for the next six to 12 hours.

The Caribbean storm, only about 200 miles southwest of jittery Havana, Cuba, was discovered late yesterday by a steamship and later by a navy hurricane-hunter plane.

Caribbean Storm Growing

Still in its infancy, it already carried an 80 to 90-mile-an-hour punch near its centre and was growing hourly.

The Atlantic hurricane—which had dealt tiny Antigua Island its second major pounding in less than a week—wallowed less than 100 miles northeast of St. Thomas in the Virgin Island group, but still was more than 1,000 miles southeast of Miami.

After smashing the island of Antigua and St. Martin of the Virgin Island group with 144-mile-an-hour blasts, the twister lost some of its punch in crossing the land mass. Aircraft probing the furious little hurricane yesterday estimated its highest winds now ranged from 110 to 135 miles an hour—but still growing and winding up.

Antigua still was virtually isolated after the second devasting blow dealt by nature. A terse rado message sent by Pan American Airway's station at Coolidge Field, St. John's reported "considerable damage."

Third Hurricane in North

A third hurricane was causing concern far to the north. The storm in the Atlantic east of Bermuda—which had travelled from the same general area as the Antilles storm — had regenerated into a 140-mile-an-hour twister and was drifting westerly toward Bermuda.

Of immediate concern, however, were the two storms in the south.

Although the Caribbean storm showed no signs of moving, it was pointed to Cuba, still reeling from the effects of a hurricane which took 37 lives and caused millions of dollars in property damage earlier in the week.

No Publication On Labor Day

Monday being Labor Day, there will be no publication of the Ontario Intelligencer.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 2 (CP)—Synopsis: The humid tropical air which gave extensive cloud and rain over Southern Ontario during the past week has been pushed south of the lower lakes by cooler drier air from the northwest. The tropical air is still uncomfortably close but it is unlikely to return over the weekend. Some rain is falling this morning over northern sections of Ohio and Indiana and extreme southern Michigan.

Except in the vicinity of Lake Erie and in a few localities of Northern Ontario the sun is shining this morning. Generally sunny weather should continue through Sunday in all regions.

Three tropical hurricanes, one east of Bermuda, one in the Western Caribbean, and one east of Puerto Rico are being watched with interest.

Two are Killed In Car Crash Near Kitchener

Kitchener, Sept. 2—(CP)—Two person were killed and three injured Thursday night in an automobile collision a mile and a half from from here on the Guelph-Kitchener highway.

Killed were Mrs. Kenneth Shiry, 26, of Kitchener, and Herbert Barlow, 22, of (Rosalyn Ave.) Guelph.

Injured were Mrs. Robert Mackie, 26, of Kitchener; Carlyle Bates, 24, of Guelph; and Kenneth Shiry.

Mrs. Shiry, a passenger in a car police said was driven by her husband, was dead on arrival at hospital. Barlow, who had been riding in a car said to have been driven by Bates, died in hospital without regaining consciousness.

Waterloo township police said the cars met almost head-on, with the Guelph car, a 1943 model, landing in the ditch. The impact threw Barlow from the front seat into the back of the Guelph car.

Outlay For Govt. Will Double Defence Program

Ottawa, Sept. 2 (CP) — The government served notice today that it will ask parliament at the current special session to vote $442,200,000 to meet Canada's growing defence program this year. This amount will be additional to the $425,000,000 defence budget already approved.

In addition the government will ask parliament to boost its power to undertake long term defence commitments from $144,000,000 as approved in the last session to $553,000,000.

This power likely will cover a vast long-range defence equipment-purchasing program for the production of ships, aircraft and other defence weapons for Canada's forces and forces of her North Atlantic partners.

ANTI-INFLATION MEASURES WILL BE INTRODUCED

Cost-of-Living Index Hits Sixth New Peak

Ottawa, Sept. 2 (CP)—Federal action to haul down the still-rising cost of living is on the way.

Coincident with the disclosure that the official living-costs index has hit its sixth new peak since the start of 1950, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday that anti-inflation measures will be announced in a matter of days.

He did not say what type of action is planned, but he made clear it would not involve legislation empowering the government to impose a general system of controls on prices and wages.

Reports in the capital today were that anti-inflationary steps would be coupled in a "little budget" with increased taxation to meet defence costs.

Measures to be expected might include increases in personal and corporation taxes, and increased levies on luxuries such as automobiles.

There was renewed speculation, too, that the dollar might be revalued to par with the United States dollar, as a means of reducing the price in Canada of some consumer goods through U.S. competition.

About the only clue to the possible type of measures in Mr. St. Laurent's statement was that the justice department has been considering whether they could be justified without general invasion of provincial jurisdiction. That consideration was just about completed, he said.

All Time Peak

Meanwhile, the bureau of statistics announced that the government's official cost-of-living index had hit an all-time peak of 168.5 at Aug. 1 — up one point from the previous month. The index basis is 100 for the 1935-39 price average.

The indicator was pushed up during July by higher prices for meat, eggs, sugar, coffee, shoes, piece goods, eastern Canadian telephone rates, and coal and coke in Ontario and Quebec.

Meanwhile, too, the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties in the Commons moved non-confidence motions on the government's cost-of-living policy, and new consumer pressure was applied for anti-inflation devices.

During the day, the government was told by the Canadian consumer Association, representing 12,000 persons, that it views "with alarm" recent price increases in essential commodities.

'Long' Weekend Makes Labor Day Popular Holiday Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians this weekend will take advantage of the last "long weekend" of the summer months to take part in parades, picnics, meetings and sporting events.

The occasion? The first Monday in September—the 57th celebration of Labor Day.

Although all sections of the populace take advantage of the holiday, it is still organized labor which takes the initiative in parades, meetings and speech-making. With about 1,000,000 members of labor unions in Canada today, there will be many spectacular doings.

It is this family-holiday spirit that sets the North American Labor holiday apart from its European counterpart, whose very name carries pictures of riots and violence—May Day. Even back in the 1880s, when a movement was afoot for a statutory labor holiday in North America, May 1 had unsavory political overtones.

The Knights of Labor, an American organization which disappeared about 1894, started the movement towards a national holiday. Demonstrations in New York, later in Toronto and Montreal, developed into parliamentary issues.

First in 1894

Largely due to the work of Canadian-born Alexander W. Wright, editor of the Knights of Labor Journal, the United States established the first Monday in September as Labor Day—the first one in 1894. Wright argued for the September date, partly due to antagonism towards the political implications of May Day, partly because we generally have better weather at this time of year.

Wright came back to Canada that same year and lobbied in Ottawa for his dream. He obtained a sizable backing from members and then proceeded to talk Prime Minister Sir John Thompson into personally introducing and pushing through the bill.

The bill was passed in 1894, making Sept 1 the official Labor Day. The idea of the long weekend was strong, however, and the date was later changed to the first Monday in the month.

Mixed with the festive atmosphere this weekend will be some tragedy. Last year 48 Canadians died violent deaths on Labor Day; In 1948 there were 32 deaths.

But the worker who will have a chance to be with his family and friends and to remind Canada of what he has done for her would sooner be docked a day's pay than lose "his" day of the year.

FOUR VOLUNTEERS KILLED BY MORTAR

DAN MURPHY, (right)

NORMAN HUGHES

Premature explosion of a mortar bomb is blamed for the deaths of four soldiers in training at Petawawa for Canada's United Nations' brigade. Dead are Pte. N. E. Hughes, Niagara Falls; Capt. K. R. Ray, Rosemount, Que.; Pte. W. E. Brayley, Rothseay, N.B., and Pte. D. J. Murphy, Montreal. Four others were injured in the blast which occurred during a demonstration of the mortar mechanism.—Central Press Canadian.

Truman Calls for 3,000,000 Fighting Force, Warns Russia Not to Underrate U.S. Power

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP) — President Truman's call for a 3,000,000-man American fighting force to block the path of communist aggression pointed today toward greater spending, higher taxes and larger draft calls in the United States.

The plan for a broader mobilization, announced in a broadcast last night, drew quick pledges of congressional support. And Truman said "further increases may be required."

To "arm . . . more quickly," he said, the U.S. must step up sharply production of guns, tanks, planes and other military equipment, increase stock piles of vital materials, expand war-production capacity, work hard and sacrifice.

With this program the President coupled a warning to Russia against underestimating American might the way Hitler and the Japanese generals did. The U.S. has the ability and resources, he said, and let no "would-be aggressors" make any mistake about that.

The armed strength of the U.S. has been about 1,500,000. The previous goal has been an increase to about 2,500,000 by the middle of next year.

The ready support in congress for a still-higher figure underscored another clenched-fist presidential warning:

"There will be no profit for any people who follow the communist dictatorship down its dark and bloody path."

The President spoke mainly to tell the American people about objectives, and why some 75,000 Americans are fighting in Korea.

If aggression were allowed to succeed in Korea, Truman explained, it would be "an open invitation to new acts of aggression elsewhere."

"Korea is the front line in the struggle between freedom and tyranny."

The red invasion had "reached its peak," and United Nations forces now had a "firm base" in south Korea with the next job to crush the invaders. The United Nations commanders are confident that will be done.

There was an assurance that the Korean conflict would not flame into a general war—unless "communist imperialism" pulled in other armies and governments.

Greatly-Expanded Immigration Policy For Canada Urged By President of C.M.A.

Toronto, Sept. 2 — (CP) — A greatly - expanded immigration policy for Canada was advocated today by W. F. Holding of Toronto, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Addressing the directors' luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition, he envisioned a population of 50,000,000 or more within a few decades, with a higher standard-of-living than now enjoyed by 14,000,000.

Said Mr. Holding in part:

"It has always surprised me to hear people qualify their endorsement of a vigorous immigration policy by stipulating that the immigrants must be of the 'right' kind. My own view of an immigrant of the 'right' kind is a morally, mentally, and physically healthy person who, of his own free will, desires to improve his condition by migrating to a country which can offer him the opportunities that are not present in his native land . . .

Pitiful Efforts So Far

"The pitiful results from any efforts we have yet made to increase our population by immigration would lead one to the conclusion that what our government considers to be desirable immigrants are not available in sufficient numbers.

"Under such circumstances, I advocate that we follow the policy adopted with such success . the United States. During a relatively few decades they (government officials) have developed their country from a comparatively minor position in the family of nations to the foremost place among democratic nations . . .

"Because the area of Canada which we regard as habitable is small in relation to its total area, I don't think we properly appreciate how very large our habitable area really is.

"Holland, which has a population of 10,000,000 is about the same size as Vancouver Island . . . in southern Ontario alone there are 77,000 square miles; Britain has 88,000 square miles—by no means all arable or useful land . . . Alberta and Quebec are rich in natural resources far beyond the needs of their present populations.

"One must indeed be a pessimist or a defeatist to question the ability of our country to provide within a few decades a high standard of living for 50,000,000 or more, even with the incomplete knowledge we now have of our natural wealth.

"This standard of living would be considerably higher than we enjoy now, because the development of our natural resources and the utilizing of our raw materials within our own borders will lighten the burden of taxation, provide a greatly - increased domestic market for our agricultural products, make it possible to manufacture a greater variety of domestic merchandise and at lower cost, and reduce our dependence on the United States and other nations."

Lowest Tariff Rates

Mr. Holding said that since the war, in a desire to co-operate in restoring world trade, Canada has gone further than any other country in admitting goods.

MEMBERS AGREE PEACE MEANS HEAVY EXPENSE

All Parties Express Faith in U.N. Action

By D'ARCY O'DONELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 2 — (CP) — Canada's top political leaders agree that world peace depends on the willingness of free nations to strengthen their armed forces and unite against any possible aggressor.

They made that clear in the Commons yesterday during continued debate on the adddress in reply to the speech from the throne. The debate say the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties move motions calling for votes of non-confidence in the government for having "failed to provide adequately for the defence of Canada."

Prime Minister St. Laurent, defending the government's defence program, said he felt that if the United Nations could demonstrate during the next 10 months that they could, by united action, effectively put down agression "we can look forward to a long period of the absence of war—if not full peace."

There could not be "full peace while the world was in the throes of a "nerve-wracking cold war." He noted that a veteran diplomat recently was quoted as having said that the possibilities of peace now are "greater" than at any time since outbreak of the cold war. Someone else added the proviso that the free nations must ge through the next few months.

Mr. St. Laurent said he was inclined to agree with that reservation.

Gorge Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said that some look on the war in Korea as the preliminary to a third world war. He held the firm conviction that it could be the very opposite because of the swift, united action of the free countries.

Expresses Great Hope

"I have very great hope today," he said. "For the first time we have seen the free nations joined in giving a positive undertaking that collectively they will resist aggression anywhere...It may well be that if we in this country do all we can with the utmost speed the dark clouds in which we now are enveloped will pass to reveal the brightest day yet known to man."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, also expressed his faith in united action, but said that more than military aid is needed for oppressive countries. They needed food to feed the hungry masses and economic and financial help to improve living standards.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said war could be prevented through united action. He suggested that once the trouble in Korea is settled the United Nations form a brigade—not in the military sense—of men who would go out and put the spotlight on the real enemies of civilization—those who do not want peace.

Doctor Thinks Reds Tamper With Brains Of Prisoners

Cooperstown, N.Y., Sept. 2 — (AP) — Do the communists operate on the brains of prisoners in order to obtain "confessions" and statements?

That's the theory of Dr. Charles M. Pomerat, Chairman of the American Tissue Culture Association and a professor at the University of Texas medical school.

He told reporters yesterday that he believed the communists may have tampered with the brain of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty and other political prisoners to make them docile.

He referred to an operation called a "lobotomy," sometimes performed to quiet insane persons. Usually, nerve fibres on either side of the brain are cut, he explained, and this "relieves the functions of the rear part of the brain."

However, — variation developed in Portugal calls for removal of an eyeball, he said. Two nerves back of it are severed and then the eyeball is replaced. No outward scar is left, Dr. Pomerat pointed out.

He said this might be the communist technique and it may have been used on Cardinal Mindszenty before he was sentenced last year to life imprisonment.

The Cardinal was convicted in communist - controlled Hungary on charges of treason, seeking to overthrow the government and illegal trading in dollars. He was alleged to have confessed.

10,000 Communist Casualties Inflicted On Southern Front

Chongsan Only Point Facing Threat of New Red Attack

Tokyo, Sept. 2 (AP) —Reinforced American troops drove the shattered remnants of two North Korean divisions back across the Nam River late Saturday night, smashing one prong of the communists' major three-day offensive.

Victorious U.S. troops counted a toll of 10,000 red casulaties on the southern front. American navy planes, strafing and rocketing the reds as they fled across the river, added to the toll.

Other U.S. troops drove back into burning Yongsan, blunting the deepest penetration of the North Korean offensive. It fought nearly one mile west of the town. Still other American forces attacked to knock reds off three key hills near Waegwan in the north.

South Koreans reported they were pursuing reds retreating above the east coast port of Pohang. Other South Koreans were pushing communists back on highways from the north leading to Taegu, vital communications centre.

All elements of the allied air forces hammered at red lines Saturday. Superforts plunged 200 tons of bombs on three red concentration points — Kumchon, Chinju and Kochang—from which the North Koreans were feeding reinforcements to the front.

But the communists still posed at least one ominous threat to the United Nations beachhead. They were reported massing tanks to exploit the dent of nearly eight miles near Chongsan on the second division's southern flank. The reds scored their biggest gain there in the Changnyong bulge of the Naktong River line.

Counter-attacks Saturday appeared to have halted the red smash across the Naktong. The division's central and southern sectors, which had been split by the force of the original red assault, rejoined firmly.

Recapture Yongsan

Today tank-led U.S. troops rolled back into shattered Yongsan—recoiling against a sledge-hammer blow which had carried the communists 8 1-2 miles east of the Naktong River Friday.

U.S. infantrymen, who caught the main impact of the offensive on its first day, fought their way half-a-mile west of Yongsan today and began attacking nearby bridges.

This afternoon, AP correspondent Bem Price said a large infantry force of reds with 10 to 15 tanks was observed three miles west of Yongsan, possibly preparing a counter-attack.

Yongsan guards the road to the Taegu-Pusan highway, 12 miles east of the city. This highway was the first objective of the reds who had thus hoped to split U. S. forces.

Crete's Love Story Ends Happily In Marriage

Garazo, Crete, Sept. 2 (AP) — A happy ending with a marriage ceremony has been written to Crete's Romeo and Juliet love story, which for 12 days threatened to break out into a gang war.

Constantine Kephaloyannis and 19-year-old Tassoula Petracogeorgi came out of their Mount Ida hideout yesterday to be married in an isolated monastery, it was disclosed today.

The couple had been the subject of a search by 3,000 police and gendarmes following the girl's disappearance with her lover in what had been termed a kidnapping. The indignation of Tassoula's father, rich, politically-powerful Liberal parliamentarian George Petracogeorgi, threatened for a time to stir an ancient family feud into a war with the Kephaloyannis clan.

Sunny Labor Day Holiday Promised

Toronto, Sept. 2—(CP)—After several days of murky skies the promise of a sunny Labor Day holiday weekend drew thousands of people to ticket counters for out-of-town trips today.

Railways reported heavy travel on lines to Muskoka and Haliburton, while Canadian Pacific passengers seemed to favor western Ontario.

Officials said there was a rush of visitors for the Canadian National Exhibition.

Highways Minister Doucett and Provincial Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer united in an appeal to the public to drive carefully during the weekend. Twenty-three people were killed in labor weekend traffic accidents in Ontario last year.

Announces Increase Fuel Oil Prices

Toronto, Sept. 2—(CP)—Furnace fuel prices in eastern Canada were boosted 1½ cents a gallon today by Imperial Oil Limited. The increase also applied to stove and diesel oils.

Prices were boosted one cent in Quebec, the Maritimes and Newfoundland and 1½ cents in Ontario. The increase sends the price of furnace fuel to 16.6 cents a gallon in Montreal, 16.1 in Halifax and 17.6 in Toronto. Prices in other sections of these areas vary depending upon transportation costs.

The company said the advance reflects several increases in the last few months in costs of large volumes of these products which must be imported from the United States, together with higher marine costs.

NAPANEE STUDENT WINS SCHOLARSHIPS

Queen's University has just announced the award of three matriculation scholarships, the Provincial Scholarship for Ontario, the Sir Sanford Fleming Scholarship in Mathematics and the Bell Scholarship in Chemistry to C. George Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Miller Sr., Napanee, Ontario.

Mr. Miller's achievement is particularly outstanding in view of the fact that he completed the normal five year matriculation course in four years.

Price of Haircuts Advanced to 75c

It's going to cost more money in Belleville come Tuesday for men and boys to get a hair cut!

Prices for an adult hair cut then will be increased to 75 cents and Junior's haircut will cost Dad just a half dollar. By the same token shaves under the new rate will be 40 cents and tonics 25 cents. The increase on an adult hair cut will be 15 cents over the 60 cents now being charged.

Reason for the increase? That old bugbear — an increased cost of living, among other things. Other reasons listed for the increase include higher rents, and increased costs of laundry, tonics, towels, lights and heating. Eleven of the barbering establishments in the city will fall in line with the new prices.

POLICE COURT

As a preview to the holiday weekend, police circles were very quiet last night. The only occurrence out of the ordinary was a city police move to quell the spirit of a man who was creating a disturbance at the wrestling matches.

Provincial police had a quiet session also, with only one unusual request marking the books. A call was received at headquarters here around 8.00 p. m. last night from a Mr. Warren Trotter, of 726 Princess St. Kingston. Mr. Trotter told police that his cousin was driving towards Belleville, and that he had mistakenly taken Mr. Trotter's luggage with him.

All the provincials here had to go on was that the car was a 1947 model, and the licence began with a "Y". The car was located, however, stopped, the luggage removed and returned to the owner.

MARMORA

Former Resident Of Deloro Found Dead at Cottage

Marmora— Harry R. Haacke, a former well known resident of Deloro, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head at his summer home at Crowe Lake at noon Friday. Mr. Haacke had been alone at the cottage since Thursday. The discovery was made by his wife when she returned from Toronto, where she had gone the day previously to drive her daughter and family home from a vacation at Crowe Lake.

A .22 rifle was found beside the body and Dr R. S. Parkin, of Marmora on examination, pronounced that death had occurred about six hours previously. It is thought that in despondency Mr. Haacke had taken his own life.

Wide Circle of Friends

Mr. Haacke was about sixty-five years of age, and had a large circle of friends who sincerely regret his tragic death. He had been manager of the Deloro Trading Company store at Deloro for several years until failing health forced him to give up the position a few years ago. Since then he and Mrs. Haacke have resided in Havelock, and spent the summer months at Crowe Lake. Besides his wife he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Kerr Dorothy of Toronto, and two sons, Harry of Norwood, and Ewart of Toronto.

An inquest will probably be held.

Argonauts Meet Alouettes In Montreal Today

Most football fans will fix their eyes today on Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats— the two unknown and untried clubs of the Big Four.

Both Hamilton and Toronto had a dismal season last year. Both have brought in new American coaches and rebuilt from the ground up. Today's games will be their first test in league play in the young 1950 football season.

In the west, Calgary Stampeders meet Edmonton Eskimos today in Calgary. The clubs play in Edmonton again Monday when Saskatchewan Rough Riders will be at home to the amazing Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Bombers trailed the league last year. This year they're undefeated in two games and all their points have been scored by two United States backs, Tom Casey and Jack Jacobs.

Just as surprising are the two straight losses for Calgary, champions of the Western Conference for the last two years.

After testing their new claws today, Tiger-Cats and Argonauts will try out on each other in Hamilton on Monday.

In the other eastern Labor Day game, Toronto Balmy Beach, an Argo farm club, open the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior season against the Imperials in Sarnia. The third club of the league, Windsor Rockets, is idle until Sept. 9.

Paper Exchanges Back on Table In Newsroom

The scissors can come out of the mothballs in the Ontario Intelligencer news room now. For the past nine or ten days, the exchange desk has been bare of outside newspapers, and the piles of reference clippings on tap have slowly dwindled.

Yesterday, with a great rush newspapers held up by the rail strike descended on the news room. For the most part, they were consigned to the waste baskets, with only the most recent piled up on the desk. From Windsor, Brockville, Kingston, Oshawa, Sudbury and a host of other cities they came.

News room employees found themselves cut off from "angles". One practice is to read all the other papers, looking for stories that might have a local application. All this went by the board when only first class mail was moved during the rail stoppage.

Favorite features and columns in outside papers were missed. Editorial opinion was confined to the Toronto papers and a few country weeklies that found their way to the news room. Comic strips not carried locally will forever have more than a week's gap in some employees' minds The orderly, clean surface of the exchange table was a disturbing influence for a few days.

But now the table is piled high with papers from Western Ontario to Montreal, and all is well. The scissors don't exactly need oil, but shearing will once again become a high news rooms talent

Produce Showing Heaviest of Year On Local Market

The sun shone brightly on market vendors this morning, in direct contrast to last Saturday. And consequently the produce showing was much better today.

Prices remained at the same levels, however. In the vegetable market, cabbages ranged from 5 to 20 cents, carrots, beets and onions were 10 cents per bunch, three for 25 cents; beans were 40 cents per basket, 10 cents for a quart box; potatoes were 50 cents per peck, vegetable marrow 10 cents; tomatoes were priced between 35 cents and 45 cents per basket.

Green peppers were going three for 10 cents, and were also offered at 35 cents per dozen. Cucumbers had a wide range from 40 cents to $1.25 per basket, depending on size. Corn, offered again in quantity, was going at 35 cents to 40 cents per dozen for the most part.

Apples went down in quantity this week, but McIntoshes made a strong appearance at 75 cents per basket. Other varieties held steady at normal prices, with a decrease in numbers offered. Pears were shown for 90 cents per basket, and No. 1 peaches were labelled $1.

Cantaloupe moved from 10 cents to 50 cents each, and eggs were 53 cents to 55 cents for grade A large, with other sizes corresponding.

CAMPBELLFORD

18-Pound 'Lunge Landed After Short Battle

Campbellford, Sept. 2 — The Taylor family of Wellsville, Ohio, appear to be having lots of fishing luck during their stay at James Tait's cottages at Percy Boom, near Campbellford.

Thursday morning, Mr. Raymond Taylor landed an 18 pound 'lunge after a battle of only a few minutes, while trolling in the bay with a River Runt plug. The big fish measured 41 inches and was 18 inches in girth.

Mr. Taylor's 18-year-old son Jack hooked a 14 pound channel cat near the same spot earlier in the week. They have been coming to Campbellford for about 5 years, and always get their share of the big ones.

Mr. J. C. Birmingham, tax collector for the town of Campbellford, has left for Toronto to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Mr. A. B. Rose of that city. Mr. Rose was the owner of the National Plan, a loan company with branch offices throughout the province.

Word was received of the sudden death on Tuesday afternoon. The funeral was held on Friday, Sept. 1, Death was attributed to a heart attack.

MORE BUSINESS FAILURES

Ottawa, Sept. 2—(CP)—Business failures in Canada have been on the increase for four years, and in the first half of this year 720 went under as compared with 500 in the same period in 1949, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Defaulted liabilities of the companies concerned amounted to $12,400,000 — a 43-per-cent increase over the total for the 1949 period.

Enrollment in Universities Will be Lower This Year Due To Absence of War Veterans

(By The Canadian Press)

Second World War veterans who have crowded Canadian universities for the last five years will be missing from the campus scene this fall. Without them, enrollment in most of the institutions of higher learning will be smaller than last year.

A Canadian Press survey shows that, for the first year since the end of the war, housing for single students will be relatively easy to find, although married couples may have to scramble for suitable shelter.

While enrollment are down from those of the immediate postwar years, in most universities they still are larger than those in years before the war. The University of Toronto for instance, expects a registration of 12,200, compared with 14,100 last year, nearly 17,000 in 1946 and an average of 7,000 in prewar years.

One university expecting an increase is Laval in Quebec, where enrolment of 2,400 will be slightly higher than in 1949-50. An increase of five to 10 percent is expected at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont. which had its smallest freshman class since the war last year with slightly over 100 starters in a total registration of more than 700.

But the University of British Columbia in Vancouver expects 6,200 students, 1,000 fewer than last year. University of Manitoba in Winnipeg, while giving no figures, anticipates a drop of "10 or 12 percent."

Lower in N.B.

Fredericton's University of New Brunswick is counting on 850 students in place of more than 1,000 last year. In Edmonton, the University of Alberta expects a "slight decline" from last year's 4,253. A decrease also is expected from 1949 enrollment of 4,656 at University of Western Ontario in London and 1,155 at McMaster University in Hamilton.

Heavy enrollment in science and engineering courses is seen at McGill University and the University of Montreal. Engineering is the most popular course at University of Alberta, while arts and science share the popularity at University of Manitoba and arts and engineering at University of New Brunswick.

Registrations will be heavy for medical courses at University of Toronto and at Laval. About 600 would be doctors are expected at Laval and university officials say this is an encouraging development in view of Quebec's shortage of medical men.

The year ahead will be Newfoundland Memorial University's first as a full-fledged university. It was raised to that status by provincial legislation last year. Registration has barely started but indications are that all its courses will be well-filled.

WHAT WAS INSIDE?
An unlabeled bottle . . . a prescription container with the number defaced . . . an envelope with a few loose tablets, perhaps passed along by a friend. Often your pharmacist is confronted with these clueless exhibits and asked by customers to guess what these medicines were, and to supply "some more of the same."
Pharmacy is a science that cannot be pursued by guesswork, nor by smelling, tasting or looking at unidentified substances. When you request a medicine and give merely a vague description—or present an unlabeled bottle—you are asking your pharmacist to introduce an element of chance into his professional work. He has no choice but to refuse, for your safety is far more important to him than just another sale.
Labels should be protected; containers kept; prescription numbers carefully preserved, if more of a medicine is likely to be needed or your physician wishes the prescription to be refilled. Then, your pharmacist will be glad to help you. But he will not take chances or guess. By declining to take such chances, he is acting in the interest of your safety and your health.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

INDIANS AND FRENCHMEN, 1617 - 1785

EDITOR'S NOTE: The early history of any locality is of great interest to people who live there especially when it refers to the everyday life of the pioneers. The Bay of Quinte and Moira Valley districts are particularly rich in this respect dating back to 1615 when Champlain journeyed down the Bay of Quinte on one of his trips. A considerable portion of this early history is admirably told in a portion of the Moira Valley Conservation Report which was distributed this summer. The report was compiled by the Ontario Department of Planning and Development and it is the chapter on Land Settlement which is the source of our material. The Ontario Intelligencer is glad to give extended readership to the Report and it will be a Saturday feature for many weeks to come. It is suggested that a scrapbook be made of clippings from these articles.

The Bay of Quinte was an important waterway both for the Indians and to the early French explorers. The sheltered waters of the bay formed part of the regular route of travellers along the north shore of Lake Ontario, as well as part of the Trent Valley route to Lake Huron. The portage over the isthmus must have been in constant use and no doubt there were permanent Indian settlements there and elsewhere on the bay, before the rise of the Iroquois Confederation. However, by the time Champlain made his journey down the Trent and the bay in 1615, this whole countryside was disputed territory and too unsafe for permanent occupation by any Indian tribe. Champlain mentions no villages in the neighborhood and shows none on his map of 1632.

His route must have taken him past the mouth of the Moira on his way to attack the Irqouois in northern New York State and he may even have spent a few days hunting in the region of the Moira or Napanee on his return from this unsuccessful expedition. The idea that it was here that this hunt took place is strengthened by the words "Place where there are many deer" written to the east of the Trent River on the map just referred to.

Within twenty-five years of Champlain's visit the Iroquois had wiped out their enemies in most of Southern Ontario and were undisputed masters of the country north of the Lake. Since they had destroyed the beaver and reduced the game in their old territories, their hunting and fishing grounds on Lake Ontario had become of vital importance, and it was now essential to secure the North Shore from the northern tribes and also from the French, firmly established at Montreal. When traders from that post began once more to explore the Ontario shores they found scattered Iroquois villages of the fortified type, known to the French as "bourgs" and to the English as "castles."

The names of two of the larger "castles" Kente and Genneious in the Quinte region are well known. Kente from which they Bay takes its name is marked on French maps from 1670 on, always near the portage across the isthmus. (The evidence of the maps and other documents is against the idea that Kente was ever at the mouth of the Moira. Kente "signifies a prairie or meadow— J. N. B. Hewitt, Bureau of American Ethnology, Washington, cover quoted by Percy J. Robinson in "Toronto under the French regime," (Appendix IV, page 243.) It was the site of a Sulpician Mission in 1669, and later of a government trading post. Ganneious was on the Napanee, but its exact site varies on the different maps.

These were villages of the Oneidas, the largest and most important, but no doubt there were other smaller "bourhades" whose names and locations have not been recorded. It is very probable that one of these was located on part of the site of Belleville, most likely on the high eastern hill, where fortification would be easy, while the river flats might furnish cornfields. This was the type of site usually chosen for Indian 'castles' commanding at the same time the point where the great overland trail crossed the river, the river itself and the portage trails which led northwards up its banks. (It was to accomplish this that these villages were often placed some distance up a river. The flats at the Moira were small and swampy which probably accounts for the absence of a large village Ganneious is generally held to have been near the town of Napanee.)

All this, however, must be conjecture for the French have left little or no record of the Moira, though they were evidently fairly familiar before 1700 with the general course of the river and the lake from which it flowed. The Iroquois Castles were destroyed by Deuonville in 1687. Ganneious was particularly roughly treated. Any settlement at the Moira probably suffered the same fate. The vengeance of the Iroquois for this raid drove the French from Lake Ontario. Even Fort Frontenac was temporarily abandoned.

Frontenac was able to restore French prestige to a great extent during his 2nd term as governor and rebuilt Fort Frontenac. Kente however, seems to have been left unoccupied for some years. The Senecas, Cayugas and Oneidas did not attempt to restore their villages on the north shore and by 1700 this region was beginning to be occupied by tribes of Ottawas, particularly the Mississaugas. These Indians were in a less advanced state of civilization than the Iroquois, often moving their villages from one site to another. They made use of the flats for cornfields, however, and in consequence often settled on or near the sites of earlier villages. In 1720 the Sieurs Dagneau-Douville built permanent trading posts both at Kente and the Humber to secure trade with the Mississaugas. The post at Quinte does not appear to have been given up in 1728 when that at Toronto was closed and trading continued there throughout the French regime.

The post was now, however, of second-rate importance since the region immediately behind was no longer very productive of fur. The Mississauga settlements were scattered along the shores of the bay and there were certainly some near the Moira, for there was a Mississauga burying-ground on Lot 4, Concession 1 of Thurlow township, now part of the City of Belleville. (See the account of settlement of Belleville below. The burying pit seems actually to have been on Zwicks Island, but there may have been a place where the dead were exposed on platforms before removal to the pit and this may have been on the mainland. The camp site was certainly on lot 4, Con. 1 of Thurlow Twp.) Their hunters now drew their supply of fur from distant hunting grounds and even the Trent route grew less popular as the 18th century progressed. It is for this reason that there are few references of British traders in the Quinte region between 1759 and the beginning of the Loyalist settlements, although the Carrying Place maintained its importance. In 1784, when Captain Robertson was asked by the government to report on the various routes to the Upper Great Lakes from Montreal, he could only find one person a Mackinac who had "set out from the Bay of Kente, and that so far back as the year 1761."

It was in 1784 that the first "Loyalists" came to the Moira region. These were a band of Mohawk Indians under John Deserontyou, the cousin of Joseph Brant, they were granted a large tract between the townships of Richmond and Thurlow The original grant included part of the Moira watershed and a short stretch of the main river near Chisholm. It was known as the Mohawk Tract until the Indians sold the northern part of their lands and the township of Tyendinaga was set up in 1820.

It is probable that the Mississaugas were already few in the Quinte area. They had sold the land from Gananoque to the Trent in 1783 Nevertheless the government continued to reserve Lot 4, Concession 1 of Thurlow for these Indians and refused to grant it to white settlers or to allow them to obtain leases from the Mississaugas until 1816.

Note: Next week the story of the United Empire Loyalists. 1784-1816 will be the feature.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BIRD SANCTUARIES

At the turn of the century matters in Birdland looked really serious. Some species had entirely disappeared, others were fast dwindling. Fortunately there were some bird conscious people, including members of the Audubon Society, which came into being in 1904 for the express purpose of protecting wild birds. Through their persistence, the federal governments of both Canada and the United States instituted laws to stop the indiscriminate shooting of game and migratory birds alike. In consequence, during the last fifty years more than 100 species of North American birds have increased.

True, public interest must yet be aroused. There are too many law breakers, who kill purely for the pleasure of killing, even when the birds are nesting and the young families are left to starve. Nevertheless, our birds are receiving more and more attention. The Audubon Society has expanded enormously, adding also thousands of junior members. Sanctuaries have sprung up in all parts of Canada, backed by the government, by conservation and bird societies, and by private individuals. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police do their best to assist the custodians in enforcing the law. Even some hunters seem anxious to avoid shooting too many waterfowl, and are urging others to help conservation by preserving breeding grounds. Ducks Unlimited is a very large conservation society with its membership made up chiefly of duck hunters drawn from all parts of both countries.

One of the most important and best known sanctuaries in the world was founded at Kingsville Ontario, in 1904, by Jack Miner. Though started primarily for the protection of Canada Geese, which were fast becoming extinct, all species of birds know that there they are safe. At migration time it is not unusual for 30,000 Canada Geese to arrive in a day, stay the night, and leave the next morning. Through banding, it has been discovered that a great many return year after year, each time bringing friends with them. Some have been coming for 20 years. There is an infirmary where the wounded are cared for, and though most are finally able to join other flocks, cripples make the Jack Miner Sanctuary their permanent home.

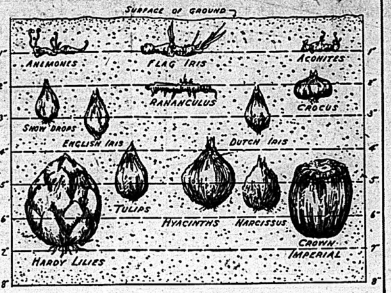
The founder died in 1944, but the work of the bird refuge is carried on by his sons. At first it was run solely on private funds; later federal and provincial grants also became necessary. It is fitting that National Wildlife Week, an annual affair, should have been arranged to include April 10, the birthday of Jack Miner.

AMBASSADOR TO CUBA

Ottawa, Sept. 1 (CP) — Dr. E. H. Coleman, Canadian minister to Cuba, has been given the rank of ambassador, the External Affairs Department announced today.

The move was made following the decision of Canada and Cuba to elevate their legations at Havana and Ottawa to embassies. The department said the Cuban government will appoint an ambassador to Canada shortly.

HOW TO PLANT SPRING FLOWERING BULBS



The above diagram shows the proper depths to plant Holland bulbs. The fundamentals of success are simple. The soil should be well prepared and fertilized. After blooming give a light application of commercial fertilizer to aid in bulb growth.

Good drainage is essential for all bulbs and it is well to put a trowel full of sand below each bulb. Planting is best done in late September and October. All Dutch bulbs are perfectly hardy but a light mulch after the ground freezes is recommended.

Stratford - on - Avon, Eng., — (CP) — The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, overlooking historic Avon River, will undergo extensive interior alteration at the close of the present season in October.

At a cost of more than $150,000, the theatre's accommodation will be enlarged to meet an ever-increasing public demand, while a complete redecoration scheme is planned along with other improvements.

Brian O'Rorke, architect for the National Theatre, is preparing the expansion plans, entailing drastic change in the theatre's original seating arrangements. The work is expected to be completed within four months.

WEALTH IN TREES

The importance of Canada's forest industry cannot be overestimated. Its problems, its history of great waste and great productiveness, the dangers it faces and the new vistas opening up for its future development are of vital interest to all Canadians, says Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, Deputy Minister of Resources and Development and Commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

In the Canadian Geographical Journal Dr. Keenleyside has pointed out that roughly twenty dollars of every hundred dollars of Canadian income is derived from trees. The nation's total exports abroad in 1949 came to almost three billion dollars, one third of which was realized from forest products. Because of this he said that Canadians have a direct and concrete interest in a free trading world.

The Dominion Forest Service, now the Forestry Branch of the Department of Resources and Development, found in an inventory completed in 1949 that one third of the land surface of Canada as a whole was under forest cover. This is in spite of the tremendous amounts of wood taken out of the forests or destroyed by fire and disease. Outside of the Northwest Territories, Labrador and the Yukon nearly sixty per cent of Canada is forest land and half to this — 660,000 square miles — is productive area.

Dr. Keenleyside points out the significance that it is not known whether the accessible forests are being depleted more rapidly than they are growing, although there is no doubt that in some cases the annual cut is much greater than the annual growth.

It is of importance to Canadians to know that in spite of commercial development of wood products, in spite of human waste and natural disaster, this country has greater forest resources than any other country except Russia and Brazil.

The needs of this day are tremendous, the demand for paper is insatiable and production cannot keep up with it. Here is a fact that stands out — three out of five newspaper pages published anywhere in the world originate in Canada.

On these great resources no fewer than 350,000,000 people are directly dependent on forest payrolls in this country and an even greater number depends in whole or in part on the health and activity of the forests.

Dr. Keenleyside shows that accessible virgin forests are now almost unknown over vast areas of Canada and second growth stands are being increasingly cut over, that production costs are high and disease is increasing. Accordingly he urges keeping down the menace of fire. Loss by fire runs into five million dollars a year and another million is spent fighting these fires.

However in spite of all the problems there is a bright future in Canada's forest development. As one instance Dr. Keenleyside points to the magic of chemistry through which wood has already been used to provide high protein cattle fodder, fur coats, potable liquor and hamburg steaks.

He says that when the full possibilities of lignin chemistry are applied as well as those of the cellulose component of wood the end products of wood chemical plants may increase by 50 per cent.

YOUTH HOSTELS

Youth hostels are located all over France, in Normandy, Brittany, the Alps, Alsace, the Pyrenees, the Chateau country and the Riviera.

This is but natural as the French people look upon vacation as important as studying and therefore hostels have become a mainstay to the young. Anyone up to the age of 35 can avoid huge hotel bills and still enjoy the beauties of the country by staying in these "Auberges de la Jeunesse." Philanthropic Frenchmen have donated large houses all over the country which have been turned into dormitories and are equipped to house anywhere from ten to a hundred lodgers a night.

Every hostel has a community kitchen complete with plates and silverware. There are double-decker bunks with sheets and blankets, scrupulously clean, that are included in the price. The initial subscription fee is 350 francs ($1) which entitles the entrance into any and all hostels, with use of all their facilities. The rest costs 60 francs per night for your bed, use of shower, kitchen, parks and playground. 60 francs is about 20 cents in American money. As the French Information Service notes "There is no bigger bargain in the world."

Europeans have been for long enjoying vacations in this way. Travel means that they have a wide acquaintance with their own country and other lands.

But not only the French youth travel, travel and touring are part of the life of the people. During the past summer there have been large numbers of people from America and other parts of the world enjoying tours in France, Britain, and other lands which are rich in the appeal they have for the Westerner especially.

The readiest and surest way to get rid of censure is to correct ourselves. — Demosthenes.

THE TOO-GAY SHIRT

Those sport shirts of purples and yellows
Which dazzle the bystander's eye
May look very nice on some fellows,
But they'll have to wear them, not I.

Those sport shirts with butterflies flying
Are certainly georgeous to see,
But I couldn't bear somebody eyeing
Such beautiful art work on me.

I smiled at a chap I saw lately.
His friend said: "I'l say this of Jack,
Though he dresses a bit unsedately,
He'd give you the shirt off his back."

"As plain as I can let me make it,"
Said I, "with none left on my shelf,
If he offered that shirt I'd not take it.
I'd tell him to wear it himself."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

After the young ducks were hatched last June the male wild ducks sneaked off by themselves into flocks apart and prepared for a very humiliating experience. They lost their power of flight.

Not only did they lose the power of flight but their gallant mating plumage fell off them, and they moulted into an almost perfect imitation of the female of the species. It was probably nature's way of making them inconspicuous during their flightless month. But it must be a pretty humiliating experience for a duck as gaudy as a mallard, a wood duck or an American merganser.

This "eclipse", as it is called, lasts about a month of midsummer, and then a new moult begins as the drake re-assumes his resplendent winter plumage. But the new moult takes a long time. Hardly any of the male ducks we see in Canada en route to the south have anything like their picture-book or museum appearance. The females are all in their best museum dress by autumn. But the males look like modernistic representation of themselves whenever they fall to a sportsman's gun. That is why very few hunters can identify the ducks in their bag with and degree of certainty. The adult males are in their patchy eclipse plumage and the young males and females have the immature, greyish, brownish tones that bear little resemblance to the artist's paintings in the bird books, or to the stuffed duck in museum, or on country hotel dining room sideboards.

A Canadian, Frank Kortright, was the first sportsman-naturalist to bring out a book that describes the ducks as they look during the gunning season; and his "Ducks Geese and Swans of North America" has had a very wide distribution all over the United States.

WE GET WHAT WE GIVE

A traveler home from Europe brought presents for his family. That evening after dinner he distributed the presents and then said that he had one present which was for all the family. He called on them to turn out the lights, saying that he had a little box made of material which would glow resplendently in the darkness. But when the lights were turned out, the box did not emit the expected glow. The man considered himself cheated.

Next day his wife found in the box a little direction which said: "If you will leave me all day in the sunshine, I will shine all night in the dark." She put the box in the sunshine during the entire day and that night when the family was assembled and the lights turned out the box glowed with a splendor which caused them to gasp in astonishment.

We get in the world what we give. We must not expect something to come out of nothing. If we want our hearts to glow on the dark night of despair, to shine with bright resolution in the hour of temptation, then it will be recently the Canadian press carlives over a long period to influences which come from the heaven themselves. If we bask long in the sunshine, we will glow long in the darkness.

'White Russian' Still Fight Communists After Centuries

Toronto—(CP)—In the southeast corner of the Baltic States, deep in the heartland of Russia's western sphere, lies a country that has been fighting the Russian yoke for 11 centuries—and now is battling harder than ever.

Byelo-Russia is an Oppenheim-like state, strife-ridden, with a government that has operated in exile for 32 years.

Head of the banished regime is M. Mikola Abramtchik, now touring North America on a mission of organization to keep the flame of resistance burning in the hearts of 10,000 Byelo-Russian exiles throughout the world.

In Toronto recently, M. Abramtchik spoke with a patriot's zeal of the fight his iron-curtain country is putting up against Russian oppression.

"For 32 years —yes, and for centuries before that—we Byelo-Russians have resisted Moscow's rule," he said. "Today, more than ever, we feel there is hope for the future."

Abramtchik is head of the Rada —the executive committee, operating out of Paris, which is the only free government Byelo-Russia has had since 1795. Many westerners know his country, he said, as White Russia.

"We Byelo-Russians are not Russians. We have our own culture, just as old, and far more developed than the Russians. We never suffered the tartar or mongol domination which the Muscovites did. As a result, when the Russians threw off their foreign overlords, they turned to us for guidance."

Byelo-Russian resistance to the Moscow yoke began in the ninth century A.D.—when the Polotck princedom fought the Kiev princedom—and is still going on today in the thick forests of the north.

Led by a guerrilla warfare veteran, General Vituska, some 50,000 partisans are living in the thick forests, harrying the Russians.

"Before the Germans came, we had 300,000—but, unlike some anti-communist partisans, our brave fellows fought the Germans. They could not see the difference between Germans and communists; both were foreign overlords. As a result, we lost many men."

Abramtchik, 48, has not seen the forest and wintry plains of his native land since 1934, but he is hopeful someday of returning.

"But it must be a free country when I do," he said. "I am sure that day will come."

Sport Fishermen Hope For Salmon in St. Lawrence

Toronto— (CP) — To many sportsmen lucky enough to have fished Quebec's Saguenay or Newfoundland's Humber Rivers the thrill of catching an Atlantic salmon remains a never-to-be forgotten experience.

Until about 70 years ago, these great game fish swarmed up the St. Lawrence past Montreal to spawn in the rivers which feed Lake Ontario. Then, suddenly, the salmon disappeared and came no farther west than Montreal.

For years their disappearance was attributed by laymen to pollution in Lake Ontario. But biologists were not inclined to accept this as the only reason. They wrestled with the problem, finally concluded that four factors caused the disappearance.

Deforestation a Factor

Perhaps the main reason was that water and weather conditions in the late 1870's caused a general decline in the numbers of salmon throughout all lakes and streams in western North America. In addition, silting of streams resulting from deforestation, building of dams which prevented salmon reaching their natural spawning grounds, and increased pollution were possible factors in the case of the vanishing Atlantic salmon.

Finally about 1938, this biological view won acceptance in the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests. Atlantic salmon fingerlings were obtained from the Maritimes and placed in Ontario lakes. In the last three years, more than 120,000 more fingerlings (fish as long as your index finger) were placed in Duffin's Creek in Ontario county.

As yet, it's too early to say how successful the restocking has been. But a recent announcement that the Ontario government is doing everything possible to make it a success has aroused lively interest among all lovers of sport fishing. For the Atlantic salmon, in the opinion of many, is the finest game fish of them all.

The Toronto Telegram's Pete McGillen has this to say about them in a recent column: "We who live inland can brag about power, the speed and the fighting qualities of the muskie, the lively black bass, and the lovely speckled or brown trout. But any angler who has braced himself on the rocky bottom of the Humber or Saguenay and strove with might and main to subdue a 12 or 17-pound salmon, will laugh in your face if you compare the salmon to any of these.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful, if just once, every Ontario angler could pit his strength, his skill, his cunning and his tackle against a husky, twisting, tackle-smashing Atlantic salmon.

Farming Concept Develops Slowly Among Sask. Trappers

The fur trade, on which Cumberland House thrived in its heyday, has fallen off over the years. Soon there may be insufficient fur to support an exclusively trapper community.

The Saskatchewan government has developed a long-term plan for a more diversified economy in the northern settlements. Three years ago it set up an experimental farm at Cumberland House to point the way.

Cumberland House district is a 24,000-acre island, encircled by Cumberland Lake and the Saskatchewan and Bigstone rivers. Its residents are 500 metis, 120 treaty Indians and 40 whites.

The idea of the experimental farm was to show the northern settlements the value of utilizing soil resources as a way of providing food. Gardens would furnish vegetables. Grain would feed livestock.

Although only 385 acres so far have been brought under the plow, government officials estimate that possibly half of the Cumberland House district, or some 12,000 acres, is suitable for cultivation. A substantial portion of the remainder might be used for grazing.

The concept of farming has taken root slowly. In addition to the experimental farm, seven families have turned to the land for a living. The Saskatchewan government furnishes power equipment for the breaking and cultivating of new land.

Today crops of bats, barley, wheat, alfalfa, clover and crested wheat grass may be seen where formerly there was only the marshy native growth.

Sponsors of the plan believe that in time, when the self-sufficient stage has been reached and communications have improved, the area will have grain and livestock to sell.

The Provincial government also is seeking t6 help those who prefer to stay with trapping. To build up the muskrat population, dams are being built to flood the elm marshes southwest of the settlement.

This Spring 101 trappers harvested 33,002 muskrat pelts which brought $1.46 apiece. An additional source of revenue for the community is commercial fishing on Sturgeon and Suggi Lakes and the Birch River. This kept 34 natives busy this year.

Chemical Stops Spud Sprouts

London — (CP) — Birth control for potatoes is the latest idea of British scientists.

A new powder, IPPC or isopropylphesylcarbamate, inhibits the "motherly instinct" in a potato and stops it from sprouting.

Annually, nearly 500,000 tons of potatoes start sprouting during storage and become useless for eating.

"If potatoes are sprayed with the powder dissolved in water before storage, sprouting can be ended," manufacturers claim.

Wives of the scientists volunteered to test the treated potatoes. Report: no effect on flavor.

MY FRIENDS THE OPTOMETRISTS

Believe it or not, one day recently I received two friendly letters from optometrists.

One signs his letter John Doe, O. D., and his letterhead reads J. Doe, Doctor of Optometry. Webster's Dictionary does not mention such a degree as "O. D." Opt. D. yes, but not O. D.

The other optometrist signs his letter merely Richard Roe. His letterhead is printed Dr. R. Roe, Optometrist. Maybe usage has made these departures valid, but in both instances, as it seems to me, it connotes the desire if not the intention to be regarded by the public as a physician eye specialist. After all, most people assume that the man who calls himself "Doctor" is a physician.

"We formerly used a solution of potassium cyanide to clean gold parts," says John Doe, O. D. "One can wash his hands in it provided there are no cuts in the skin, and suffer no ill effects, but we were careful to wash off all of the cyanide afterward. We have better methods of cleaning gold now and I was glad to get rid of the potassium cyanide."

Potassium cyanide is used in photography, electro-plating and gold-recovery, as well as for cleaning gold jewelry and other gold articcles, and sometimes for removal of silver nitrate stains.

Hydrocyanic acid (prussic acid) is a rapidly acting poison. Death may occur in two to ten minutes after a large dose, in from one to three hours after the smallest fatal dose.

It would seem that such dangerous poison should be discarded altogether from the arts if better methods of cleaning gold etc. are available, as John Doe, O. D. says.

Best emergency antidote for either hydrocyanic (prussic) acid or potassium cyanide is the official antidote for arsenic poisoning, Iron Hydroxide with Magnesium Oxide, freshly prepared by mixing a solution of iron sulfate with a suspension of magnesium oxide in water (milk of magnesia)—the two ingredients being kept on hand in tightly stoppered bottles for emergency use wherever potassium cyanide, prussic acid or arsenic is used 'n industry, domestic life or the arts. The efficacy of this antidote has been questioned by some authorities, but it is the best we have.

Hydrocyanic (prussic) acid is present in the pits of various fruits such as peaches, apricots, plums, cherries, and in the leaves and bark of wild cherry, cherry-laurel and in the kernels of the bitter almond. The oil of bitter almonds has the characteristic odor of prussic acid and contains enough of it to be poisonous in large doses. Laurel-water, too, has caused poisoning. In cases of poisoning by prussic acid, cyanide or any of these natural sources of prussic acid two characteristic signs are usually striking—the odor of bitter almonds and the blue discoloration of nails, lips and skin. These same signs, however, may be present in cases of nitro-benzole (nitrobenzene, oil of mirbane, essence of mirbane) poisoning—this synthetic chemical compound is sometimes used as "artificial oil of bitter almonds" for scenting soaps, pomades, etc., but its use in foods is forbidden by law. It has caused poisoning (by inhalation) when used as a solvent in shoe dye—applied to the shoes on the feet or when shoes so dyed are worn before all of the nitrobenzene has evaporated.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sun Bath

Is direct sunlight or sun tanning harmful to one with weak lungs or lungs once affected with TB? (C. R.)

Answer—There's no such thing as "weak lungs". Either an individual has tuberculosis or has not. Before taking sun baths or any other treatment it would be wise to undergo medical examination to find out whether there is any active tuberculosis. For ordinary folk direct sunshine on naked skin is fine, so long as the exposure is limited to what the individual can tolerate without burning.

Calcium

What is the result of taking too much calcium—the equivalent of five or six glasses of milk a day?

Answer—Five or six glasses of milk a day, would be good for the health of almost any one. I do not know just what the equivalent you mention would mean. Send s.a.e. and 25c for booklet the Calcium Shortage.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BANK TURNS DIETITIAN.

You have heard the old saying that when a man bites a dog that is news! Well, from banks we expect sound financial advice and counsel, and that is the ordinary news from them that we expect; and so don't take it for news, but recentl ythe Canadian press carried an item stating that the Royal Bank of Canada had taken a departure and in its monthly news letter had turned dietitian, advising its clients what and how to eat!

Said this report: "Ninety per cent of all so-called stomach trouble is due to a misunderstanding between the stomach and its owner. The expenditure of a little thought can bring about friendly understanding and will mean a great deal in increasing resistance to diseases and enhancing the joy of living." The report recommended a variety in diet and cooking, and called attention to the fact that there are 105 ways of serving peanuts!

This is quite a departure on the part of a great bank, but I think it is a wise one. You won't put much in a bank, nor will you feel like investing your funds if you have no increasing funds of health in your body so as to earn funds to put in the bank! I think the Royal Bank of Canada has something a moment in that letter. Certainly food for thought!

In the First World War, when Herbert Hoover was the man of the hour arranging food for the world, there was a famous phrase that was used extensively. It was this: "Food will win the war!" Perhaps the phrase may again become famous during these tragic days. Certainly we all have to give heed to what we buy and what we eat, with so many million hungry and starving in so many parts of the world because of war's beastly appetite.

This is no time, however, to selfishly hoard. It is time to pay attention to simple and essential foods, to share with those who have next to nothing and for those who fight at the front to preserve our free way of life. Theirs is the great sacrifice. Ours is small indeed. Eat smply, never too much and you will live long and happily!

Let Bygones be Bygones - - Hall

Montreal, Sept. 1 (CP)—Frank Hall, speaking for 124,000 rail employees involved in a wage hour dispute with Canadian railways, today said union members should "let bygones be bygones" from the nine-day national railway strike.

In a statement, Mr. Hall said "the important thing is to re-establish sound relationship with the railways and get on with the work.

"It is earnest hope of these unions that agreement can be reached with the railways on the matters to be discussed It is in this spirit that our negotiating committeee will resume the negotiations."

McMaster University Gets Health Grant For Sewage Study

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Funds from national health grants have been awarded McMaster University of Hamilton, for a study of the effects of domestic and industrial sewage on the plant and animal life of Hamilton Bay, the Health Department announced today.

The project will take about a year to complete and will be under the general direction of Dr. A. Emerson Warren, head of McMaster zoology department.

The federal grant amounts to $4,500. The Hamilton Harbor Commission also is making a $500 grant for a special study of the effects of sewage and wastes on harbor installations.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

GIRL GYPSY

Ottawa — Any you readers without 10-year-old daughters might just as well go away because today we'll be just sorting through some of the impressions and reactions of a little girl very busy discovering Canada.

Driving today from North Bay to Ottawa we picked up a man and woman and their daughter, just about Judy's age. At this time of writing, this was the second day of the railway strike and they'd been stranded. In fact, there were hitch-hikers all along the road, looking very sheepish indeed.

Well, anyway, this little Ottawa girl begun asking Judy about the trip so far and eavesdropping from the front seat, I was surprised to hear what Canada looks like to the very young.

At the first conversation revolved about swimming holes and dime stores, the two reigning passions of our girls. There was a pretty graphic description of what it's like to swim in Rushing River and the astonishing fact that every town, big or little, has a dime store. In fact she confided, sometimes it's pretty hard to tell one place from another, a very true observation.

The other little girl asked Judy if she wa" ever homesick. "I was homesick at North Bay," was the response. "There were big waves on the lake. When we looked through the trailer window it was just like looking at the ocean at home. I only get homesick when something like that reminds me of home."

The other little girl said yes wasn't it the truth.

"The best way to stop being homesick is tc go out and play." Judy opined. "One thing, there's always lots of kids wherever you go."

SAD INDIANS

The trivialities over with, she began to make a new convert to her favorite crusade, the improvement in the lot of the Canadian Indian.

Everywhere we've been, she pointed out the Indians are living under very bad conditions without proper clothing or proper homes. The children all look as if they were hungry and getting no fun out of life.

"We were at a place up in Northern Ontario getting gas when a bunch of little Indian kids came over to look at the car. They were very shy and they had sores on their faces and they were dressed in old rags. One of the kids put his hand on the bright metal stuff on the front of the car and the man who was giving us gas shouted at him not to touch it. They all looked scared and walked away. These Indians aren't at all like the ones we read about in school. Everybody should send food and clothing to them, especially the kids."

She has a pretty sharp eye, too, for the way people live in the poorer parts of the country. We've seen thousands and thousands of people living in funny little shacks by the road, she informed her new friend Some of them are just built of tarpaper and board and sometimes there are six or seven or eight children in one room.

She said we'd visited some people in Winnipeg who had about 20 rooms and just two kids and it didn't seem fair that some people had so much and others so little.

The other little girl said we'd see a lot of that in Quebec and told very seriously about one particular family in which the girls had no dolls. They agreed that something should be done about this.

The conversation, it seemed to me, was a good deal more graphic in describing the inequalities of living in this country than any statistics or politican's speech.

Growing Up

One thing this trip has given the kid that I don't think she could really get in school is a feeling for Canada. The size of the country continually stuns her and so does its emptiness. There is probably no stronger advocate in Canada for wide-open immigration.

We'd been naturally worried about how she would react to the gypsy life after a suburban-sheltered life and it may interest some of you parents to know that it's all been to the good.

Travel is broadening even for the 10-year-old. We pass no historical sites without her demand to get out and read the inscription to find out what happened there. In meeting other Canadian and American kids who are on the road she finds out what life is like in far-flung places and develops an interest in them that books alone could never equal.

I suppose, too, it's made the familiar things at home seem more precious (as it does to any traveller) and, indeed, she is almost as insufferable as her parents in boosting her home town to anyone who will listen.

As for Jill, who is two, none of this holds true. If she remembers anything from this trip at all it will be merely an endless series of swings and wading pools.

What really worries us is that she'll never be able to settle down to a life of being rooted to one spot. There aren't many mornings when she doesn't climb up into the front seat of the car with an expectant look and an invitation to "Let's go, Daddy."

Food Demands Of War Transports Are Heavy

Pretoria, South Africa,—(CP)—Heavy demands on South Africa's food resources are expected with developments in the current international situation. Large quantities of foodstuffs, far in excess of those for normal ships' stores, are being ordered at union ports.

A number of freighters at union ports already have received orders to buy three or four months' supplies. The destinations of the ships are undisclosed.

It is believed that South Africa will be called on to prepare for the provisioning of a greatly-increased number of ships from Britain and continental ports, bound for Korea and other possible war centres.

The union, it is claimed, could not provide large quantities of meat and dairy produce for ships' stores without some sort of public rationing.

Supplies of white flour are out of the question, unless the country reverts to brown bread and earmarks wheat in the country for "United Nations requirements."

According to Dr. A. W. O. Bock, manager of the wheat industry control board, the importation of sufficient wheat to meet home requirements for white bread and other wheaten products in South Africa is assured until the end of 1951.

A combined wheat consignment of 150,000 tons from Canada and 54,000 tons from Australia for 1949-50 is ample to meet the demand for wheat products until the end of next January.

Picton.—With several considerations in mind it has been decided to postpone the reopening of Child Health Clinics operated by the Prince Edward County Health Unit until October.

The chief reason is that the Public Health Nursing Division will be short one nurse because of the inability of the Board of Health to finance the employment of a full staff.

Secondly, Miss Miriam MacDonald, who is replacing Miss Isobel Petrie as supervisor of Nurses, cannot assume her duties here until the first of September, when there will be a re-distribution of the territories assigned to each nurse.

Further, with the limitation in work capacity of such a reduced staff in mind, the Medical Officer of Health wishes to review with the Board of Health in the September meeting the whole policy of child health clinic operations in the county, since some curtailment would appear necessary.

Meanwhile it is hoped to get the school program well under way, the tuberculosis control program reviewed, and the new veterinary public health service functioning to the satisfaction of the dairy farmers.

In any case, last year the September clinics were not well attended due to family pre-occupation with school commencement, Fall fairs, and harvesting. October attendance figures were much better.

However, any parents who may be concerned about the month's delay in their children's immunization schedule are invited to check with the Health Unit Office so that special arrangements for these inoculations may be made when indicated.

FATALLY INJURED

Goderich, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Leo Laur, 19, of London, Ont., was fatally injured Thursday night when struck by a car driven by Bert Bossenberry of Detroit on Highway No. 21 near St. Joseph in Huron county. The youth was walking along the highway with Miss Georgina Corriveau of Stanley township.

Bossenberry's car swerved to pass another vehicle and struck Laur. Bossenberry was charged with dangerous driving.

National Museum Guards Folklore of Early Canada

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, —(CP) — From its store of folk-songs and legends of early Canada the National Museum has compiled two bulletins on Canadian folk-lore and hopes to turn out more in the near future.

The books, "Folk-Lore of Waterloo County, Ont.," and "Folk-Lore of Lunenburg County, N.S." are the first museum publications of their kind in "20 or 30 years."

Exhibits in the museum are fine but its only the people who come to Ottawa who see them, said Dr. Alcock. Only through publications could the work of the museum be made known across Canada.

It also was important to collect material on early Canadian life without too much delay.

Collect Material

"We should get all this material while we can," he said. "It's from the older people that we get it . . . the longer we leave it the harder it is to obtain. People spend more of their time these days driving or listening to their radios, they don't sit around telling the old stories or singing the old songs and the past is slipping away."

As it is the museum already has accumulated a mass of folk-lore material. It contains thousands of written records of myths folk-tales, sayings, games, dances.

Folk-song collections alone include phonographic recordings of 3,000 Indians and more than 6,000 French-Canadian songs.

Book of Songs

In addition there are several hundred British-Canadian folk-songs mostly from the Maritime provinces.

Dr. Alcock said he hoped the museum's next step would be the publication of a book of Canadian songs.

The 163-page Lunenburg County publication was compiled by Helen Creighton of Dartmouth, N.S., who for the last three field seasons has been employed by the museum on folk-lore studies in Nova Scotia.

Ghost Ship Stories

Blood-chilling tales of ghost-ships predominate in the book. They should provide a wealth of material to writers seeking story plots.

The German dialect spoken by the early settlers of the district fascinated Wintemberg. The book is filled with sayings and superstitions still known in that part of the country.

Research into the Canadian past has attracted much evidence abroad. In fact the next edition of the American Journal of Folk-Lore, published in Berkley Calif., will be an all-Canadian number.

There still is much to be done if Canada is to build her tradition and preserve relics of the past.

Dr. Alcock reported Newfoundland "practically untouched" when it came to folk-lore research.

But it won't continue long that way. The curator said a member of the museum staff is spending two months this summer in the new province beginning a study into Newfoundland folk material.

Two New Atomic Particles Found In Cosmic Rays

Birmingham, England, Sept. 1. (AP)—A Nobel prize winning physicist announced yesterday the discovery of two new atomic particles found in cosmic rays which bombard the earth from outer space.

Announcement of the discovery was made by Professor P. M. S. Blackett of Manchester University at a meeting of the British Association for the advancement of science.

Blackett said the particles are part of the complex structure of the atom, released when the atom is broken up. They are about 900 times the size of an electron, he said, and survive for only three ten-billionths (3/10,000,000,000) of a second.

They have been named "V" particles, because of the shape of their photographic track.

Blackett was awarded the Nobel prize for physics in 1948 for his work in the investigation of cosmic rays.

Seventy Years Of Married Life Is Celebrated

Toronto, Sept. 2 (CP) —Seventy years of married life will be celebrated quietly tomorrow by Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Ash. The couple, both 91, are descendants of pioneer families in the Peterborough-Cobourg, Ont., district.

Mrs. Ash, still spry and in full possession of all her faculties said her recipe for long life and married happiness is "believe in God and do right."

She will be a guest on a radio program tonight from the Canadian National Exhibition.

In an interview she said her wedding in Rochester, N.Y., in 1880 interferred with a possible cereer as one of the country's first women doctors.

A visitor to the family's summer resort on White's Island in Rice Lake—named after her family—was Mrs. McCarren, of Rochester, one of the first women doctors in the United States. She prevailed on the young woman to return with her to study medicine and obstetrics.

However she was engaged to Mr. Ash, then a carpenter in his native Cobourg. They returned to Cobourg after the wedding and moved to Toronto in 1903.

Mr. Ash's family, United Empire Loyalists were among the first settlers in Cobourg. His father fought in the Fenian raids.

They have two surviving children, three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Mr. Ash is the only surviving member of a family of five; Mrs. Ash's sister, Mrs. William Patterson, now 97, lives in Calgary. Mrs. Ash's parents both reached 90, and Mr. Ash's mother was in her 90's when he died.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

(The author of these articles, Mrs. J. R. Futcher, of St. Thomas, is accompanying the Canadian members of the Women's Institute on a trip to Copenhagen, where they will attend the triennial convention of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She is president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, and this series of articles is written to keep the members of the W.I. and all interested informed of the highlights of the trips.)

Empress of France, en Voyage.

We travelled down the St. Lawrence, nearer the north shore than the south. I am so thankful we passed Quebec just before dusk. It was light enough to see the Citadel—the austere, grey stone battlements and long stone fort high up on the bluffs. Below on the river banks we saw where Wolfe landed his soldiers at Wolfe's Cove in the dead of night. The beautiful Chateau Frontenac lorded it over the whole scene, its lighted windows and numerous turrets making it look like a magnificent castle.

The stewardess tells me we are going the northern route to Liverpool, through the Straits of Belle Isle, and by Sunday noon we see, clearly through glasses, the coast of Labrador. Barren, rocky formations alternate with high bluffs, patchy with brown grass. The only sign of habitation is in the small coves and inlets along the shore, at the water's edge. We see a lonely fisherman's boat glistening white, and we realize how hardy these men must be to fish in such uneasy water, for a strong gale is common to the Straits, and it is really cold. This is the region of newly discovered wealth in iron ore, and you realize what a task it will be to develop this wealth in such a rugged, isolated region.

We've been on board over two days and are not yet out on the Atlantic. Deck chairs are deserted —it is just plain cold—fur coats are in evidence on those who insist on a daily walk But we have the assurance that out in the ocean the combined warmth of the sun and the Gulf Stream will make us comfortable The last sign of life on the bleak Labrador coast is a lonely lighthouse, high on the hillside, with three or four dwellings clustered around it and an empty flagpole standing like a white pencil beside it.

Newfoundland is on the right, just a purple broken coast-line away off on the horizon. Miss Anna Templeton, of Newfoundland, is one of our party, representing the Jubilee Guilds (Institutes) of this Province. So we have two Anna's with us—our own Ontario Anna Lewis (who has made all the plans for our tour) and Anna T. She was born on the Island, is tall and slight, brown-haired and brown-eyed, very vivacious, and is a very attractive addition to our party. Anna is anxious that her island's people profit in every way by joining our Dominion; social measures are needed and welcomed, but they are of hardy stock, and she is jealous that they never lose their resourcefulness and individuality.

Those who are purely farmers can be counted on the fingers of one hand—no produce is exported from the Island. The majority, outside of St. John, combine fishing and farming, growing enough vegetables for their own use putting in most of their time on the sea. By the way, because of Anna T. I can now pronounce our new tenth Province correctly. Accent it like we do the world understand and you have it. Try it.

Just as we leave the Labrador coast an iceberg is sighted, floating majestically south between us and the shore. It is a large one, glistening white, like pure marble, with broken and uneven spires. It really looks like a beautiful cathedral drifting by, just before dusk. I sighted another one away over on the horizon, but there was no sign of it next morning. The first mate told me he just saw a whale, but you must have very keep eyes to see one, for they blow, surface immediately, then sound (plunge).

We are having a rough passage, white horses are riding all the way, much to the chagrin of our party, many of whom have had "woozy" and unpleasant sensations, adding up to hours in bed. I have been disgustingly well, and able to thoroughly enjoy every minute of the crossing, so the saying that it takes a seasoned traveller to be a good sailor is all nonsense—this is my first ocean voyage.

Mrs. Morton, our National President, has called meetings every day to discuss matters of policy, resolutions and recommendations that Canada will submit to the Copenhagen conference. They are supposed to last just one hour, but they usually drag on, because of late arrivals having to catch up with proceedings. I can see where some of these women will be left behind on the station platform or in the hotel lobby, when we start our tour, as many of us are determined not to lose one minute of our precious sightseeing hours in useless waiting. Anna will have to be a Simon Legree to keep 25 of us in line and ready for the next move.

Did I tell you that Mrs. W. A. Goodfellow, wife of the Provincial Minister of Social Welfare, is one of our party. Mrs. Goodfellow is a staunch Institute member from our Belleville area. I promised her husband to take good care of her, but didn't realize that heavy seas could be so unkind. However, smiles are breaking through again as sealegs are found and land is nearer each hour.

Here is the dinner menu I promised you:

Canapes Bolognaise
Radishes — Ripe and Green Olives
Croute-au-Pot — Cream of Celery

Poached Supreme of Halibut Mousseline Sauce
Fried Julienne of Whitefish with Lemon

Green Peppers with Rice Creole
Quarters of Lamb Roasted Mint Sauce
Roast Stuffed Duckling Apple Sauce

Vegetables
Green Peas — Glazed Carrots
Potatoes Boiled and Brown

Cold
Pressed Spice Beef
Lettuce and Tomato Salad French Dressing

Sweets
Pineapple Pudding
Bombe Melba Wafers
Madeleines Varies
Dessert (Small cakes) — Coffee

Please don't ask me what or how much I ordered! What would you choose? I will have to tip the dining-room steward well.

Don't worry, family. I'm A1.

RAWDON

Rawdon.— Mr. Will Snarr has been holidaying at Little Current, Manitoulin Island.

Mrs. Lorne Hagerman and Grant, visited Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reid, Foxboro, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pauley recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Farrell and family, Moira.

Mrs. Edna Dayman and family, of Pricetown, Iowa, have returned home after a few weeks visit at the home of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Dunham and Mr. Dunham, at Wellman's. She also visited several other relatives in the district.

Bethel W.A.

Over 20 children and their mothers attended Bethel W.A. for the August meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Don Heath.

The president, Mrs. Thomas Laycock, presided and gave the opening devotional on "Who is My Neighbor", Mrs. Leslie Thompson read the Bible passage and Mrs. Will Heath presided over an interesting program. Readings were given by Mrs. Don Thompson and Mrs. Francis Reid. Mrs. Edgar McKeown sang a solo; Mrs. Ray Shortt and Mrs. W. Heath contributed a musical duet on the piano; Miss Donalda Heath delighted with a piano solo.

The leaders then conducted several games for the children and all enjoyed a happy hour of recreation.

Refreshments were served on the lawn.

A large number of Rawdon folk spent Sunday at Ivanhoe and attended the camp meetings.

Mr. James Watson, Winnipeg, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Watson, at Wellman's.

Legacy Clubs Help Families Of Australia's War Dead

By LOUIS L. LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, — (CP) — Tens of thousands of Australians died in two World Wars and left widows and young children behind. Those widows and children get Commonwealth pensions large enough to keep them from want, but they have many problems which normally would be solved by the man of the family.

Legacy helps to solve these problems.

Remembrance Club

Legacy began in 1923 when Maj.-Gen. John Gellibrand formed a Remembrance Club in Hobart, Tasmania, so that those who had served together in the war could continue their comradeship in civilian life and help those whom their fallen comrades had left behind.

The name was changed the same year to Legacy and by 1926 every capital city in Australia had a Legacy Club.

A typical club is Sydney Legacy, which has a membership of 350 legatees, all veterans. Some are leading business and professional men, others ordinary clerks and artisans.

They make themselves responsible for the widows and children of war dead. Children who are wards of Legacy are junior Legatees and as they approach manhood and womanhood they become intermediate Legatees.

In 1939, Legacy's work had dwindled and it was giving active care to only 200 families — the Legacy of the First World War. Now it is caring for 4,000 families — the Legacy of the Second World War.

Variety of Service

In 1949, Legacy spent about £60,000 ($186,000). That was the cost of direct help — money grants for education, sickness, food, clothing, even to buy furniture or to help finance the purchase of a business or a home.

Five nights a week Legacy provides gymnasiums, arts and crafts, voice - production and other recreational facilities for junior and intermediate Legatees. Medical and dental members staff free clinics.

Every Legatee adopts one or more families, where there is no male friend or relatives to take the place, however inadequately, of the father who will never come back.

To such families, the Legatees becomes the father. He advises the widow on all her financial problems, plans with her the children's education; does odd jobs around the house or arranges for them to be done; even helps to overcome disciplinary problems.

This was a typical Legacy chore:

Twin boys flatly refused to have their hair cut. In desperation the mother phoned the Legatee and told him her problem. An hour later he arrived at the home where the twins welcomed him as a friend. He examined their over-long hair, pulled a pair of clippers from one pocket and two pink hair ribbons from the other and asked: "Now then, which is it to be?" The twins submitted quietly.

That is the work of legacy as it is done in every city and town throughout Australia.

Needless to say, Legacy always needs funds. But the public is always ready to dig deep when asked to contribute.

FIND CHROMITE DEPOSITS

New Delhi (CP) —Indian geologists have discovered large chromite deposits in the Keonjhar district of Orissa. Their nearness to the centres of the iron and steel industry and to the port of Calcutta gives them added importance.

Women's Institute

FOXBORO W.I.

The Foxboro W.I. held their August meeting at the home of Mrs. Walter Wickett, on Tuesday evening, with a good attendance.

Mrs. W. Simmons took charge of the program. The motto was given by Mrs. Hollinger "The soil is the foundation of our well being and security and that of our nation". Mrs. Burley and Mrs. Rombough entertained with music. A humorous poem "My Allergy" was given by Mrs. Tupper. The topic "Agriculture" was given by Mrs. F. Tummon. She explained the advantages of co-operatives which were in use in many parts of Canada, also the importance of the Federation of Agriculture to the farmer and consumer.

The Foxboro Institute again volunteered to take charge of the local canvassing in aid of the C.N.I.B. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. M. Reynolds when a prize will be given for the best floral arrangement. Mrs. Wickett and her helpers served dainty refreshments.

Bride-to-Be Receives Surprise Presentation

Yesterday afternoon a surprise presentation was made by the staff of the Ontario Intelligencer to Miss Olive Darby, on the occasion of her approaching marriage.

Mr. Claude Tice, as master of ceremonies, addressed the bride-to-be wishing her much happiness in the new life upon which she so shortly would embark, and extended appreciation on behalf of the Ontario Intelligencer for her faithfulness.

Mrs. Helen McCann, made the presentation of a lovely chenille bedspread, for which Olive graciously expressed her thanks and appreciation.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

We've come to the conclusion that the easiest way to do home canning is not to start at it until utterly exhausted. And as for these new-fangled recipes on canning with a pressure cooker, we could joyfully heave that hefty pan through the kitchen window for good.

Women are always ready to try new ways of cooking, especially if they save time and work. But when you not only have to cook your fruit first, then steam it in the pressure cooker four pints at a time — well, canning becomes a real chore. And besides, when the sealers turn out with an inch and a half of vacuum space atop faded mushed fruit — any homemaker is browned off.

When you're near exhaustion point and you're dumping the pressure-cooked cherries into an ordinary preserving kettle to finish off the job in the old fashioned way, you've reached the crucial stage of not caring a dollar what happens. You pour the sugar out of the bag right into the swimming fruit, without bothering to make up a syrup. You wash your glass tops in cold water. You round up some old rubber rings. Result? The fruit turns out great and keeps for two years.

Something not mentioned in the copious write-ups on Canada's great statesman the late William Lyon Mackenzie King, was the story of his hobby. Few people know that the former Prime Minister loved to bind books.

Experts in the trade regarded Mr. King as the best amateur book-binder in the country. He used to buy his supplies from a leading Toronto book-binding firm in business for more than a century. Book-binding is a fine art which few people ever master. It takes skill of hand and eye, enduring patience and years of experience.

Taking in the sights of Ottawa on holidays this summer a Belleville, Ontario, couple entered the main foyer of the Bank of Canada just to get an idea what the inside of our national bank looks like. . . . At a side counter they were greeted by a personable young woman employee who said: "Oh, I'm sorry, but Mr. Towers will not be back for half an hour."

While these people hadn't the slightest intention of bothering Mr. Towers, they were nevertheless pleasantly surprised to be taken for people who had important national or international business problem to solve with the President of the Bank of Canada.

Samuel Johnson was once asked which was superior man or woman. He very shrewdly asked in return: "which man, which woman?"

Uncle Frontenac says some of the reasons for people having magazines in the house would surprise the editors. Uncle says a good many of them are kicking around because they were given as Christmas gifts.

Who moves out?

If you should die before your home is free and clear of debt who would move out—your family or the mortgage? Certainly your family deserves the protection of a home of their own if you are not here to care for them. At an amazingly small cost you can purchase Mortgage Insurance and guarantee that your family will inherit a HOME instead of a Mortgage. Ask about this plan today.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Correct form of name for divorced mother on daughter's invitations

[illegible]ar Mrs. Beeckman:

[illegible] am divorced, and have complete custody of my daughter, who is to be married soon. Since the divorce I have used this form of name (for example): Mrs. Catherine N. Carter. So is it correct to have the invitations engraved:

Mrs. Catherine N. Carter requests the honor of your presence
at the marriage of her daughter etc.

C.

Your daughter's engraved wedding invitations are items most formal, and the form of your name used on them should very definitely be the correct form of your name as a divorcee . . that, is your maiden surname prefixed to your married surname, Mrs. Newton Carter, or, a [illegible]ible aternative, but in not [illegible] good form, Mrs. C. Newton Carter. But please, on these formal items, do not use your first name after the "Mrs."

Gifts for 3-year-old ring bearer

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My small son, 3-years-old, is to be the ring bearer at his cousin's wedding, and she has written to ask me for a suggestion for a gift he might like. I don't want her to bestow an expensive gift on him, and would you please give me some idea what is customary, appropriate for a small child?

W. B.

For this little man of three, an appropriate gift for being ring bearer might be a coin purse imprinted with his full name or initials, in gold or silver; or a small-size wallet imprinted with his name and address, with perhaps a section for coins; a silver [illegible] chain for the keys to his very [illegible]ort possessions; a pair of silver cuff links engraved with his initials; handkerchiefs, with either his first name, or intial of his last name; a desk set, of medium size and of sturdy leather, or one item for his desk; a pen and pencil set (or either one), stamped with his name.

The wedding guest introduces herself at reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to a church wedding and the reception following. I am a widow. I presume there will be the usual receiving-line, and as I don't know either the bride's mother or the groom's mother, should I make myself known to them as I start down the line? If so, how?

A. T. K.

Yes, if there is no official "announcer", you should at once announce who you are to the bride's mother, who, as hostess, will probably stand first in the receiving-line. As she extends her [illegible] to greet you, you say, "Mrs. Williams, I am Mrs. Alexander Robinson . . . my husband was Bob's cousin. It was such a happiness to be at the wedding today; your daughter was a beautiful bride."

Names of sister and brother on one envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to address one wedding invitation envelope to a brother and sister, both unmarried? If so, how, for both outside and inside envelope?

A. Y.

Yes, this is permissible if there are not enough invitations to send separate invitations. The outside envelope is addressed:

Miss Grace Thompson
Mr. Arthur Thompson

And the inside envelope:

Miss Thompson
Mr. Thompson

Beaver Brown Taffeta

By PRUNELLA WOOD

JUNIORS are having beaver and mink browns as their high style color this winter, too, and it is just as becoming to them as to their elders, although fewer matching precious fur coats per capita may be worn.

This model is for dates during late day or evening, and is made of beaver brown taffeta. The full skirt stays that way, in a wide line, due to its construction, and the basque top is accented with black fringe and is buttoned with jet. Notice the length of the skirt . . . definitely longer to give a more formal feeling.

The old Lydian habit of shooting dice instead of eating will not appeal to Americans just now. It was during a famine when the ancient Lydians invented dice as a means of distraction from the lack of food.

The fact that meat prices may soon reach the moon will cause housewives everywhere not to enter a period of fasting but to utilize all possible economies.

There are many meat economy dishes. To be successful such dishes must have a certain stick-to-the-ribs quality and must be somewhat familiar —not too different. Ham and lima bean croquettes seem to fill the bill.

Croquettes are universally liked because of their crunchiness and creamy tasty centres. Only a cup of cooked smoked ham or any other smoked meat is required to make ham and lima bean croquettes. The shank end of ham, smoked shoulder of pork or any other economical cut may be used.

If a small pan is used for frying, do not add too many croquettes at once. The temperature of the fat may be lowered too rapidly and cause the croquettes to become greasy. Fry fewer croquettes at a time, and keep the fat at the required 370 degrees.

Serves 4.

Wash 3-4 cup dried lima beans. Soak in cold water overnight. Do not discard water. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt and simmer slowly until beans are tender, 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Drain the beans. Use liquid in which beans were cooked for a soup stock.

Mash beans through a food mill or colander. Or chop very fine with a heavy knife. Mix the beans with 3-4 cup bread crumbs and 1 slightly beaten egg.

Add 1 cup ground leftover ham or other smoked meat or cooked or canned corned beef. Add 2 teaspoons grated onion and 1-2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste. Turn mixture into a greased pan. Cool in the refrigerator overnight if possible.

Shape into croquettes or flat cakes.

Dip in seasoned flour.

Dip in 1 beaten egg to which 2 tablespoons water have been added. Dip in sifted bread crumbs.

Heat a kettle of clean deep fat to 370 degrees. Fry the croquettes 3 to 4 minutes or until brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

Add 1-2 teaspoon chopped basil leaves to an 8 ounce can of tomato sauce. Heat. Pour sauce on serving plates. Place croquettes over sauce.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He said she had no pride

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For over a year I have been going with a boy who is really very wonderful. About two weeks ago he began to act differently toward me, and last week I found out why.

He said that I called him up too much, and that I didn't have any pride. I picked on him a lot, I know, for not coming over, and it really wasn't his fault. He also said that he was starting to notice other girls. He broke off with me and that was that.

Since then, he hasn't gone out with any girls, and he told his boy friend he wasn't going to bother with them any more. Before we said goodbye, he said maybe we could go back together in the Fall.

Should I give him awhile? I still like him very much and I don't mind waiting if I know it's been my fault. I do want to show him I have some pride left.

P. D.

Dear P.D.:

I don't think it would show too much pride if you just sat and waited until this boy felt like coming around again.

Even though he may not have liked certain things you did, it would have been a lot nicer if he had simply told you about them in a friendly way, and continued to be friends with you, instead of brushing you off and saying he was beginning to get interested in other girls.

It sounds to me as though he felt pretty sure of you when he told you that you could perhaps go together again later on. I think if I were you, I'd show my pride by letting him see you can be interested in other boys, too.

But take a tip from what he told you, and don't repeat your mistakes. Other boys won't like them any better than this one did.

Should she risk a secondhand engagement ring?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My fiance was about to buy me a diamond ring, but they were so expensive that he suggested he get me a secondhand one. I don't care what kind of diamond it is, because any one he gives me will be precious to me.

What I want to know is this. He now has a chance to buy a beautiful diamond ring at a remarkable saving from a pawn shop. It is a repossessed ring; and almost new. Do you think when people look at my ring that they would suspect that it was secondhand?

Sonnie

Dear Sonnie:

It's quite possible that if this ring were taken to a jeweler and put in first-class shape, it could easily pass for a new one. If I were you, though, I wouldn't worry too much about that angle. Men often give their fiancees rings which are not new, but have a sentimental value from having belonged to some beloved member of the family. Anyone who might notice that your ring was not new would probably think this was the case.

On the other hand, if you are anxious to have a new ring, there are those with very small diamond in them that are not too prohibitively expensive, and your young man may be able to afford one of these.

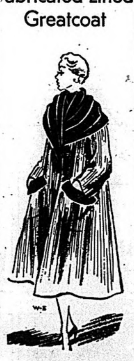
Fabricated-Lined Greatcoat



Corduroy and wool.

By VERA WINSTON

THE fabric-lined greatcoat smartly styled, and with an opulent look is one of the nicest of the new trends. This most attractive design uses taupe corduroy lined with brown woollen of a hairy texture. The wool fabric also forms the cape collar which is generous enough to be draped as a hood. The woollen also edges the capacious pockets. The coat hangs loose and bells out towards the hem. While it has no buttons, it is equipped with a generous lapcover.

BEAUTY

Brush your teeth until they shine.

Spare neither time nor money on your teeth. It is vitally important to your health that they be in good condition. We'll say that it is more fun to fling cash-coin-spending-change at the beauty shop than for the dentist's bill, and shopping for gay attire can give you a big lift, but the fact remains that the first processes of digestion take place in the mouth, and unless your biters are on the job you will be undernourished. In that event your precious complexion will lose fine texture and coloring, your glorious crown may moult, your good looks griefs may mount.

Surveys show that only twenty percent of the population of Uncle Sam's domain receive professional attentions for their teeth. All those individuals who are remiss about making appointments with the dentist are not neglected because the balance in the check book may be low. They just postpone the day, wait until pain and suffering force them to seek relief. The teeth should be cleaned, examined, repairs made—if necessary—every six months.

Cavities are filled when they first appear, saving one discomfort and money. If infections are present, they are discovered, given medical treatment. Often a tooth is saved that would have had to be extracted had the infection continued.

The toothbrush is the only weapon we have with which to fight oral troubles. You should have two, using them on alternate days.

The brush should be small so that it can come in contact with all parts of the dental arch. If bristles are set in groups, it can be kept cleaner than if they are massed.

Brush away from the gums. Send the bristles along the sides of the teeth as well as you can. Brush the biting surfaces, where most of the cavities appear. Select a high grade dentifrice: any gritty matter will have a deplorable effect upon the enamel. After brushing, rinse the mouth with a salt water solution that will flood away particles of food that the brush has dislodged; will have a favorable effect upon the gums.

As to the matter of diet: there seems to be a diversity of opinion on that subject. Yet all specialists agree that plenty of milk, that contains calcium, will promote the health of the teeth, especially in growing children. Some recommend orange and tomato juice because of the vitamin C content.

As particles of food chance in character within a short period of time, creating chemicals that are harmful, it is advisable to brush the teeth after each meal. The bedtime grooming must never be over-looked. Parents should insist that children attend to this health-and-beauty duty.

Yorkton, Sask. — (CP)—"Full speed ahead" is the order given for this city's $2,000,000 reconstruction program by Col. H. M. Bailey, city engineer. Downtown streets are being torn up for repaving. Many new water mains and sewers are being laid.

EMBRYO FINANCIERS

Montreal — (CP) — Three storekeepers marched into Red Cross headquarters recently with a donation of $10.27. The business men made their money in a four-day sale of home - made popsicles, fudge and soft drinks. Average age of the trio was 10 years.

LOST THEIR APPETITES

New Westminster, B. C. (CP)—Amateur safecrackers managed to knock off the dial of a safe of a woodworking concern, but finally gave it up as a bad job. They left a hammer and a chisel behind, as well as a partly - demolished lunch.

Latest Style in Eyebrows

Just a little eye make-up goes a long way, Screen Star Gail Russell points out. Follow the na tural arch when plucking brows then use eye pencil lightly

By HELEN FOLLETT

EYEBROWS are getting back to first principles, just as everything in the way of make-up is simulating natural effects. Women are tired of the scared-rabbit look that results from annihilating pretty forehead scimitars. Even the most exotic movie stars are getting their eyebrows back to normal.

Specialists who do arching will tell you that the factor that determines the pattern is the shape of the eyes. To have the straight lines above full, round eyes, or highly curved eyebrows over narrow slanting ones, is to throw the features out of harmony. They believe, too, that the lines of the mouth should be considered, especially if they have pleasing curves. It stands to reason that a girl is not qualified to design her eyebrow patterns. Some of the lassies have produced zig-zaggy effects that make them conspicuous and not pleasing to the eye.

Eyebrow Styles

That same young ladies haven't discovered that eyebrow styles have done a turn-about is evidenced by the fact that you still see faint, little marching lines of single hairs, scarcely thicker than a wisp of darning cotton. The result is that the feminine face carries a permanent expression of surprise or appears vapid. That's no way to glamorize oneself.

Stray fuzzers, of course, must be removed, so the borders of the eyebrows will be smooth and clear cut. When you take your tweezers in hand, bathe your forehead with hot water. There will be less discomfort then when you do your hirsute weeding.

If you must darken the growth and use a crayon, have the end sharpened to a fine point. Do tiny strokes from the inner end to the outer terminal, being carful not to let the pencil touch the skin.

Mascara works like a charm. Moisten the brush slightly, pass it over the cake, touch the eyebrows ever so lightly. Mascara is better than the crayon for the lashes.

The Experts Say--

Time to Start Planning Those School Lunches Again

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 1—(CP) — It's time to start planning those school lunches again. And of course mothers know it takes plenty of imagination to concoct daily lunches that are nutritious, tasty and lovely to look at.

May we suggest that you set aside a corner of the kitchen for all those necessary lunch-box trappings— a sharp slicing knife, waxed paper cups with covers, waxed paper and paper napkins. In the long run this will save a lot of time and energy.

Two sandwiches with a variety of fillings and bread are the mainstay of any lunch-box. Egg salad with pimiento makes an appetizing sandwich filling. Chopped roast meat with pickle and mayonnaise is another. Peanut butter and salad dressing also is an interesting combination.

An uncooked vegetable should be included, whether it be a few crisp celery curls, carrot sticks or a tomato.

The youngsters will always welcome a banana or an apple with perhaps a piece of gingerbread or a cookie for dessert.

Either hot or cold drinks may be carried in a vacuum bottle. If the beverage is hot rinse the bottle with hot water before filling; if cold, rinse with cold water first. with cold water first.

Ingredients: One cup molasses; one-half cup shortening; two teaspoons baking soda; two tablespoons warm milk; 2 1-2 cups all-purpose flour; one tablespoon ginger; one teaspoon salt.

Heat molasses to the boiling point and add shortening. Dissolve soda in the milk and add to the molasses mixture. Sift ginger and salt with flour and mix well with other ingredients. Form into rolls overnight. Slice and bake on and wrap in waxed paper. Chill greased cookie sheets. Yield: about 75 cookies.

The health department reminds every homemaker that when planning meals be sure to include foods from every group in Canada's food rules. These groups: milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, bread and meat.

It also notes that cheese should play an important part in everyone's diet. Cheese is a good source of calcium, protein, vitamin A and riboflavin. It should be included in the diet at least three times a week by itself or in a combination with other foods.

Found in Tut's Tomb Seeds Grow in West

Calgary — (CP) — Seeds from an original pod of garden peas taken from the tomb of King Tutankhamen in Egypt after 4,970 years of neglect have been planted in the Calgary gardens of J. G. Molstad and James Doherty.

The seeds have yielded stalks about seven feet tall and at last report they were still growing. The stalks crew one-quarter of an inch a day during rainy weather.

The original peas were found in King Tut's tomb during Lord Carnarvon's Egyptian archaeological expedition in 1922-23. They were found in a hermetically - sealed jar, exactly as they had been left 4,970 years before.

One of the expedition's archaeologists brought a pod of the ancient peas to England where they were planted. The seeds were later planted in various centers of the United States.

Water Lilies' Diet Becomes Vogue

Southfleet, Kent, England, Sept. 1—(CP)—A diet of water lilies has become the vogue in this rural community.

It all started after the local rector, Rev. W. M. Falloon, disclosed his secret of good health and long life at a party in celebration of his 78th birthday.

Every morning in the lily season, the rector said, he picked a nice lily from his goldfish pond, put it between two slices of bread and ate it before breakfast.

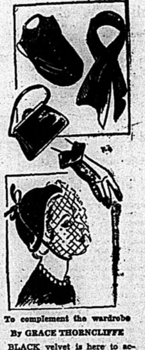
"I have been doing that for 16 years and thrived on it," he said.

Human Side of History Neglected for Research

Birmingham, England, Sept. 1 —(Reuters)—The human side of history is being neglected in favor of dry researches into ancient social structures Robert Birley, headmaster of Eton School, told a meeting of the British (Scientific) Association here yesterday.

"I am not suggesting that we ought to make as much of the old tales as we used to do," he said, "but at least they formed part of an attempt to show children how a man had struggled against adversity, refused to lose hope, and had overcome his difficulties."

Accessories Of Velvet



To complement the wardrobe

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BLACK velvet is here to accent your late-summer into-fall wardrobe and act in general as a nice introduction to the exciting sartorial season just ahead. Black velvet is used for a gilet to wear with almost any colored suit. The little collar is embroidered with jet beads. A velvet scarf is nice tucked into a suit or dress, or tied in an impressive bow. Caught with a jeweled pin or a rose it can do much for a simple suit or coat. A stone-studded clasp lends a bright touch to a small black velvet handbag. And nylon gloves are prettied up with stiffened black velvet cuffs and a velvet stripe down the back. A tiny helmet cap of velvet is worn unadorned or with the velvet corded band tied at top.

Prince Philip Sets Out to Take First Command

London, Sept. 2 — (AP) — Prince Philip, a Lieutenant-Commander in the Royal Navy, set out today to take over his first command.

He left in one of the King's private airplanes for Malta, where he will be piped aboard as the new skipper of the 1,430-ton anti-aircraft frigate, H. M. S. Magpie.

He had spent a month's leave here with his wife, Princess Elizabeth, who is getting along nicely following the birth of their second child, Princess Anne, Aug 15.

Chief's Letter Still Unopened

London, Ont., Sept. 2—(CP)—A report that London township's latest police chief has submitted his letter of resignation remained unconfirmed and undenied late Thursday.

Chief Robert Hall, who took over as chief constable Aug. 14, declined to say whether he is in the process of resigning or sent in a letter of resignation earlier this week.

Reeve W. Roy Bloomfield voiced concern that such reports leaked out before council was informed. "We're satisfied with the chief," he said.

The reeve said that there is a letter from the chief, still sealed, in the township clerk's office. He said he is uncertain whether the letter will be opened before council's next regular meeting Sept, 6.

Appointment of Chief Hall climaxed weeks of discussion and dissension over police matters in the township.

Two Men Burned By Hot Asphalt

Brantford, Sept. 2 — (CP) — Two men were burned, one seriously, when an asphalt conductor pipe they were heating at the Brantford Roofing Company today blew up, spraying them with hot asphalt.

Taken to hospital in serious condition were Harold McInnis, 18 Stanley St., who suffered burns to his face, body, arms and legs, and Arthur W. Robinson, 26, less seriously burned on his face and arm.

Careful Driving Urged During Holiday Weekend

Toronto, Sept. 2 — (CP) — With 23 people killed in Labor Day holiday accidents in Ontario last year, Highways Minister Doucett and Provincial Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer today united in an appeal to the public to drive carefully during the holiday weekend.

Singapore Moslems Pledge Support To 'Jungle Girl'

Singapore, Sept. 1—(Reuters)—A mass meeting of Singapore Moslems today pledged support for 13-year-old Nadra Adabi—married name of the Dutch girl Bertha Hertogh—against any attempt to restore her to her Christian parents in Holland.

The meeting approved a resolution calling for a Moslem deputation to lodge a strong protest with the Dutch consul-general at Singapore against the legal action due to begin Monday to annul Nadra's marriage and restore her to her parents.

It was agreed to establish a Nadra defence committee.

A proposed bill in the Singapore legislative council would make the minimum marriage age 16 years. Child marriages which took place before its passing will be regarded as valid.

It will be introduced at the forthcoming session of the legislative council.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The delights of partnership bridge can easily be shattered. All it takes is a stubborn ox across the table from you. What he can do to your game is murder. Nothing short of.

When a player doubles for penalty on what does he determine his ability to defeat the contract? On his own holding and the advices he has given to and received from partner.

If doubler has bid a suit he expects a lead in that suit. If his partner has bid a suit he expects a lead in that suit. On this depends his promise to kill the chances of declarer.

Many a penalty doubler can defeat the contract with any lead. But his partner does not always know when this is so. He must assume that the expected lead is needed by the doubler.

Times are, when any off lead may produce an extra trick for the doubler. But the leader should not guess at any such thing. It is a flagrant breach of sound partnership operation.

Partner of the doubler should make no plans that may possibly cross up the doubler. Any such plans should be held in reserve, if at all. Concentration should be on what the doubler needs.

♥A 10 8 7 4
♦J 9 8
♣K J 4 2

South became the declarer at a contract of three no-trump after west had stuck in a defensive heart bid. East doubled three no-trump. And the opening lead that came from west was diamond jack.

This forced out the diamond ace from east. South had one sure stop in hearts. When he took the heart trick his contract made with the help of his remaining diamonds. East was furious.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Batawa Shoemen bowed out of the COBL senior race last night as they took a 3-1 beating from the Smiths Falls Royals in the third game of their best-in-five semi-final series. It was their third straight loss.

The Shoemen, who gained the playoff round by a route as devious as the maze of Crete, set some kind of record by scoring only one run in twenty-seven innings of playoff ball. Their lone tally in the fifth inning last evening broke a skein of twenty-two and two-third scoreless innings against the Royals and was their only run of the three game series. They were blanked 6-0 and 9-0 in the first two games played in Smiths Falls.

Even from as far away as the grandstand, where most of the plays at second base are crystal clear, it is apparent that something is lacking in the Batawa lineup. And that think is batting strength — the same lack that has plagued all local entries in baseball for as far back as we can remember. The Shoemen, who threw up a tight defensive will that was breached by just three errors in the three game series, collected only thirteen safe blows in twenty-seven innings, for the grand total of one run. The Royals, on the other hand, had thirty-one safeties over the same stretch for eighteen runs. The Shoemen struck out twenty eight times in three games which is also an unenviable record.

Over the course of the regular season the Shoemen had thirteen wins and sixteen losses, ten of these losses being by one run. It would seem that defensively the locals are as good as the opposition but at the plate they are woefully weak. It would seem wise, also, in the construction of a senior entry next year, for the moguls to acquire a few heavy hitters, even at the expense of some fielding ability if necessary, so that the pitcher's hearts are not broken constantly by those one run games.

In memoriam, we must say that the Shoemen have provided lots of excitement anyway, even though at times they were faced with more problems than a mathematics professor the day after examinations.

Tonight Speedy St. Louis and his Belleville Cubs meet Sixardee in the fourth game of their best-in-five series for the District League championship. The Cubs are facing elimination at the hands of the Repairmen, having dropped a 5-2 decision last night at the air station. The airmen took the second game 11-5 after a 3-3 tie in the first game. Tonight they will be out for a series sweep.

Softball takes over the holiday weekend this afternoon with Stewart Warner meeting Ramsay Paints in a do-or-die game to decide the fourth and last playoff spot in the Commercial Softball League A section. The losers drop out while the winners meet Point Anne Cementmen Monday afternoon at 2:30 to sort out third and fourth place in the league standings. Tonight at 6:30 p. m. the Plumbers from Howe and Hagerman and the Sudsmen from Brewers' Warehouse resume their feud for first placce in the league. The Plumbers vanquished the suds dispensers 5-2 in eleven innings in their first meeting but lost their second encounter 3-2. The ding-dong battle tonight decides the first and second playoff positions and may shed some light on the ultimate outcome of the playoffs. The regular Commercial B game goes Monday night as scheduled with the A league playoffs starting Tuesday evening.

CHIPLETS: Dick Bridgeman's Trenton midgets dropped a 7-1 decision to Kingston last evening in Trenton in the first round of the OBA midget playdowns . . . Latta came up with a lone run in the bottom of the seventh inning last evening to take an 8-7 victory over Cannifton in the fourth game of their best-in-seven final series for the South Hastings League championship. Latta leads the series 2-1, with one game a draw. Bob Sullivan led Latta at the plate with a home run and two doubles for a perfect night as he drove in two runs and scored two himself . . . Word is out that the Major A Bowling League at the Bowl-O-Drome is open for two more teams. The league starts a twenty-eight game schedule Thursday evening, September 14th, at 7:30. Those interested in playing should hand in their names to Bill Bateman at the alleys, who will pass them on to the Major A league executive . . . Peterborough U. E. W. soccer team is in town this afternoon to play an exhibition game with a Belleville and District squad. Kickoff at 3:00 p. m. at Exhibition Park . . . Motorcycle races at Picton Fair Grounds Labor Day . . . And oh yes, have a good holiday over the weekend. Have yourselves a safe time, and make other people's day just as happy by driving safely. Five hundred people will die in auto accidents over the long weekeend. Don't let one of them be you.

Masked Marvel Keeps Identity Secret by Being Awarded Third Fall From Irish Strong Boy

The Masked Marvel kept his identity a secret last evening as he defeated Tim Geohagen, the Irish Strong Boy, while unconscious, as spectators rioted at the wrestling show in Memorial Arena.

A spectacular spectator riot during the first bout, that saw a squad of five policemen eject an equal number of disgruntled patrons who felt that Abe Zvonkin was maltreating Pat Flanagan, was climaxed as the prostrate body of the Masked Marvel was awarded the main bout in the third and deciding fall.

Geohagen, the Irish strongman, who weathered a brutal assault in the first fall, to come back in the second and even the match with his famed Irish sleeper hold had the Marvel on the ropes in the clutches of the sleeper in the third fall as the fans went wild. He flung the limp form to the mat just as referee Bunny Dunlop counted Geohagen out. Tim had been waging war from the wrong side of the ropes. Geohagen stormed about the ring in protest but Dunlop raised the limp paw of the Marvel who was unaware of what transpired as he lay unconscious in the middle of the ring.

The Marvel took the first fall in slightly more than sixteen minutes of heavy going. His hair-pulling, eye-gouging, strangulation methods, topped off with a back breaker gained him the nod.

Rips Back in Action

Geohagen ripped back into action in the second fall, elbow-smashing the Marvel into semi-consciousness. He then tied the hapless Marvel into the ropes and proceeded to ram him amidships with his head as referee Bunny Dunlop tried vainly to untangle the ropes. Following a spirited exchange in which referee Dunlop narrowly averted Geohagen's attempt to unmask the Marvel, Tim applied his famed sleeper hold and dropped the Marvel limply to the floor. It required special treatment from the Irishman to restore the masked man to reality.

In the third fall, the end came suddenly. Geohagen, having been thrown from the ring, was attacked as he tried to enter it. He reversed the assault, however, catching the Marvel in his sleeper hold and dropping him unconscious. All tihs unfortunately took place while Geohagen was outside the ropes and he was disqualified.

It was several minutes before the Marvel regained consciousness throwing a spectacular fit for the hundreds of fans who swarmed around the ring.

Wrestle to Draw

In the opener Abe Zvonkin and Pat Flanagan wrestled to a draw in such a spirited fashion that five spectators were hauled away bodily to the cooler when they tried to storm the ring to obliterate Zvonkin and his vicious methods.

Wee Willie Davis the Hollywood hatchet man outchopped Ray Villmer, the human buzz saw from St. Louis, in the main preliminary.

Bata Shoemen Eliminated In COBL Playoffs

Batawa Shoemen bowed out of the semi-finals in the COBL playoffs last evening as they dropped a 3-1 decision to the Smiths Falls Royals in a night game at Exhibition Park. It was a clean sweep of the series for the Royals who won the first two contests in Smiths Falls.

Mac White did the firing for the Royals scattering seven safeties over the route as he walked two and struck out eight. He was in difficulty only twice as he battled Art Wright in a tight pitcher's duel until the eight frame when the Royals broke through for two runs, the ball game and the series. They meet the winners of the Kingston-Brockville set-to for the COBL crown in a best-of-seven series.

Smiths Falls broke through for the first run in the fifth with Kelleher beating out a slow roller to short after Rothrock struck out one. He stole second and came all the way in as Cook singled to centre. Wright cut down the throw to the infield and fired to Carson at second to nip Cook who tried for two bases under the relay. Stelmach grounded out to first to end the inning.

Lone Tally in Fifth

Batawa picked up their lone tally in the bottom of the fifth with Bridgman walking with one out. He went all the way to third on Semark's single to right field and scored as Art Wright delivered a long fly to centre-field.

The Royals broke through in the eighth for their winning rallies with Kelleher taking second when Semark dropped his hoist to left field for the only error of the game. Cook bunted out to Wright who fired to third to cut off Kelleher who slid in to beat the throw with Cook taking first. He promptly stole second and then chased Kelleher home on Stelmach's single to right. Stelmach was cut down at second trying for the extra base.

Batawa threatened in the eighth with a walk to Carson and a single by Bush putting men on second and first with one away. Solmes grounded out to first and Watson popped out to centre-field to end the threat. Both teams got singles in the ninth but no rally threatened.

Brantford Wins All Three Games In Round Robin

(By The Canadian Press)

Brantford Red Sox made it three for three in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League round-robin play-offs last night, slamming Bill Russ for seven hits and seven runs in the first inning and a handy 10-4 triumph over Stratford Nationals.

Three wins for as many games made Brantford the team to watch in the play-offs but close behind came Waterloo Tigers who chalked up two-for-two by whipping London Majors 5-1 behind the five-hit pitching of southpaw Cy Bricker last night.

Stratford's Vern Richardson nearly put the fire out when he stepped into replace Russ but in the sixth he was nicked for five hits, good for three runs.

Richardson also contributed a home run in the seventh, to drive in Stratford's last two runs. The other Stratford markers were driven in by Gord McGraw with a single in the first and a long fly to centre field.

Billy Gibbs, winning pitcher for Brantford, scattered seven safeties, but two walks, a hit batsman and Richardson's homer netted the Nats their four runs.

In the Waterloo contest, London's Bricker was in rare form, striking out 11 London batters. Gottschall on the London mound, kept seven Waterloo hits well scatttered, but was wild at times, walking eight batters.

Waterloo scored four runs on four hits and two runs in the third inning to sew up the decision. London's only run was a tremendous inside - the - park homer by shortstop Russ Evon in the fourth inning.

Miss Canada IV Withdraws From Harmsworth Race

Detroit, Sept. 2 — (AP) — Unless she breaks down, Slo-Mo-Shun IV, speedy Seattle craft, probably will win a second and deciding heat in the Harmsworth powerboat trophy race.

That was the conviction of most speedboat experts who saw Stan Sayres' 28-foot hydroplane streak around the Detroit River yesterday to run away easily from two other American boats and the Canadian challenger, Miss Canada IV, in the first heat. The Canadian entry later was withdrawn.

Driven by Lou Fageol, substituting for Ted Jones, who suffered a hand injury, Slo-Mo-Shun roared eight times around the five-mile course at an average speed of 91.127 miles an hour.

At the end, Slo-Mo-Shun was about 2½ miles ahead of My Sweetie and Such Crust II, the other members of the American defending team, and something like three miles in front of the Canadian boat.

Increases With Each Lap

Excepting that Slo-Mo-Shun's lead increased with each lap, the positions of the contenders never changed. My Sweetie, driven by "Wild" Bill Cantrell, finished second with an average speed of 85.004 miles an hour; Such Crust, with Dan Arena at the wheel, third for an average of 84.705, and Miss Canada IV., piloted by Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, Ont., fourth with an average of 80.410.

Slo-Mo-Shun's best speed was made in the first time around the course, which was covered at 94.04 miles an hour. Neither this nor the average for the 40 miles equalled last year's record marks. In the 1949 Harmsworth Jack Schafer's Such Crust I of Detroit made a lap mark of 98.164 miles an hour.

After yesterday's heat, Miss Canada's driver reported his boat's steering-shaft supports became loosened during the race, causing the boat to withdraw. This apparently was after the fifth lap in which she almost matched her fastest speed shown in the fourth time around.

Before the race he informed reporters that this would be his last Harmsworth race.

"I've been racing for 22 years," he said. "I have done my best for Canada and only hope that another Canadian will carry on."

Royals' Grip On Second Place Is Strengthened

(By The Associated Press)

Joe Landrum, who was a bust at Brooklyn, is finding the International League much more to his liking.

A right-handed slow-ball pitcher, Landrum has won four games and lost only two since the Dodgers sent him to Montreal Royals a short time ago.

Landrum, voted the most valuable pitcher in the Texas League while at Fort Worth last year, pitched the Royals to a 8-4 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs last night to strengthen the Royals' grip on second place.

Home runs by Walt Fiala, Landrum's teammate at Fort Worth last year, and Johnny Welaj, former Maple Leaf, sparked the Royal attack. Fiala connected with two on in the eighth inning to wrap up the decision.

The third-place Baltimore Orioles dropped a 3-2 decision to Jersey Giants. Andy Tomasic stopped the Orioles on four hits in turning in his 12th victory.

Carden Gillenwater slammed a grand-slam homer in the eighth inning to lead Syracuse Chiefs to a 7-4 triumph over Springfield Cubs. Gillenwater's clout featured a five run uprising that wiped out a 4-2 Springfield lead.

The scheduled game between the league-leading Rochester Red Wings and the tail end Buffalo Bisons was postponed because of rain.

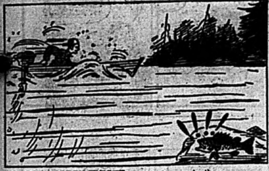
Outboard Motors Again



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables).

Along about this time two years ago I wrote a news story about outboard motors. I claimed at that time that the outboard motor — or the inboard, for that matter — had a very definite effect on the sport of angling.

When this story appeared, the ink was barely dry on the newsprint before I received a letter from an officer of the Outboard Boating Club of America. He stated, in effect, that my remarks were not only in doubtful taste but completely untrue. Moreover, he set out to prove that an outboard motor does not damage the fishing.

The following spring and summer scientists associated with the University of Michigan, no doubt at the request of the Outboard Boating Club of America, set out to prove several things about outboards and fish.

The men in charge of the experiment set aside several control ponds and then ran outboards in similar ponds. In the lake used for the angling experiments an outboard was used every other day, cruising past each fisherman once every half hour.

Report of Findings

The findings of this group are as follows, quoted exactly from the report which the Outboard Boating Club of America sent to me.

1. The operation of outboard motors has no significant effect on bluegill production, nor does motor operation keep bluegills from nesting.

2. The operation of outboard motors in shallow waters has little, if any effect on the nesting habits or on the production of largemouth bass.

3. The general effects of motor use on various environmental factors which make fish grow is negligible.

4. Ordinary outboard motor use does not bar sunfish and bass from locating their nests.

5. Outboard motor operation does not increase the mortality rate of advanced fry in any waters except at depths so shallow that motors would not normally be run in them.

6. Outboard motor operation does not influence fishing success. It appears to worry the fishermen much, but the fish not at all.

Some Instances

As to the first five of their conclusions, there is little comment save the hope sincerely that they are correct. But take a good look at the sixth! "Outboard motor operation does not influence fishing success." No hedging there—an outright statement of fact!

Long ago I learned — the hard way — that nobody, regardless of how many abbreviations he is entitled to write after his signature, can, with any hope of accuracy, make positive statements about angling. I know of no better way to ask for trouble. Consider for a moment a few actual instances.

We were fishing for big smallmouth one day along the shorelines of the West Branch of the Susquehanna River in Central Pennsylvania, using fly rod and bass bug. Above us on a high embankment a railway maintenance crew, from the cover of a screen of bushes, watched the proceedings with evident interest.

They had spotted for us a school of cruising bass, all big fellows, and we had managed to pick up three of these ranging from three to four pounds in weight.

Then along came three bait fishermen in a skiff powered with a five-horse outboard. That was the end of the bass fishing along that shore. The men on the bank watched the school of big bass disappear into the deeper water offshore.

I'm not saying that these same fish would not have taken a live bait or a deep-running lure after the outboard had passed. Maybe they would have as there was a Solunar Period in progress and these fish were cruising about in search of food. The fact remains that our "fishing success" with fly rod and bass bug certainly was "influenced" on that particular occasion.

Disturbed by Motors

On another day we had journeyed to that same river to take advantage of the profuse hatch of Mayflies which comes on during the second week of August. At sundown, when the hatch was drifting nicely, we sat on the bank and watched three boatloads of outboard joyriders put down every one of at least one hundred feeding bass.

Prior to the arrival of those three boats the bass were feeding actively in the big, shallow riffle. When the three operators drove their boats up into the fast water, simply to see how far up they could go, the bass stopped feeding and our sport came to a sudden conclusion.

If that is not "influence" then my Webster's dictionary differs from those used at the University of Michigan.

Each year, usually in February or March, we journey to the Florida Keys to do some bonefishing. We know, from sad experience, that an outboard motor which is run within a hundred yards or so from a bonefish flat will chase every feeding fish right out into deep water. Don't take my word for it. Ask any bonefish guide between Miami and Key West and he, or she, will tell you the same thing.

There have been many more instances when outboard noise has ruined my fishing. No need to list them here. My guess is that you who read this can add a few to the list.

Now don't misunderstand me — I'm not campaigning against outboard motors. I have two of them and I know that they are great time-savers. They make the far places easily accessible and I'd be lost without them.

Should Exercise Courtesy

What I do say is this. The operator of an outboard should exercise the same code of respect and courtesy that governs his conduct in any of his social contacts. A little thought for the rights of others never did anybody any harm. It requires little or no extra effort, as a rule, to steer clear of fishing boats.

With all due respect to the gentlemen from the University of Michigan, I can't go along with them on their findings in their angling-outboard research. If I wished to take the time and trouble, I feel sure that it would not take very long for me to show these scientists the error of their blanket conclusions. They are, in my opinion, wrong about other things, too.

Some weeks ago the Hunting and Fishing Forum of the Air (I think that's the name. Anyway, the program is sponsored by The Mail Pouch Tobacco Company) commented unfavorably on "fishing calendars." Inquiry disclosed that the basis of these comments was a report from the Institute for Fisheries Research which is located at the University of Michigan, the same general group, I believe, which conducted the out-board-motor research.

The Institute feels that the Solunar Tables are unsound and lacking in scientific basis of underlying fact. I have a letter from them to that effect. Well, maybe so. The fact which is both true and sound is that I have put in more than 26 years of careful study and observation of wildlife behavior during, before and after the Solunar Periods. This the Institution has not done.

Until such time comes that they can prove me wrong, I guess I will continue to plan my shooting and fishing trips with the aid of the Solunar Tables. I find that such planning pays off.

Heavy Sports C.N.E. Program Being Offered

Toronto, Sept. 2 (CP)—A heavy sports program, ranging from fly-casting competitions to a horse show, featured today's program at the Canadian National Exhibition.

In a day officially dedicated to manufacturers, floral and athletic activities, the C.N.E. also offered visitors a choice of the Ontario one-mile swim championships for men and women, boat races, a big livestock show and a music festival.

C.N.E. President R. C. Berkinshaw will officially open the horse show that has more than 1,100 entries seeking the $15,000 in prize money.

Last night C.N.E. visitors were given an admission-free preview of the big show in a move to stimulate public interest in the attraction.

While more than 4,000 watched a fine display of horsemanship, Dave Humphries of Toronto rode Heather to victory in the featured middle and heavyweight working hunters class.

Meanwhile several thousand other persons at the C.N.E. waterfront cheered paddlers in the 10,000-metre tandem canoe championship race won by Don Hawgood and Ken Lane, Toronto.

The twins—unusual in sheep—won the top awards for best Dorset ewe and best Dorset ram. They are owned by Peter E. Dearing, Exeter, Ont.

Attendance yesterday was 169,000. That's 4,000 less than the same day last year and attendance so far this year is running 3,500 behind at the same date last year.

Johnny Mize at 37 Still Ringleader of the Yankies' Drive for Another Pennant

By RALPH RODEN

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Johnny Mize is 37 and in the twilight of a brilliant career, but he's shining like the aurora borealis for the New York Yankees.

The slow-moving first-baseman has been swinging one of the most murderous bats in the American League since his return to the Yanks in the middle of June.

Mize, who hit more than 300 home runs during his National League career, has belted 17 for the Yanks since his recall from Kansas City.

The moon-faced slugger currently is belting away at a furious clip as the Yanks seek to widen their American League lead.

Mize has smashed out nine hits in 17 trips to the plate in his last five games, a .529 pace. Four of his blows were home runs and he has driven in eight runs.

The big cat pulled New York out of a hole last night by cracking a three-run homer in the eighth inning. That started a five run rally which gave the bombers a 6-2 victory over the pesky Washington Senators. The triumph increased the Yanks' lead to 2 1-2 games over the idle Detroit Tigers.

Boston Drops One

The Yanks also stretched their lead over the third place Boston Red Sox to 3 1-2 games. The Sox dropped a 4-2 decision to the lowly Philadelphia Athletics.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia continued along its lonely way in the National League pennant dash. The Phils knocked off Boston Braves 7-3 to pull seven games ahead of the runner up Brooklyn Dodgers who were ambushed by New York Giants, 4-1.

Bubba Church the rookie down from Toronto, in front all the way, scattered eight Boston hits to gain his eighth victory against two losses. Dick Sisler and Andy Seminick led the Phils' 11-hit attack.

A crowd of 29,517 fans took in the game at Ebbets Field to boost Brooklyn's home attendance to 1,000,122 for 54 home games.

The victory moved the Giants into fourth place over the sagging St. Louis Cardinals. The Missourians tumbled to fifth by losing to the Pirates in Pittsburg, 10-4.

Pittsburgh's tail-enders broke a scoreless tie with a five-run barrage against Cloyd Boyer in the third inning.

Besides Detroit, Cleveland, St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox in the American League, Cincinnati and Chicago in the National were not scheduled.

DISEASE HIT BLUE HERONS

Port Arthur, Sept. 1—(CP)—Officials of the Fish and Wildlife Division here said Thursday a mysterious disease seemed to have struck blue herons in this district. They appeared normal in all respects except that they were unable to use their wings.

Bateman Eke Out Tie With Energetic Club

Batemans Motors spirited home a run through the gloom of the late ninth inning last evening to give them a 6-6 tie with Energetic Club in the final game of the season for both teams in the B section of the Commercial Softball League.

The Energetics, who led all the way, appeared to be on the way to their first victory in two seasons of campaigning in the Commercial League, when Batemans engineered a rally for two runs in the eighth inning and snuck over a lone run in the ninth to eke out a tie.

Callaghan walked to lead off the ninth and took a second on a wild pitch. Graham struck out but Callaghan took third on the necessary relay to first base. Brown drilled one to third base. Stickle came up with it and fired to the plate but Outindyke failed to see it in the failing light and Callaghan was in with the tying run. Brown stole all the way around to third but was unable to score as Holmes and Thompson struck out.

Energetics opened the scoring in the second inning with a single run on an error, a single, and a fielder's choice. They added two more in the third on three singles and an error and wound up proceedings in the fifth with three more tallies. In the fifth Scriven led off with a walk. McMillan struck out. Hitchon walked and that was all for starter Laurie Wright who was yanked for Jack Holmes. McNiven greeted Holmes with a single to load the bases. Outindyke grounded out second to first to score Scriven and White uncorked a triple to left field to plate Hitchon and McNiven. Middleton went down swinging to end the inning.

Loaded in Seventh

Batemans got two in the fifth when McMillan's relay from centrefield went through the infield. They loaded the bases in the seventh with one away but were held to one run as Graham and Brown hit to the pitcher to force Bone and O'Brien at the plate. They came up with two more in the eighth on a walk to Holmes, a double by Hatfield and a single by Jud Semark.

Middleton went the route for Energetics, walking seven, striking out five, and being nicked for eight hits and six runs. Wright started for Batemans and in four and one third innings walked four, struck out three, and gave up six hits for five runs. Holmes went the rest of the way, walking none, striking out three, and giving up five hits for one run.

Hatfield, with two doubles and a single in five tries led the Motormen while McNiven with four singles in five tries was best for Energetics.

Line Up:

Batemans: Thompson cf; Hatfield ss; Bone c; Jud Semark 3b; O'Brien lf; Callaghan 1b; Graham 2b; Brown rf; Wright p, replaced by Holmes in 5th.

85 - YEAR - OLD WINS

Toronto, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Stamping out old-time reels with a vigor that belied his years, 85-year-old Charles Dyer of Hillsburg, won the 81-year and over class in the Canadian National Exhibition's annual old time fiddlers contest. Thomas E. Sanders, 81, of Guelph, was second.

Bert Muinolland, Stroud, Ont., topped the class for fiddlers between 30 and 50 years. Stan Hall of Hamilton won in the 50 to 65 year group ahead of Earl Green, Woodstock.

Tennis Talk

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

Batawa, by their victory over fifth place Quinte 1, have qualified to meet Trenton in the semi-finals of the Bay of Quinte League Corby Cup playoffs. In the other semi-final, Quinte 1 lock horns with the Canada Cement squad from Pt. Anne. The finals commence next week and probably will run for two weeks. This is the first season that this trophy has been up for competition.

Thursday evening at 8 p.m. the Bay of Quinte League executive has called a general meeting of league to arrange some suitable functions to wind up the season. Doubtless league trophies will be presented at this function. Last year this event took the form of a league dance held at Club Cedars.

Thorold Horwood of Point Anne tells us that his clubs intends to hold their annual tennis dance Labor Day evening at the community centre. He says that an open invitation is extended to all tennis fans to come along and enjoy the fun. The fun starts about 10.00 p.m.

Quinte Club, also is catering to the dancing pleasure of local tennis fans Friday evening at Club Commodore when the regular Friday flight dance will take on something of a tennis flavor. A block of tickets priced at 40 cents each has been reserved. Tickets may be obtained from club secretaries or from Ed Littlejohn, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Quinte Club.

Weather this past week has definitely not been kind to poor old tennis players. On one or two occasions, courts at the Quinte Club have looked more like the Kinsmen's Community Swimming Pool than the racquet wielders paradise it is supposed to be. No wonder tennis players have been wandering around with glum looks lately.

It certainly was one for the book when the Aussies put it over the Yanks last weekend in the Davis Cup final. Few people gave the boys from Down Under much chance for more than the doubles event, but the youngsters pitched in and it was another case of youth beating experience.

Corner Shots

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Last Saturday Batawa took the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup rather decisively with a 6-1 win over Trenton Flyers. Frank Follwell, M.P., presented the cup to Tony Kuklis, captain of the Batawa team. This cup, prior to last year, was last up for competition in 1922 when it was won by the Grand Trunk Railway team. Last year 6 R.D. hed the honor of holding the trophy. All proceeds from gate receipts are held by the Bay of Quinte Football Association in an injured players fund.

Trenton Flyers, local representatives in the Ontario Intermediate Championships, play Camp Borden Army in the semi-finals. They are away at the army base, Saturday, September 9th, and at home Saturday, September 16th. If they win this round they meet the winners of the Peterborough U.E.W. — Kingston United semi-final on September 30th and October 7th. Two games are played in each round with total goals to count.

Local fans will be pulling for the Air Force boys who are considerably reduced in strength due to service movements. Kingston United, who last year were knocked out in the finals by Toronto Riverdale Imperials, are out to take the cup this year. However, anything can happen in the cup tie football. The Kingston boys are riding high in the Eastern Ontario Soccer League having a 100 per cent record this season.

On Monday the Bay of Quinte All Stars are treking to Toronto to do battle with Toronto Celtic. The Irishmen beat the All Stars at the Fairgrounds earlier in the season and the local boys will be out for revenge. Blaker, Lane, Gemmel, Ellis, (Belleville United), Whyte, Kendall, Silver (Trenton Flyers) Rimmer (6RD) E. Helyer, Salisbury (Trenton Merchants) and Mueller, Planovsky, Gill, Tiamsa (Batawa) have been invited to make the trip to the Queen City.

Wednesday evening Flyers entertain Batawa at the Air Force ground, and 6 R.D. visit Trenton Merchants at Bain Memorial Park in the last evening games scheduled for this season in the Bay of Quinte Football League.

Ted Miller of the Flyers has been moved to Ottawa. Ted injured his left hand in the match last Saturday against Batawa and now has it in a cast, so it looks as if he will not be able to realize his ambition of coming down from Ottawa and leading his team in its tougher matches in the schedule. Ted will certainly be missed in local soccer circles, he was a grand player and a 100% team man. Hockey fans will also notice his absence from the ice this year.

Detroit Tigers Need More Speed Says Manager

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Tigers were a down-hearted bunch of ball players as they arrived home Friday after an eastern road trip which saw them lose eight of 12 games and their American League lead.

More than 500 loyal fans and two bands braved a rainstorm to greet the Tigers.

Manager Red Rolfe sounded a battle cry to his Tigers.

"We may be down, but they haven't buried us yet and I know we'll bounce back into the league lead if we get a few breaks", he said.

His sentiments were echoed by veteran pitcher Paul Dizzy Trout who told the fans, "We hit the bottom on this trip, but from now on we'll get back to winning our share of games."

Rolfe had a simple explanation for the Tigers' slump on the road trip—"We weren't hitting and our lack of speed on the base paths caught up with us."

A long list of ailments on his squad also caused Rolfe considerable worry and he hastily summoned reinforcements from the Tigers' Toledo farm club.

Me and Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge got up a club for just us 3, the name of it being The Helping Handers and the idea of it being to come to each other's rescue whenever we send each other a message with the secret passwerd, no matter how old we get or where we happen to be.

The secret passwerd being Thick and Thin, and we were sitting on Shorty's frunt steps talking about the diffrent things that mite happen to make us need help, and I said, Hay, here comes Peddy Merfy. If he gets fresh with any one of us, the other 2 have got to jump in like the United Nations. Thick and Thin, I said.

Thick and Thin, Shorty and Puds said, and just then Reddy came up, saying, Darn if you aint the 3 funniest looking guys I ever saw.

Being a good thing for him he did not say it about any one of us special, or the other 2 would of gone to the rescue, and Reddy said, thawt at ferst you were munkies, darn if I didn't.

Me and Shorty and Puds looking at each other, and I said, He meens all 3 of us.

Yeh, he meens the whole 3, Puds said, and Reddy said, Sure I do, that's exactly what I meen. has anybody got any objections.

Nobody saying they had, and believe me.

Reddy said, You better not have,

And he kept on going, Puds saying, It's a darn good thing for him he didn't meen either of you 2 by yourselfs, or I'd of been rite in there, Thick and Thin.

Little Benny's Note Book

Lucky Leroy Shooster went to the country on account of his whole family going, and us fellows were standing around the letter box feeling hot and sticky and wishing we were in the water somewheres, and Puds Simkins said, Darn that Lucky Leroy, why does he always have to be the only lucky one?

Hay, I got an idea, I said. Let's write him a letter telling him about the swell things he's been missing, just to prove he's not as darn lucky as he thinks he is, I said, and Sid Hunt said, Sure, G. Let's write and tell him how the vegetable man around at the market was going to throw away a whole crate full of good apples than usual, and we asked if we could have some, and he told us we could have all we wanted, and we filled our pockits and our sherts and everything elts with them, and he said we didn't have to pay him a cent.

Sure, all he said was, not to blame him if we got sick, I said, and Puds said, And we ate all around the soft spots, and noboady got sick, and that was 2 days ago, so it's probably too late now.

Oh boy, I can just see his jelliss face when he opens the letter, Glasses Magee said, and Sid said, I bet that's the last time he'll claim he's lucky, oh boy.

Hay, look who's here, I said.

Meening Lucky Leroy just walking up, saying, High, fellows, I'm back. We didn't stay as as long as we expected. Oh boy, there must of been a thousand apple trees there. I'm sure lucky, he said, and I said, Aw, we're luckier than you rite now, because we just saved the price of a postage stamp.

How did you? Leroy said, and Puds said, That's a secret we know and you cant find out, so that's another reason we're luckier than you.

And we all yelled happy, making us actually feel partly lucky

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"I'm very pleased to meet you, sir, and will be happy to be of service to you if I may.'

"My name is Dustin," Mark told him. He had risen to greet the manager, "Mark Dustin, from Colorado," he added, "and this is Mrs. Dustin."

Voorland bowed stiffly from the waist as he took Celia's hand. "Delighted," he said in a tone which made them believe he was, indeed delighted. "I am at your service." He drew up a chair to the opposite side of the table and lowered his solid bulk into it, planting his feet together in front of him and placing the palms of his hands on his knees.

"We were told," said Mark, "that your store carries the finest stock of good jewelry in Greater Miami. That's why we came here"

Mr. Voorland said, "Naturally

Dustin spread out his hands in a half-humorous gesture. " I had rubies in mind. Perhaps a bracelet. But your clerk brought only one cheap one for us to look at."

"Rubies?" Voorland studied Celia intently, nodding his bald head. "Perfect. With your hair, Mrs. Dustin..and your exquisite complexion. Rubies, definitely. Are you a connoisseur, Mr. Dustin?"

"Not a bit if it." Dustin laughed "I'm just in love with the most beautiful woman in the world and this is our anniversary and I'm looking for something very special to celebrate the occasion."

Voorland lifted his right hand from his knee and reached inside his coat to get a pack of chewing gum. He pulled two of the sticks out and offered them in turn to Celia and Mark Dustin. When they declined he gravely slid one stick from its paper and thrust it in his mouth.

"My only major vice," he confided. "I find that I think better and more clearly while chewing gum. It was very trying for me during the war when gum was so scarce."

Neither of them said anything while he munched meditatively. Mark was beginning to look bored and Celia was losing some of her bright expectancy to disgust and irritation at his smacking.

Presently Voorland said, "Precious gems are my vocation and my avocation, Mr. Dustin. They are my life. I know them all, have studied them all, from the far places whence they come through the great markets and cutting centres of the world. It is curious that you should come to me for rubies Or, perhaps it is not curious at all. Perhaps you came to me because you have heard I am the greatest authority in the world on rubies." He rolled up the rumpld lids of his deepest ees and looked at them inquiringly.

Dustin shook his head. "We just happened to drop in," he said with a touch of asperity. "If that dinky bracelet your man showed us is the best..."

"I am about to tell you about rubies, Mr. Dustin," Voorland interrupted, holding up a smooth beefy hand to silence him. "Rubies are the most royal of gems. Diamonds? Bah! Cold and glittering on the surface. Emeralds? They have color and brilliance but without warmth of vitality. Green is an unpleasant color. It betokens an unpleasant color. It betokes jealously and hatred. A dangerous color. The sapphire .Better.. yes. One could stand to make friends with a true blue sapphire and live with it. It has brilliance and depth and a certain warmth But the ruby?" His voice changed like that of a lover whose beloved suddenly appears on the scene.

"The ruby is alive," he continued shifting his eyes from Celia to Mark. "Caught within its depths are the fires of passion, the red glow of eternal desire the crimson hue of the rising sun. There is a strength and a fierceness and a clean burning fury in the bloodred flames that mark the true, perfect ruby. Formed by nature in the roaring cauldrons of hades itself."

"All right, Mr. Voorland," Dustin interrupted, "you don't have to sell me on rubies. I'm here to buy some. If you haven't anything in stock, we'll go along."

Voorland sighed deeply. He skinned another piece of gum and put it between his jaws and munched ruminatively for a moment, then said, "I'm afraid you don't quite understand Mr. Dustin. The true ruby is far more rare than any other stone. There are no Cullinan, no Kohinoors. Two of the largest known to history are those belonging to the King of Bishenpur in India. Fifty-four and three-quarter and seventeen and one-half carats both of which are priceless. The bracelet you were shown is a beautiful example of selection and design Each stone is perfect and uniform the result of years of tireless seeking among the great markets of the world. The price you were asked..."

"That may all be true," Dustin interrupted him with a careless gesture, "but it doesn't look like much. Nobody except an expert will glance at it twice. I want Celia to have something that will make people sit up and take notice."

The manager sighed and got unwillingly to his feet. "I am a poor salesman," he said apologetically. "No businessman should traffic in articles that are close to his heart. I have what you want. I hesitate to show it to you for fear you will buy it." He smiled shamefully, like a small boy who had hidden a friend's toy and forced to admit his guilt by producing it. "I will be but a moment." He turned away munching his gum.

"Poor man," said Celia. "The way he feels about rubies is the way..."

"The way what?" asked Mark, the impish curls standing up and his mouth quirked at the corners.

Council Requests Co-operation Of All Industries to Keep Smoke Nuisance at Minimum

Trenton (Special) —Council passed a resolution Thursday night, instructing clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry to write letters to all Trenton industries asking their "co-operation in keeping the smoke nuisance to a minimum."

An anti-smoke by-law passed in 1925 was read at the meeting and it was also recommended that the anti-smoke regulations be brought up to date. The 1925 by-law states that a factory is not permitted to emit dense smoke from its chimney for more than six minutes each hour.

Mr. D. Low, representing the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office told council that there was no device which could be placed in factory chimneys to filter out carbon particles when the boilers are being fired.

However, it was agreed that proper firing of boilers would do much to eliminate the smoke nuisance presently caused by several Trenton industries which is giving rise to complaints.

Storm Sewer in College Street

Instructions were given to town engineer R. E. Davey to build a new storm sewer from College Street School to Marmora Street immediately. During the heavy rains on Monday and Tuesday, the basements of two houses in the Marmora-College Street district were flooded and considerable damage caused. Mayor Couch said that the storm sewers on Marmora and College Street had been causing trouble every time there was a heavy rain and it was time the source of the trouble was removed. "It is not very satisfactory for these people to have sewage backing up in their basements," said Mr. Couch.

Parking Committee Resolution

Councillor Ryan presented a report of the Traffic Committee which recommended that a stop light be installed at Dundas St. East and Byron St. in view of the number of accidents which have occurred there recently The traffic committee recommended that this stop light be installed as soon as possible. Another resolution of the committee stated that the "existing parking meters are considered to be sufficient at present."

New Fire Fighting Equipment Asked in Recommendations

Trenton (Special) —An increase in the permanent fire department to 10 men and the chief, installation of another fire station east of the river, at least during the summer months and the purchase of a new fire engine with at least a 300 gallon water tank having a Class "A" pump which would pump 600 gallons per minute, were recommended by D. Low, a representative of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office who appeared before council Thursday night.

The question of a new fire engine was brought on by the break down of the old LaFrance fire pumper last Friday. In order to be eligible for the government subsidy given to municipalities purchasing new fire fighting equipment, council invited the fire marshal to make recommendations to council, before any purchases were made.

Chief Not Public Servant

Mr. Low also told council that his department had no record of a by-law establishing the Trenton Fire Department and if none existed, "the chief was not a public servant."

A by-law was produced by clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry dealing with the fire department of 1904, but council recommended that the by-law be revised and brought up to date in accordance with the type of by-law suggested by the Fire Marshal's office.

"The time is not far away when we will have to increase the personnel of our fire department," said Mayor Couch in commenting on Mr. Low's recommendations.

Committee Appointed

Following the discussions, councillors Ryan and Graham and Fire Chief Harry Filion were appointed as a committee to investigate different types of equipment and bring in recommendations toward purchasing a new fire engine. A special council meeting will be called as soon as the committee's recommendations are ready.

HOTEL GUESTS FLEE

Sherbrooke, Que., Sept. 2 (CP) — More than 200 guests at the Magog Hotel here were forced to flee in their night clothes early yesterday when fire of undetermined origin broke out in a first floor kitchen cupboard. No one was injured. The blaze, discovered shortly after 5 a.m. was quickly brought under control. Damage was estimated at $15,000.

Claims Canada Open to Attack

When the debate swung to the back benches, a veteran of the two World Wars—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC—Nanaimo) —said Canada is wide open to attack and that attack could be made of far greater magnitude than the diversionary raids the government says are the only logical threat to this country.

Gen. Pearkes, wartime Pacific Coast commander and now military spokesman for his party, said the dispatch of three destroyers to Korea left British Columbia with three jet planes and one training ship—the cruiser Ontario—to protect its long shoreline.

There was no American fleet, there was nothing to prevent the Russians from landing a force, say, at Prince Rupert before any effective strength could be marshalled against them.

Ralph Campney (L—Vancouver Centre) said he could not agree that British Columbia was not in as an effective position as any other part of Canada.

All four party leaders touched on domestic issues while setting out their views on the international situation.

No Controls to be Imposed

Mr. St. Laurent said the government does not plan at this emergency session to introduce legislation which would enable to impose general price and wage controls. The power to impose such controls normally rests with the provinces. However, the government is considering some measures of an "anti-inflationary" nature. He did not elaborate.

In his motion of non-confidence Mr. Drew asked the House to express regret that the government had "failed to provide adequately for the defence of Canada" and had "failed to take steps to deal with inflation and the rapidly rising cost of living."

Mr. Coldwell incorporated that into a motion of which called for reimposition of price controls and subsidies on essential products. It also asked for economic aid to oppressed countries.

Mr. Low, prevented by House rules from bringing in a non-confidence motion at this stage of the debate, said the government should revive the subsidy system to help bring down the cost of living.

Up to House

Replying to the non-confidence motions, which will be voted on at the conclusions of the debate, Mr. St. Laurent said it will be for the House to say whether the government, once it has brought down its full program, has done enough.

The Prime Minister followed Mr. Drew who contended Canadians were "amazed and disturbed" to find their defence so inadequate at the time of Korea, that they were wondering what had been done with the $1,500,000,000 voted for defence since 1945. He urged anew that a House Defence Committee be appointed at once and that it report as soon as possible to a parliament recalled for that purpose.

The Progressive Conservative party was anxious to do all it could to co-operate with the government at this difficult time, but it could only co-operate to the extent that it was informed of what the government planned.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government should be dismissed if Mr. Drew's accusations in the motion of non-confidence were true. He did not think they were true.

He again turned down the request for a defence committee. The Cabinet itself was a defence committee of parliament, it recommended the steps it felt were proper. That was the Canadian system.

TEMPERATURES LOW

Toronto, Sept. 2 (CP)—Temperatures last month were unusually low for August almost everywhere in Ontario, the public weather office reported Friday.

"August weather followed the pattern of the previous summer months," it added.

"The most striking feature of the month was the unusually heavy rainfall. Totals in all parts of the province except the Windsor section were much in excess of the average of past years."

POPE RECEIVES FROM 45,000 PILGRIMS

Vatican City, Sept. 1—(Reuters) —Pope Pius received 45,000 pilgrims Wednesday night in one of the largest audiences of the holy year. Included were 7,000 Catholic students from all over the world.

RED KOREANS CRACK ARM OF 120-MILE FRONT

Storm Bears Down on Florida's Main Cities

Residents Scurry For Storm Shelters, Extensive Damage

Trees Topple, Roads Washed Out by Heavy Wind, Rain

Miami, Fla., Sept. 5 (AP) — The screaming winds of a tropical hurricane bore down on mainland cities today, toppling trees and sending residents scurrying for storm shelters as its centre crossed the coastline from the Gulf of Mexico at Cedar Keys, 52 miles southwest of Gainesville.

Heaviest winds reported were 75 to 80 miles an hour at Cedar Key, where the storm started inland.

The erratic storm left a 50-mile stretch of resort coastline damaged and soggy.

Tides to eight feet higher than normal swept the resort area from Clearwater to Sarasota, washing out roads, toppling a beachfront house, sinking a few small boats, putting a tug into distress and piling sea water like lakes around homes and hotels.

Beginning to Subside

Police at Cedar Keys reported by radio that the wind was beginning to subside six hours after the first hurricane force gusts.

The beaches around St. Petersburg were hard hit by a raging surf. At least 17 cottages and two concrete buildings were destroyed at picturesque Indian Rocks, a beach resort village 10 miles south of Clearwater. Wind-driven tides were eight feet higher than normal.

The slow movement of the storm—about eight miles an hour toward the northeast—would make its march across the state nerve-rackingly slow. The storm has been erratic since its birth in the Caribbean five days ago, and forecasters watched it for other possible tricks.

Residents hurried from low-lying gulf coast areas last night and battened down farther inland.

Hurricane warnings flew north of Daytona Beach to Savannah, Ga., and northeast storm warning were up north of Charleston to Cape Hatteras.

The storm had loafed along the Florida West Coast since Sunday. Coming to a halt yesterday afternoon, it grew in intensity and then began to move. Winds increased from 115 miles an hour near the centre to 125 miles and it headed northeast at about 10 miles an hour.

Gaining momentum as it neared the coastline, it whirled toward the centre of the state at 16 miles an hour, leaving high tides and rough seas in its wake.

Tides Above Normal

Forecaster Norton said the Tampa Bay area could expect tides as much as eight feet above normal.

The Bradenton-St. Petersburgh area felt the backwash of the storm as gale winds sent unusually high tides slamming ashore on gulf coast beaches.

Residents fled homes on Anna Maria Island near Bradenton, on Pinellas beaches near St. Petersburg and on the lower end of Clearwater beach.

The hurricane caused little damage when it crossed Cuba between Havana and Matanzas Friday night. It whipped Key West Sunday morning but caused only minor damage there before moving northeastward into the gulf and sauntering along offshore for 250 miles between turning inland.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Frost occurred in most of the White River region last night and Southern Ontario dropped below 50 degrees but the worst of the cold snap is past and temperatures will climb slowly today and Wednesday.

The warmest place in Canada yesterday was Estavan, Sask., with a high of 96, while in this province temperatures were held to the 60's in Southern Ontario and the 50s in Northern Ontario.

Sports Attendance In United States Holding Its Own

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)—If the Labor Day turnouts at major-league baseball doubleheaders and the race tracks can be used as a gauge, sports attendance in the United States is holding its own.

Major-League crowds yesterday were only 9,919 below the Labor Day total of 1949.

At the five major tracks where a comparison could be made, attendance was off only 9,221, but $22,767 more went through the mutuel windows.

The over-all major-league attendance at eight parks was 244,692 compared with 254,611 in 1949.

The American League, which is giving the fans a tight four-team race, accounted for 152,201 of the total turnout. The National drew only 92,491.

A total of 153,466 paid admission to the five big tracks which were operating both this Labor Day and last. This compared with 162,687 for the same tracks a year ago.

But this time the patrons had more money to bet—$8,368,463 compared with $8,345,697.

Small Safe Hidden In Clothes Closet $1,000 Cash Stolen

St. Catharines, Sept. 5 (CP)—A small house safe, hidden in a clothes closet and containing nearly $1,000 in negotiable bonds, securities and cash, was stolen Sunday night from the home of W. H. Pierson.

A next door neighbor, J. K. Richardson, heard the doors of the Pierson garage being opened and telephoned police. Police found the Pierson house ransacked.

RUSSIAN BOMBER SHOT DOWN AFTER UN SHIP ATTACKED

U.S. Charges Direct Soviet Participation

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP) — The United States announced today that a plane marked with the red star of Russia was shot down yesterday after attacking United Nations naval forces off Korea.

In an unusual flurry of post-midnight activity, the State Department called the incident to the attention of the U.N., under whose flag U.S. and other forces are fighting off the communist invasion of South Korea.

It was the first time the United States had charged direct Russian participation in the fighting around Korea.

(In Tokyo, both British and American officials said they knew nothing of the official announcement in Washington. A British aircraft carrier and supporting units are operating off the Korean west coast, but British naval officials said the incident had not been reported to Tokyo.)

The State Department said one body had been recovered from the twin-engined bomber and that it had been identified from papers as a lieutenant in the Soviet armed forces.

Formal notification was immediately handed to U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie and to Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, this month's Security Council president.

The department located the incident "approximately" at the 38th parallel, which is the boundary between North and South Korea. The brief announcement did not pinpoint the action above or below that parallel.

On West Coast

Thus there was no indication as to whether the shooting took place in waters which the communists regard as their own. It was on the west coast, which borders on the Yellow Sea south of communist Manchuria and east of red China.

The State Department said the bomber "identified only by bearing a red star" passed over one of the outer ships in a U.N. formation and headed toward the centre "in a hostile manner."

Cortisone, ACTH Abolish Symptoms, Patient Has Chance to Conquer Disease

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Chicago, Sept. 5 (AP) — A physician told today of chemical magic that abolishes sickness while you still have a disease.

The magic is in the hormones cortisone and acth, famed for bringing relief of pain in rheumatoid arthritis. But the wonder hormones have a greater medical significance, Dr. Peter H. Forsham of Harvard University Medical School told the American Chemical Society.

With them, physicians have a chance to abolish the distress and symptoms of disease at will, and give you a better chance to fight disease.

In pneumonia, invading germs produce a violent inflammatory reaction in your lungs. Fluid and pus flood the delicate air spaces, breathing comes hard, and you run a high fever.

"On acth or cortisone, the entire reaction will vanish. And while pneumococci (germs) still crowd the lung, the cells no longer react to them. It is obvious that sickness has been abolished while the disease is still present" Dr. Forsham said.

Conquest of the disease, aside from help of antibiotics, depends upon the build-up of antibodies, which will arise within 10 days, whether or not you received the hormone. The hormone spares you pain and debilitation.

"In fact," said Dr. Forsham, "any of the acute and some of the chronic diseases with an inflammatory or allergic background are thus controlled."

The hormones have stopped infections or allergic conditions of the eye in their tracks before they could damage the eye or cause blindness, he added. In one eye disease, sympatheticophthalmia, injury to one eye to an allergic flare-up in the other, and may blind it, too. But the hormone protects the good eye until the injured one is healed.

When body cells are injured by invasion of germs or other substances, they usually react violently and in self-destructive fashion, Dr. Forsham explained. But the hormones slow down or prevent this reaction by increasing production of compound F, a hormone from the covering of the adrenal gland.

Canadians Mark Summer's End With Sports and Labor Celebrations, Roads Jammed

(By The Canadian Press)

While Parliament in an unprecedented Labor-Day sitting debated the state of the country's defences Canada yesterday marked the unofficial end of summer.

It was really a holiday devoted to labor. But for most Canadians Labor Day has become the final long weekend of the summer—a time for the last trip to the beach for closing up the summer cottages—and a time when the football and baseball seasons overlap.

But there was an ominous note to the celebrations. While the rest of the country played a special session of Parliament sat Saturday and Monday in Ottawa, considering Canada's role in a threatening international situation.

Highways across the country were jammed with traffic. Thirty-eight persons were killed in motor accidents. A Canadian Press compilation showed 18 more killed in other mishaps from Saturday to Monday.

There were 19 traffic deaths in Ontario, 11 in Quebec, three in British Columbia, two each in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia and one in Alberta.

In addition, there were uncounted numbers of less-serious accidents. Along Burlington Beach a narrow stretch of highway on the busy Queen Elizabeth way from Hamilton to Toronto, more than 50 collisions were counted.

In a speech at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto which followed the parade of 15,000 unionists, Mr. Gregg said charges of irresponsibility against labor leaders should not be allowed to go unchallenged.

He said: "The charge of 'blackmail' against the workers is the kind of talk that can do no more good than the charge of 'dictatorship' against management. The long history of labor-management relations in this country stands as absolute proof against this charge."

More than 280,000 persons—a Labor Day record—jammed the C.N.E. grounds yesterday.

In Montreal, some 20,000 persons witnessed the annual Labor Day parade celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Sheet Metal Workers Union. In Windsor, George Burt, Canadian Director of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) gave notice that his union seeks company-financed full-scale health benefits for its members.

Beware of Reds in Ranks Trades Union Congress Is Warned by Attlee

Brighton, England, Sept. 5 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee warned the 8,000,000-member Trades Union Congress today to beware of communists in its ranks.

Attlee called upon the union delegates at their annual conference for "constant watchfulness" against followers of the Russian line. He added:

"To defeat the fanaticism of the communist, we need in every member of great labor movement a constant realization of the ideals for which we stand, the constant determination by every individual to do his or her utmost to build the kind of society we want

"The danger in democracies comes from indifference, and from leaving the work to be done to the other fellow.

At yesterday's opening session, trades union delegates booed and cheered a denunciation of "Soviet imperialist aggression" by Alex Rose of New York, representing the American Federation of Labor.

The communists still hold some high office in British unions although the T.U.C. purged the reds from its executive council about a year ago. Since then it has been trying to oust them from union posts

Attlee said the communist attack on Korea had necessitated that Britain undertake her new three-year, £3,400,000,000 defence program if the United States will help foot the bill.

He repeated his frequent warning that the defence program would mean sacrifices.

Attlee again acknowledged the post war aid received by Britain from Canada and the United States.

Ford Workers Get Increase In New Contract

Detroit, Sept. 5 — (AP)—The Ford Motor Company Monday tore up an unexpired contract with the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) to grant an immediate eight-cent-an-hour cost-of-living increase in wages.

The addition of Ford's 126,000 hourly-rated employees brings to almost 1,000,000 the number of auto workers riding a new wage booster in the industry.

The new contract is for five years and in addition to the immediate eight-cent increase grants workers an annual four-cent-an-hour raise, beginning next June 1.

A cost-of-living escalator also was written in. It permits wages to go up or down one cent an hour every three months for every 1.14 advance or drop reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. They can keep on rising, but cannot drop more than eight cents an hour, and the four-cent annual increase will not be affected.

Some Tax Changes Will be Proposed Says Minister

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons today he expects he will propose some tax changes at this session of parliament.

Mr. Abbott gave no details in replying to a question from Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre).

At the House opening, Mr. Knowles asked Finance Minister if any tax changes were to be proposed at this session.

Mr. Abbott replied merely that he anticipated he would have "some proposals."

Reports that the government would seek tax adustments have been current in the capital for several days, since the government disclosed it was going to undertake anti-inflation measures and boost Canada's defence spending to a peacetime high.

CANADA CAN BE PROUD OF KOREAN EFFORT--PEARSON

Military Role in Defence May be Increased

Ottawa, Sept. 5. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said yesterday that Canada's military role in the defence of the North Atlantic area may be increased because of Korea. But he said he couldn't elaborate because the subject now is under negotiation. He threw out that hint in a rebuttal to Progressive Conservative attacks on the scope and speed of Canada's Korean effort, and on the government's use of some $1,500,000,000 voted for defence since the war.

Canada may be proud of her Korean effort, he said, speaking in a Throne-Speech debate that saw the number of Quebec members who openly have opposed the dispatch of Canada's special army force to Korea rise to three. Two others have backed the move.

The three opponents are Henri Courtemanche, (PC—Labelle), P. E. Gagnon (Ind.—Chicoutimi) and Dr. Raoul Poulin (Ind.—Beauce). Mr. Courtemanche's stand contrasted with that of his party, which has generally taken the line that Canada's Korean effort has been too small and too late.

The opponents said it raises the prospect of conscription and of Canada's involvement in another world catastrophe.

Mr. Pearson's second appearance in the Throne-Speech debate, which may end today, was engendered after criticism by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), and Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) on defence matters and by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) on price controls and Canada's economic aid to backward countries.

Mr. Pearson said the 12 pact powers are working out plans to meet aggression against any one of them.

Canada's contribution, too, was being worked out. It would be announced after it was known, but was difficult to discuss it at this stage.

Defence on Land

It was possible, however, to say "at this time, pending revision of those plans which now are under way in the light of developments since June, that it is understood that our position in regard to collective defence in an attack on western Europe would be that, on land, of using our permanent force to assist U.S. forces or to be assisted by U.S. forces in repelling a direct attack from the north and using it as a basis for the expansion of our arm for a later expeditionary force to defend Canada outside of Canada."

Britain Shows 30 New Aircraft, Reds Uninvited, Could Buy Tickets

Farnborough, England, Sept. 5—(AP)—Britain today showed off 58 of her newest aircraft before foreign aviation experts. Representatives of Russia and other communist countries were conspicuously absent.

It was a preview of the annual show of the British Society of aircraft constructors, which opens tomorrow for a five-day run at Farnborough Aircraft.

Society spokesmen said they sent invitations for today's preview to diplomats and military and civil aviation leaders of more than 50 countries. But none went to Russia or her satellites "because of the international situation."

"The communists can come if they wish," one spokesman said. "But only on the two public days of the show, and then only by buying tickets like anyone else."

This is the first time the Soviet group has not been included in the society's invitation list.

Three new anti-submarine warplanes, two of them turbine powered, are on today's display list, along with a new model of Britain's Canberra jet-bomber, several new fighters, and a jet night-fighter just off the government's secret list.

Also displayed is a new rocket aircraft motor, whose performance and internal details still are on the secret list. Using hydrogen peroxide as fuel, it was designed at a Royal Aircraft establishment as a power unit for experimental aircraft.

All North Allied Forces Threatened By Breakthrough

Slashing Rain Blots Out Normal Allied Air Support

By RUSSEL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 5—(AP) — Red Koreans cracked the northeastern arm of the 120-mile warfront tonight and threatened all allied forces dug in the mud on the north.

AP correspondent Ben Price reported that the break in the centre of the allied right flank near the Korean coast had developed into a dangerously fluid threat that could force withdrawal of the whole northern front.

Price said allied troops were digging in high ground about 2 1-2 miles north of the important road juction of Kyongju on the coastal road from Pohang port to Pusan, main allied harbor on the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

The Associated Press writer said allied troops were preparing to defend high ground west of the Kyongju-Pohang highway linking northern front forces with Taegu, major base in the northwest corner of the allied defence perimeter.

Wide Breakthrough

A U.S. Eighth Army communique said the north Korean breakthrough was wide and by a force of unknown strength. The communique said the main penetrations were at Kigye, nine miles northwest of Pohang, and across the Pohang-Yongchon road, which connects Taegu with the east coast.

On other fronts allied troops held or advanced and took a heavy toll of the North Koreans.

A slashing rain blotted out normal allied air support of ground troops all along the winding battleline, which runs from the east coast westward 45 miles to Waegwan and then turns south to the coast.

100 Forest Fires Touch Two Towns Approach Others

San Francisco, Sept. 5—(AP)—One hundred forest fires, covering 100,000 acres in northern California, touched two towns and crept nearer others today.

Forestry officials called upon Arizona and New Mexico to augment several thousand fire fighters battling roaring flames in hot, dry temperatures and fanned by strong winds An Oregon contingent arrived last night.

One fire destroyed the post office and two homes in Novarro, Mendocino county. Another home was burned in Ukiah, the county seat, before the fire was controlled and the town of 4,700 population was saved.

Shirley Phillips, Three, Drowns In Weslemkoon L.

Falling off a dock into four feet of water, Shirley Phillips, age three, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, 15 Murney Street, Belleville, was drowned in Weslemkoon Lake, Sunday.

The Phillips family had gone to the lake to stay the weekend at the Carmen Roblin cottage about six miles up the lake. At Sunday noon the little girl was playing with other children and was not missed for some time. Then she was found lying in the water at the end of the dock. It was thought she had been in the water for about 20 minutes.

John Martin, 6, Burned to Death In Tweed Home

Tweed—Trapped in his flaming bedroom which caught fire as result of his playing with matches, six-year-old John Martin, son of Mrs. Ida Martin of this village, burned to death Saturday afternoon.

The small lad had been alone in his upstairs bedroom when the mother smelled smoke. She attempted to make her way to the head of the stairs to rescue the boy but flames and smoke drove her back.

Tweed firemen were called and brought the blaze under control but the upstairs rooms in one end of the house were gutted by the flames. The body of the six-year-old boy was found beneath the bed where he had apparently hidden in an effort to get away from the flames.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Cassidy Funeral Home in Tweed.

Mrs. Martin is a widow, her husband having died some years ago.

Ban Hunting Of Moose Again This Year

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Moose hunting will again be banned in Ontario this fall.

A Land Department announcement today said that, with moose averaging fewer than one to each 10 square miles of bush, an open season would concentrate hunters on the few areas where the animals are numerous.

FEW PURCHASERS ON LOCAL MARKET

A cool breeze failed to daunt vendors on this morning's farmers' market. The showing was good after a holiday weekend but purchasers were few. Prices remained at Saturday levels, with corn still 35c per dozen, and tomatoes were still being offered for 35c per basket.

All other prices remained in line.

TEACHER ATTENDS SUMMER SESSION

Among the fifty college and high school teachers of auto mechanics from 23 states and five Canadian provinces who attended the General Motors summer sessions at Flint, Michigan, was Mr. Ardell E. Wilson, of the staff of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

During the session current models of cars, trucks and diesel engines were available as instructional aids. Trips to General Motors plants and laboratories were included in the courses of instruction.

BLINDING SUN MAKES IT IMPOSSIBLE TO SEE SIGNAL

A strong evening sun which blinded a motorist's eyes making it impossible for him to see a traffic signal resulted in an accident on Sunday in which three persons suffered injury.

Injured were Mrs. Mary Bailey, 65, of Carrying Place, who suffered a broken collarbone, Harry M. Bailey, 28, also of Carrying Place, scraped right knee, and Mrs. Mabel Strattan, 18, of London, Ont., a bruised back.

Ralph B. Strattan of London was driving west on Bridge Street when the strong sun shining in his eyes prevented him from seeing the traffic signal at the Coleman Street intersection. He entered the intersection against the red light and collided with the Bailey vehicle which was proceeding north on Coleman Street with the green light. Damages to both vehicles amounted to about $350.

MONGREL COLLIE IN CITY POUND

A male mongrel collie wearing neither collar nor tag was picked up this morning by city dog catcher Thomas Thorn on Cannifton Road. He will be kept the conventional period awaiting an interested owner.

MOOSE REPORTED IN LIMERICK TWP.

According to a representative of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, moose have been seen in the township of Limerick, Hastings County. Presence of a large moose was reported to the departmental representative by a resident of the township during a recent tour of the district.

Tweed Residents Suffer Minor Injuries in Crash

Two Tweed residents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Godfrey suffered minor injuries Monday morning when the car in which they were riding on No. 7 highway was in collision with a truck. Mr. Godfrey suffered a lacerated nose and multiple bruises while his wife suffered a lacerated forehead and a fractured rib.

Mr. Godfrey was proceeding west on highway No. 7 when approximately three and a half miles east of Madoc, he attempted to make a left hand turn. A truck owned by the hydro and driven by Don Kirkham, of Sharbot Lake, which was following attempted to pass and the collision resulted. Kirkham was not injured but both vehicles were extensively damaged.

Today was gloomy for the teenagers, and it wasn't the lack of sun that made it so. For about 1,100 of collegiate age, and for hundreds more still in the public school grouping this was the day the long grind starts again.

At the collegiate, it was the same old story. The upper school crowd managed to look bored with it all, and the smaller grade niners tried hard to mask their nervousness. The auditorium was crowded to overflowing as the more experienced types vied for spots near the entrance doors. They were asked to move farther into the hall, but that old dread of getting up near the front of anything, be it a class or just an assembly asserted itself and the result was quite a bit of confusion.

The seats in the auditorium were filled long before the teachers filed up on the stage from their meeting. In the halls, the veterans lounged, the girls gathering in little knots of gossips and the boys casting reflective eyes over the girls. Sport shirts Eisenhower jackets and sharp new "strides" were the order of the day on the male side.

Official Opening

The 1950-51 term was officially opened by Principal G. E. Currie. Students sang the National Anthem and then were led in the Lord's Prayer by Mr. Currie. Immediately following that, new members of the staff were introduced to the student body.

The new male teachers came in for some heavy scrutiny from the girl students. With remarkable restraint, however, they restricted themselves to just a few squeals of joy.

Before things got organized in the auditorium, there were the usual feeble jokes that "if they don't get going soon, I'm going home." Old acquaintances were renewed and the standard reply to "I didn't think you'd be back" was "Well, I can't think of better life. Can you?"

Grouping of Students

After the introductions of the staff members, Principal Currie directed the large group to divide off into groups according to their educational level. Previous to that, the principal had made his yearly welcoming speech, warning the students that education was of prime value in today's world, and while there would be a lot of fun in the coming term, there must also be academic work.

And the oldtimers, with that studied nonchalance, moved off through the halls to find what books they would need and to see whom they would be grouped with. A plan has been set up to provide student guides for the first while so that newcomers will not get lost, and already dire plans are in store. Upper school types have hatched a plan to appear lost all the time.

Classes start tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

St. Michael's and Holy Rosary

More than 500 students registered at St. Michael's Academy this morning as the 1950-51 school term started. To be exact, 510 pupils are on the roster, and 12 classrooms will be used to accommodate them.

At Holy Rosary, at the corner of College and James Streets, 160 pupils are registered under principal Sister Angeline. Her staff for the term will include Sister Mary Callista, Sister Mary Kenneth and Miss Rita Chappelle.

Exceeds Expectations

Enrollment at the city's five public schools exceeded expectations this morning, but the extras will be handled in fine style. The total was 2235 students which, according to Lawrence Kells, inspector - administrator of the Board of Education, was about 135 more than the estimate.

The overflow, Mr. Kells said, will be taken care of by opening a couple of new classrooms. Total number of kindergarten students is 267, with only one school, Prince Charles, having none at all.

Principals at the five schools have not changed from last year, Mr. Kells said.

Pat Blaker Hooks 37-Pound 'Lunge In Moira River

The boat moved lazily througn the sluggish water of the Moira River near O'Brien's Bridge. It's four occupants were enjoying a Sunday afternoon outing "cruising down the river". The sun was warm and only the roar of motor traffic on the bridge disturbed the peaceful scene.

Overside a trolling line caused slight ripples on the water as the boat moved slowly ahead. Pat Blaker, 24 Golfdale Road, had tossed the line over "just for the fun of it."

Then it happened. The line jerked taut in Blaker's hands. He nearly lost his balance as a terrific strain on the line nearly swung the boat about. For a moment he thought he had "hooked" an abutment of the bridge. Yards away the water almost exploded as a large fish broke the surface. Eyes wide in amazement, Blaker saw that he had hooked a large muskie. The other occupants of the boat, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kempston, and Mrs. S. Hill, gripped the boat's gunwales as Blaker engaged the big fellow in a 15-minute battle.

He drew it alongside, but the 53-inch lunge had no ideas of "saying uncle". Blaker had no gaff, nor any other equipment for landing his prize. Finally he seized a nearby paddle and struck the fish a mighty blow on the head. The paddle shattered into pieces, but it served the purpose. The fish was eventually landed and later, it was learned, tipped the scales at 37 pounds.

"It was the thrill of a lifetime," smiled the fish-happy Blaker. He said the stomach of the fish contained nothing, not even a minnow. Now he is going back in an effort to hook its mate.

Obituary

MRS. ESTHER VANDERVOORT

Mrs. Esther Vandervoort, wife of Mr. George W. Vandervoort, died at her home, 130 Catherine Street on Monday evening after an illness of one year's duration.

JOHNNY MARTIN
(Tweed)

Tweed, Sept. 5 —(Special) — Playing with matches when alone in the upstairs of his home in Tweed late Saturday afternoon, Johnny Martin, age six years, started a fire which resulted in the loss of his life and also partial destruction of the house of his mother Mrs. John Martin.

Mrs. Martin discovered the fire which had gained headway, but could not find the child; he had crawled under the bed. She was forced to leave after throwing some water on the fire, which had no effect in extinguishing the blaze. The firemen arrived and succeeded in saving a part of the house and some of the contents. The child, however, died before the fire was extinguished; he was badly burned.

The family lived in Toronto some time ago and the child was born in that city. They also lived at one time in Peterborough and for the past six years they resided in Tweed. The father died in Tweed three years ago.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed. The service there and at Victoria Cemetery was conducted by Captain George Heron of the Salvation Army.

Also thanks to Dr. McCutcheon. Many thanks to Front Road W.A., to so many friends for their frequent visits and to all who sent flowers, boxes of fruit, candy and cards. My many thanks again. Thos. J. Brown, R. R. 4 Belleville. S5

Despite Heavy Traffic No Serious Accidents Occur

Despite the continuous stream of vehicles making traffic possibly the heaviest of the entire season, there were no serious accidents and no highway fatalities in Belleville district during the Labor Day weekend it was stated today by Inspector W. McDougall at Belleville Provincial Police headquarters.

"We are proud of the fact that this district escaped without a single fatality nor serious accident during the holiday," stated Inspector McDougall, "for this we must express our appreciation to the motoring public."

Only one minor accident was reported in the district, this being on the Trenton-Belleville highway near the site of the former Riley Pavilion which occurred early this morning. Details of the accident were not learned but it was stated one woman suffered injury to her arm when the car in which she was riding rolled over in the ditch.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP) —Vigorous demand pushed a wide list of stocks forward over a broad front in brisk dealings on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The slight setback the market suffered Friday was wiped out as accumulated weekend orders kept trading brisk and forced prices upward.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,248,000.

Gains were predominant in the industrial grouping as refining oils, manufacturing, agriculture and steels posted advances. Foods constructions and papers displayed a slightly weaker tendency. Ford A and CPR slipped.

Base metals put on a strong show after early weakness had been partially overcome. Quemont, Steep Rock, Noranda and International Nickel were among those ahead. East Sullivan, Falconbridge and Sherritt Gordon were easier.

Western oils spurted ahead for gains ranging up to 15 cents.

Golds showed strength in both senior and junior groupings. McIntyre and Teck Hughes pushed ahead in seniors while juniors posted gains ranging to 15 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Trading was dull at the Ontario stockyards today with prices steady on good cows, good bulls and fed yearlings. Sales of weighty steers, light steers and heifers were too few to establish prices. Receipts: cattle, 4,300; calves, 920; hogs, 980; sheep and lambs, 1070. Left from last week were 600 cattle.

Medium to good cows sold for $20-$23.50; good bulls $23-24.50; good to choice fed yearlings $30,-$33; good stockers $25-$27 with two loads of short keeps at $30.

Calves were steady at $30-$32 for choice vealers; common to medium $20-$29.

Hog prices were not established.

Airliner Crashes Carrying Thirteen To Their Deaths

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 5 — (AP)— Charred wreckage strewn over a farm pasture was all that remained today of a DC-3 airliner that carried 13 persons to their deaths yesterday. Ten injured holiday travellers were in hospitals.

The Robinson Airlines plane crashed into tree-tops and burst into flames about two minutes after taking off yesterday from nearby Oneida airport. It was bound for Newark, N. J.

A family of five and the three-man crew were among those killed.

Witnesses said the pilot, Capt. Harold Carter, apparently tried to bring his disabled plane down for an emergency landing. But the craft hit the trees, caught fire and plunged to the ground.

One witness said a wing dug into the ground and the plane appeared to spin around on it as it plowed across the field. The left wing was torn off.

Four persons were thrown out as the plane hit. Three crawled through escape hatches and passers-by pulled other survivors from the flaming wreckage.

It was reported unofficially that a piston of one engine blew about 30 seconds after it left the ground. The plane was too low to return to the field.

Just one seat was empty when the ill-fated airliner took off with 20 passengers, including homeward - bound vacationists and seven servicemen. That empty seat belonged to Ernest Kapps of Rome, N. Y., who got to the airport five minutes late.

No Savage Tug on Line Marked Capture of 'David' in Salmon Lake

Fishing experts, scientific tables and gadgets to the contrary, it is still a 1,000 to one bet that you can't be sure what will grab your bait when you toss that line overboard.

It is liable to be the piscatorial monster you have dreamed of, a pesky three-inch perch, an old boot, or a sunken hunk of tree.

Take for instance, what happened in two widely separated fishing haunts of the county over the weekend. Two trolling lines, offering delectable holiday fare to the unwary finny hungry were productive of two specimens as far apart in physical proportions as David and Goliath.

The Goliath of the story is the 37-pound musky caught by Pat Blaker while trolling "just for the fun of it", in the Moira River off O'Brien's Bridge.

But the real story is the capture of the "David" which was cooling a tiny body in some forty feet of water in Salmon Lake.

The angler, who desires to remain anonymous, felt no terrific tug on the four-inch wobbler he was using as a "come-on" for the tasty grey trout. In fact, when he hauled in the line, he almost missed the little fellow which clung more or less tenaciously to one of the barbs.

It was approximately one and one-half inches in length. Perfectly formed its body tapered from a shark-like head to a small tail. Under the abnormal head, two narrow fins a third of an inch in length were apparent on the front part of the belly. Two narrow dorsal fins were situated near the back part of the spine.

Office "experts" went into conclave and came up with the opinion that the small economy size was a member of the ling family.

Buys 11 Pigs, Gets Home With Nine, Two Had Squeezed Out of Crate

The old nursery rhyme about the little pig going to market was re-enacted on the local farmer's market on Saturday but with a slightly different ending.

A farmer living 14 miles from the city purchased 11 little pigs on the market and had placed them in his crate pending his departure for home latter on in the afternoon. But when he got home he only had nine pigs. What happened was this.

During the farmer's absence from the market two of the pigs had wriggled through the slats of the crate and disappeared.

One of the shoats was caught by city pound keeper Thomas Thorne late in the afternoon an Ann Street but the other eluded capture until resident reported to the police station that a pig was rooting up his lawn.

One of the officers of the law came to the rescue and caught the pig and placed him in the basement of the city hall for safe keeping.

Sunday morning the farmer returned to the city and collected his two missing pigs.

Body of Missing Man Found In Jordan Lake

Missing from his home in York township outside Toronto since August 23rd, the body of William Chester Vipond, 55, was found floating in Jordan Lake north of Millbridge on Saturday evening.

The body was found by Charles and Richard Green, father and son from Toronto, who happened to be fishing in the small lake at the side of Highway 62. The body was in a bad state of decomposition and apparently had been in the water for some days. Police said there was no evidence of foul play.

Vipond, who lived at 85 Raymond Ave., York township, was a commercial traveller and for the past two years had been working in the Toronto area.

Three days after Vipond disappeared his auto was found partially hidden in the bushes a short distance from the lake in which his body was found. Police stated there appeared to have been an attempt to hide the car.

Cpl. A. F. Grayling and Provincial Constable J. Gable took the body to Bancroft where a postmortem was conducted by Dr. W. D. Hay, assistant professor of pathology for Queen's University. Inspector A. MacDougall at Belleville provincial police headquarters stated there was no indication of foul play or of other violence.

A preliminary hearing was held for identification of the body, but it was not immediately decided whether there would be an inquest.

Vipond was married with two grown sons.

PLAYGROUND SEASON ENDS

The summer season of the nine supervised playgrounds in the city has come to an end but the results will show in the influence exerted upon the many hundreds of children who have come under the direction of the supervisors in charge of the season's program.

The chairman of the committee, Enos David, has paid high tribute to the supervisors and sees no reason why children should not receive supervision during the summer as well as during the rest of the year in the schools.

The results of the work will be seen in influences which will be felt by the children as a part of their education. The committee too has been inspired by the success of the work accomplished during the vacation season and their experience will be put to good use in the future.

COLD WINDS

Labor Day, the last holiday of summer though the season has weeks yet to go, was one of the coldest in the memory of many persons.

Last spring there was much talk about possible changes of temperature, some scientists holding the view that the north was becoming warmer and pointed to the retreat of glaciers in the temperate zone. Some observers declared there appeared a definite trend to warmer weather in the temperate zone.

Last week there had been hurricanes and tempests rising in the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico causing loss of life and property. At the time it was pointed out that the wet spell of weather might not end until the effects of the hurricanes were passed.

Whatever the couse of the chilling winds, people know that the weather was unusually cold on Monday.

SLEEPING OUT

The fact must be faced that sleeping out is not a pleasure. It is a satisfaction rather than a pleasure, says The Printed Word. Even an air mattress and a sleeping bag provide less comfort than the bed back there indoors. Things work up under the hip when you sleep out. They work up under whichever hip is down. The moonlight gets in the eyes, or the starlight. Dew descends. Little breezes shiver or full-out winds blow. There may be a spatter of rain or real rain. There may be too much cold or heat or both at various times of the long night. Unaccountable noises intrude. Somebody pads out and inquires if you really like it there under the tree, or flat on the lawn, or wherever it is you are keeping house for the night. The sun starts coming up too soon, away ahead of when it shows indoors.

Most people have slept out, in one or another of the wars of these times, or during a camping trip, or when it was too hot to sleep inside. Deliberately moving out for the night from a bed that suddenly is revealed to be sumptuous requires imagination, fortitude and a lot of getting-around-to-itness.

The effort is worthwhile, and September is the last good time for it in 1950. It is worthwhile to stir yourself up by finding again that the sky is not just a still picture hung above the street light, but that it has depth and movement. Sleeping out, you renew your spirit in ponderings. Your back may be a bit stiff in the morning, but the rest of you will be on better terms with your environment.

SPIRIT OF CONFUCIUS

With the Chinese in their war against the communists is the spirit of the great sage, Confucius, the 2,501st anniversary of whose birth was recently celebrated in Formosa. On the mainland of China the event could not be marked as Mai Tse-tung in the spring ordered the burning of the works of Confucius, terming them "reactionary and anti-people."

New York Herald-Tribune remarked over this: "However we have a strong notion that Confucius has not been so easily erased from the past and present of China by a fiery red decree."

Confucius, for instance, taught a lot about human relationships. These, he said, "were continually being violated by the passions of men." This statement, of course, sets Confucius up as a dangerous counter-revolutionist in the eyes of Moscow's followers, with whom such violations, either individual or national, have long been old stuff. Mai Tse-tung may have burned the works of Confucius, but we will bet him any mandarin's best melon rind cap that for another 2,500 years the sage will be read in China, where a century is but a Kremlin day. For wisdom is like that. Fortunately for mankind it is a phoenix which survives many historic ashes and many puppet rulers. Confucius, we believe, doesn't have to worry a bit about any communist banning of his eternal ideograms.

He only is happy as well as great who needs neither to obey nor command in order to be something.—Goethe.

CHIN AND HEART

"He took it on the chin!" they said.
The point where knock-outs start;
But I'd have said of him, instead:
"He took it on the heart."

The chin may be a brittle bone
That splinters when it's struck,
But it is from the heart alone
Come will-to-win and pluck.

Some men who take it on the chin,
To fight, no more will rise.
They lack the spirit deep within
That loss and hurt defies.

And since, despite the crushing blow,
He dared again to start
Courageously to live, we know
He took it on the heart.

PARENTHOOD

Four hundred years ago a little boy sat in a dark corner in Westminster Abbey and heard the great musician Whitehall play the organ and joyfully sing the Psalms in their metrical version. The youngster was thrilled. A few years later he ascended the throne of England as Edward VI, and although he died long before he attained maturity, his reign was characterized by a great and permanent step forward in the religious life of England. Edward turned out to be a truly devout young man who, although he remained only a few moments on the stage of history, helped in the achieving of certain momentous results.

Probably everyone of us can look back on some circumstance in youth which constituted for us either an inspiration to much good or the beginning in our lives of much evil. There is no plot of soil on the face of this earth so fallow and fertile as the heart of youth. Plowed and cultivated by the hand of God, ready for seed to be sown thereon by the hand of man—and particularly by the mother's hand—young people of every age constitute a challenge, arresting and solemn to an immeasurable degree.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOCALITY

Locality has so much to do with what we do every day of our lives. We are happier in some places than others. We think and work in some places better than others. The people who surround us, or who work with us, or with whom we come most in contact, have a great bearing on our thinking and acting.

The actor or singer is more inspired before a great audience in an important place. He feels he must be his best then. The locality counts. The climate of a place often changes one's personality. People's talk is often tied to the locality where they have been born or have long lived.

It is a good thing for people to change their locality. It has often led to a happier way of life, and a more successful one. It is important to have one's home in a good neighborhood, even though that home may be a modest one. It is stimulating to be among those who have similar tastes and objectives.

Again we must take a leaf from Nature. Animals and birds select the locality where they thrive best, and can raise their young. They also change that locality with the seasons, as many birds do. We grow by moving around, seeing new things, and enlarging our area of experience.

We are unconsciously influenced by what goes on all around, seeing new things, and enlarging our area of experience.

We are unconsciously influenced by what goes on all around us, no matter where we may be, whether permanently or for but a brief time. We keep storing knowledge and memories. We can sit in our home and read of foreign lands, experiencing at second hand many of the thrills and joys that their narrator did. At heart we are all adventurers!

It isn't so much where we are, but what we do where we are, that counts, though the locality is often important. Writing a biography, the author likes to visit the actual scenes of his hero or heroine, likes to absorb something of the spirit that made that one notable. He, or she, talks to many who knew the subject, seeking out the unusual traits that made that one notable among those who knew or loved him best.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

BLINDMAN'S BLUFF

Last night, in a mood for malt and malarkey, I stopped in to chin with Sammy Fuchs, proprietor of the Bowery Follies and honorary mayor of that unwashed neck of the Manhattan woods.

"What's new and gruesome in your bailiwick?" I asked mine host.

"Nothing much," said Sammy, "except that Faker Kennedy died last week and left his eyes to a bartender down the block."

"Come again?" I said.

According to Sammy, the Faker was a professional blind man who had been rattling a tin cup on the Bowery for as long as he could remember. In spite of his calling, however, it was a standing joke around the flophouses that the cane-tapper could shoot off a bug's ear at a hundred paces.

"We used to kid Kennedy about his blindness," said Sammy, "but he never let on it was an act—if it was an act. And we were never sure because no one ever saw the old coot without his smoked glasses.

"Down at Gargan's Bar where the Faker used to hang out after hours," Sammy continued, "the proprietor had a kind of running gag at the bum's expense.

"'When you die,' he used to say, 'will me your eyes. Mine are gettin' pretty tired from lookin' at the sawdust.'

"'I'll leave 'em to ya, Gargan,' was the Faker's stock answer. 'And they'll come in handy if ya ever want to play marbles.'

"That's about how the talk went until on night not long ago when a couple of stick-up men walked into Gargan's and lined the customers up against the wall—all except the Faker who didn't budge from his usual place at the end of the bar.

"After the punks had cleaned out the register and what little was in the customers' pickets, one of them walked up to the Faker and jabbed a gun in his ribs.

"'You wouldn't take pennies from a blind man, would ya?' said Kennedy.

"'Don't gimme that pennies stuff,' said the thug. 'You guys always got a roll on ya.'

"The Faker made out as if he was fumbling in his pockets, and then suddenly made a grab for the gun, yanked it away from the hood and bopped him over the head with it. Then, using the body as a sort of shield, he pointed the gun at the other punk.

"'Drop yer pistol,' he said, 'or I'll shoot the cigar outta yer mouth.'

"Well, it so happened the thug did have a cigar in his mouth, and when he heard the blind man's on-the-button reference to it he got panicky and dropped his gun. A dozen guys jumped him, and a few minutes later he and his pal were in the precinct house.

"After that, of course, everybody on the Bowery was sure the Faker was a fake, but he never owned up. 'They got me all wrong,' he once told me. 'The stick-up guy was smokin' an Italian stogie and ya can smell them things a block away. And I guessed it was in his mouth by the way he talked.'

"A couple of weeks ago," Sammy went on. "Faker Kennedy got pneumonia, and the day after his body was carted off to Potter's Field a package showed up in Gargan's mail with a pair of glass eyes."

"Sounds like the old man was telling the truth after all," I said.

"Nobody is convinced, one way or the other," said the Mayor of the Bowery. "Maybe the eyes came out of the Faker's head, and then again maybe he picked them up in a hockshop. You know, you never can tell about these cuckoos—he might have wanted to play the gag out to the end."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The fact is, Canada has very little true wilderness left. There is not a stand of timber or even pulpwood that has not been measured with the chill eye of commerce either from the air or afoot. Hardly a rock in the vast expanse of the Dominion but has been tapped by the hammers and blasting powder of prospectors.

And now the sportsman, who has literally quintupled his numbers within the past twenty years, is employing aircraft, outboard engine, jeep and snowmobile—all of them creations within our own little life time—to steal away the mystery that used to lie, a little while ago, over immense wilderness areas of Canada. You think you have found a lovely spot of virgin wilderness when overhead, low, roars a plane. You paddle around a bend of the lake, or river, and there is a stylish log bungalow, very Hollywood, in its varnish, and even with a picture window, dainty aluminum boats bobbing at the wharf with their outboard astern, and the big seaplane that went overhead now moored. From the pretty cabin a radio quacks.

The wilderness used to belong, largely to poor men or men without much means. The wealthy people of our continent built up their resorts on Cape Cod, Florida, California. The Laurentians, Muskoka and in the Rockies, where railroads could serve them with all the comforts of civilization, though surrounded by a myth of the primitive and wild.

These people scorned the real wilderness. It was left to the squatter, settler, trapper, backwoodsman and that small element of campers and sportsmen who made a cult of going into the wilderness the hard way, afoot, by canoe or by pack horse.

Now only a myth of wilderness remains all over the continent. It has all become a resort. There is not a hide-out in all the land that you cannot invade with all the comforts of civilization by the help of planes, snowmobiles, jeeps, caterpillars and outboard engines.

Mackenzie's Column:

Moscow May Try To Manoeuvre US Into Chinese War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One of the gravest hazards the United States faces right now is the danger of an effort by Moscow to manoeuvre her into war with communist China.

I'm not talking about a contingency involving the U.S. naval fleet's defence of the Island of Formosa from invasion by the Chinese reds, but about big-scale operations on the Chinese mainland. The U.S. seventh fleet has been assigned by President Truman to defend strategic Formosa pending termination of the neighboring Korean war—but that doesn't contemplate commitments in continental China.

Development of Chinese-American trouble would fit perfectly Russia's stategy of weakening the U.S. and her allies by keeping them involved in scattered military operations—Russia meantime standing aside and conserving her own resources until the U.S. is whittled down to her size.

The Master Plan

Of course Moscow would be running a risk in fostering a Chinese-American war because it could easily get out of hand and become another global conflict. Russia isn't ready for that yet.

However, there are signs that the Kremlin is at least setting the stage for contingencies which it might develop to its advantage.

There are the reiterated charges that American planes are bombing Chinese territory north of Korea—that there is U.S. aggression in Formosa, and that the U.S. is preparing to make war on red China. Those are allegations which can be pursued or dropped, as suits Moscow.

There is one highly-interesting "if" in such speculation, and that concerns just how much control Moscow can exercise over the Chinese communist government, headed by the astute Mao Tze-Tung. His chief adviser is foreign minister Chou En-Lai, also a highly-educated and much travelled man of wide political and military experience. I had a long conference with Gen. Chou in Chungking during the last war, and have no doubts about his capabilities.

Weak Point

Russia's weak point in the matter of controlling the Peiping government is that the Chinese reds are strong for nationalism. Mao has given indications of intending to maintain China's sovereignty in Peiping rather than deposit it in Moscow, as the smaller satellites have done.

Thus while red China has been siding with Russia against the western allies, there is a large question as to how far Gen. Mao would allow his country to be usd as a cat's paw by the Soviet Union. He can see that the Kremlin might be quite willing to sacrifice China if by so doing the U.S. could be exhausted by fighting a crazy war on the Chinese continent.

ACTION IS WHAT YOU NEED

Have you ever been in a situation or a jam which had you pacing about or indulging in some other purposeless action while you sought a way to get around the difficulty or a solution of the problem?

That's a good cue or suggestion for any one to follow in such circumstances. Instead of pacing round and round your cage, grab your hat, your girl, your camera, your pipe, your stick, your binoculars or whatever you like with you and light out for a brisk walk through the park, in the country or at least via streets or byways which you have not followed frequently before.

As I have said so many times, such action is far better relief than mere make-believe for the "tension," "strain" or "nervous exhaustion" which the wiseacres ascribe to the cares and anxieties of business, social or domestic life.

Primitive man reacted to threats, challenges, annoyances or dangers by fighting or running away. Either re-action relieved the strain. Modern man encounters chiefly vicarious threats and a brisk walk or any equivalent general exercise is the best relief for the tension, elevated blood pressure) these present anxieties produce.

Two miles of oxygen on the hoof, twice or three time a day, is the best "nerve tonic" a sedentary person can take. If you can possibly afford it, take it on your way to and from business or work.

I mentioned elevated blood pressure above in order to explain what I mean by the "tension" of unhygienic living. I have no information or advice about high blood pressure. If you are obsessed with the high blood pressure idea you may learn something to your advantage by reading the booklet C V D, which deals with heart and artery troubles. For a copy of the booklet send twenty-five cents, no clipping, and a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Sedentary persons who are that way from choice and not because of physical disability experience extraordinary gains in well being, happiness and efficiency if and when they can muster sufficient character or will power to get out and hoof it for an hour or more every day regardless of the weather. Nambypamby flabby characters cannot in conscience plead "weak heart" as an excuse for idle, passive existence. Only the unqualified prohibition of walking by the physician attending the patient should prevent even subjects of heart disease from getting their daily oxygen on the hoof. Indeed, daily exercise, graded and supervised by the patient's own physician, is an indispensable part of the successful treatment of valvular heart disease, myocardial insufficiency, coronary occlusion or what have you. It is noteworthy in this connection that occlusion, thrombosis, embolism or other grave episode is as likely if not more likely to occur when the patient is at rest or asleep as when going about his or her usual business.

This is the ideal time of year to take up walking as a health-building diversion or hobby. If you are soft and flabby from long indulgence, take it easy. Suffice to walk no more than a mile a day the first week. Week by week, as you begin to regain physical fitness or pep, increase your daily stint gradually until you do six miles a day without fatigue.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Five Minutes to 48 Hours

How long should a person go with bleeding piles before consulting a physician? (Mrs. B. G.)

Answer—Not at all. If your fear of pain deters you, the ambulant or office treatment is painless. So the sooner you seek treatment the better. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet It is Stupid to suffer From Piles.

Sunbaths and I-Ra

Is there any harm in taking sun baths and iodine ration for any kind of arrested TB?

Answer—One with active or arrested tuberculosis should take sun baths and/or iodine ration only under the direction and observation of his or her physician.

So You Have Low Blood Pressure?

Considerable knowledge desseminated on high blood pressure, but little on low blood pressure. My wife.... (D. R.)

Answer—In my opinion 98 per cent of the "knowledge" of the laity encerning high blood pressure is mischievous and wrong. My advice is never mind your blood pressure—leave it to the doctor's judgment. You may learn something to your wife's advantage by studying the booklet C V D—for copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Seasonal Employment Reduces Number of Jobless in District

Trenton. (Special.)—While the number of unemployed in this district shows a slight increase at the end of August as compared with the beginning of last month, J. W. Russell, manager of Trenton Unemployment Insurance office expects that unemployment will reach its low water mark for the year about the middle of the month.

"September is the month during which the largest number of people are employed throughout this area," said Mr. Russell this morning. "Those canning factories which are processing fruits and vegetables this year will absorb some of the slack labor for the next six weeks."

The total number of registered job applicants as of August 31 was 223 which is a slight increase over the end of July when 199 persons were listed as job applicants. Last year at this time, 203 job seekers were listed at the local employment office.

A breakdown of the end of August figures shows, 123 male job applicants and 100 female applicants. There are 34 vacancies for male workers and 23 positions for female workers are on file. On August 31, 1949, there were 25 vacancies for the 135 male job applicants and 34 vacancies for 68 female workers who were seeking employment.

The number of job openings shows a much greater increase for the month than the increase in registered job applicants, as there were only a total of 28 vacancies listed at the beginning of August as compared 57 job openings for men and women at the present time, and Mr. Russell is confident that fall harvesting of apples and canning plants will reduce the number of unemployed in this district to the annual "low" before the end of this month.

Many Highway Accidents But No Serious Injuries

Trenton. (Special.)— There were at least a dozen highway accidents in Trenton over the Labor Day weekend and although property damage was heavy in some cases there were no serious injuries.

On Saturday, five minor car accidents in Trenton caused only slight damage to the vehicles involved and no one was injured according to Trenton police department.

The Ontario Provincial Police detachment in Brighton reported this morning that 12 accidents had occurred between Trenton and Brighton over the weekend. Minor injuries were sustained in some of the crashes, but nobody was injured seriously enough to require hospitalization.

Trenton Midgets Drop Playoff To Kingston 7-1

Babe Martin threw a one hitter for Kingston and his hurling opponent, Bill Mitts came up with the only Trenton hit, a single in the second.

Kingston opened the scoring in the first frame when two Legionnaire runs crossed the plate as the result of a walk and two errors. Kingston added two more in the second on singles by Senior and Sears and a walk to Salisbury.

The visitors added to their total in the fourth scoring a single run and picked up two more in the sixth on Birchall's triple with two men aboard.

The Orphans came through with the only double play of the game in the eigth inning, Birchall was safe at first and Legionnaire pitcher Martin slammed a solid grounder, that Orphan first sacker Amodeo picked up neatly. Amodeo touched the bag retiring Martin and fired to LeRoy Wannamaker on second in time for Wannamaker to tag Birchall as he was sliding in.

Bill Mitts allowed Kingston eight hits while striking out 10 and walking five. For Kingston, Martin fanned 14 Orphans hitters walked four and gave up only one hit.

Rotarians Stage Laff Quiz Show At Fair Grounds

Picton — A man clad only in B.V.D.'s, top hat and a well-tailored barrel stood in the front of a local store Saturday night, calling out 'What Canada needs is a good five-cent cigar'. They were then reminded that a Laff Quiz show was being presented at the Fair grounds under the auspices of the Rotary Club. This was one of numerous humorous stunts which kept the audience in gales of laughter and won for the contestants valuable prizes.

The cold night kept the crowd down but the show went on with Bill Bernard as master of ceremonies. Few answered the questions correctly and were called upon to do stunts. One couple had to go to a cafe, eat a sandwich and have a cup of coffee, and then tell the clerk they had no money. By a prearranged plan, the couple came back, the lady without her shoes, the man minus his pants. Another couple was tossed out of an hotel lobby for talking too loudly.

A lady was picked from the audience as a Sunday date for a young man Each was presented with a case of soft drinks and then given all the groceries they could catch, while holding the case. Included were all kinds of vegetables and fruit. Finally came a large cake of ice, a live hen and a persian kitten for each.

Two ladies sewed patches on men's breeches, one ringing a cowbell and the other banging two tin lids whenever they were pricked by the needles.

In more serious vein, Mr. Bernard spoke of the Rotary Club's work for crippled children. Due to co-operation at the Hospital for Sick Children, each dollar spent by the club is tripled in value. A special collection was taken for the hospital He interviewed a young local boy who is being helped by the club. Afflicted with tuberculosis of the bone in one leg, the lad wears a brace. Thanks to Rotary's aid, he has hopes of being cured. The club presented him with his heart's desire, a purebred pup.

During the weekend, Peanut Day was also held with a good response.

Legion-Sponsored Motorcycle Races Attract 3,000

Picton—Featured by many thrills and roaring action, but no spills, the motorcycle races here on Labor Day attracted a crowd of some 3,000 persons, the majority of them from points outside Prince Edward County. The races were run under overcast skies with the sun breaking through after the events were concluded. Sponsors of the C.M.A.-sanctioned meet were Picton Branch 78, Canadian Legion, in co-operation with the Kingston Motor Cycle Club.

It was announced that the Picton Branch next year will sponsor stock car races here, the first time in this district.

A feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a shield to the Picton Branch of the Legion in recognition of their record of having the greatest increase in membership in 1949, among Ontario branches.

T. A. Hulse, Vice-President of the Ontario Command, presented the shield which was received by Lance Nethery, K.C., President of the branch in 1949. The shield is in memory of Tom McGladry, who was five years president of the Ontario Command, an ex-M.P., ex-M.P.P. and former Minister for Colonization and Immigration in the Federal government.

A color party was under the direction of Major Howard Reid and there was a parade of veterans with berets and arm bands adding a note of color.

Extend Greetings

F. J. MacArthur, President of the Branch, welcomed the crowd and had charge of the ceremony Mr. Hulse extended greetings from the Ontario Command and 509 branches with a membership of 70,000 members. In peace, as in war, the Legion is anxious to serve and through its organization continues wartime comradeship and the desire to help veterans and their dependents. He congratulated the local branch of their achievement, saying the increase had been the greatest in the history of the competition. Bowmanville and Tweed had been the only other branches in this area to have won the shield.

In accepting the award, Comrade Nethery said it was a great honor and success of the branch had been due to the sincere and efficient work and co-operation of all members. This recognition will serve as an inspiration to carry on in future the work for which the Legion exists, he said.

The District Deputy of Zone 3 District F congratulated the branch. The Legion is observing its 25th anniversary this year.

On behalf of the Branch, Vice-President H. J. Colliver presented Mrs. Hulse with a bouquet of gladioli and roses.

J. Lightfoot of Dundas was winner of the senior class, taking the 3 and 4 mile finals and second in the 2 mile. Ted Sturgess, former champion, of Hamilton won the two, three and four mile finals for experts.

The Junior finals saw J. Foster of Kingston and K. Andrews, Hamilton win their respective heats in the two-mile event. Andrews took the two-mile final and Douglas Syers of Burlington the four - mile finals. Lightfoot is the eastern and western Ontario senior champion.

First Christian Burial Ground In Ontario Found

Midland, Sept. 5 (CP) —Discovery of what may prove to be the first Christian burial-ground in Ontario was announced Monday by Dr. Wilfred Jury, archaeologist of the University of Western Ontario at London.

Dr. Jury with six assistants, has been excavating the site of Fort Ste. Marie, built by French Jesuit missionaries more than 300 years ago and wiped out by Iroqouis Indians.

Eight bodies, at least one that of a white man, were found in what rosary beads marked as a Christian cemetery. Dr. Jury said he expects to find still other bodies.

An atomist from the University of Western Ontario is expected to arrive today to examine the bodies. He will try to determine which are those of white men and which are Indian.

EGG EXPORTS

Sweden's exports of eggs during the first half of 1950 amounted to 7,460 tons, seven times as much as in the corresponding period of 1949.

Cannifton Wins Over Latta 6-1 To Even Series

Cannifton raced into a two-game tie with the Latta squad on their home diamond last evening to tie South Hastings Baseball League finals at two games each. One game ended in a tie. The sixth game of the four-of-seven series will be played in Latta on Wednesday evening.

Cannifton took last night's game by a 6-1 score with Gordie Oliver going the eight-inning route. Tracey toiled on the mound for six innings for the losers and was replaced by Kerr.

White was the batting hero for Cannifton. He slashed out a double that drove in a pair of counters and on another occasion boomed a triple off his bat. But went out trying to stretch the clout into a home run.

WEDDINGS

LOCKE—PRINGLE

In Bridge Street United Church, on August 26, at three p.m., Dorothy Marie Pringle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis Pringle, Belleville, became the bride of Mr. John Milton Locke, son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Claude Locke, also of this city. Candlelight and pink and white gladioli and ferns formed the setting for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. F. R. Harback.

Mr. Charles Allen, of Peterborough, provided the wedding music and Miss Loretta McDougall sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and, during the signing of the register, "Through the Years".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white nylon marquisette and Chantilly lace. The fitted lace jacket with three-quarter length sleeves and Peter Pan collar was buttoned to the waist ending in an accordian-pleated peplum. The full marquisette skirt was accented with sprigs of lily-of-the-valley and her fingertip veil of tulle illusion fell from a molded lace cap. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Mary Locke, sister of the groom, and Carolyn Morden, as bridesmaids were gowned alike in foam green marquisette and Chantilly lace. Their dresses were styled similarly to that of the bride except for the short cap sleeves, scalloped peplums and matching lace bandeaux. They carried bouquets of mauve glamellias and green ivy.

Mr. George Locke was his brother's groomsman, while Mr. Donald Leslie, Mr. Frank Foley and Mr. Donald Pringle, brother of the bride, ushered.

The reception was held in the church parlors which were beautifully decorated with Autumn flowers. Receiving, the bride's mother wore a floor-length dress of French blue lace with black accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The mother of the groom chose a printed silk gown with accents in powder blue and wore yellow roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Fredericton, N.B., Toronto, Hamilton, Listowel, Prescott, St. Catharines, Tweed and Arden.

For motoring through Quebec and to Lake Placid, the bride donned a navy suit with matching accessories and wore a burgundy glamellia corsage.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Locke will take up residence in Toronto.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained by Miss Mary Locke, of Belleville, and by the Dental Nurses of the Faculty of Dentistry, University of Toronto, and at the home of Mrs. W. P. Graham and her daughter, Mary, of Toronto, also by Mrs. Alexander Young, of that city.

Lord Hay, Age 2, Purloins Queen's Bouquet

Edinburgh, Scotland, Sept. 5. (AP)—Lord Hay, son of the Countess of Erroll, purloined the Queen's bouquet here yesterday and he kept it after a sharp psychological skirmish.

The noble Lord is two.

He pounced on the posies as the Queen set them down during greeting ceremonies at an historical exhibition.

He resolutely refused to give them up despite rebukes from his nurse and the Countess, who as hereditary high constable, hold "supreme jurisdiction in all matters of assault and riot within four miles of the Sovereign's person in Scotland."

But Queen Elizabeth was equal to the crisis.

"Keep it, dear," she said.

"Bye-bye, pretty lady," said Lord Hay.

59 Years a Nurse, Still Going Strong

Toronto, (CP)—Mrs. Caroline Sewell's immediate ambition is to keep nursing for just one more year—to bring her record to 60 years on the job.

The 79-year-old nurse, now doing floor duty at the Toronto General Hospital, sees nothing remarkable in her long service. "After all," she says, "I was only doing my job. There are lots of other nurses like me, if you look for them."

Mrs. Sewell was graduated from Queen Charlotte's hospital in London, where she specialized in midwifery. She delivered at least 3,000 babies there before coming to Canada in 1908 with her husband. After coming to Canada, she says, "I had to call in a doctor for the delivery."

She herself has nine children and 22 grandchildren.

Following special training in home and foreign fevers, Mrs. Sewell served for two years in Alexandria, where she came into contact with everything from measles to bubonic plague.

When the Sewells came to Canada they settled in the Temiskaming district of Northern Ontario. She continued her nursing in the district, as her husband's heart condition prevented him from doing heavy work. When Mr. Sewell died in 1928, she went back to nursing, later moving to the Sarnia, Ont., district, where most of her children have settled.

She came to Toronto six years ago and was accepted as staff nurse at the Toronto General.

"I hope to go on one more year," she says, "but one never knows just what is ahead."

In the American Civil War the Union suffered 110,070 dead compared to the Confederacy's losses of 74,524.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

(The author of these articles, Mrs. J. R. Futcher, of St. Thomas, is accompanying the Canadian members of the Women's Institute on a trip to Copenhagen, where they will attend the triennial convention of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She is president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, and this series of articles is written to keep the members of the W.I. and all interested informed of the highlights of the trip.)

On Board the Empress of France.

The last afternoon on board is delightful—the sea is calm, the sun is out and the decks are crowded for the first time. About 3 p.m. we sight the Irish coast and it is good to see, even if it is just a purple broken line at the horizon, with fleecy white clouds hanging low. Land birds almost come aboard and not far off we see a large porpoise wallowing and playing in the sun. A sailor tells me it is a sure sign of fair weather when these big fish surface and play.

By no stretch of the imagination can I call the ocean "blue"—it is grey black or inky grey in color, although in the wake of the ship, where the water continually churns, it is ice-green.

Two small islands, side by side, now come into view, each with a large lighthouse, striped in black and white. They call them the Two Maidens, and when I asked why, a sailor replied, "Lady, you ought to know! Can't you see they're waiting eagerly for those who come by the sea?"

Then, some keen watcher shouts "Scotland"—and we run to the other side of the boat to get the first glimpse of the barren, rocky crags of the Scottish coast with the Scottish mist rising. It was an unexpected thrill. I hadn't realized that we would see the coastlines of these two countries at the same time. So you can imagine the scene—the Scotch hugging the rail on one side of the ship, the Irish the other.

The ship suddenly veers in nearer the Emerald Isle and soon we can see clearly the white farm homes with their thatched roofs and smoke rising from the chimneys, as it is the supper hour. I never saw anything lovelier than those hedged fields laid out like a patchwork quilt on the brilliantly green, sloping hillside. Being rural women, we knew what those various patches of color meant—the green shades, hay and pasture; the brown stubble of a wheat field, and the bright yellow of standing grain. The white farm buildings are snuggled together as if for warmth and companionship, or as if to support one another from tumbling into the sea.

At dinner the steward said: "I've been sailing these waters for years and never before have I seen the Irish coast like that." Later, we learn that the captain, knowing he had a delegation of Canadian farm women on board, had purposely taken us close, that we might have this charming introduction.

We are to dock early, where a new experience awaits us. Members of the Women's Institutes in Cheshire are meeting us at the docks, and taking us home with them as their guests for the weekend. There are so many offers of hospitality that we are to be assigned one to a community in an effort to cover the whole shire. So, living up to her tradition, our Motherland is truly "mothering" us these first few days.

More than a week gone, Family.

Woman Sponsors Hospital For Animal Care in Cairo

By GILBERT SEDBON

Cairo. (Reuters)—A frail, grey-haired Englishwoman comes to Egypt yearly to inspect the work which for 15 years has been her main preoccupation—the care and welfare of animals.

Her annual visit to Egypt is a busy time for Mrs. Geoffrey Brooke, wife of Maj.-Gen. Geoffrey Brooke. She spends much of her time at the Brooke hospital at Sayeda Zeinab, a suburb of Cairo. During the last 15 years 10,000 horses, mules and donkeys have received veterinary treatment here.

The Brooke hospital is not only an institution it is a tradition—and a proud one. The poor, who would otherwise be unable to have attention for their diseased and injured animals (often an important help in earning their living), can obtain advice and treatment.

It all started with Mrs. Brooke's interest in old war horses.

When she visited Egypt in 1931 Mrs. Brooke began making inquiries about the thousands of horses, veterans of the Palestine campaign, sold in Egypt at the end of the First World War.

She discovered many were owned by men too poor to feed such large animals; that nearly all were at heavy work unsuited to their age and training. Numbers had perished miserably diseased, debilitated, exhausted.

Mrs. Brooke acted vigorously. About 4,500 of the old horses were bought with money raised by her appeals. She assured them peace and comfort during their last days.

Thus began the Old War Horse Memorial Hospital. Four years later, the Brooke Hospital was born.

No injured or sick animal of a poor owner is ever refused admittance, day or night. Complaints range from severe acid burns—the result of carelessness in transporting quicklime or sulphuric acid—to flop ears in young donkeys. Ignorant owners frequently sew the flopping ears of donkeys together in an effort to straighten them.

Doctors Murad and Yussef have been conducting the open-air clinics for more than a decade. They give on-the-spot commonsense advice to owners.

One of the pleasant sections of the hospital is the maternity block. Here mares may be brought to foal and enjoy four weeks' rest and good feeding.

As no facilities exist for laboratory examination and identification of organisms found in wounds, the veterinary college of Fuad Awal University, Cairo, undertakes this work. Recently a number of Egyptian students have been attending the hospital to gain veterinary experience.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

The August meeting of Pine Grove Women's Institute was held recently at the home of Mrs. F. Kingston, Oak Lake. The president, Mrs. F. Campbell, was in charge of the meeting which opened in the usual manner. The roll call was answered by fifteen members and four visitors.

The members were unanimously in favor of donating one hundred and twenty-five dollars to the Marsh Hill Church Board.

The program was in charge of Mrs. G. Bartendale, in the absence of the "Social Welfare" convener, Mrs. H. Detlor. This opened with community singing and then the following numbers were given:

Reading, "A Stranger in Our School", by Mrs. F. Lindenfield; solo, "Eileen", by Miss Gena Vanderwater; reading, "Be the Best of Whatever You Are", Mrs. G. Bartendale; address, "Social Welfare", by Mrs. Marshall of the C.A.S., giving much information regarding their work.

Refreshments were served bringing a very pleasant meeting to a close.

Mrs. E.F. Parker Celebrates 90th Birthday

Stirling.—Mrs. E. F. Parker celebrated her 90th anniversary of her natal day on Saturday. Despite her years, Mrs. Parker is quite active in her garden and about her home and enjoys comparatively good health.

During the afternoon a number of friends and neighbors gathered to extend felicitations and best wishes. The rooms were beautifully decorated with seasonal flowers and a large birthday cake adorned with candle centred the table, while the numerous birthday cards received by Mrs. Parker were artistically arranged about the room.

On behalf of those present Mrs. Frank Sprentall made the presentation of a bed lamp to Mrs. Parker, who also received a number of individual gifts.

Dainty refreshments and a social hour was enjoyed by all present.

Fashion Flashes

WHAT DO YOU KNOW? Along comes a new fashion, that of matched millinery and costume jewellery. A tiara-like coif of rose pink velours is banded with square cut rhinestones and comes complete with a matching rhinestone necklace and earrings.

CLEVER NOTION, that of a new Swedish designer working here. She uses stripings and bands of expensive fabrics to make dresses and skirts, and joins the piece with colorful wool embroidery.

CREEPING DOWN floorwards, is the word on many of the new evening clothes collections, so far as skirt length is concerned. Ankle-length in front, floor-length in back is the hemline taken by a pretty dress. The strapless model is of black taffeta, open redingote fashion to reveal an underskirt of white net. Bodice and waist are banded with black velvet ending in big bows.

WATCH OUT for the handsome velvet neckwear sets soon to appear in the shops. Black velvet for a collar and an ascot scarf, both dressed up with loose black silk fringe. Plain black velvet cuffs with either of these, to give a different look to a basic dress.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

She has been called to active duty in the Marine Corps

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been called to active duty with the Marine Corps. I was to have been married this month, but had to call off my plans for a wedding at home. However, very shortly my fiance will come to my base and well be married in a very simple religious ceremony. Neither my parents nor his will be able to attend, and there will be no reception. My family is pretty well off financially, and they want to give me some kind of reception for my marriage when I have my leave in a few months.

1. Is it socially correct to have this type of reception?

2. Would it be proper to have it at a hotel?

3. What would the procedure be for this type of reception?

4. Would the guests bring gifts?

R. S.

1. Yes. . .entirely correct, and a most gracious gesture for your parents to make, a happy and memorable occasion for you and your bridegroom, and for the relatives and friends of both families.

2. Yes, entirely correct if this would be more convenient.

3. As the guests arrive, they are greeted by your mother, the hostess, who would stand first in line; then by you and your husband, guests of honor; and then by the groom's mother. Your father and the groom's father would mingle with the guests, making introductions and so forth. After all the guests have arrived, the refreshments would be served. Even at this late date, I'd like to have you have a wedding cake. . .you cut the first piece and share it with your bridegroom, and have the rest cut and served by an attendant. Then there will be toasts to you both, and perhaps dancing.

4. I hope the guests will bring gifts. . .even though perhaps a different type of gift from the ones they would have brought to the different type of wedding you had planned. One can't tell, of course. . . but I have a feeling they will!

Small, simple wedding when both are divorced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if these wedding plans are correct? The bride, a divorcee, 46 years old. The groom, also divorced, 50 years old. (1) The wedding to take place in church, on a Sunday evening, 7 o'clock. (2) Only members of the two families to be present. (3) Attendants: matron of honor, for bride; best man, for groom. (4) Reception in a small inn, for 20 guests. Refreshments: sandwiches; cake; coffee, punch. Would it be correct to have a wedding cake? (5) Personal notes of invitation to wedding ceremony and reception? (6) Would formal announcement of the marriage be in good taste?

G. R.

(1) Correct. . .if permissible by church regulations. However, 7 o'clock on Sunday evening is not a usual hour, though no reason why it isn't proper if it is the most convenient hour for your plans. (2) This is correct . . .though you may also invite a few close friends if you wish to. (3) Excellent plan. . .one attendant for each. (4) Good plan too. Menu plan correct. But a wedding cake would be correct . . .and I do hope you have one, for the festivity and for the wonderful memory. (5) Correct. . . but for this small number of guests it is just as correct to invite verbally or by telephone. Or invite those in-town verbally or by telephone, and write notes to those who live at a distance. (6) Yes.

Tweed-Like Brushed Cotton

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE PRETTY girl above is Joan Johnson, the cover girl, and she is wearing a homemade suit which costs her less than five dollars, although it has an expensive tweed effect and looks very new. The secret is the cloth, a new cotton fabric with a soft brushed surface, available in highstyle color combinations, checks or plaids.

This particular length of the fabric is blue and green plaid, with a yellow check, combined with plain blue cotton cloth.

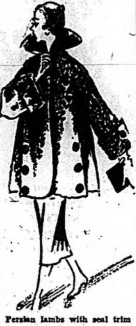
DIES OF INJURIES

Kitchener, Sept. 2 (CP)—Adam Wahl, 80, died in hospital early today less than three hours after being struck by a car.

He was the fourth Kitchener resident fatally injured in traffic accidents in a 27-hour period. In addition a Guelph resident also was killed in this district.

Police said Wahl was hit by a car driven by Norma Frey, 41, of Kitchener as he was crossing a street.

Fine Furs



Persian lambs with seal trim

By VERA WINSTON

FUR ON FUR seems to be the good word for the new season's crop of fur garments. And very handsome coats are available in every price range, offering good value in new working and handling of skins and novel designs and accents. Black Persian lamb is used for a lively five-eighth length swagger coat with black Alaska seal for the graceful collar facing and for the low-placed buttons at either side of the front. ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Maybe these parents have their reasons

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you think of parents who hold it against a 19-year-old boy because he hasn't got a job or a car?

This boy just got burned very badly, and cannot lift or strain his arm in any way. We have been going steady for two months, and my mother says I am degrading myself by going with him. She and my father always talk about him in front of me, and it makes me feel very badly that I have such narrow-minded parents.

My mother says she doesn't want him to meet any of my relatives because he isn't good enough, but one of her sisters had to get married because she got into trouble. My parents get on my nerves so much that sometimes I feel like leaving home.

Please tell me what to do about this situation.

T.

Dear T.:

Are you quite sure the only things about this boy to which your parents object are his lack of either a job or a car? It is hard to believe they would be quite so unreasonable as to expect a 19-year-old boy to own a car, or to work if he is unable to do so. Of course, however, the accident to his arm hasn't really too much to do with the job question, since there would probably have been nothing to prevent his having got a job before his injury, and going back to it later. It may be that your mother and father feel this chap doesn't show the proper ambition and initiative, and would rather see you interested in someone with more independence.

Why don't you talk to them without a chip on your shoulder, and ask them just what it is in the boy of which they disapprove? If you show a friendly spirit toward them, instead of feeling, and probably making them feel, that you think they are mean old fogies, you might be pleasantly surprised to find that what they really are anxious about is your own happiness.

Don't make yourself look silly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

One of my girl friends told me that the young man of 20 with whom I have been going out said he doesn't like me.

I have always found him a very nice fellow, and I don't think my girl friends is telling the truth. I think she says that because she likes him too.

Do you think it would be right to ask him if he really said such a thing, or should I wait and see what happens? I am 17 years old.

B. L.

Dear B. L.:

It seems to me you would make a great mistake to ask this young man such a question. It would make you look very silly, and you don't want that, do you?

If he has taken you out, as you say, that should be enough to show you he likes your company, and you had better let it go at that. Just ignore anything this other girl says, and manage your business in your own way, so long as you do it in a lady-like fashion.

MAN OF PARTS

Author Francis Bret Harte was secretary of the mint at San Francisco at the age of 26.

Rosy cheeks for apples can now be created by a new spray developed at the Cornell Agricultural Experiment Station. The spray doesn't itself make the apple red, but it stimulates the pigments in the apple and increases color thereby as much as 40 per cent.

Cooks know that the beauty of apples is only skin deep. For most cooking purposes a pale green apple seems to work out best.

Greening apples, now plentiful in most markets, make the best apple pies, apple sauce and dumplings. The fact that they are not sweet gives them the sassy flavor one expects in apple desserts.

Apple cream meringue is a dessert of cooked sweetened apple slices surrounded by two crisp meringue shells and topped with whipped cream. To make brittle light shells, let the meringue remain in the oven after the fire has been turned off. A shorter cooking period produces meringues with a soft chewy centre.

Any meringues not used in the dessert and left over may be served as cookies or served with ice cream to make meringue glace. This same baked meringue may be shaped with a pastry tube into one large shell instead of individual portions. This is known as schaum torte.

Apple Cream Meringue, 6 Servings

Drop 2 egg whites (at room temperature) into a clean bowl. Add 1-8 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Beat egg whites until they form soft peaks. Gradually add 1-2 cup sugar. Add sugar 2 tablespoons at a time, and beat well after each addition. Add 1-2 teaspoon lemon juice. The egg whites should be in firm peaks, so that when cut with a knife a sharp groove is left.

Cover a cookie sheet with unglazed paper. Place the meringue in small mounds, 2 inches in diameter. Use a tablespoon to shape meringues. Bake in a slow oven 275 degrees until crisp, about 50-60 minutes. Turn heat off and let meringues remain inside 1-2 hour.

Peel, core and slice enough apples to make 3 cups. Place in a heavy saucepan with 1-4 inch of water, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter and 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon. Cook, over a slow flame or in oven, stirring frequently to keep apples from sticking. Cook until apples are soft. Chill in refrigerator.

Spoon apples onto centre of dessert dishes. Place two meringue shells beside each serving of apples. Top with sweetened whipped cream.

Scottish Dishes Delight Visitors Viewing Festival

As side attractions, they have bannocks, smokies, brose, kale, stovies and Forfar bridies.

These are lesser-known cousins to the more publicized Scottish table delicacies, the haggis and the cockieleekie.

Edinburgh is providing them all to tickle visiting palates—and judging by the comments, this fare is causing almost as much delight as the festival events themselves.

Reigning over all is the haggis, most devastating of all puddings, consisting of oatmeal, onions, herbs, meat and other ingredients known only to the Scots, sewn up in a sheep's stomach and resembling a bomb.

Close behind come the bannocks—man-sized oatcakes with a flavor all their own. Edinburgh tables groan with them.

Seeks After Truth

The knowing Edinburgh can direct the seeker after truth to a quiet place where he can absorb a plate of cockieleekie (soup make from a fowl cooked with leeks).

Then there is brose—that stern breakfast food which makes porridge look like baby-food. Brose consists of raw meal, topped by a knob of butter, over which boiling water or milk has been poured.

Some local wiseacres declare themselves ready to initiate the Sassenach into the dark mysteries of kale-brose, in which a rich vegetable soup takes the place of milk.

And quite a few private families have delighted overseas guests by throwing a dinner with real sheep's head broth—once described by an authority as "a deal of fine, confused feeding."

For smokies (haddock darkly smoked, with the flesh left snow white, and bearing no resemblance to the finnan haddie) visitors are sending to Arbroath, home of this delicacy for supplies.

Stovies, a rich mess of boiled potatoes and meat, are again delicacies that must be sought among friends. They do not figure on restaurant menus.

STEAMER ADRIFT

Torquay, England, Sept. 1 — (Reuters). — An engine breakdown forced a 1,470-ton steamer to drift helplessly in the English Channel last night. At one point the steamer, Lady Enchantress, was perilously near the dangerous Casquet Rocks. A tug finally rescued her. The 397 passengers on the day-excursion steamer, who were issued blankets and served coffee, were landed here 18 hours late.

dust. Steps lagging. No pep. We are all travelling through life pretty fast these days. Not enough leisure or relaxation.

Ask yourself, "Am I fully alive, getting something out of existence every day? Or am I just plodding along the same old way? Am I making a real effort to be cheerful, finding ways of having wholesome fun that will keep me animated and radiant?"

You know the answers. You must keep your spirit beautiful, as well as your face and your body. A sweet disposition does a lot to make the countenance attractive. It puts sunlight in a home atmosphere that otherwise might be cloudy.

Have you a friendly feeling toward your fellow beings? Have you pleasing manners, never talking down to humble folk? A gently-bred woman is as nice to the garbage man as she is to the woman who lives in the grand house near by. You'd never hear her bawl out salespeople. If she has a complaint of any kind she remembers that everybody is likely to make a mistake now and then, and so registers her protest in a friendly way.

While taking stock, think over your beauty slips. Where is that hairbrush you used to have, and why aren't you using it every night of your life so your halo will be shining bright? Perhaps a new hairdo would be stimulating. Nothing like it, if it is the kind that snips off a few years, forms a soft, becoming frame to your face. Why don't you go on a grand old beautifying binge—getting a facial, scalp massage, wave set, hand and arm massage? It will set you back a bit financially, but think what it will do for your disposition as well as your appearance.

Take a peek at the balance in the checkbook. If it looks fat and healthy, go buy yourself a new hat. Smart hats do something for you. When you settle a cute lid on a cute hairdo you get a lift.

Do you realize that outdoor life is great for keeping one young and snappy? Get all the fun you can during this season of the year when the weather is usually lovely. Pick up your heels and walk briskly, pumping oxygen into your lungs. It will put pink carnation blooms in your cheeks that no rouge compact can duplicate. Don't fancy you must always be transported by wheels of one kind or another. Beat it out and walk. You have legs, haven't you? Use 'em.

U.S. Requests Special Security Council Meeting

Lake Success, Sept. 5 (AP) — The United States sought today to have a special security council meeting called early next week to order an inquiry into red China's charges that U.S. planes bombed Manchuria.

The move followed the speed-up program of the council under its September President, Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb, who took over the presidency Friday.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik, who had the post in August and blocked council action on Korea for the whole month, tried to blow up the council from his delegate seat and partially succeeded.

Jebb managed to get Ambassador John M. Chang of the republic of south Korea to seat at the council table before Malik could object. When Malik did object, the council voted him down 9 to 1.

Yesterday's long debates, however, kept the U.S. from introducing a resolution calling for appointment of a two-man inquiry commission, composed of representatives of Sweden and India, to look into the charges that U.S. planes dropped bombs and killed Chinese north of the

The council took a weekend recess that will continue through Labor Day Monday. Its next regular meeting is Tuesday afternoon.

Further discussion of the Korean conflict and condemnation of north Korea's two-months long defiance of U.N. cease-fire and withdrawal orders is first on Tuesday's schedule.

The council got that far when Jebb told Chang to move from a spectator row, where he had sat at meetings since July 31, to a seat at the table.

Malik had always refused to seat Chang, charging a council decision June 27 to do so was illegal because Malik had not been there. Beaten on his objection to Jebb's move, Malik tried to get the council again to invite the north Koreans. He was beaten on that proposal, too, 8-2, Yugoslavia voting with him. Egypt did not vote.

Yesterday's meeting was significant for the fact that Malik ridiculed legal reasoning of Sir Benegal N. Rau, the Indian delegate who said the north Koreans must not be invited until they end their fighting and pull back to the 38th parallel they invaded June 25.

Railway Will Be Constructed Into Ungava

Quebec, Sept. 5 (CP) —Work will start this month on a 350-mile railway into Ungava, part of a $100,000,000 project for mining northeastern Quebec's rich iron deposits.

He said that Hollinger North Shore Exploration Company already has spent $10,000,000 on preliminary development work.

Details of Ungava operations were supplied to the premier this week by Jules Timmins, W. H. Durrall and J. Rankin, three Hollinger officials, he said.

The premier said building of the railway from Sept. Isles, St. Lawrence River north shore port 300 miles below Quebec, will take three years.

It will lead to the Knoblake-Burnt Creek iron mine district where 400,000,000 tons of ore are spread through Ungava and Labrador. Premier Duplessis said two-thirds of conformed ore deposits lie on the Quebec side of the boundary with Newfoundland.

The premier also announced that the Quebec government is making all preparations to receive delegates to the Federal-Provincial Constitutional Conference here Sept. 25.

Proposes Death For Red 'Traitors' Proven Saboteurs

London, Sept. 5 —(CP) —The death penalty for communist "traitors" found guilty of sabotage, was advocated today by Tom Yates, general secretary of the National Union of Seamen.

Writing in the union's journal, Yates, a bitter foe of radicals, warned British seamen to be on constant guard against sabotage.

Referring to the recent explosion of ammunition barges at Portsmouth, he said there have been many other mysterious incidents of damage to naval vessels, fires and breakdowns that could not have occurred by accident.

He said there could be but one penalty for those who deliberately planned to blow up ammunition barges in ports and harbors in close proximity to densely-populated centres, who were prepared to destroy airplanes in flight with civilian passengers or to wreck railway trains and set fire to factories.

"They are traitors," he said. "Death is the penalty for traitors."

Civic Workers Refuse Formula For Settlement

Hamilton, Sept. 5 (CP)—Striking Hamilton civic workers refused Friday night to accept a formula for settling their strike, now in its third week, that had been worked out at a six-hour negotiating meeting Thursday.

A secret ballot of the nearly 1,000 members of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union (C.C.L.) showed a count of 462-66 against the settlement. There were six spoiled ballots.

The formula offered a three-year contract with a gradual reduction of working hours from 44 to 42 with no cut in pay and a cost-of-living bonus.

The men—garbage collectors, sewer, waterworks and road repair men and grave diggers, had demanded a boost of two cents an hour in addition to the reduction in working hours.

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—Police seized narcotics valued at $20,000 and $960 in counterfeit United States currency last night in a raid on a west end house. Five men and a woman were arrested.

Officers said they believed the seizure was linked with a three-way ring between Toronto, Montreal and the United States. The narcotics seizure was the largest of the year in Toronto. The counterfeit money was in $10 and $20 bills.

Sidney Skolnick, 22, Robert Benson, 24, William Reardon, 21, all of Toronto, and Jack Waga, 24, of Montreal, were charged with illegal possession of narcotics and with possession of counterfeit U.S. money. Victor Chernick, 24, and Geraldine Kozlik, 33, of Toronto, were charged with illegal possession of narcotics.

Guy Lombardo To be Honored By Home Folks

London, Ont., Sept, 5—(CP)—London, St. Thomas and Port Stanley will honor Guy Lombardo, famed native son of this city, with a joint proclamation of Guy Lombardo Day, Sept 6, on the occasion of his appearance at the Lakeside.

For the world renouned band leader and his Royal Canadians, it will be a homecoming. About 25 years ago Port Stanley provided the springboard for their successful quest of fame and fortune.

Lombardo is expected to reach London sometime Tuesday night.

At Port Stanley, in the course of a dance program, he will receive presentations from Mayor George A. Wenige, on behalf of London, from Mayor J. F. Peterson, on behalf of St. Thomas and from Reeve Garnet Speers, on behalf of Port Stanley.

Malik Tremendous Boon for Peace Organization

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Time will demonstrate, I believe, that Russian delegate Jakob A. Malik's month-long obstructive presidency of the United Nation's Security Council was a tremendous boon for the peace organization.

Malik's antics reduced to their essence and emphasized many of the Bolshevist tactics which the democracies have come to dislike and fear. For a month he was Russia—a Russia on parade before the whole world. In the Ulted States the exhibition was especially impressive because untold thousands of citizens had a close-up of the U.N. proceedings on their televisions sets.

In no other way could the Soviet challenge to democrcay have been so well demonstrated. As a result a host of people who previously paid small attention to the United Nations have now become U.N.-minded and they have had the communist threat impressed upon them.

Warren R. Austin, U.S. delegate, summed the matter up succintly in a speech over the Columbia broadcasting system. Labelling Malik as a "circus barker," he added.

Ananais

"The more he talked, the less he was believed. Every time the representative of the Soviet government addressed one of his speeches to the world, some other delegate replied with the facts. I don't believe that anywhere in the world lies will live very long when the facts which controvert them can be openly and fully presented."

The New York Times refe. editorially to this characteristic of Malik's operations by remarking that his "middel initial (A) must stand for Ananias."

It would have been hard to believe in advance of the event that the 44-year-old Malik could present such a change in personality as he has exhibited during his presidency of the council. Previously he was known as an affable individual of sunny disposition, who greeted acquaintances with a smile and a hearty handshake.

Malik is a man of broad education, and has served his country with much distinction in many positions. A measure of his standing with the powers that be in Moscow is that twice—in 1944 and 1945—he has received the coveted decoration of the Order of Lenin.

Grave Object

Malik's transformation on assuming the presidency of the council shows well the mold in which the true Bolshevist is cast. Surely it must have gone against the grain for man of culture to play the part which Austin labelled "circus barker" and which most people would have regarded as school boy stuff if it hadn't had such grave objectives.

New Agreement Gives Employees Increased Wages

Cornwall, Sept. 5 —(CP)— A new working agreement calling for company-financed pensions, a five-day 42-hour week and wage increases up to 10 cents an hour is scheduled to be signed today by Courtaulds (Canada) Ltd. and Cornwall locals of the Textile workers Union of America (C.C.L.-C.I.O.).

The agreement provides for reduction of the work week of day workers from 44 to 42 hours with the same take-home pay.

Increase in basic wage rates resulted from incorporation of part of the 22-cents-an-hour cost-of-living bonus into regular earnings. Under the new agreement, 10 cents of the 22-cent bonus paid men employees and five of the 11 cents an hour paid other workers will be included in basic hourly rates.

The contract also provides for optional retirement of employees at 62 with a maximum pension of $60 a month paid by the company.

Five Soldiers Given Awards For Bravery

Ottawa, Sept. 5 —(CP)— Five soldiers have been awarded the King's Commendation For Brave Conduct for peacetime bravery beyond the call of duty, the army announced Friday night.

Those given the awards were Sgt. W. H. Hoskin of Ottawa, member of the Royal Canadian Engineers; Cpl. S. L. Fiset, Petawawa, Ont., and St. Eustache, Que., Royal Canadian Engineers; Spr. D. C. Coyle, Petawawa and Amherstburg, Ont., Royal Canadian Engineers; Spr. F. L. Laderoute, Pembroke, Ont., Royal Canadian Engineers, and Sgmn. M. T. Carter, Almonte, Ont., and Ottawa, Royal Canadian Signals.

Sgt. Hoskin's citation said that in disregard of his own safety he saved the life of a civilian electrician who came in contact with a 4,600-volt wire while working on a transmission line near Ottawa on Aug. 5, 1949. The sergeant, working with J. Thomas on the same pole, kicked Thomas free of the live wire and helped lower him to the ground unconscious.

Sappers, Fiset, Coyle and Laderoute were cited for bravery, without regard for personal safety, in helping control a shook mill fire last April 17 at Pembroke, Ont., the spread of which would have destroyed the mill and a large number of nearby homes.

Signalman Carter was commended for "selflessness" in making four crossings of a river log jam in the Northwest Territories May 5 to assist an Indian woman in serious condition giving birth to a child.

United States Ready to Arrange Jap Peace Treaty

Washington, Sept. 5 —(AP) — Five years after Japan's surrender, preparations for a Japanese peace treaty have reached a stage where the United States is about ready to talk terms with other Pacific war victors.

Qualified diplomatic informants today said preliminaries have been completed in readiness for the New York meeting of the Western Big Three.

What to do next about Japan is one of the major decisions confronting the British, French and U.S. foreign ministers when their three-day talks start Sept. 12.

Whether the U.S. administration favors going ahead with the drafting without Russia and communist China — assuming they are invited or refuse to take part —is one of the unanswered questions about the American official position. Russian and Nationalist China are among Japan's conquerors.

But American authorities made it clear there now is a definite intention to press for prompt action, and that long-standing differences between the state and defence departments have been ironed out.

The formal Japanese surrender was signed just five years ago today. Gen. MacArthur, since then the supreme military commander of the islands on behalf of the Allies, declared on the eve of the anniversary that the occupation has achieved its aims.

The view that it is time to wind up the occupation now is administration policy.

Mercuries Take Over First Place In 'B' Section

Belleville Mercuries took over first place on percentages in the 'B' section of the Commercial Softball League Monday evening, as they downed Crawford Scrappers 7-3 in an eight inning game. The loss eliminated Crawfords from any chance of catching a playoff berth.

The Scrappers started off with three runs in the bottom of the first inning on a walk, and three errors. And that was all the scoring they did in the game as the wobbly Mercury defence stiffened to give Emmerson some solid support for his two hit pitching.

Mercuries finally breached the Crawford defences in the third inning scoring four runs on an error, doubles by Allan and Culhane, and singles by Vickers and Dell. They added two more in the fourth on a double by Garvin, an error to Speigel, and a triple by Vickers. They added their final run in the sixth on two singles, a fielder's choice, and an error.

Emmerson went all the way for the winners firing two hit ball. He walked two and struck out 4. Taylor did the flinging for Scrappers, walking four, striking out one, and giving up 11 hits for seven runs.

Vickers with a single, double, and triple in five trips led all batters. Lally and Baldwin singled for Scrappers only hits.

Parker, Bulger Win Belvedere Golf Trophy

Mrs. Bulger and Ted Parker won the Belvedere Trophy emblematic of the Bay of Quinte mixed ball foursome over the weekend but they had to win it the hard way.

Don Pocock and Mrs. Jean Grant battled the winners every hole and the title was not decided until the holiday playoff. The four were all tied up after the Sunday match and yesterday Parker and Mrs. Bulger edged the battling Pocock and Mrs. Grant to win the trophy with a 74 net score.

Mrs. Kay Parker and Stan Joss finished in third place. The tourney attracted sixteen players from the district.

Forty-eight players from the Trenton, Port Hope, Trenton RCAF and Bay of Quinte clubs will tee off next Sunday in quest of the Esquire Trophy. Play will start sharp at 9 a.m. In the afternoon the mixed two ball foursome for the Jewellers Trophy gets under way. Players desirous of playing are requested to get in touch with Mr. Pidutti.

Brewers Win First Place Over Plumbers

Brewers Warehouse took over undisputed possession of first place in the A section of the Commercial Softball League with a 6-3 sudden death victory over Howe and Hagerman, Saturday night in a playoff game made necessary by their first place deadlock on regular season's play.

The game was not among the best seen this year and was possibly the poorest of the three which these teams have staged this summer. Some fielding and mental lapses by the lumbers practically handed the verdict to the Brewers.

Howe and Hagerman opened the scoring in the fourth frame with Harry Wardhaugh blasting a home run to left field with two away and no one on.

Brewers came back in the bottom of the fourth to score four runs. Woods, Hurrie and Goyer walked to lead off. Reid punched one to right field for the first out as Woods scored and the runners advanced. Halsey then poked one to third. The relay had Hurrie beaten but Adams thinking it was a forced play tramped on the plate and fired back to third without touching the runner to hand the Brewers a run. Nolan popped out to short and Whiting dumped one to the third baseman. Doyle threw wide of first on a close play as Goyer and Halsey scored. Young skied out to centrefield to end the inning.

Score Two in Seventh

The Brewers picked up their fifth tally in the fifth frame on a single a sacrifice, and a fielder's choice. They added their sixth in the seventh, a single by Rex Young, a passed ball an error and a fielder's choice.

The Plumbers counted their final two in the top of the seventh on a walk, a fielder's choice a double by Don Adams and a single by Spafford.

Al Adams went all the way on the hill for Howe and Hagerman in front of some shaky support. He walked four, struck out one and gave up five hits for six runs. Rex Young notched the victory for Brewers walking four striking out two, and giving up but four hits for three runs.

Spafford with two singles in four trips led all batters.

FRANKFORD

Minto Midgets Defeat Locals

Frankford—Ten errors paved the way to defeat for Frankford Midgets Thursday evening as Minto Midgets took a 10-5 decision under the lights in Stirling.

A six run rally in the fourth inning put the game out of reach as the Minto's piled up a ten-run lead going into the seventh frame. Frankford scored all their runs in the top of the seventh but could not overcome Minto's huge margin.

Colden went the route for Minto's allowing six hits. Wannamaker started for Frankford but was relieved by Tomecek in the fourth.

Penazka of Frankford was the only batter on either team to get two hits.

Cementmen Win Third Playoff Spot in Loop

Point Anne Cementmen broke a third place deadlock with Stewart-Warner in the A section of the Commercial Softball League Monday afternoon copping a 5-3 verdict in a sudden death playoff game for the third and fourth playoff spots in the Commercial League A section.

The Cementmen meet Brewers Warehouse tonight in the first game of the best-in-five semi-final series for the Wishing Well trophy. Alemite go into the second division of the playoffs against Howe and Hagerman with the first game scheduled for Wednesday evening at the CNRAA grounds on Station Street.

The game played in a near gale, made fielding difficult and kept the spectators extremely uncomfortable.

Point Anne came up with three runs in the top of the second frame on a single by Graham Horwood, a walk to Brant and a home run to centrefield by Perry Everett with one away. Logue doubled and Whalen walked. Doug Sword popped out to second and Jack Hunter popped out to short to end the rally.

Alemite got back into the game in the bottom of the third scoring all their runs. Rowbotham walked with one out. Ronsky struck out with Rowbotham taking second. Jack Moon then rolled one down the first base line which Logue relayed to Whalen who was covering first. Whalen appeared to have the ball, but the play was confused. Umpire Young ruled that Moon was safe and Rowbotham's run counted. Claude Carr, Ray Lunberg, and Maurice Leforte singled in that order as Moon and Carr scampered over with runs. R. Reid walked to load the bases and Halloran popped out to third to end the inning.

Two Runs Enough

Point Anne came home in front with two runs in the eighth on an error to the centrefielder, a double by catcher Brant, and a single by Finlan. Alemite threatened briefly in the ninth but had their rally crushed before any damage was done.

Marty Halloran went all the way on the hill for Stewart-Warner, walking six, striking out four, and giving up eight hits for five runs.

Pat Maracle started for Point Anne but was relieved by Hunter in the seventh. He walked six, struck out four, and gave up six hits in six innings, for all the runs. Jim Hunter walked none, struck out four, and gave up one hit in three innings of relief.

Leforte with two singles in four tries led all batters.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Pitching—Jim Hearn and Sal Maglie, Giants—Hearn yielded 5 hits and Maglie nine as the two righthanders handed Philadelphia Phils a double shutout 2-0 and 9-0.

Batting — Johnny Wryostek, Reds—Batted in eight runs with five hits including a home run to help Cincinnati sweep both ends of a doubleheader from St. Louis Cards, 5-4 and 8-4.

BRAMPTON WINS PLAYOFF

Brampton Sept. 5 —(CP) — Brampton Excelsiors defeated Mimico Mounties 23-14 Saturday in the first game of their two-game total-point playoff for fourth place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series.

Archie Browning and Ollie Raine paced the winners with five goals apiece. Kenni Dixon Mimico's ace forward, netted six goals. No date has been set for the second game.

Miss Pepsi Turns In Fastest Mark In Cup Race

Detroit, Sept. 5 (AP)—A challenger for the title of world's fastest competitive speedboat appeared on the Detroit River yesterday.

She was the Detroit-owned Miss Pepsi. Because she cut inside a course marker, the boat lost the silver cup trophy on points to Such Crust I, another Detroit boat. But she turned in a five-mile lap record of 107.654 miles an hour and a 10 mile speed of 107.394.

This topped the best competitive mark of Seattle's famed Slo-Mo-Shun winner of this year's Gold Cup and Harmsworth trophies. Slo-Mo-Shun set a five-mile record of 102.676 miles an hour in the Harmsworth Saturday.

Yesterday Slo-Mo-Shun did five miles in 106.176 miles an hour. Her speed for 10 miles was 104.318.

Slo-Mo-Shun and Miss Pepsi came together only in the first heat of the silver cup. Bearing trouble forced the Seattle boat out of the race.

The two boats aren't likely to meet again before next year, when the Gold Cup and Harmsworth races probably will be run in Seattle.

Slo-Mo-Shun's owner, Stan Sayres, said he does not plan to race the boat in the President's Cup event on the Potomac later this month. He will take the Gold Cup and Harmsworth trophies back to Seattle within the next few days.

Local Bowlers Win Cup Second Straight Time

The winning of a trophy at a bowling tournament is no mean feat but when the same pair win the trophy two years in succession it sets a precedent that will be hard to follow. Fred Harper and his partner Gordon Watkin captured the beautiful Bickle Trophy at Cobourg last year and on Labor Day this year went back to the Lakeshore town, accompanied by the trophy and brought it back to the Belleville clubhouse, where it will repose for another year.

The winning pair are a hard doubles pair to beat on any green. Gordon Watkin is what is known as the perfect lead and Fred Harper combined his experience to give the pair a three-game high total. They won their first game from Bruce of Peterborough, 19-7, took on Rendell of Oshawa in the second game winning by 24-12 and topped off the winning effort by defeating Downey also of Peterborough 19-7. The doubles combination won travelling bags as prizes.

This Belleville rink was not the only one to capture some of the prize money Percy Graham and Orlo Smith also made the journey to Cobourg and came home with the two-game high score. Both these bowlers are comparatively new at the game and their showing was exceptional in the highly-competitive field. Other rinks to enjoy the day were Ernie and Mark Vanner, L. E. McLean and Gordon Edwards and Austin Watkin and Bill Gilbert. The greens were in perfect condition despite the heavy rains of the last few days and the hospitality exended to the visiting bowlers was unexcelled.

Stewart-Warner Wins Playoff Spot in League

Stewart Warners' fast travelling crew took over the fourth and last playoff spot in the Commercial Softball League Saturday afternoon, defeating Ramsay Paints 4-1 in one of the best games seen at the Alemite Field this season.

The Alemite took advantage of the only break in the game to score three runs in the bottom of the ninth inning with two men out. With two on and two away, Alemite third baseman Vern Carr lofted one to left field. Ramsay leftfielder "Bunk" Young started for the ball but slipped on the grass. The ball would have been an easy out normally, drifted over his head before he could recover and went for three-run homer as the jubilant Alemites rushed off with the game.

Up to that point it had been a tight pitcher's duel with Jack Reid of Ramsays matching pitches with Harold Dracup and Marty Halloran.

Alemite scored their first run in the bottom of the first inning, when Bertrim, who singled, took second on a sacrifice by John Ronsky Jack Moon batting clean-up, drilled one into right field that eluded the right fielder for three bases.

Ramsays counted their only run in the third inning. With two out, Scanlan singled to centrefield. Lyle Wannamaker walked and Frank Baldwin was safe on an error to the third baseman. "Bunk" Young smashed one into right field to score Scanlan but the relay checked the other runners. Young was forced at second base by Cross to retire the side.

Came In The Fourth

Marty Halloran came on in the fourth inning to relieve Harold Dracup and over the rest of the route walked one, struck out three and gave up only two hits.

In the 8th Alemite loaded the bases on two singles and an error with no one out, and failed to score Ronsky grounded to first to force out Halloran at the plate. Moon grounded out third to the catcher to force Vern Carr, and Rowbottom struck out to end the threat.

Jack Reid went all the way on the hill for Ramsays, walking one striking out three, and giving up nine hits for four runs.

Halloran helped his own cause at the plate with two singles in three tries. Vern Carr singled and homered in five tries.

Line up:-

Ramsays: Peters 3b; Symons 1b; Scanlan 2b; Wannamaker cf; Baldwin rf; Young lf; Cross ss; Marsh c; Reid p.

Belleville Cubs Defeat Sixardee By 20-4 Score

Coach Speedy St. Louis and his Belleville Cubs clawed Sixardee Repairmen 20-4 Saturday evening in the fourth game of the Belleville and District League finals. It was the second time this season that the Repairmen have been defeated and the first time they have been routed. The win leaves the series at 2-1 for the Repairmen with one game a tie.

It was announced before the game that Sixardee were playing under protest because the Cubs were using the services of Point Anne catcher John Green. Jack Elliott, the Cubs regular catcher has a broken finger, and Russ Soules was reported to have left town for the Korean Brigade.

Pre-game ceremonies marked the official presentation of the CJBQ most valuable player award to Cub second baseman Elder Neilson. The award was presented by Jack Devine for CJBQ while the managers and presidents of both teams looked on.

Sixardee opened the scoring in the first inning with Christie, who walked, stealing second, taking third on an error, and coming home on a fielder's choice. Three errors by the repairmen gave the Cubs one run in the second.

Sixardee scored once in the too of the third on an error, a sacrifice and a single.

Ripped Wide Open

The Cubs ripped the game wide open in the bottom of the fourth batting around to score six runs. A walk, an error, and four singles did the damage. The Cubs came slashing right back in the fifth, blasting out Sam Ellis with two consecutive singles. McLaughlin came in to hold the side but walked the first two men he faced. He found the range finally and the Cubs began swinging, blasting out three singles as the runs poured over. Cummings, ace righthander of the squad came on getting out the side without further damage.

The Cubs gave the league leaders no rest however, making the game a complete shambles with seven more tallies in the sixth to run the score to 20 runs. George Reeves' triple to left field was the big blow in this uprising, as Cummings found the plate hard to find, walking four men.

In the seventh and eight the Cubs went down in order swinging listlessly at a poor assortment.

The airmen scored once in the sixth on a triple by Gibson and a single by Coe, and finished their scoring in the seventh with a lone tally.

The game was somewhat marred for the players by three full-blown rhubarbs, one involving an alleged tripping of Peter Jones by airman first baseman Gibson, and two others on calls at third base. The game accorded the Sixardee boys the short end on all three squawks.

Cuffer Noakes coasted eeasily ot the win for the Cubs. He walked two, struck out five, and gave up eight scattered safeties for 4 runs. A trio of airforce flingers walked eight, struck out nine and gave up a dozen hits for 20 runs. Starter Sam Ellis was charged with the loss.

Line ups:—

Sixardee: Coursol c; Christie ss; Maracle 2b; Hastings rf; C. Ellis 3b; Gibson 1b; C. Coe cf; Cole lf; Sam Ellis p, replaced by McLaughlin in 5th, replaced by Cummings in fifth.

Cubs: Jones 1b; Schreider cf; Bunton lf; Neilson 2b; Reeves ss; J. Green c; Lockyer 3b; Galbraith rf; Noakes p.

Singapore, Sept. 5 (Features)—Searching a man at Clifford pier here, customs officers found he was wearing a specially-made waistcoat with 22 pockets. Concealed in the pockets was over $19,000 worth of gold. It was stated in court. The man, a middle-aged Chinese, was committed to stand trial on charges of importing gold without a licence and failing to declare the gold.

Mongrel Spaniel Wins in Dog Derby

Little Terry Snoweden of 81 Cadillac Ave., South, Oshawa, urged his spaniel, Pal, to victory in the lightweight class for dogs while the open lightweight event was won by Sandy, owned by W. Heighway, Unionville, Ont.

The entry-heavy open German Shepherd class was won by Mary Hayward's dog from Mimico, Ont. Owners of the dogs finishing second and third were Stan Reid, Toronto, and R. Brown (29 James Street) St. Catharines.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

VACATION CUFF NOTES:—

Killarney Lodge, Algonquin Park — Down around the Belleville "banana belt", and other places, the common mouse is just an ordinary pest. But up here in this huge Canadian vacation paradise the animated cat food is an important little cuss.

So important, in fact, that biologists of the Wild Life Research Division of the Department of Lands and Forests are making an intensive study of the habits of the roaming "Mickey".

Roughly three miles from the pine-ringed log cabin where these notes are being scribbled, is the 35 square mile reserve set aside for the Wild Life Research Division. Encroachment of John Public is out, but he can spend an enjoyable hour or so with Miss Barbara Caldwell, biologist, of Napanee, and her associates of the W.L.R.D. They study the food, habits, whims and vagaries and ramifications of everything from a chipmunk to a moose. Mammals, amphibians, reptiles, in fact all phases of wild life come under their expert scrutiny.

But right now they are interested in Brer Mouse. Not Mickey or its ilk, nor the scared little cuss that sends the Missus atop the piano, but the pestiferous little fellow that roams the carpeted and rocky terrain of this "wilderness".

It all started when the seeds of white pine and other coniferous trees, scattered on fire-stripped and other barren areas from departmental aircraft, failed to show results. Experts scratched their heads. The W.L.R.D. went into action and discovered that M'sieu Mouse was the cause.

They experimented with certain repellants. No results. "Mickey" thrived on the seeds. Then they discovered that "Mickey" depends on his sense of smell rather than taste, for his food. Now they are working on a seed coating which will cause M'sieu Mickey to recoil in disgust when he approaches the seed.

And by the way, we learned that the 'hon. Mick' has a yen for peanut butter. All bait used by the W. L. R. D. for live specimens of Mr. Mouse is this sandwick filling. He prefers it to cheese. And with fromage at its present price, that should be a useful tip to the mouse-bothered housewife.

The Department of Lands and Forests is sparing no effort to make this magnificent park one of the most attractive of its kind in North America. Apart from its Wild Life Research, it has started construction on a $100,000 museum, while a modern hatchery and fish experimental station is located at Opeongo.

Deer in the park are tamer than a deceased mother-in-law. Bucks with magnificent antlers poke velvety muzzles in your car window looking for bread,candy and other food. "Big Buck", the daddy of the Park deer, is the only gum-chewing venison-on-hoof, extant. Up to last winter a pure white doe roamed the forest, and highways. She was ostracized by the "gang"; roamed on her own, and fell victim to winter-hungry wolves. If you had a "buck" for each time a buck or doe has been photographed by wonder-struck American tourists, and Canadians too, for that matter, your bankroll would make Fort Knox resemble Junior's piggy bank.

Off the beaten tracks, along the "Nature Trails" you see plenty of deer. Not so tame as their highway counterparts, they will allow you to approach to within 20 or 30 feet, then with a flash of white tails, they disappear in the heavy undergrowth.

At Killarney's 'Cafe Garbage' situated two miles down the highway from the lodge, the clan Bruin holds nightly soirees. The grizzled king of the bear gang (there are six of them) weighs some 600 pounds, has roughly a 12-inch clearance between his umbilicus and the ground and towers some seven feet in the air when he "reaches for the sky".

They dine nightly on a garbage menu and crowds of the curious line the fence separating the "cafe" from the public.

Only a few people were on hand the night we "took in" the bear show. Four beady-eyed brownish blacks averaging 300-350 pounds ate their fill, then becoming curious, wandered toward the fence. They ocame within 10 feet of where we stood (ready for a quick getaway) then, after sniffing the air for a few minutes, one of them sat down on his haunches, scratched himself and enjoyed the picture of wide-eyed humans, while the other three slowly paraded around him, after the style of circus elephants.

Then there is "Tiger" a handsome cat, the favorite of the lodge, who fears nothing on two feet or four. A screeching cacophony last Thursday morning sent guests racing from breakfast tables to a nearby pine glade. "Tiger" stood growling, hackles erect, tail slapping the ground. A few feet away was a full grown mink, teeth bared. After a few minutes of growl and hiss greeting, the mink "took" to the pines. It raced from tree to tree while "Tiger" stalked him. After an hour of this, the cat gave up and ate a hearty breakfast. "Tiger" according to mine host Elwood Moore, has been known to drive red foxes from his beloved Killarney peninsula to the mainland.

"Blackie", an ebony Thomas cat who came to the lodge this Spring, declared open war on the pet chipmunks and at the time of writing has reduced this peanut-eating part of the lodge population to the barest minimum.

* * *

Thirty Merganzer ducks exhibit in a cove off one of the resort cabins. Like the Swallows of Capistrano, they leave at a certain time and return on the dot next season. Skunks are scarce, but we learned from the park naturalist that the Indian name for skunk is "Shee-gah". In the old days the striped kitties were so numerous around the second largest city in the U.S.A. that it was eventually named "Sheegahgo" or you guessed it.

Fishing was excellent. Bass and lake trout in "Two Rivers" — lake trout (deepwater) in Opeongo —small-mouths reach for bait in Provoking Lake. Over in Rock Lake, where "Old Black Josephine", (8 lbs, 1 ounce) was caugh last year a 7½ pound black and another 5¼ pounder were landed from "Josephine's" former hideout. Hostess Ann Hoffman caught a three-pound lake trout off the lodge dock last April. A party of Americans took away 30 fine specimens averaging 4 pounds after a day's fishing early in the season.

Killarney is a delightful restful resort. But a word of warning. Watch out for bulging waistlines. You can't expect to breakfast off canteloupe, cereal, golden eggs and crisp bacon, topped off with toast and coffee, grab a luncheon snack of barbecued spare-ribs, cauliflower, cream of tomato soup, and lemon cream pie then dine off a steak, one-third of which must be eaten before you find the plate, and expect to retain that svelte figure. It can't be done brother. Ask the man who doesn't own one.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, Rebuilt From Ground Up, Leading Big Four With Two Wins

(By The Canadian Press)

It's been a long, long time since a Hamilton club led the Big Four.

And it's been two years since Calgary Stampeders were anywhere but on top of the Western Conference.

That's precisely how the Canadian football picture looks today after its first full-scale weekend this season.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, rebuilt from the ground up, smashed Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts to take first place in the Big Four. Last year, Hamilton finished a dismal last.

Calgary dropped two games to Edmonton Eskimos. The Stamps Grey Cup winners two years ago and finalists last year, have yet to win in four starts.

Hamilton beat Ottawa, winless in two starts, 26-17, Saturday while Argos were beating Montreal Alouettes 26-6. Then Hamilton took Argos into camp 13-6 in a Labor Day game in Hamilton.

At Sarnia, the Senior Ontario Rugby Football season opened with the Imperials swamping Toronto Balmy Beach 39-0.

In the West, Edmonton pounded Stampeders 19-13 Saturday and repeated 18-8 Monday. Saskatchewan Roughriders beat Winnipeg Blue Bombers 17-2 for Winnipeg's first loss this season.

Thirteen thousand fans—biggest football crowd in Hamilton's history saw Hamiltons solid wing line swamp Argos' offensive attempts Quarterback Stan Heath's deadly passing set up huge gains while Bill Gregus and Ed (Special Delivery) Jones ripped off yardage along the ground.

Gregus plunged 15 yards for the first major and set up Dick Brown for a one-yard buck for the second. Toronto's lone major came on a 30-yard pass from Al Dekdebrun to Ulysses Curtis.

Use Same Technique

The same technique gave Hamilton its win over Ottawa. Jones rolled for two majors Gregus one and Don Toms got the winning touch. Bruce Cummings, Bill Larochelle and Gibson got the Ottawa touchdowns.

Sarnia's sweep over Balmy Beach was led by a 21-year-old rookie half, John Chorestecki, who played with University of Toronto last year. He picked up two touchdowns, two field goals, four singles and three converts.

In the Argo-Alouette game, Montreal picked up a first-quarter touchdown on a third-down pass from Bruce Coulter to Ralph Toohey. Then Argos went for touchdowns by Bill Bass, Curtis Dekdebrun and Marvin Whaley.

Saskatchewan's win over Winnipeg jolted the Bombers out of first place into a second-place tie with Roughriders, two points back of Edmonton.

Jack Hartman, imported from Oklahoma, passed for two majors kicked a field goal and two singles for the Roughriders. Matt Anthony got one of the touchdowns and Del Wardien crashed over for another after a passing play set it up.

Playing-coach Annis Stukus of Edmonton unleashed the old magic in his right foot and booted two field goals and two converts for Edmonton in the Monday night game against Calgary. Frank Hickey and Bob Paffrath got the touchdowns with Royal Copeland getting the sole major for Stampeders.

Saturday, Lindy Berry, Edmonton's key quarter, tossed touchdown passes to Doug Pyzer and Morris Bailey. Bailey got another touchdown pass from Paffrath. Woody Strode went over twice for Stamps.

Brantford Takes Fourth Straight In Round Robin

(By The Canadian Press)

Brantford's red-hot Red Sox just can't seem to be beaten in the Intercounty senior baseball round-robin playoffs.

They took St. Thomas Saturday for their fourth straight win in the 10-game series and had a chance to repeat the performance against the same team yesterday but cold weather postponed the contest.

In the other weekend games London Majors, rallying for three runs in the seventh Saturday scored a 7-4 win over Stratford Nationals and Waterloo Tigers whipped Kitchener Legionnaires 1-0.

In the only Intercounty game yesterday—Brantford-St. Thomas and London-Stratford were postponed for weather and wet grounds —the Tigers virtually ended Kitchener's hopes of gaining a berth in the finals by beating their twin city rivals 8-1.

Tigers were tied with Brantford with four wins for as many games. It was the fourth loss in a row for Kitchener.

Joe Yosurak limited Kitchener to three hits in hurling the Tigers to victory. In racking up his second playoff win, Yosurak had a shutout until the 8th when Buddy Heximer doubled and scored on Orv. Cott's single.

In Brantford's Saturday game Lipka's triple in the second, followed by an infield out opened the scoring with the Sox leading 1-0. Hits by Joe Biros, Jack Randall and Johnny Futcher tied the game 1-1, in the sixth.

Monje's double, singles by Lipka and McGrattan and wild pitch gave Brantford the game 3-1 in the top of the sixth.

In the Niagara district senior semi-final St. Catharines Stags went one up in the semi-finals by blanking the Niagara Falls Fords in two games 1-0 and 1-0. Welland Stokes of the same league Saturday defeated West Senica Druggists, 7-2.

Behind southpaw Bill Dadson's six-hit hurling Peterborough Marines of the Viaduct League whipped Oshawa Merchants 8-5 to even up their final series. Merchants won a morning game in Oshawa yesterday, 10-4.

Merchants entered the finals by virtue of 4-0 and 8-0 wins over Ace Bowling Saturday. Marines trounced New Toronto 9-1 Saturday.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Don Budge downed Adrian Quist of Australia in straight sets 12 years ago today, 8-6, 6-1, 6-2, to keep the Davis Cup in the United States for another year. Jack Bromwich, who was on the winning Davis Cup doubles team again this year, teamed with Quist to take the doubles that year, and won one of his singles contests, but the Americans took the cup, three matches to two.

Giants Have Played Hotter Ball Than Phillies Thanks to Fine Pitching by Hearn, Maglie

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The flashy Phillies appear a shoo-in to capture their first pennant in 35 years, but it might have been the same old Philadelphia story had pitchers Jim Hearn joined New York Giants earlier and had Sal Maglie been given starting assignments sooner.

Actually the Giants have fared better than the Phils since Hearn and Maglie became full-fledged members of New York's big four. In the last seven weeks the Giants have won 34 games while losing 17. During the same stretch the Phils have won one less and lost the same number.

Off to a ragged start, the Giants are no better than fourth place, 10 1-2 games behind the Phils. Eddie Sawyer's youthful league leaders, playing consistent baseball all the way, hold a seven game bulge over the runner-up Brooklyn Dodgers with but 25 games left to play.

Except for a 3-2 loss by Hearn to Boston Aug. 9 the Giants' two new pitching aces have achieved perfect records since becoming starters Maglie has won all his nine starts. Hearn has won eight of nine.

Didn't Yield Run

The duo didn't yield a run yesterday as they hurled the Giants to a double shutout over the Phils, 2-0 and 9-0. Hearn yielded only five hits and Maglie nine. Hearn now has beaten the Phils three times this season and nine times without a loss since he reached the big leagues. Maglie who boosted his season's record to 14 victories and three losses, turned in his third successive shutout. Each hurler has pitched four shutouts this year.

Despite their double loss, the Phils didn't lose an inch of ground as the Dodgers bowed in both ends of their Labor Day doubleheader to the Braves in Boston, 11-4 and 3-2.

Cincinnati Reds moved to within one percentage point of sixth place. downing the fading St. Louis Cardinals twice, 5-4 and 8-4. Pittsburgh Pirates dumped the Chicago Cubs twice, 5-3 and 3-0, for their fourth and fifth victories in a row.

Remains Unchanged

The American League race remained unchanged as all clubs divided doubleheaders. Detroit Tigers lost an opportunity to cut the pace-setting New York Yankees' two game lead by half when they blew a chance to sweep both ends of a twin bill from St. Louis Browns.

The Yankees had already split with Philadelphia, winning the opener 2-1 and losing the second 4-3. The Tigers had won the first game 4-2, and were winning the second 3-0 with the Browns batting in the eighth.

Dizzy Trout, who was given a "day" in between games, had a five-hit shutout working for him. But the Browns jumped all over him and reliever Hal White for four runs in the eighth. St. Louis got another in the ninth that proved to be the winning run.

The Tigers rallied for a run in their half of the ninth but the rally fell short.

Boston Red Sox remained 3 1-2 games off the pace, splitting a pair with Washington. The Red Sox won the opener 5-4 and Washington took the second 5-3.

Cleveland won a 1-0 second-game thriller from Chicago after the White Sox had won the first game 7-1; Mike Garcia received credit for his 10th triumph although Sam Zoldak pitched four scoreless relief innings to preserve the shutout after Garcia was hit by a line drive off the bat of Nelson Fox and had to retire in the sixth.

Crescents Beat Peterborough In First Game

Owen Sound, Sept. 5—(CP)—Owen Sound Crescents, Ontario senior lacrosse champions, defeated Peterborough 15-6 Monday night in the first game of their best-of-seven playoff series.

Peterborough led the first-place finishers of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series through the first quarter but wilted under the strong crescents offensive.

The winner of the series represents Ontario in Mann Cup play for the Dominion championship.

Doug Campbell scored four for Owen Sound with Russ Slater getting three and Jack Mason getting two.

Other scorers were Harry Kazarian, Jack Foote, Don McWhirter, Doug Gillespie, Bill Allum and Grant Gillespie.

Three Berths Still Undecided In International

(By The Associated Press)

The International League season ends Sunday, but three first-division berths still are undecided.

Only Rochester Red Wings, who Saturday clinched their first pennant in 10 years, can take it easy until the playoffs begin.

Montreal Royals are in second place but enjoy a 1 1-2 game edge over the third-place Baltimore Orioles. The Royals have only five games to play while theOrioles have eight.

Baltimore in turn is only 1 1-2 games in front of the fourth-place Jersey Giants, who clinched a playoff berth yesterday. The Giants have seven games remaining, including five with the Orioles.

The Royals yesterday strengthened their hold on second place by shutting out the Wings 1-0 and 4-0, while the Orioles downed Syracuse Chiefs twice, 9-0 and 11-7.

The Giants took both ends of a twin bill from the fifth-place Springfield Cubs, 7-4 and 5-3, and Buffalo Bisons and Toronto Maple Leafs divided a twin bill, the Leafs winning the 10-inning opener 3-2 and the Bisons the nightcap, 1-0.

New York, Sept. 5 — (AP)—first big wind of Florida's hurricane season blows in with a few well-chosen words from Hialeah's Everett Clay, pointing out that 38 race horses which visited his track last winter had won 64 stakes races at northern tracks to late August. . . this record, Ev adds, was compiled without the aid of the powerful Calumet stable, which wintered its biggest string "in an unnamed western state where the winter climate is not comparable to Florida" . . . Since Joe Dimaggio seems to have started hitting again, Casey Stengel claims the Yankees are themost solid team in the American League.

John Jacobs, Oklahoma University track coach, recently received by express a huge cup which his son, Bill, won in a track meet in New Haven, Conn. . . . Noting the figures "419" in the inscription, Jacobs grumbled: "I don't know whether that's Bill's time or his shirt number." . . . A few days later Bill, who had gone on to Portugal with a touring A.A.U. team, mailed his dad a letter and a clipping from a Lisbon paper describing his race there. . . Jake was more puzzled than ever . . . "I could come nearer reading that Portugese than I could Bill's handwriting," he complained.

Napanee Wins From Picton In Eleventh

Napanee, Sept. 5 (CP) — Napanee grabbed a brilliant 11-inning 2-1 win from Picton Athletics here Monday in a first round Intermediate B Baseball Association playoff.

Two were out when Vern Green doubled to right moved up on a passed ball, and trotted home when Munro hit clearly over second.

Hooper and Hayden staged a stubborn mound duel with the visiting hurler having a slight edge in the hit column. He held Napanee hitters for the first 4 1-3 innings and only three got to third through the game.

Fedorick Wins Own 10-Mile Record at C.N.E.

(By The Canadian Press)

Walter Fedorick broke his own 10-mile meet record Saturday to lead Hamilton Olympic Athletic Club to victory in the annual Canadian National Exhibition track competition.

Running with his left arm bandaged from wrist to shoulder after being scalded by steam Friday, the 32-year-old distance runner covered the course in 56 minutes, 56 seconds to lop 10 2-3 seconds off the mark he set last year.

George Bevan of Winnipeg, retained the Ontario one-mile amateur swimming championship at the Canadian National Exhibition Saturday. He covered the Lake Ontario course in 22 minutes, 57 seconds.

Vancouver's Barbara Wood won the Canadian Junior Tennis championship in Ottawa Saturday, defeating Miriam Rainboth of Ottawa, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

Conrad Fischer of Kalamazoo, Mich., won the men's singles championship by defeating Jim Bentley of Toronto 0-6, 6-3, 10-8, 5-7, 6-2.

Fort Erie, Niagara District champions, defeated Oakville 14-5 Saturday in the second and deciding contest of the preliminary Ontario Baseball Association playoffs. The game was played in Fort Erie.

Vancouver firemen won the right to represent the west in the Dominion softball finals when they defeated Winnipeg Northern 15-0 Saturday night to win the best-of-five series in straight games.

They left for Toronto to meet Toronto peoples who won the eastern playoffs by edging Montreal Steinbergs 3-1 to take the best-of-three final in straight games. The series starts in Toronto next weekend.

Frank Pearce, 45, former pitcher for the National League Philadelphia Phillies and Syracuse Chiefs of the International League killed himself Sunday with a rifle shot. The coroner gave a verdict of suicide.

The Argonaut Rowing Club of Toronto defeated the Potomac Boat Club of Washington Sunday in the Intermediate eight-oar class at the Middle States regatta in Worcester, Mass. The Canadians became the only double winner of the day when they later defeated the New York Athletic Club by half a length in the senior eight-oar event.

George Rhoden, long-striding Maryland sprinter, streaked 440 yards to a Canadian open record at the Canadian National Exhibition Labor Day track meet.

Running on a rough cinder track, the Negro speedster from Baltimore's Morgan State College ran the 440 in 47.2 seconds, three-tenths of a second faster than the 47.5-second mark credited to Bob McFarlane, University of Western Ontario, London. It was the only record set in the meet.

Roy Wouters of Montreal, trailing on points, broke Arnold Fleiger's collar bone in the third round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Sydney, N.S., Monday night and was awarded a technical knockout over the New Brunswick battler.

Wouters, Canadian middleweight champion, landed a power-packed overhand right in the second exchange of close-in fighting to stop the battle. It was a non-title bout.

President Albert Molini of the class D provincial baseball league announced in Montreal Monday night he had suspended Granby, Que., pitcher Bob Wacha, 19, for "deliberately allowing St. Hyacinthe win a game against his club."

Molini said the incident occurred in the bottom half of the ninth inning in a game at St. Hyacinthe Sunday. With the score tied 7-7, three men on base and two out, Wacha nodded to St. Hyacinthe's James Argeros to run home from third base with the winning run and threw the ball 40 feet above the backstop, Molini said.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In your checkered career will be partners to fear. They can fill you with rueful dismay. I refer to the coots who will bid many suits in a pitiful stage of decay.

There came the deal you see here:

NORTH
♦J 8 7 4 3 2
♣K 9 5

WEST
♠K 7
♥A 6 4
♦Q
♣A Q J 10 7 6 4

EAST
♠10 9 6 4
♥K Q J 5 2
♣8 3 2

SOUTH
♠A Q J 8 5
♥9 8 3
♦A K 10 6 5
♣None

It happens that their bidding went like this:

West	North	East	South
1 C	Pass	1 S	Dbl
3 C	Pass	3 H	4 D
5 C	5 D	Dbl	All pass

A doubler for penalty says he can defeat the contract from what he holds and the information he has given to or received from partner. Partner of the doubler assumes this is so.

If the doubler has bid a suit his partner is expected to lead that suit. If the doubler has bid two suits, his partner is expected to lead the suit mentioned first.

So, having heard the east spade bid, west led spade king. South won with ace, pulled two trumps, cashed another top spade, and then ruffed a small spade in dummy. A club ruff put south in again.

On two more spade leads from south were sluffed both dummy hearts. Heart and club ruffs took the remaining tricks for a total of 13.

East began howling his head off over the spade lead by west. "The reason I bid spades first," he rasped, "was so that I could bid hearts next to get your choice without increase."

What I am unable to understand is why east wanted a choice if his spades were so weak. If west had spades that would help make a good trump suit the west hand would have had a spade bid.

Funny thing about such wrongsters. They are the first to yell bloody murder.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollwood, Sept. 5 (AP) — B. P. Schulberg is again smoking a cigar behind a big desk in his office.

But his office is not at Paramount Studios, where he once earned $500,000 a year and developed such stars as Clara Bow, William Powell, Gary Cooper and Cary Grant. This time he is across the street in a rental studio where he is making films for television. And he's doing nicely, thank you.

Schulberg is the man who jolted Hollywood last October by running an ad in the trade papers. He pleaded for a job in "the only business I know." Citing a third of a century of service to the movie industry, he observed that "Loyalty is a two-way street."

"Or," he continued, 'must we always wait until a productive pioneer is found dead in some 'obscure Hollywood hotel room' before you reflect upon an 'indifferent and forgetful' industry."

What came of the ad?

"My phone didn't stop ringing for 24 hours," Schulberg recalled. "I heard from a lot of old friends like Cary Grant and George Raft and others.

"But the only bona fide offer of a job came from Darryl Zanuck. He said if I had a story that he liked he would take me into 20th Fox to do it. I showed him four different stories, but he didn't like them. That's his privilege. He said to keep trying.

The film pioneer went to another industry to assure his future. With his son Budd, author of "What Makes Sammy Run," he formed a company to make television films. They plan to make a series called "Tales of Hollywood," based on Budds' stories.

B. P. has just produced the first one, made with two days' rehearsal and three days shooting for $12,500. The producer has already had sponsorship offers which will show a profit.

O.M.A. President Is E.A. Outram Of Peterborough

Sudbury, Sept. 5 — (CP)—E. A. Outram, city clerk of Peterborough, was elected president of the Ontario Municipal Association as the province - wide group ended its three-day annual convention here Saturday.

Election of officers climaxed discussions on municipal policy and problems, an address by the Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, and a tour of the Sudbury nickel district for the 400 delegates.

Mr. Outram succeeds H. H. McFadden of Lindsay as president. Vice - presidents elected were Reeve Anne Shipley of Teck township, City Clerk James Berry of Hamilton, Ald. Thomas Curran of St. Thomas, Ald. John Booth, Fort William and Charles Kirk, clerk of Westminster township.

A motion passed at the final sitting recommended that the provincial government divert a portion of amusement taxes for the benefit of municipalities to meet costs of indigent hospital patients.

281,500 Jam Exhibition Park For Labor Day

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP)—Canada's doctors, nurses and health services were honored today at the Canadian National Exhibition.

For the first time in its 71-year-old history, the Ex designated the day—12th of the 14-day fair—as National Health Day. The international importance of health was emphasized by also designating Tuesday as International Day.

Open to the public was the big health services building in the centre of the grounds containing displays portraying the work of such organizations as the Canadian Red Cross. Also to be seen was a hospital set up and operated by the St. John's Ambulance Brigade.

Attendance yesterday was 281,500, a Labor Day record. Thus far this year admissions are 18,000 above last year.

Organized labor held the spotlight at the Ex yesterday.

Unionists, 15,000 strong, marched to the exhibition grounds under heavily-overcast skies in their annual Labor Day parade. There they heard Federal Labor Minister Gregg and their own leaders laud the work and progress of organized labor in recent years.

Elsewhere on the grounds, judges began the big task of selecting prize-winners in the C.N.E. International all-breed dog show that will continue until Wednesday. Some 418 dogs, including the first Weimaraner to be shown here, are entered. The Weimaraner, valued at more than $5,000, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bengamin G. Schultze, Niagara Falls, Ont.

H. M. Atkinson, Anticoke, Ont., made a clean sweep of major honors in the dual-purpose shorthorns class at the livestock show. His entries won both the grand champion bull and grand champion female awards.

Harness horses stole the limelight from the more spectacular jumpers at the C.N.E. horse show last night in both single horse and team events.

Earl Foster gave a fine display of horsemanship in the light harness trotter class in driving his father's Patricia Volo into first place. The high-stepping brown filly is owned by Dr. E. E. Foster, Galt, Ont. Yankee Doodle, owned and driven by W. S. Munro, Embro, Ont., was second. Another Munro horse, Seaton Leader, topped the pacer heavy harness class. gelding owned by Dufferin Farms, Downsview, Ont., won the heavy harness horse class.

The entry of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton A. McLean, Richmond Hill, Ont., By Goom and Gipsy Girl, won the featured pairs jumping event. Eddie Cooper and Heather Ann McLean took their mounts over the jumps in unison for a near-perfect performance. Nova Scotia and Alberta, entry of the Canadian Equestrian Society, Todmorden, Ont., placed second.

On the sports front, western Canada and Fergus, Ont., swimmers dominated the annual Labor Day swim meet. George Bevan, Winnipeg, and young Gerry McNamee, Vancouver, won the 100-yard free-style events for men and boys, respectively. Doreen Howatt Fergus mermaid, took the junior girls' 100-yard free style and helped the Fergus Swimming Club capture the girls' relay event.

The C.N.E. track meet saw a new Canadian mark set for the 440-yard dash. George Rhoden, smooth-striding athlete from Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., ran the distance in 47.2 seconds—three-tenths of a second faster than the previous record held by Bob McFarlane, University of Western Ontario, London. It was the only record broken at the meet.

TWO BLOCKS BURNED

Poza Rica, Mexico, Sept. 5 — (AP)— Fire started by an exploding stove today burned out two downtown blocks of this oil well and refinery centre. Damage was estimated at 4,500,000 pesos ($572,000).

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on my frunt steps with Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge talking about the benefits and disadvantages of having a lot of money, and whether we would be willing to take a million dollers all in pennies if we had to count it ferst without making a mistake, and Shorty said, Hay, do you realize we haven't got up a new club lately?

G, that's rite, let's get up a club, I said, and Puds said, Sure, let's call it the Helping Handers, and just us 3 will be in it, and no matter how old we get, we've still got to help each other if we need help.

Oh boy, this is a swell club, Shorty said. Even if one of us is in Africa and one's in China and one's at the North Pole, if one of us sends a messidge with the mistic passwerd, the other 2 have to go and help him.

And we argued about what to have for the mistic passwerd and decided on "Thick and thin," and just then ma came to the frunt door saying, Benny, I want you to go around to the market and get me a half a dozen rolls before they're sold out. Here's the money, she said, and I said, Aw G, ma, do you meen now?

No, I meen when you're old and gray, ma said.

Being sourcastic, and she went in again, and I said, Thick and thin, fellows, come on with me, I need help, I need company.

Aw, I'm too comfortable, Puds said, and Shorty said, I expect to be called home any minute for something important.

Aw, you're a heck of a couple of Helping Handers, I said, and Puds said, Why are we? We have to get a messidge ferst, that's the rule, he said, and Shorty said, Sure, just brake your ankle on the way and send somebody with the mistic passwerd, and we'll come a running Aw cramberries, I said, and went by myself.

Proving the safest way is to always be reddy to help yourself.

CANADA

"If and when that position is altered—and it may be altered in the light of developments and we may have to do other things—that change will be announced."

The North Atlantic Council of Foreign Ministers would meet in New York shortly "and it may well be that important decisions will be taken." Their deputies had been revising plans for supply, for strengthening forces, for mutual aid in the light of Korea. Korea had speeded plans and things now would be done well ahead of pre-June schedules.

Other Statements

Mr. Pearson also said:

1. If the world can maintain peace during the next 18 months "we may then have time to settle our problems even with those people behind the iron curtain." But western strength must be built fast.

2. If the army's special force doesn't go to Korea, it will go somewhere else. Canada, in forming it, is starting "something important," a move to give the United Nations forces to combat new Koreas. This step would probably be discussed by the U.N. general assembly this month.

3. Between the time Canada was asked July 19 to send troops and her Aug. 7 decision to do so, the Government was busy probing such matters as the uses for them and United States policy towards an extension of the Korean war to Formosa and China.

4. It would be unwise to seek a military arrangement with Spain or to launch a Pacific pact.

5. Canada will do her share in building up underdeveloped areas, but it is discouraging to see some of those that need aid spending half of their budgets on defence. He named no countries when he said this.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged that Mr. Pearson and other ministers have "detoured from the truth" and said Canadians would be willing to pay more taxes for defence if they were given facts to show their money was being spent efficiently and effectively.

He proposed establishing some body such as the Hoover Commission which had probed the U.S. government methods and spending. An effective use of the combines investigation act could help fight unjust profiteering.

A Dominion-provincial commission should be established at once to guide development of those natural resources needed for war. The reserve army's effectiveness should be aided by freeing its members from income tax on the service pay they get.

Want To Know

The people wanted to know many things. One was just what obligations Canada had under the Atlantic Pact. Another was what had happened to the $1,500,000,000 spent on defence since 1945.

Mr. Green said he regretted Canada's "evasion and hesitation" in Korea and said her policy seemed to be to let someone else do the fighting there for the first six months. Canada should stop "harrying" the U.S. about Formosa and recognize that the action of the U.S. there was necessary for the far Pacific defence line.

Mr. Green said Canada herself is menaced in a way that means she should have stronger defence forces in being, apart from overseas obligations.

Mr. Knowles said economic and social measures must accompany the military fight against communism. At home, prices must be rolled back. Old-age security measures must be extended. The under-privileged countries must get positive aid.

Should Get Busy

Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) said members should "stop blaring about our unpreparedness and get busy building our defences all along the line." Canada should make clear her aims in Korea because military victory could offset a return to conditions as they were before the war began.

Victor Quelch (SC—Arcadia) supported the government's refusal to send existing regular army units to Korea but questioned that, once the war was done, there would be any assurance that real freedom would come to Korea. The west was still falling short of implementing policies to aid such needy countries.

RUSSIAN BOMBER

The bomber opened fire upon a United Nations fighter patrol which returned its fire and shot it down.

"A United Nations destroyer succeeded in picking up the body of one member of the bomber crew. Identification papers indicated that the body was that of Lieut. Mishin Tennadii Vasilebiu of the armed forces of the U.S.S.R., serial No. 25054."

Occurred On Sunday

The State Department said the incident occurred at 1:29 p.m. Korean time yesterday (11:29 p.m. Sunday EDT),

Officials immediately reachable in Washington were not prepared to speculate whether the affair foreshadowed direct Soviet participation in the Korean war, which heretofore has been regarded as unlikely.

Diplomatic sources did say that the issue was one for the U.N. rather than for the U.S. government to consider. It was expected to be a focal point at this afternoon's session of the Security Council at Lake Success, N.Y.

It was anticipated, however, that any reaction to the shooting would be delayed at least until individual delegations obtain instructions from the home governments.

The council already is considering a U.S. request to all member countries not to help or encourage the north Korean invaders.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on this new turn of events in the Korean war.

It was learned, however that State Secretary Dean Acheson and President Truman had been advised immediately after word reached the State Department through military channels, and that Truman had approved referring the matter to the U.N.

BARGAINS
IN OIL BURNERS

When you install oil heat, the value you receive depends on two things. First: The Oil Burner you buy, and Second: How well your new oil burner is installed. Unlike Radios, Refrigerators and other appliances, Oil Burners require special care and workmanship in installation to give the utmost in heating satisfaction. That is why we urge you to consider well the Firm Behind the Burner when tempted by bargain offers. Don't forget you buy the fuel oil for your burner for all the years to come.

At the JOHN LEWIS CO. LTD., our installation experts have been factory trained. They know the oil burner they install from A to Z. We know that when you buy an Aero Silver Flame Oil Burner, and have it properly installed, you will enjoy year after year of oil heating comfort.

BE AHEAD OF THE RUSH — HAVE YOUR NEW OIL BURNER INSTALLED DURING THE WARM SUMMER MONTHS — BE READY FOR COOL, FALL DAYS

INSTALL AN AERO "SILVER FLAME"
AUTOMATIC
NOW

Test after test has proved that the Aero Silver Flame Automatic Oil Burner gives oil heating at its silent, saving, efficient best. Solidly constructed the Aero is noted for its low operating cost. Every Aero burner is fully guaranteed against mechanical and electrical defects for one year after date of installation. Remember Aero is a life-time investment — it pays dividends with extra heat and extra savings in fuel consumption. The John Lewis Company will install this burner for a small down payment, the remainder on easy monthly installments.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"Well..the way a dog-lover is about running a pet shop," she said. "They want to keep every puppy that comes in."

"He acts like a nut," said Mark disgustedly. "How can he make any money in this business if he doesn't want to show his stock to a customer."

Cella wanted rubies now, above all other gems. They were her stones. They were like her love for Mark. She said quietly, "I think he's pathetic."

"He's probably honest," Mark admitted. "The way he's hipped on rubies I don't think he'd gyp a man on the price. That's one good think about dealing with a man who tries to mix an artistic temperament with the profit motive," he added lowering his voice as Mr. Voorland once more approached them.

The proprietor carried a square hand-tooled leather gem casket between his two hands holding it carefully as though it were a tray of over-all cocktail glasses. He set it down on the table and stood for a moment looking down at the closed case while he absently popped another stick of gum in his mouth.

He then seated himself and leaned forward to press a small golden knob on the front of the leather case. The top sprang up at the touch, and a round linked bracelet, of beautifully filigreed platinum was revealed against a background of blue velvet.

Six large pigeon's-blood rubies were evenly spaced around the bracelet. The were truly impressive stones and from the center of each ruby there radiated those six curious rays of light which mark the true asteria the so-called star ruby which occurs only rarely in rubies and in its sister gem the sapphire and in no other really precious stone.

Mr. Voorland settled back with both hands on his knees narrowly studying Mark Dustin's face from beneath half-lowered lids. The westerner showed neither surprise nor approval as he looked at the bracelet. His face was as devoid of expression as that of the professional gambler who picks up a pat royal flush.

Celia was not so phlegmatic. She squealed with delight and reached a hand out toward the bracelet, halted it as though frightened by her own audacity, then picked it up gently, impelled by some power beyond her strength to resist.

A tall man wearing loose gray tweeds and a dark snapbrim felt hat pushed far back on his forehead entered the store as Celia fondled the bracelet. He was broad-shouldered and lean-hipped and had a line face with bristling red eyebrows above keen gray eyes. His hands were big-knuckled and rough and he carried his weight with deceptively graceful ease.

A young, brown-haired girl had her hand in the crook of his arm and stood close beside him as he stopped inside the doorway to slowly survey the interior. She wore a yellow silk skirt and a white blouse with a ruffled neck and pleats down the front. The crown of her shining brown head scarcely came above her companin's shoulder. She looked gay and happy, as though it were springtime and she was in love for the first time. Her brown eyes danced with eagerness and she let her cheek gently touch the rough tweed of the man's coat.

The floor-walker started toward the couple, but the man saw Voorland at the rear of the store and moved forward shaking his head at the floor-walker. They came up to the seated trio without being noticed and stopped beside the table to look down at the scene with interest.

Celia was slowly turning the bracelet around and around in her hands, here eyes rivéted upon it. Her husband was watching her face, a set smile on his lips.

Mr. Voorland was observing Dustin with appraising thoughtfulness while his big jaw worked methodically on the wad of gum between his teeth.

He was the first to look up. His expression changed immediately when he saw the couple standing there. He got to his feet and held out his hand, saying heartly, "Mike Shayne! And this is..." He looked inquiringly at Shayne's companion.

"Miss Hamilton, my secretary from New Orleans," Shayne told him. "She has an allergy to pearls particularly the simulated variety, and we brought along a string to trade in on something she does like."

"I'm very glad to meet you, Miss Hamilton." Mr. Voorland made his formal bow with as great a show of pleasure as if the transaction involved a string of real pearls. "Your taste in secretaries is far better than in pearls. This little lady looks like the authentic article."

Lucy colored slightly at the compliment, and Shayne warned her "Mr. Voorland's an old smoothie, Lucy. He tells that to all the girls when he wants to sell them something. You asked me to drop in at noon," he reminded the jeweler with a glance at the seated couple. "But if you're busy we can come back."

"Not at all," Voorland said quickly. "As a matter of fact I'd like to have you see this bracelet Mike. You know something about gems don't you?"

"Superficially. Through insurance investigation and that sort of thing." He lookd down with interest at the bracelet in Celia Dustin's hands.

Mr. Voorland said, "I'd like to introduce Miss Hamilton and Mr. Shayne. Mr. and Mrs. Dustin."

Shayne removed his hat. Dustin arose and offered his hand to the red-headed detective saying heartily "Would it be the Michael Shayne we've read so much about in the papers?"

Shayne grinned and admitted, "The papers are always giving me a build-up, hoping I'll fall flat on my face. Thus far I've managed to disappoint them"

Lucy's eyes were wide and round as she gazed at the bracelet. She gripped Shayne's arm tightly and whispered loud enough fpr the others to hear. "That's what I'd like, Mike. Do you think..."

"Wait a minute," said Shayne "We don't want to come in here busting up a sale. Mrs. Dustin was here first."

Celia looked up at them and her eyes were starred with happiness and excitement: "It's the most beautiful thing I've ever seen in my life," she said quietly. "Would you like to see it Miss Hamilton?" She held the bracelet up and Lucy took it eagerly.

"It doesn't look like so much to me," Shayne deprecated. "What are the stones, Voorland? Garnets?"

Voorland smiled. 'Rubies Mike.'

"Rubies?" scoffed Shayne. "They don't look like rubies to me. What are you trying to put over on Mr. Dustin?"

Voorland was unperturbed. "It's absolutely the finest thing that's ever been in this store. .or any other store."

"There's no shine to them," Shayne protested. "A real ruby has the same brilliance as a diamond with color added. And the darned thins are cracked," he added, leaning forward to scowl at the star-shaped lines of radiation from the centre of each stone.

"A faceted ruby gets its brilliance, like a diamond from the way it is cut. These gems are cut en cabochon to produce asterism which you are pleased to call cracks." Voorland took the bracelet from Lucy and pointed out his meaning to the detective.

"You see, the top is rounded and smooth. This was the first method of cutting all gems and was in vogue until the art of faceting was discovered in the fourteenth century. It is practically obsolescent now except when we are dealing with a pronounced case of asterism."

Though he ostensibly spoke to Shayne the jeweler's explanation was directed more to Mark and Celia Dustin. "These are known in the trade as true 'phenomenal stones," Voorland went on authoritatively. "A really fine star ruby is the rarest of finds. Almost always, color and other perfect qualities are sacrificed for asterism. Both star sapphires and rubies are usually characterized by cloudiness. Such was the case with even the famous Star of India. In each one of these stones you have the collector's dream. A perfect pigeon's-blood star ruby Six of them, Mike. Ranging from eight and a quarter to six carats. Any one of them is collector's item in itself. Side by side like this in a bracelet... Catherine of Russia never had a piece to approach it."

Mark Dustin was still standing beside him frowning at the bracelet and listening intently. "Those light streaks look like cracks to me, too," he admitted dubiously. "I wouldn't want people to think I couldn't afford..."

"No one who knows anything about jewels will question your financial status," Voorland interrupted. "A perfect star ruby is known throughtout the civilized world as the rarest of gems. I've been forty years gathering these six stones," he went on quietly. "For forty years I've followed the trail of whispered rumors the illusive will-o-the-wisp of tantalizing hope. Through the gem markets of the world and into the depths of Ceylon and Burma. Forever seeking the unattainable. I've had larger star rubies than these and sold them as single pieces because they couldn't even be cut to match the two centre stones I first obtained almost forty years ago. This one I did cut from nine and a half carats." He touched one of the smaller stones in the bracelet. "To obtain the perfect symmetry of asterism I demanded."

Shayne took a backward step and grinned at Lucy Hamilton and patted her arm. "I don't believe you really like that bracelet angel It wouldn't suit you at all. Too blatant."

"Would it be terribly expensive?" she asked in a small voice.

"When Voorland calls something a collector's item, he isn't talking about a few thousand bucks. When he's finished here we'll have him show us some nice synthetic zircons or something like that."

Man Under Arrest Soon Captured After Escape

Simcoe, Sept. 5—(CP)—John Henson, under arrest for attempted armed robbery, fled from a hospital room Monday night, then gave himself up a few hours later.

Shivering from cold and weak from a wound he received Aug. 26, Henson surrendered to a householder less than 100 yards from the Norfolk County General Hospital where he escaped by jumping from the ground-floor window of his room.

He had been in the hospital since Aug. 26 when he was shot in the leg during his arrest by Provincial Constable Roy Burkett. He was arrested, police said, while trying to break into a bakery.

Non-Confidence Motion of C.C.F. Defeated 93-18

Ottawa, Sept. 5 — (CP)—A C.C.F. motion of non-confidence in the government was defeated 93 to 18 in the Commons Saturday shortly after an Independent member had expressed the first opposition to the dispatch of a special Canadian force to Korea.

The C.C.F. motion, moved during continued debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, called for a vote of non-confidence in the government because it had "failed to provide adequately for the defence of Canada" and had "failed" to deal with the high cost of living. It urged reimposition of price controls and a revival of subsidies on essential products.

The motion also criticized the government for not including in its plans substantial economic aid for underdeveloped countries of the world.

The C.C.F and Social Credit parties voted for the motion, while the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives voted against it.

Formosa Greatest Danger to World Peace Says Liberal

Ottawa, Sept. 5—(CP)—Hugh Mackenzie (L—Lambton-Kent), an U.N.N.R.A. worker in China for two years, said Saturday great danger lies in any attempt by the west to restore the "corrupt and discredited" nationalist regime to power in China.

He told the Commons it was "the greatest mistake in our life" when "we buried our heads in the sand and said we would have no contact with them (the Chinese) at all... we played right into the open arms of Russia."

It would be disastrous, he said, if "we provoked and developed" all-out war with communist China over Formosa. That island headquarters of the nationalists was in his opinion the centre of the greatest danger to world peace. If the Chinese communists attacked it, the third world war could easily be on.

He said it was a grave mistake that Korea was divided in two and said it is not surprising that the south Koreans have not fought too hard for democracy after the sort of corrupt and reactionary government they have known since 1948.

Canada, in entering the Korean war, must face the facts that "the government there was not satisfactory and the Kremlin capitalized on the fact in a big way."

Formosa, too, had an unhappy memory of the nationalist regime that had settled there. Its rule had left thousands starving. When they protested more than 12,000 were shot.

KOREAN CLIMATE

The climate of Korea is about like that of the eastern United States with an annual rainfall of about 40 inches.

Maidstone, Kent, England.—(CP)—John Cuckow wasn't going to miss his diamond wedding anniversary celebrations for anything. So he got out of a hospital bed and went home—for one day.

Guernsey, Channel Islands (CP) —During the war 200 Guernsey residents were deported to Biberach, Germany. Now Biberach has invited these persons, who went back to Guernsey after the war, to visit the German town for its 700th birthday celebrations.

"You'd have $200 a month!"

Could you, too, say that to your wife? An easy way to make this true in your case is to get your name onto a "Family Income" Policy at once. You can do this for very little. For example, at age 30, only $4.50 a week would protect your wife with $200 a month for the next 20 years and then $10,000 in cash. (Other amounts cost in proportion.) Two Armed Thugs Truss Watchman Steal $14,000

Break Into Binbrook Bank Through a Cellar Window

Hamilton, Sept. 6. (CP)—Two armed men escaped with $14,000 in cash early today after blasting open the safe of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in nearby Binbrook and tying up an 84-year old farm implement dealer whose home and business is in the building which houses the bank.

Armed with sawed-off rifles the two men broke into the bank through a cellar window. The interior of the small branch bank, on Highway 53, about 15 miles southeast of Hamilton was left in disorder. The safe-crackers set off three charges of nitro glycerine to break open the 10-ton vault.

Another safe nearby containing securities was untouched.

The men broke into a home adjoining the bank owned by George Bear about 1:30 a.m. They tied Bear hand and foot on the floor of the bedroom.

At about 7 a.m., he managed to struggle to the window to call for help.

A nearby resident, William Woods, said he heard a loud noise sometime between 2 and 3 a.m.

"I never investigated because it sounded like a book falling on the floor in the apartment above", he said.

Russia Expected To Cast 44th Veto In Security Council

Lake Success, Sept. 6—(AP)—Rusia is expected to cast her 44th veto today to prevent security council adoption of an American resolution urging all countries not to help the north Korean aggressors.

Russia's Jakob A. Malik has insisted since he returned to the council Aug. 1 that the U.S. resolution is merely designed to "hide and justify American aggression in Korea."

He returned to that theme at yesterday's stormy session declaring that U.S. intervention is "the real threat to international peace and security." The north Koreans, he insisted, are "fighting a just war against the foreign invaders."

Malik's bitter, 45-minute attack on the U.S. came after the United States delegate, Warren R. Austin, officially notified the council that United Nations forces had shot down a plane off the Korean coast bearing Soviet markings and had recovered the body of a man identified by his papers as a Russian.

Malik dismissed the reported air fight as "one of a series of provocations by Gen. MacArthur and the war department" intended to spread the Korean war.

He implied that the U.S. manufactured the happenings by saying "the sea was chosen to conceal the sharp corners of the incident."

Diplomats were surprised that Malik spoke of the shooting so briefly and in such comparatively mild tones.

They noticed that he left the council chamber before speaking and speculated that he went outside to receive his instructions from Moscow on how to deal with the incident

The Russian's extension of his reply into a long denunciation of American action in Korea delayed the council's slow progress towards a vote on the American resolution. It now is expected today.

The delay in the vote led the American delegation to postpone plans to ask for a special council meeting to set up a commission to investigate Chinese communist charges that American planes have

The American offer to back a bombed Manchurian territory. full investigation and pay an indemnity if any of the charges are justified is apparently an attempt to ease the current tension.

Commonwealth Aeronautical Experts Coming

Ottawa, Sept. 6 — (CP)—Commonwealth aeronautical experts will meet here next week to talk over new developments in world aircraft research.

Known as the Commonwealth Advisory Aeronautical Research Council, it will meet here Sept. 11-29, it was announced today. Delegates from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and the United Kingdom will attend.

Formed four years ago on the recommendation of a London Commonwealth Conference on Aeronautical Research, the C. A. A. R. C. is essentially a civilian advisory body whose main purpose is to promote the co-ordination of aeronautical research throughout the Commonwealth.

DEPUTY REEVE DIES

Newmarket, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP) — Injured Monday in a highway crash at nearby Holland Landing, Thomas Morris, 41-year-old Deputy Reeve of Penetanguishene. Ont., died in hospital last night. Eight other persons were injured in the two-car collision.

Windsor Youth Killed in Korea

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 6—(CP)— A former Windsor drug store clerk, 20-year-old PFC Norman R. Henderson, has been killed in the Korean War, his family learned Monday. He is believed to be the first fatality from the Windsor district in the United Nations force.

His parents in Windsor were notified Monday of his death Aug. 13 while serving in the United States 1st Cavalry Division.

Born in Pontiac, Mich., he moved to Windsor with his family in 1929 and joined the U.S. army in October, 1948

THE WEATHER

Toronto — Summer has returned to Ontario and will remain at least through Thursday. Temperatures today will average five degrees higher than Tuesday, with a further five degree increase Thursday.

A weak disturbance south of Regina will move through the James Bay area Thursday but is expected to remain quite weak and cause little change.

Suggests Some Nerve Disorders Due To Overdose Drugs at Childbirth

State College, Pa., Sept. 6—(AP)—Suggestive evidence was offered today that certain nervous disorders and mental retardation in children may sometimes stem from overdoses of drugs given their mothers in childbirth.

Dr. R. F. Becker of Philadelphia reported on experiments with guinea pigs. He said the studies demonstrated that lack of oxygen to an infant during the birth process "can result in serious injury to the infant's nervous system and change the course of the normal pattern of development in later life."

He explained that it is already known that overdosing of drugs given to an expectant mother to make her delivery comfortable is a prominent cause of asphyxiation (lack of oxygen) of the new-born.

And he told how asphyxiation was produced experimentally in guinea pigs just before birth. In their case, however, the condition was produced by mechanically interfering with their oxygen supply from the mother. Drugs were not used for the purpose.

The idea was to see if behavioral changes—nervous disorders—would develop later in the animals as a result of the oxygen lack at birth.

Such changes were noted, and also damage to the nerve cells of the brain.

Explaining that the animals were asphyxiated mechanically, and not through the administration of obstetrical drugs to their mothers, the doctor told the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association at the Pennsylvania State College:

"It (the experiment) has not proved at all that obstetrical anesthetics and drugs are responsible for the behavioral changes that were observed in these animals.

"But it stands to reason that any factor which will induce an asphyxial state and delay breathing at birth will produce breath-effects in the new-born."

TWO DEAD AND 400 HOMELESS AFTER TROPICAL STORM

Cedar Key Receives Brunt of Heavy Wind

Miami, Fla., Sept. 6 (AP) — The tricky gulf hurricane which caused two deaths and left more than 400 homeless whirled in dying fury near the Tampa Bay area today.

The Miami Weather Bureau said it was centred a short distance north of Tampa and was losing intensity.

The 8 a.m. advisory reported it was doubtful if there were any more hurricane winds in the storm which earlier lashed the middle Florida Gulf coast with 125-mile-an-hour gusts

At the same time the weather bureau warned of squalls over northern and central Florida and said there would be dangerous gales in the west central part of the state.

High tides were expected from the Tampa Bay area southward and on the Atlantic coast from St. Augustine to Savannah.

The hurricane doubled back and headed south after stalling all day yesterday in the Cedar Key area, where the greatest damage was reported.

Aid was rushed to Cedar Key, where the highway patrol estimated between 400 and 500 were homeless. A truck convoy left Albany, Ga. with food for 800 persons. Other trucks carried a supply of water, cots and blankets.

The hurricane thrashed Cedar Key with winds estimated up to 125 miles an hour throughout the day. All 200 buildings in the small community were damaged and 75 per cent of them were wrecked.

Without Electricity

The town of 900 was without electricity or drinking water. Trees and telephone poles were down and debris cluttered the roads. Bridges were damaged and causeways littered with seaweed and broken timbers.

The town's small fibre factory was damaged and its entire fishing fleet of 100 boats was sunk. Some can be salvaged but it is estimated the loss to the 150 to 200 fishing and pleasure boats in the area will average $1,000 apiece.

Both deaths attributed to the hurricane were caused by electrocution. An oil company official was electrocuted while trying to remove a fallen wire from his backyard fence and a mother was killed when she touched a live wire while helping her husband anchor their house trailer.

The hurricane whipped across western Cuba Friday night, thrashed Key West Sunday morning and then wallowed up the Gulf coast. It came to a standstill off Cedar Key early Tuesday and finally drifted southward again. moving inland toward the east of Tampa.

U.N. Forces Recapture Yongchow and Halt Plunging Red Korean Drive on Taegu

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 6 (AP) —Stiffening United Nations forces recaptured Yongchon today and halted a plunging North Korean drive on Taegu and its highway arteries.

The highway junction is 20 miles east of Taegu. Communist guerrillas had seized the town. Then the counter-attacking allied forces retook it.

Other allied troops plunged northward from Kyongju, another highway junction 18 miles southwest of bombed and flaming Pohang port on the Sea of Japan coast.

But the North Koreans moved two fresh tank brigades and 84-Russian-made tanks into front-line position to spark a thrust toward Taegu, the hub of the northern and western battlelines.

American Fifth Air Force warplanes destroyed or damaged 17 red tanks in daylong fighting in the main combat areas.

The air force made the announcement of the aerial victories as the result of a heavy day's support to hard-pressed allied ground troops.

The planes roared back into the grim battle with 317 sorties. the air support had been largely out of action the day before because of bad weather.

Bombers set aflame red-captured Pohang, which fell to the communists for the second time in the war.

Bombers Continue Battle

Night fighters and bombers roared out Wednesday night to continue the battle.

Save Electricity For Sake Of Maximum Production Plea of Hydro Chairman

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders today appealed to Ontario residents not to waste electricity.

"Do not turn on the lights unless it is necessary," he urged in a statement. "Every kilowatt hour we can save is going to ease the problem all 'round and enable our industries to maintain maximum production of essential materials."

Production of essential war materials was making a vigorous impact on industrial activity with the result that the commission had encountered an all time high in daily and weekly power demands, said Mr. Saunders.

In the Niagara district alone there had been an increase of 1,400,000 kilowatt hours a day during the second two weeks of August as compared to the first period of the month. Daily energy demand in the area was 2,000,000 kilowatt hours in excess of the figure for the corresponding period a year ago.

Power demand in southern Ontario for the week ending Aug. 27 had been 247,410,300 kilowatt hours or an increase of 3,800,000 hours over the previous week which was rated as an all-time high.

On Aug. 31, a new daily high of 38,788,400 kilowatt hours was recorded, exceeding that of the same day of last year by 5,747,000 hours.

"These are demands we might expect during the coming winter months," said Mr. Saunders. "They definitely reflect the added industrial impetus caused by the troubled international situation.

The Hydro Commission has added more than 600,000 horsepower to the system in recent months and another 1,000,000 will be added shortly.

10 Wks. of Defeat and Holding Actions Pass in Korean War, Type for Which US Unprepared

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP) — The United States now has fought more than 10 weeks of the kind of a war for which it was unprepared.

These have been weeks of defeats, retreats and finally flaming conflict along a changing line—150 miles back of where the shooting started.

Some of the most ferocious and biggest attacks by the north Korean communist enemy have come within recent days.

What happened?

North Korea may have been an obscure little country, geographically and politically, but take it from Gen. Joseph T. McNarney of the United States defence department:

"The north Korean forces are not undisciplined bandits, but well-trained, well-led troops equipped with up-to-the-minute weapons from the Soviet arsenal."

The troops and the weapons they had when they jumped off on the boldest communistic aggression to date were the kind the United States lacked. The U.S. had plans and weapons for war—but not the kind of war the communists chose. The strategy-makers of the Soviet world picked the kind of war and the place.

The U.S. was strong in the air and on the sea—and weakest on the ground. And so they chose the ground. They haven't even bothered to throw in air or naval support.

The United States at no time has been able to bring fully to bear its two great weapons, air and sea power. Nor has it chosen to apply atomic warfare. More than that, if the communists elect to keep the war confined to Korea there is little prospect of major use of these weapons.

It isn't that American ground forces haven't fought hard and well, with what they have. The casualty lists alone prove that.

Has the fault then been in Washington defence headquarters where something called "strategic concepts" are made by the civilian and uniformed heads of the military?

Or does it go beyond that? To faulty intelligence about what Russia and her satellites were doing? To foreign policy? To haste in putting the new little Republic of South Korea on its own and withdrawn the American military force? To a Congress and administration responsive to popular demand for unrestrained peacetime life and over-economy in national defence expenditures?

Economy alone doesn't account for the traditional attitude of the people toward national defence. They are willing to spend money. Witness any of the annual national budgets. But they don't like wars. And being a race of gadgeteers, Americans long have hoped that machines instead of men could be made to fight them.

This, to a degree, accounts for the ready investment of defence money in air and sea power, the much more reluctant outlay of funds for the grim, dirty and decisive element of ground power—the army.

But no one, not even the most ardent exponent of the army, believes that a war with Russia and her satellite nations could be won with ground forces alone.

It is in technological warfare that the deficiency must be corrected.

DREW CHARGES GOVT. STALLING ON INFORMATION

Wants Secret Meeting Of House on House

Ottawa, Sept. 6 (CP) —George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, wants a secret meeting of Parliament on defence.

He threw out a call last night for a closed session in charging that the Russians have more information about the state of Canada's defences than opposition members.

Because, he told the House, the government is not giving any real information and is citing secrecy as one reason for not doing so, he wanted a secret meeting to thrash out the situation.

His request came late in the first day of battle over the government's $850,000,000 program for expanded defence and armament measures arising from Korea.

Prime Minister St. Laurent was not in the Commons at the time and there was no immediate reply. However, sources close to the cabinet said the request would be rejected. There has been no secret meetings of parliament since the war.

Spectators in the Commons also watched:

1. Finance Minister Abbott indicate this special session will be asked to ratify tax boosts and say he is not planning to budget for a deficit this fiscal year.

2. Mr. Abbott introduce a resolution preceding a defence appropriations bill seeking $450,000,000 in cash and authority to undertake contracts whose bills for $409,000,000 will come due in future years.

P.C. Motion Defeated

3. Defence Minister Claxton say Korea will cost Canada between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 this fiscal year—ending March 31 next—and maybe more.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 6 —(CP)—A charge of manslaughter today was placed against John Angus Cada, 36, of Korah township as a result of an accident in which Ronald MacLeod, 21, was fatally injured Sunday.

Magistrate James McEwen granted a remand of one week at the request of Crown Attorney Ian Munro. MacLeod was a passenger in a car driven by W. H. Wilson which was knocked off Highway No. 17 six miles east of here by a driver who failed to stop.

Only Occasional Junk Able to Slip Through R.C.N. Naval Blockade

Tokyo, Sept. 6 (AP)—North Korean communists are able to slip only an occasional junk through the United Nations naval blockade on the west coast of Korea, Capt. Geoffrey Brock of the Royal Canadian Navy said today.

Capt. Brock commands three Canadian destroyers in the blockade force of Canadian, British, French, Australian and Dutch warships.

American naval forces patrol the east coast.

Capt. Brock whose home is in Victoria, said no large ships are moving on the west coast.

Most junks halted and searched are carrying south Korean refugees. He said their condition was pitiable.

The refugees are packed tightly in slow moving craft. Usually they have neither food nor water.

"We make sure they are not carrying anything but refugees," Capt. Brock said. "Then we give them a few loaves of bread and cigarets and whatever we can spare and tell them where they may find some shelter."

South Koreans have established a series of refugee stations on islands off the southern tip of Korea.

When a junk is found carrying weapons or military supplies the Koreans are arrested, handed over to south Korean forces and the junk is sunk, Brock said.

"From time to time we find them trying to handle a few barrels of oil but that's becoming increasingly rare."

He expressed belief Canada's navy would continue to keep three destroyers in the U.N. force even though some ships may be replaced.

The reds big port of Inchon is "dead", the officer said.

"I have been close enough to Inchon to throw a stone onto main street and there's absolutely no shipping there."

Brock paid high tribute to the south Korean navy. He said "they are doing a magnificent job" with their small patrol craft ferretting out red forces.

He said, too, that north Korean sympathizers are frequently discovered on islands near points occupied by south Koreans.

"When the Roks (Republicans) need any help, we occasionally come in and punish the north Koreans."

None of his ships has spotted any submarines, Brock said.

"But it's sometimes hard to distinguish between a contact you make with a sunken wreck—of which there are many—or even a large whale. I daresay there have been quite a number of whales with sick headaches from being depth charged."

'I Am Not Planning On Budget Deficit' Abbott States

Points to Urgent Need For New Defence Expenditures

Ottawa, Sept. 6. (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said today in the Commons that he will announce at 8 p.m., E.D.T., tomorrow night the tax changes he proposes to help meet increased defence costs.

Mr. Abbott made his announcement at the opening of a morning sitting of the Commons. He gave no details.

He said that at 8 p.m. tomorrow night he will move that the House go into committee of Ways and Means so he can present the taxation proposals planned for this emergency session.

$850,000,000 Defence Bill

Yesterday Mr. Abbott placed a staggering $850,000,000 defence appropriation bill before the Commons and said he plans to finance the 1950-51 phase without going into the red.

"I think I can properly say at this time that I am not planning on a budget deficit for this year, despite the large increase in defence expenditures," he said.

In his budget speech last March, Mr. Abbott forecast a surplus of $20,000,000 for this year. So far revenues have been running far ahead of expectations. But Mr. Abbott has made it clear that they have not been so high as to make new taxes unnecessary.

Referring to the need for new defence expenditures, he said Canada cannot "escape the real costs involved, and we cannot possibly afford in real terms as high standards of living and in business expansion as we had hoped to achieve."

Wilgress Will Head Canadian Delegates

Ottawa, Sept. 6 —(CP). — L. Dana Wilgress, Canada's High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, will head the 13-man Canadian delegation to Torquay, England, where 37 nations will meet Sept. 28 to begin new international tariff-bargaining deals, the External Affairs Department announced today.

H. B. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Tariff Board, will be deputy chairman of the Canadian delegation. Since Mr. Wilgress has been re-elected head of the entire conference on tariffs and trade, Mr. McKinnon will have the main job of directing Canadian negotiations.

Balloonist Downed In Red Zone Well Known

Montreal, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Albert Boitard, a balloonist downed in Russian zone Germany while participating in a Dutch balloon race, was identified here today as a French hardware merchant who has been visiting Canada since 1920.

Boitard, who gave a Montreal address on his entry form, took part in the race last Saturday as a representative of Canada. He was reported downed in the Russian zone and was picked up by police. Since then no word has been heard of him.

J. A. Allard, building superintendent at the Montreal address, identified Boitard. He said Boitard represented a French hardware firm and spent a few months each year in Montreal lining up contracts.

Bail Reduced To $50,000 For Jan Bata

New York, Sept. 6. (CP)—Bail for Jan Bata, 51-year-old head of a world-wide shoe manufacturing organization, yesterday was reduced from $250,000 to $50,000. Bata has been held in jail here since Aug. 24, on a civil charge arising from a dispute over ownership and control of the huge concern.

Justice Samuel Dickstein in Supreme Court observed yesterday that Bata could afford to jump the higher bail just as easily as a lesser amount.

Bata's arrest August 4, was the latest development in a long-drawn suit involving control of the various Bata corporations, one of which is at Batawa, Ont. The case is said to involve assets worth $10,000,000.

MALES WINS DECISION

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Maxie Males of Toronto won a five-round decision over Hamilton's Dave Turnbull in an amateur fight card last night. It was the second victory for Males in three bouts between the 118-pounders.

In the semi-final bout, Don Wallace of Barrie scored a technical knockout over Gordon Munroe of Toronto in the second round and in a preliminary, Don Miller of Brantford won a three-round decision over Jerry Durette of Toronto.

City and District News

FULL PROGRAM DESPITE WIND

A near gale halted most sports activity at Crystal Beach, Madoc, Labor Day, but a full program of events was run off Sunday.

Grant Baker, Tweed, took first place in the boat races. Madoc juniors won the Dr. Nickle's Trophy in the softball playoffs and Charley Murphy of Belleville made his 75th parachute jump.

OUTBOARD RACERS AT C. N. EXHIBITION

Bruce Bishop of Belleville, driving his 12.5 cubic inch craft finished second to Leonard Vigodda of Picton in his race. George Publow, Picton, was third.

In the 17 cubic inch hydro class, Don McCabe, Picton, finished in front with Keith Gilmore, Picton and Bill Knox, Ameliasburg finishing second and third.

ASKED TO ASSIST IN C.A.S. TAG DAY

Saturday, Sept. 9 has been designated the Tag Day for the Children's Aid Society.

Unheralded and unsung, the CAS goes about its tremendous task of caring for children and families who through no fault of their own, are not so fortunate as others.

The Society reported that in 1949 it has completed 1950 services. These include 782 children protected in their own homes; 85 in adoption homes; 69 cases of unmarried parents and 255 permanent and temporary wards.

The society serves the city of Belleville, the town of Trenton and the county of Hastings. It's humanitarian work will find a ready response from the citizens of Belleville and residents of the county. Officials of the society are confident that an appreciative response will again be given to their appeal.

Helpers for the Tag Day are urgently needed. Those desirous of assisting in any way are asked to contact Mrs. William C. Lockyer, phone 2324 or Mrs. Herbert McCabe, phone 1712.

7 New Teachers At Collegiate For Coming Term

Seven new teachers have been added to the staff of the Belleville Collegiate Institute. They started their duties at nine o'clock this morning along with the rest of the staff under principal G. E. Currie.

The seven are Miss Nancy Redfern, new physical training directress; John Fry, who will teach English, French and Social Studies; John Gluck, who will be drafting master on the vocational side; Bernard Kinlin, commercial teacher; Charles Sloan, who will specialize in English and Social Studies; John Snetsinger, another commercial man, and Ernest Tindale, whose specialty is art instruction.

For the first time since June, classes were in procedure this morning. An exact count of the students registered and a breakdown of the count into the various departments will be delayed a few days. Reason for the delay is that some of the students are not sure as yet of their courses, and a breakdown cannot be made until everyone is straightened around.

Want 30 More Experienced Farm Laborers For West

A call for 30 additional experienced farm laborers from the Bay of Quinte district to assist in the harvest in the Western wheat fields was made today by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager of the employment office at Belleville.

Forty-nine farm workers have already been sent from the Belleville district—18 of them before the railway strike—but the demand is still urgent and 30 additional harvesters are needed, it was stated.

Fare of $15 to Winnipeg is being offered Ontario farmers wishing to go west for the wheat harvest, while the return fare from Winnipeg to the starting point is $11.50. Fares from Winnipeg to the destination in the Canadian West and back to Winnipeg following the harvest is paid for the workers.

With one of the heaviest wheat crops in the Canadian west in years, the need for experienced farm workers is urgent and workers from this area wishing to go West are asked to get in touch with Mr. Reed at the employment office as soon as possible.

Quadruple Header Winds up Season

The playground softball league which has been as busy as Grand Central Terminal all summer, winds up activities tonight with a quadruple header at Exhibition Park. This is possibly the first time in the history of the sport that a quadruple header has been offered at six and a quarter cents per game.

The first game gets away at 6:30 p. m. and the fireworks should still be going strong at 9:30.

The East Hill Cubs meet the College Hill Redwings in the junior boys finals, while the College Hill Redwings go against the East Hill Bears in the intermediate fixture. In the senior boys do, CNR Tigers will be out to scalp King George Cubs.

"Cherchez la Femme" is not a bad motto at any time and as usual the girls will be there at the finish. Two all-star girls teams will stage an exhibition game for the edification of the fans.

Proceeds from the games will be stashed away to help defray expenses incurred in sponsoring the playground program this summer.

MAN WINS FIRST

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — A 45-year-old bachelor, Roy B. Huff, walked off with first prize in the Trim Your Own Hat competition at the Canadian National Exhibition Tuesday. He defeated a field of 273 contestants — all women.

Marmora Twp. Man Surprised On Awakening to Find Bear in Room

Marmora—Earl McInroy, who resides in a log cabin on his property on the old Deloro road near the Goat Hill turn, was surprised one morning last week when he awakened to find a three hundred pound bear facing him Finding the weather somewhat sultry, Earl had left the door open on retiring. Awakening at daybreak he discovered the bear occupying the room with him. He had no idea how the long the bear had been there, but surmised he had just come in and was the cause of his awakening. The bear suddenly turned around and shot out of the door. It was a black bear with brown spots over its eyes, on looking around the property Earl discovered that some animal presumably the bear had lain down not far from the cabin.

Camp Quin-Mo-Lac at Moira Lake of the United Church Formally Opened, Dedicated

Madoc (Special)—Between 200 and 300 people were present on Monday at Moira Lake as the United Church of Canada formally opened Camp Quin-Mo-Lac. The camp was used in August by the Young People's Union of the Church at its national meeting in Belleville, but the official opening and dedication were delayed.

Kenneth Symons, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Y.P.U., was chairman, and the special guests were The Very Rev. Jesse H. Arnup, B.A., D.D., past moderator of the United Church of Canada, and Rev. D. T. Forsyth, B.A., B.D., D.D., secretary of the Christian Education of the United Church

The site was purchased four years ago by a committee of Mr. Don Williams, Rev. Lloyd Shorten, Y.P.U. secretary of the United Church in Canada, and Rev. Don Amos. Three hundred acres on the south shore of Moira Lake with a splendid bathing beach, were purchased. Work on the camp is being done by members of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Presented Flag

The program of dedication, which started at 3 p.m., included four hymns, an invocation prayer by Kenneth Symons, a responsive reading, and a historical sketch by Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh. During his sketch, Rev. Vanderburgh presented a British flag to the camp, which had been donated by Rev. Shorten, who was unable to be present. An interdenominational flag was also presented by W. Weir of Lindsay.

Others taking part in the ceremony were Don Williams, who read the scripture lesson, Dr. B. Gordon, who led the assembly in prayer, and Miss Loretta McDougal, who sang a solo. Miss McDougal is deaconess of Bridge St. United Church, Belleville.

Guests Welcomed

Rev. W. Fletcher welcomed the guests and Dr. Arnup complimented the group on their achievement and for the things it would lead to—worship, instruction and Christian fellowship. Dr. Forsyth brought greetings from Rev. Shorten, Rev. Nelson Chappel and other Christian education officials. Miss Eunice Pyfrom of the Christian Work Camp Fellowship visited the assembly and told of the work being done in Germany, southern Italy and a general picture of efforts in Europe and Asia.

Arthur Hagerman, reeve of Huntingdon township, extended greetings and good wishes. More greetings were expressed by Rev. D. McLellan, camp counsellor of the Bay of Quinte conference.

The actual dedication ceremony was carried out by Dr. Arnup, and it was followed by a hymn "God Who Touchest Earth With Beauty." The closing prayer was conducted by Dr. Arnup also.

In the morning, a softball tournament was arranged, with teams from Lindsay, Peterborough, Kingston and Oshawa presbyteries competing. A basket lunch followed.

The dedication of the camp has been heralded by officials of the church as a "jubilee event," and one which will long be remembered by the United Church in Canada and the Bay of Quinte Conference in particular.

'Bob' Young R.C.N. Member At Cornwallis

Former employee of the local A. and P. Store, Robert J. "Bob" Young, son of Mr. T. C. Young, 9 Bettes Street, has joined the Royal Canadian Navy and has reported for training at HMCS Cornwallis in Nova Scotia. Bob made application for enlistment in the navy just six weeks ago.

Well known among the younger people in the city Bob attended St. Michael's Academy and high school. He took a keen interest in music and was a member of the Belleville Municipal Band as well as playing the saxaphone in a local orchestra.

He reported at Kingston Thursday morning and from there went by special bus to Quebec City where he will board a naval vessel for the remainder of the trip to Halifax.

POLICE BLOTTER

There was little activity in police circles during the past 24 hours with only routine matters coming to the attention of officers.

A resident on Bridge Street, West, R. E. Hyatt, reported that a radio had been stolen from his parked automobile, while an official of the Diamond Construction Company complained that the windshield of one of their highway tractors had been broken, presumably by children throwing stones. Both matters are under investigation by police.

Roy Messervey Wins High Honors With Orpingtons

Despite the stiffest of competition, Roy Messervey has again brought honors to Belleville. For years this poultry breeder and judge at many important fairs throughout the province has shown White Orpingtons at the C.N.E. at Toronto and has always come home with many honors and this year is no exception.

At the conclusion of the judging his birds won first and second for cockerels, first and second for pullets and first for hen. As his cocks were not in perfect feather he declined to show them. Not only did Mr. Messervey clean up in the class events but his cockerel won the Grand Championship for the best cockerel of any breed in the show.

This fine bird was cooped in a specially decorated cage and placed in a reserved spot in the poultry building at the C.N.E. placed above the cage are the words "Bred, Owned and Raised in Belleville", which further enhances this city as a city of champions.

Mr. Messervey is a close student of breeding in poultry and always has his birds ready for show purposes. He never takes a bird to a show unless he is sure that the bird has an excellent chance to win the awards offered. His showing of Orpingtons at the Belleville exhibition was one of the best seen in some time, in fact the Belleville poultry show was the best in many years and Mr. Messervey and Mr. John Holley made this possible.

Chinese Student From Hong Kong At Albert College

When Albert College opened its doors this morning for the Fall and Winter term, a young student stood on the threshold of a new educational adventure.

He is youthful John Wong, son of a Hong Kong dentist, who arrived in Canada for the first time the other day. Wong arrived from the Far East British Colony by way of San Francisco.

Wong is one of a number of international students who are attending Albert this fall and winter. Included are students from Colombia, Peru, Venezuela, Bermuda, and the Dominican Republic.

Registration at the college is not as large as that of last year, according to a college spokesman. It is believed that unsettled times, the current world situation are among the factors affecting registration, not only at Albert but other residential schools.

Only one staff change has been noted at the college. Mr. C. A. Irwin, of Toronto, has filled the vacancy as head of the English Department, caused by the resignation of Mrs. Douglas Eaton, (nee Elinor Finkle).

Martins Purchase Hotel Business In Miami, Florida

According to word received in the city today it has been learned that Floyd E. Martin, and F. Kaye Martin, formerly of this city, have purchased a hotel business in Miami, Florida. The hotel is the Patrician Hotel on Biscayne Blvd., the main thoroughfare of Miami.

Negotiations in connection with the transaction have been underway for the past several weeks and the deal was closed August 29th., the new owners to take possession and management of the hotel on October 1st. The name of the hotel will be changed to "Hotel Martin". Mrs. M. B Martin of Bridge Street, East, Belleville, mother and grandmother of the two owners, will also take up permanent residence in Miami.

The hotel purchased by the Martins is described as a fine building surrounded by palms and large lawn in one of the best locations in the city of Miami.

Rev. E.F. Church Interim Pastor At Bridge St. Ch.

The Reverend E. F. Church, B.A., for many years in the service of the United Church in British Columbia, will be the interim minister at Bridge Street United Church, until a full-time pastor is procured.

Reverend Mr. Church was the pastor of the Metropolitan Church, Victoria, B.C.; for seven years, of the Chown Memorial Church, Vancouver B.C., for 10 years, and just this year was superannuated from the church at Port Alberni, B.C., where he had been the pastor for four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Church have taken up residence in the parsonage and Mr. Church will assume his preaching duties this Sunday.

Obituary

LATE SHIRLEY A. PHILLIPS

The funeral of Shirley Ann Phillips, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, 15 Murney Street, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, on Tuesday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, minister of Victoria Ave., Baptist Church.

The bearers were Ronald Belnap, Ronald Day, Ronald Phillips and Kenneth Sprackett.

Flaming Journal Causes Cotton In Car to Burn

A flaming journal which ate up through the flooring of a railroad box car which was loaded with baled cotton caused a bit of excitement in the C.N.R. freight yards Tuesday afternoon.

The box car loaded with cotton consigned for a St. Hyacinthe plant was set off in the Belleville yards when smoke was seen coming from the car. The Belleville Fire Department was called and section employees assisted in unloading a number of burning cotton bales.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance stated that the hot box had set fire to the flooring of the car with result that the flames ate their way up through the floor setting fire to the baled cotton.

Early this morning firemen were called to the Empire Groceteria on Front Street where smoke filled the upstairs apartments. Investigation revealed the smoke came from a burned-out motor in a walk-in refrigerator in the basement of the floor, the smoke seeping up through into the apartments and into the Walker's Men's Wear store next door.

Monday firemen were called to Raymond's Grocery on North Front Street where the motor of the refrigerator burned out. Also over the weekend firemen made two smoke investigations at Coleman Street residences. They were also called to 61 Dundas Street where a faulty fireplace caused slight damage. Still another run was to North Yeomans Street where a grease pan on an electric stove boiled over and caught fire.

Miss Betty Redner Goes to Scotland Exchange Teacher

Miss Betty Redner, of R.R. 1, Belleville, and lately a school teacher at Campbellford, has gone to Scotland as an exchange teacher. Prior to taking up her post, Miss Redner took a 14-day tour of Europe, visiting Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Luxembourg, and Alsace-Lorraine.

While in Bavaria, Miss Redner attended the Passion play at Oberammergau. The play, while very impressive, was tiring. It started at 8:30 in the morning, lasted until noon, started at 2 p.m., again, and continued until six o'clock. All this consisted of one presentation.

The play, which was all in German, was presented in a theatre holding 5,000 persons. The town has no hotels, and all visitors to the area are billetted in private homes.

Someone Else Enjoyed Dinner Off 25-lb. 'Lunge

Open letter to that party of fishermen who hooked the 25-pound "musky" and lost it in West Lake off Jack Yanover's cottage the other day.

"Listen chums, you should have lingered around the spot after the big fellow shook off your lure. True, he gave you a stiff battle, and you deserved to win. What you didn't know is that you did win.

"That big fish was badly hurt after its struggle with your lure. He shook it off, but he never recovered. Had you 'stuck around' for a little while you would have had yourself a handsome fish. But you went away to let the big fellow suffer.

"But, don't worry. Everything is fine. Ask the party that went out a few minutes later and found your fish gasping its last on the surface of the water. All they had to do was reach over the side and haul in the big fellow.

"So the fish dinner was on a table other than your own.

"The boys send along their grateful appreciation."

Frankford Ousts Barriefield In 3rd Round Playdowns

A twenty hit attack by Frankford Merchants smothered Barriefield 16-3 to sweep their best-in-three third round series in two games. The win moves Frankford into the fourth round of the O.A.S.A. Intermediate C playdowns against Brookline.

Every member of the Frankford squad hit safely at least twice.

Don Boyle went the route for Frankford limiting Barriefield to five scattered hits. Hill was blasted for all the Frankford hits, and had to contend with seven errors on the part of mates besides.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) After a week or so of almost solid advances the Toronto Stock Exchange apparently ran into technically weak conditions in trading today. Actuated by Korean War news and forthcoming tax increases, sellers hit the market right from the opening bell. Issues in all sections suffered, the weakest being the industrial list which dropped over five points in the index.

Volume for the first three hours was 1,336,000 shares.

In industrials, hardest hit were papers, utilities, refining oils, manufacturing and steels. Liquors, agriculture and construction also lost ground. Algoma Steel dropped 1 5-8 at 22 1-8, Imperial Oil lost 1-2 at 28 3-4 and Aluminum slipped 3 3-4 at 87. Massey-Harris, International Paper, C. P. R. and Bell Telephone were among other key issues which bumped lower.

Base metals showed almost a complete list of losses. Noranda, Consolidated Smelters, Quemont and International Nickel dipped sharply.

In western oils only a handful of stocks remained on the plus side.

Golds were hit almost as hard as the other groupings. Kerr-Addison, Dome, Giant Yellowknife and Hollinger slipped among the senior producers. Losses in the secondary board ranged downward to 15 cents.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—Trade was active at the Ontario stockyards today and prices were steady at Tuesday's decline. Receipts: Cattle, 280; calves, 200; hogs, 290; sheep and lambs, 240. Left from yesterday were 2,800 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers were $27.50-$29, medium to good light steers $26.50-$29; good heifers $27.50-$28; good bulls steady at $23-$24.50; good cows mostly $21.50-$22.50 with some at $23; few fed yearlings $30-$32; good stockers $25.50-$26.50.

Calves were steady at $30-$32 for choice vealers; common to medium $20-$29.

Hogs sold at $32 for grade A; sows $23.50 dressed.

Lambs dropped $3.50 to $27.50 for good ewes and wethers; bucks $1 discount with culls downwards to $24; good light sheep $13-$15 with common downwards to $8.

PRODUCE MARKET

Creamery prints: First grade, 55 cents.

The egg market continues steady today with Grade A in light supply. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 54-55; A medium 49; A pullet 34½-35; Grade B 39; Grade C 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 57-58; A medium 52-53; A pullet 38-40; Grade B 42-43; Grade C 33.

Butter solids: First grade 54 cents; second grade (nominal) 51-51½.

U.N. FORCES

The 84 Soviet-built tanks reached the frontline only a few hours before the planes pounced upon them. They were rushed to the aid of the attacking communists in a mounting drive on Taegu.

That central rail hub supply centre was in dire peril but still in allied hands Wednesday night.

A battle for Taegu raged 20 miles east of the city at the railway junction of Yongchon, which apparently changed hands in the day's fighting. U.N. forces won it back tonight.

Kyongju, another main road junction 18 miles southwest of Pohang, was reported safe by General MacArthur's headquarters.

Red advances through the crumbling east wing of the 120-mile-long front were costly.

Gen. MacArthur's Tuesday night summary said 2,035 communists were killed or wounded and 69 were taken prisoner during the 24-hour period ended at noon Tuesday.

Includes 1,000 Reds

This apparently included 1,000 reds cut off in the southwestern sector.

British troops from Hong Kong swung into action alongside the Americans on allied Naktong river barrier running north and south to the west of Taegu.

A British brigade took over on the left flank of the U.S. 1st. Cavalry division, about eight miles southwest of Taegu. It beat off a red patrol which field reports said pinned down one British company.

The southern anchor of the line near Masan port, 27 miles west of Pusan, flared into action Wednesday night.

Russell Soule Presented With Fountain Pen

On Sunday evening, the members of the B.Y.P.U., of the Baptist Church of which Russell Soule is president, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Orr, for a sing-song and Bible Study, after which Ralph Neal called Russell to the floor and presented him with an address and a fountain pen. Russell made a suitable reply, thanking them all for their kindness to him.

Slip of Foot Sends Car Careening Over Embankment

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — A slip of a foot today sent a Hamilton automobile careening over an embankment from a west-end parking lot near the Canadian National Exhibition grounds and onto railway tracks.

The driver, William Buckingham, 63, Hamilton, suffered chest injuries. With him in the car were his wife, Laura, 34, and Nellie Turner, 22, of Montreal.

Buckingham, who had been on the way to the Exhibition, said he pressed the wrong foot pedal after a parking lot attendant asked him to move his car a few feet.

Four Children From Italy Join Parents in Toronto

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) — It was a joyful ending to a tiring 14-day trip alone when the four little Rocca children arrived here last night from the Sicilian town of Pachino, Italy.

The youngsters, Salvador, 13, Corravo, 9, Louis 6, and Lucille, 4, were reunited with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ricupero who came to Canada 10 months ago.

While the four children stayed with an aunt in Italy, their parents scraped up $675 for their fares to Canada. Ricupero is a $45-a-week laborer, his wife a $20-a-week seamstress.

FEW POKER VOICES

Montreal, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Many people have "poker faces" which hide their true feelings, but few have "poker voices."

Lt.-Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, is the authority for this. Speaking to the Montreal Rotary Club, Col. Baker said the lack of "poker voices" is the main reason why the blind can easily tell true consideration and interest from disguised pity.

'Rookie' Handsome Black Labrador Retriever, Owned by Denny Rosatte, City, Wins Dog Derby Title at C.N.E.

That moisture that slithered down the jowls of city slicker pooches following the Canadian National Exhibition Dog Derby, was not altogether tears.

The most of it was Lake Ontario water kicked in their faces by a handsome black upstart from the "sticks" who paddled his way to victory not only in his heavyweight division but in the payoff free-for-all that saw him leave the cream of provincial canines dog-stroking in his wake.

So meet the winnuh of the CNE Dog Derby, "Rook of Avondale" an ebony three-year-old Labrador retriever, owned and trained by Denny Rosatte, 143 North Front Street, Belleville.

"Rookie" as he is more familiarly known, took on the best Toronto and the province had to offer in the pooch nautical parade and the majority of them are still wondering who and what was the black streak that plowed over the 440 yard course in less than seven minutes, to win the championship and its accompanying prizes.

Wins Beautiful Tray

Today "Rookie" looks proudly at a handsome mantel clock emblematic of the championship of the heavyweight class, and a gleaming silver tray presented to him after he had won the grand championship.

And his master, Denny, isn't exactly ashamed when he looks at cheques amounting to $50 which "Rookie" garnered for him.

Rookie won the grand championship the hard way. He was "scratch" dog in the payoff race, and was not allowed to enter the water until nine other contestants were splashing their way to the wire. "Rook" took off in a cloud of spray. He struck a fast pace and plowed his 80 pounds through the field like a hot knife through butter. A third of the distance and "Rookie's" hind legs were kicking spray in the muzzle of the opposition. He maintained a steady clip over the course and won paws down.

Second Appearance

It was "Rookie's" second appearance at the CNE Dog Derby. Last year he won second place in the heavyweight division and qualified for the championship race. But he got away to a bad start and was forced to withdraw.

Black as the ace of spades, the sheen of his coat bespeaking expert care, "Rookie" is a splendid specimen of his breed. He celebrates his fourth birthday next November and already is the proud "poppa" of several beautiful "Rooklets. In fact one of his sons went to the races with him, but decided the "old man" had sufficient pep left to win the honors. He was right.

British-Held Oil Stocks in East Are Used by R.N.

London, Sept. 6 — (AP) — A Foreign Office spokesman said today all British-held oil stocks in the Far East are being used by Royal Navy units engaged in the Korean operations.

He was commenting on published reports that the British authorities in Hong Kong have held up a 1,000-drum cargo of American aviation gasoline bound for the Chinese Nationalist occupied island of Formosa. The spokesman said no details of the reported hold-up have been received here.

But, he added, as a general principle all available fuel supplies in the Far East are being held for operational use.

FALL PROVES FATAL

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Fred Marshman, 68-year-old carpenter from suburban Pickering township, died today of injuries suffered in a fall from a scaffold during construction work at nearby Unionville. Doctors said he suffered a punctured lung.

New York City Bans Use of Sirens to Avoid Confusion

New York, Sept. 6. (AP)—New York City has banned use of sirens on police and fire vehicles and ambulances so as to avoid confusion with any air raid alert.

The city's Civil Defence director, Arthur W. Wallander, said last night that "any unannounced siren signal after Monday will mean that an alert has been received from the United States Air Force."

Fire apparatus will be allowed to continue using bells. But sirens will be used only as a temporary air-raid warning system. Radio stations would broadcast the signals.

TRIBAL REVOLT BROKEN

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 6 (AP) — Iranian army forces have broken the back of a small tribal revolt in Kurdistan, Iranian officials said today.

An army spokesman said fighting was continuing near the Iraqi border, however. The revolt broke out among the Javanroodi Kurds three days ago after a barrage of propaganda by a hidden communist radio in Azerbaijan province.

Watches Training Of Special Army Brigade

Quebec, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Brig. J. M. Rockingham of Vancouver, officer commanding Canada's special army brigade for Korean service, yesterday watched members of the Royal 22nd Regiment training at nearby Valcartier Camp.

Brig. Rockingham saw members of the 2nd Battalion of the famed French-Canadian regiment go through rugged training which is expected to be completed by mid-November.

The 2nd Battalion is one of three recently selected to be part of the brigade.

Brig. Rockingham said at a press conference that officers of the brigade will go to Washington as soon as training is completed to confer with United States army officials on co-ordination between the Canadian and U.S. forces.

He also said the brigade has been trained mainly in anti-tank warfare because of the major role tanks have been playing in the Korea conflict.

English Channel Beats Back Swimmers Twice

Cap Griz Nez, France, Sept. 6—(AP) — The English Channel today defeated two swimmers, each for the second time.

That left one other, Abel Monlem Abdu, 28-year-old Egyptian lifeguard, still thrashing through cold and choppy seas from England to France.

Turkish swimmer Murat Guler, headed in the traditional opposite direction, was the first to give up this morning — defeated in his second try at the Channel.

Shortly after, Dr. Alain Bombard, 25, of France, headed the same way on his second effort, was dragged from the Channel after striking a paralyzingly cold current.

NOT PTE. RYAN OF LONDON

London, Ont., Sept. 6. (CP)—The army had the wrong Pte. Ryan when they advised Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Ryan, of London, their son had been injured at Camp Petawawa in a mortar explosion last Thursday. A Pte. Gerald Ryan was amongst those injured in the accident, but he was from the east coast, not from London. Mr. Ryan was advised by the army of the accident and went to the Petawawa hospital, only to find the patient a complete stranger.

Bernard Shaw Takes Peep Into Post-A Age

London, Sept. 6—(Reuters) — George Bernard Shaw's latest pla —a peep into the post-atomic ag —was previewed here last night

The play, "Farfetched Fables," was shown to an audience of professional critics at the Watergat Theatre, a tiny house seating only 100 people.

The 94-year-old sage dispense with plot to present his interpretation of what would happen afte the atomic era. In five conversation pieces and one monologue he traces the destruction of modern civilization, the rise of scientifically - organized society where men can manufacture themselves in the laboratory and the eventual evolution of a being without cumbersome body," al mind.

The Times critic wrote: "This by-no-means-witty parody is acted playfully, as it has been written. . . the playfulness comes to very little in the way of entertainment."

The Daily Express critic said: "It is a pathetic sight to see that mighty legend, 'by Bernard Shaw," on a play built out of the shards and ruins of genius."

Toronto Finishes Preliminary Plan For Civil Defence

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum said today that Toronto has completed preliminary planning for civil defence.

He told a reporter that the city is not waiting for direction from federal authorities on formation of a civil defence organization.

"We're away ahead of them," he said.

He commented on a report tha Mayor Arthur Reaume of Windsor, Ont., had criticized federa authorities for lack of guidanc in civil defence programs for Ca nadian cities.

FORECASTING WEATHER

A Riebeek West man in South Africa claims that by making a careful study of the first twelve days of the year, he can forecast the weather for the rest of the twelvemonth. He is an amateur meteorologist, is Jan Truter, and owes his skill and knowledge to the fact that he has spent the greater part of his life in the open, which he claims helps him in his forecasts. This year's weather in South Africa has been so far exactly as he predicted in January.

Nature lovers everywhere in this country have faced all kinds of weather and have no small skill in telling the weather ahead from the atmosphere, the nature of the winds and their direction and all the facts which nature reveals to those who know her. But rare as their skill in forecasting might be it could not go as far ahead as he does. Truter tells the weather from the first twelve days of the year. Like Canadian weather observers, Truter looks to the winds and studies their directions.

Then comes the real test. He claims to exactness in his "probabilities" for all the rest of the year from his observation of the first dozen days. To be exact he says one should sleep out in the open in those first twelve days.

He knows that the way in which the stars shine has a significance which reveals what the weather will be like. This same test Canadian weather observers would accept.

Nature rewards those who have studied her in all her moods, whether on the veldt or on the countryside or lakeside. Canadian farmers have an intimate knowledge of nature's moods from lifelong association with the appearance of the sky and the nature of the winds. Their study is an interesting one. They could well set up as nature's interpreters and natural philosophers.

But none would set up a claim to prophesy the weather a year ahead as Truter does. Yet all those who so delve into nature's secrets have learned lessons about nature in all her phases.

TIRELESS OPTIMIST

Summer has moved swiftly to most people except on those days when the rains descended and draped the landscape either at home or at the camp. The complaint against the season so far has been that it was reactionary with rain in something like the proportions of April showers rather than according to the standards of June, July and August. But nature always has a chance to redeem herself and sometimes there seems to be a balance set up.

After a cold Labor Day there came a bright and moderately warm Tuesday. If summer behaves for the next week and the succeeding weeks prove attractive, many people will make up for the time lost in contemplation of rain or of frustrated plans during the height of the summer season.

A writer in the Ottawa Journal speaks of all the complaints fading away before the chill knowledge that summer camp must soon go into hibernation. "How much we have liked the place, the peace of the morning, the beat of the water against the shore, the singing of birds with the rustle of trees for a background, the forgetting of our cares under that battered roof."

But the cottager is a tireless optimist really, he will look forward to many a day as the year ages, on which he can go back to the summer haunts and implicitly believe that the weather will repay him with bright days and happy times still to be spent before the later season closes down on all such activities as life at a cottage by the lafe affords.

BORNE BY THE WINDS

Recently there were released 66,000 balloons at the Marshall Plan Fair in Copenhagen. They bore a friendly greeting to the finder but says the Christian Science Monitor they were not intended as an experiment in penetrating the Iron Curtain. But as the winds blew and as fate directed them a number fell in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic lands.

An effort was made to prevent people finding them from reading the messages they bore. Newspapers in communist dictated areas are said to have spread reports that the balloons were infected with poison. "Not with poison but with a very effective antidote," the Monitor points out.

RECORD TO BE PROUD OF

Everyone must acknowledge that there are a very great number of drivers who are ever thoughtful of their obligations to society to drive carefully. A great number never have an accident.

In this district over the Labor Day weekend there were no highway fatalities and no serious accidents. Inspector McDougall of Provincial Police district headquarters here commented upon this, and expressed appreciation to the motoring public.

One European observer says that Russia is powerful outwardly but has its Achilles' heels, comments Hamilton Spectator. Most people in the free nations know who they are, too, without mentioning any names.

TOMORROW

Tomorrow is a distant day
Some may not wake to see;
For although near or far away,
A day that's sure to be.

A morning with its rising sun
To all who live denied
When 'twill be said of every one:
Last night our loved one died.

Tomorrow we may hope to see,
But, whether soon or late,
There's one tomorrow sure to be
For which no man may wait.

Mr. Jacob Finkle of this city is spending a vacation at the 1000 Islands.

Mr. B. Bowers is home from Rochester, N.Y., on a visit to his parents.

Mrs. C. L. Coleman is visiting her son, Dr. Coleman, in Montreal.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DINING PLACES

I was reading in a famous novel about an old English Gothic home. Its structure and grounds were described in detail, but when it came to tell about the dining room—there was no dining room, just areas arranged where beautiful vistas into the garden could be seen as people ate their meals, and then they would lounge as they fed their souls as well!

It was just a great hall where they dined. Nothing can be too beautiful, though simple, as a place in which to give sustenance to the body. I can imagine those people in that great hall scanning the landscape, with its colorful flowers and foliage, and every part of their consciousness being stimulated.

In the early days of our country, when people took more time in which to live and to enjoy the multitude of free blessings, interesting Inns were stationed at convenient spots to cheer the travelers as they came in from long trips, so many by stage. "Mine Host" was a real and important person. He became known and loved for miles about. Aud there was such a wholesomeness about his greetings, and gaiety filled the air, with special dishes at the table that became famous.

Those dining places, where they have a chef who puts imagination and poetry into his selection and preparing of food, easily become famous—and all to few of them still remain. In such cities as San Francisco, San Antonio New Orleans, and Charleston, South Carolina, you won't be disappointed. They have dining places that do feed the soul!

There should be a little of the blue sky and plenty of rays of the golden sun—if at all possible—to make a dining place inspire and satisfy a responsive nature. There is a dining place in the great Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, called the 'Starlight Room' and while you can't exactly see the stars there, you feel that they are peeping in from somewhere, just to assure you of joy and comfort while you partake of your favorite dish.

We all like to dine where there are cheer, beauty, exacting service — and companionable folks about us, who also welcome the opportunity to dine where there is poetry in the atmosphere and imagination in the food. And sometimes a smiling chef tucks in a little love to his creation!

VETERAN RETURNED

Damascus, Syria, Sept. 6 (AP)—Syria's aged but politically-resilient veteran, chief of state Hachem Bey El Atassi, today was credited with a new comeback. Ousted by the French from the Syrian presidency in 1938, Atassi who became chief of state last November, yesterday was returned to the presidency by the constituent assembly. Atassi is in his 80s.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

TO THE RUINS

Kingsmere, Que.—Most of the obituaries written about Mackenzie King referred to the lack of ostentation and display in his private life, and so the visitor here at this summer home is startled to find one of the strangest private collections imaginable.

It's surprising that so few writers have described the "synthetic ruins" on view here at Kingsmere. If these objects had been collected by an American public figure they would surely have been used by his enemies to prove a depth of imagination.

Yet very few Canadians ever realized that their long-time leader, so often pictured as a drab and colorless man, had a bizarre side to his personality expressed in this private, unusual way.

"The ruins" (as his neighbors and servants invariably call the collection) stand in that part of the estate Mr. King acquired at the beginning of the century and named "Moorside."

The former prime minister's own handsome country home is a five-minute walk from here, but the original "Moorside" may be reached by a pathway leading across the hills. In recent years Mr. King had used this original "cottage" for guests and more particularly, for his sister's use during the summer.

Mrs. Frank Kelly, who was Mr. King's housekeeper at the time of his death, suggested I see the ruins, and when I wondered aloud why Mr. King had made such an exotic collection, she shrugged.

"Oh," she said, "I just think it's that every man naturally likes to collect things. And they don't seem so strange when you see them. They're really quite nice."

On a Knoll

I walked from Mr. King's home down a roadway shaded by maples and butternuts until I came to the gate marked by the recently added "No Visitors Please" sign. A broad driveway curves back under the sun-filtering maples to a two-car garage and the old house, recently painted white and with a broad verandah that gives it somewhat of a pavilion appearance.

Frank Kelly, a lean, taciturn man who had worked with Mr. King for 15 years (and who, with his wife, was left $1000 of Mr. King's $750,000 estate) was in a field haying and directed me to the path.

As we walked by the house he pointed out an immense bell which hangs under the porch. It had come from a Nova Scotian sailing ship and Mr. King is said to have bought it in a second-hand shop.

Kelly left me here and I walked on alone through the gate, leaving behind the quiet, well-tended gardens. The path led across a grassy sward through thick-set, silver-blue pines.

Suddenly, framed between two pines, there was a sight that stopped me in my tracks. It was like coming upon a transplanted slice of ancient Greece. Ivy-covered arches and walls of old and heavy stone stood on a green knoll. There were four structures arranged in a square, each standing by itself.

Fronting on the rolling green hills and with a magnificent long view across the misty blue Ottawa Valley is a tall, glassless bay window frame. Mr. Kings had taken a fancy to it when an old Ottawa mansion was being torn down and had it reconstructed here.

The other pieces in the group, none of which is marked for identification, are the old stone doorway from the original Bank of British North America in Ottawa, a stone fireplace from the chambers of the Speaker of the British House of Commons, and a tall grey stone arch, also from Westminster, wearing a mantle of brick-colored ivy.

Quiet Place

As Mrs. Kelly had suggested the feudal-like masonry did not appear out of place in this quiet spot, as I'd expected.

H. Reginald Hardy, one of the former prime minister's biographers says that the collection began because Mr. King wished a wind-break on this pleasant knoll, where he liked to read, and that "one thing led to another."

Certainly the place on a peaceful late summer day is soothing to the nerves. I sat in one corner of this "court-yard" which Mr. Kelly had said was his employer's favorite spot. A slight breeze whispered through the gaunt-looking window, the bees droned about the ivy and there was a delicate scent of clover from the nearby fields.

It had taken a man of some imagination to know that such structures in this very Canadian setting would be in harmony and not merely a freak.

To come up from Ottawa, where I'd been hearing the inevitable stories of Mr King's hard-headed political acumen, and then to sit in contemplation among these ruins, makes Mr. King seem even more of an enigma.

Picturing him here in the rather formal attire he affected even in the country, his dog Pat at his feet and perhaps with a volume of Tennyson or Mathew Arnold in hand, makes the Mackenzie King of Kingsmere seem a different man than the Mackenzie King of Ottawa and perhaps, in the long run, the man who will be remembered.

Mackenzie's Column:

Professor Says Americans Should Be Graded

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Professor Clarke Goodman, Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientist, advances the highly-explosive thesis that Americans should be graded for admission to atom-bomb shelters "on the basis of their importance to the United States."

The professor explains that "we can't build shelters for everybody," and that selectivity is necessary because "some people are more important than others." Whether we look at this proposition from the standpoint of making a choice between communities or between individuals in a given community, we come up against the problem of who is to decide on the grading in this question of life or death.

I'm reminded of an incident in the First World War. During the height of the German submarine campaign a Japanese convoy was proceeding through the Mediterranean with Australian troop ships. They were carrying both soldiers and women nurses to the fighting in France.

Etiquette

A German submarine registered a direct hit with a torpedo on one of the transports which quickly started to sink. The Japanese admiral in command gave the order:

"Save the men first, and then the women!"

A young Japanese officer on the bridge with the commander diffidently said to his superior:

"You mean, sir, save the women first and then the men?"

"No," snapped the admiral. "The allies need troops; they have plenty of women; save the men first."

So the order was executed in that fashion, but fortunately they managed to save both men and women. However, such good luck couldn't be expected in the atomic selectivity because, as the professor says, we can't build shelters for everybody. Somebody would be inflicted with the tough job of choosing sides.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AND HE DIDN'T GRUMBLE

A man who owns a greenhouse was dismayed some months ago to discover that he had experienced about $600 worth of property damage at the hands of thoughtless, reckless boys. Fortunately, he was insured against such loss, and within a few days he received a check for the full amount. He took this check to the local Boy Scouts' headquarters and made it as his personal contribution to that organization. "The Boy Scouts are an organization," he said, "to make boys good citizens and keep them from vandalism."

The man who did this was not an educated man. In fact he came from a central European country only a few years ago. By diligence and much prudence, he was able to build up for himself a profitable little business. Certainly when the boys damaged his greenhouse and destroyed many of the plants, he would have been justified in appealing to the legal authorities. And certainly he would have been justified in accepting for himself the check which covered his damages. But he brushed all this aside. He believes in America. He admires this free land where people can get somewhere through honest effort. He believes in every organization that promotes good citizenship.

Most of us would have pocketed the $600 and would have done so grumbling. New Americans sometimes teach us very helpful lessons.

TOO MANY DOCTORS SHARE THE WICKEDEST OF ALL PHOBIAS

Hey, stupid do you ever wonder what has become of all the ever-ready operators who made a killing (in the business sense) out of tonsillectomy back in the twenties? What are they killing—I mean operating on now? And isn't it remarkable how seldom you hear of any poor geek going to the hospital for the "removal" of tonsils today—seldom, I mean, as compared with the numbers of victims who succumbed—dear, dear, such inept language—with the many who lightly entered the hospital for the major operation, in the hope, so often vain, that removal of the "bad" tonsils would somehow cure whatever ailed them?

Did you ever hear of any one being cured of anything by tonsillectomy? I have. There are several cases on record in which persons subject to chronic arthritis (rheumatiz) experienced great relief, even complete cure, following removal of infected tonsils. But these instances were as rare as were cases in which appreciable benefits followed extraction of all of the poor victim's remaining teeth.

There is a good reason why reputable physicians take a less radical course today. The profession hopes to live down the shameful memory of wholesale tonsillectomies and blind sacrifice of useful teeth. Unfortunately some members of the profession still indulge in wholesale tonsillectomy.

Although crude tonsillectomy is no longer a major evil, thanks to better popular education, I feel constrained to mention here, from time to time, my belief or opinion (bear in mind, I'm no specialist nor eminent medical authority) that too many practicing physicians still cherish and foster the wickedest of all phobias, namely, rabiphobia or hydrophobia-phobia. This concept (of human rabies) has never been scientifically verified—no one has found or identified a germ, virus or other specific cause of such a disease as rabies in man. In view of the extreme rarity of even alleged human rabies and the comparative frequency from Pasteur treatment, it is difficult to understand why so many practitioners still harbor nineteenth century superstitions about "hydrophobia."

Questioning large assemblages of physicians about this, I have not found one who has encountered in private practice what he believed to be rabies. This is odd, isn't it, in a community where the health department finds rabid dogs running around like mad....I mean running wild in the streets, in the dog days, too.

Now, hammerhead, don't try to misquote me about this. I do not know and do not say that there is no such disease as rabies in man. I merely say that no one has discovered or isolated a germ, virus or other cause of rabies in animals and that no one has educed scientific evidence to support the inference that so-called Negri bodies in brain tissues are specific or characteristic or diagnostic—notwithstanding the arbitrary practice of some health departments. Finally, I contend that mad dog scares and hysterical resort to so-called Pasteur treatment and all the rest of the orrational acts of health authorities and ignorant people are ridiculous when we remember that at least as many deaths occur from Pasteur treatment as the official mortality statistics ascribe to rabies.

At any rate, if I were bitten or scratched by animal or bird presumed to be rabid I'd take no Pasteur or "vaccine" treatment. I'd want immediate surgical treatment such as any trifling wound or abrasion requires to prevent infection with tetanus (lockjaw) and a dose of tetanus antitoxin, and 5 to 7 days later the second prophylactic dose of tetanus antitoxin, and that's all. If you are bitten or scratched by animal or bird you had better leave the treatment entirely to the judgment of your own doctor and let every one else tell it to the Marines.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Coffee Drinking

Husband drank ten or twelve cups of coffee daily for years till doctor warned him it would bring disastrous consequences... now he drinks —— (a trade name for coffee from which most of the caffeine has been extracted) in the same quantity. Does this not overwork kidneys? (A. R.)

Answer—No. It is less injurious to kidneys, nerves, arteries than drinking so much coffee. In my opinion one or two cups of good coffee once or twice daily may be taken by most adults with benefit to health and well being. What constitutes good coffee? THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A thrifty person never goes shopping in a groceteria on an empty stomach. The time to do your household shopping is right after a good breakfast, or a hearty lunch.

Yet the busiest hour of the day in the big seductive self-serve stores is around four to five o'clock, when all the customers are hollow, their appetites approaching the peak, and their resistance at its lowest ebb.

To get at the pound and a half of minced round steak—which was all you had in mind when you entered the big store—where do you have to go? Right to the very back, where the meat department is located. Maybe the wily psychologists who lay out the floor plan of these big stores will tell you that the meat department is at the back of the establishment becauss that is where the cold rooms and refrigerators are located. But you will observe that in order to get to a pound and a half of minced round steak with which to prepare a modest little meal of hamburgers, you are forced to run the gauntlet.

Past the great bins of lustrous fruit and bright crisp vegetables; down an aisle that sparkles and gleams with tall arrays of pickles and chutneys, catchups and sauces; past magnificent displays of biscuits and breads, cakes and cookies; past white and coolly gleaming receptacles full of golden cheese; then frozen foods of every description all done up in such handy little packets. . .

All, all things to torture the gastric impulses of a poor soul already feeling the pangs of hunger for lunch or for dinner. And suppose you do battle your way safely to the meat counter; and suppose you do get your pound and a half of minced round steak, what happens?

You have to make your exit out Corinthian pillars of canned goods, soups, vegetables, fruits, towers of them, tons of them. A person who can get out of it with a pound and a half of minced round steak is one who has just half an hour ago eaten, and eaten well.

St. Thomas Offers Interest In Bus Service

London, Ont., Sept. 6—(CP)—St. Thomas offered its interest in London to Port Stanley bus franchise to London Tuesday night for assurance of a reliable home-town transit service.

Mayor J. E. Peterson, of St. Thomas, speaking to London city council and London railway commission proposed a system of urban and interurban transportation involving London, St. Thomas and Port Stanley by rail and highway.

At the end of a joint meeting devoted to generalities of the plan members decided to hold further discussion following London's transportation balloting on Sept. 19. On that date London ratepayers will vote to purchase the London Street Railway for $1,000,000 or to establish a new transit system for $1,895,000.

Ontario's Fruit Crop Will be Down This Year

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP)—Ontario's fruit crop, with a couple of exceptions, will be down this year, the agriculture department reported Tuesday. Prospects for vegetable yields are about normal.

Apples are down 20 per cent from 1949; pears, 35 per cent; plums, 22 per cent and peaches 10 per cent. However, a grape crop one-third larger than last year and a strawberry yield 60 per cent greater is expected, the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Crop Report for August says. Both cherry and raspberry crops also were down slightly in 1950.

The department reports almost all major vegetable crops are average or slightly better, as of Aug. 15.

The pea crop for canning showed good quality and was a satisfactory pack. Acreage for canning tomatoes is down substantially this year but crop prospects are considered good, provided an early frost does not damage the crop, already two weeks later than normal.

Potatoes, carrots, cabbage and turnips also will be plentiful this winter, the department says. Acreage and crop prospects are about the same as last year.

Mosquitoes Die Of Sore Throats, Oil Poisons Them

Chicago Sept. 6 (AP) — Mosquitoes die of sore throats.

Thats what happens to them when you spread oils on stagnant waters where skeeter Larvae live They don't die of suffocation, as commonly supposed, Dr. H. H. Stage of the University H. H. Stage of the United States Department of Agriculture told the American Chemical Society yesterday.

Volatile gases in the oils penetrate the throats or tracheal tissue of the larvae and poison them. The more volatile the oils, the more lethal they are.

The idea that the larvae suffocate because they can't stick their breathing tubes througn the film of oil atop the water to get oxygen isn't so, he said.

NEW DIRECTOR

London, Sept. 6 (Reuters) — Britain is to have director of food hygiene, it was announced today. Food Minister Maurice Webb, worried by increasing reports of food poisoning and pestered by angry housewives, has asked his parliamentary secretary, Fred Willey, to take the job.

PASSENGER SHIP BURNS

Rio De Janeiro, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —The Brazilian passenger ship Itaquice was destroyed by fire last night. There were no casualties. The fire began while the 4,969-ton ship was anchored at Porto Alegre, on south coast of Brazil. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Old Swing-Bridge May be Headed For Scrap Heap

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP) — The old swing-bridge that piles up traffic across the Burlington ship canal every time a boat passes through may be headed for the scrap heap.

Plans being considered by the Hamilton Harbor Commission and the Ontario Highways Department call for elimination of the bottleneck on the Toronto-Niagara Falls route.

A causeway, leading to a long high-level bridge would carry traffic across the thin strip of land separating Burlington Bay from Lake Ontario. The new route would take heavy traffic off the main street of Burlington Beach.

Police Launch Search For Pretty 15-Year-Old Girl

Iroquois, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police Tuesday launched a search for pretty 15-year-old Jeannine English missing from her home here since Saturday. Iroquois is about 50 miles southeast of Ottawa.

Police said they would concentrate their search on the Toronto and Niagara areas after the parents said they believed the girl may have ventured into that district to seek employment.

Jeannine was last seen near the Iroquois bus station about 7 p.m. Saturday. She was in company then with a "red-haired" man, two years her senior. The parents told police that a short time ago the girl sought their permission to marry her boyfriend. This permission was denied on the grounds the girl was too young.

Jeannine is described as about five feet, four inches in height, weighing about 115 pounds with light brown hair and brown eyes.

Two Arrested Wanted In Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 6 (CP) —Police said here Tuesday night that two of three men arrested in Toronto Saturday on charges of possessing drugs and counterfeit money were wanted here on a murder charge.

The men were identified by Lucien Gagnon, K.C., Montreal lawyer, as Jack (Lucky) Wagner, 28, and Charles (The Kid) Pearson, 27, both of Montreal. Police here said they had been searching for Wagner and Pearson since Aug. 22 when a bench warrant was issued for their arrest in connection with the killing of Aaron Marks, 26, in a rooming house here several weeks ago.

TALKS BEGIN

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) —Canadian Pacific Railway officials meet representatives of 35,000 operating employees today for wage negotiations.

Through three International unions, the men are seeking a blanket wage boost of 30 cents an hour.

Negotiations with the Canadian National Railways will begin after the C.P.R. talks are finished.

NEW STRIKES START

Helsinki, Sept. 6 (Reuters) — New strikes started in Finland yesterday, bringing to 100,000 the number who have stopped work in the last 10 days. Workers in wood pulp mills, furniture and wood-working industries and a number of municipal employees joined Finnish metal workers in a strike for wage increases.

Kiwanians Hear Maj. Honeychurch At Noon Luncheon

"It has been said that motive determines the quality of our actions. I believe that motive only enhances the quality of the deed itself," stated Major Herb Honeychurch of the Salvation Army in an address on "The Brotherhood of Man" to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club held Tuesday noon in Kiwanis Centre.

"Memory is a wonderful thing," the Major said, "Some things we would like to forget. But there are some things that we ought to remember. Kiwanis clubs, which are based on lofty ideals, give us an opportunity to remember many things.

"Kiwanis believes that service is important. High principles get things started and Kiwanis is built on many lofty principles. The Salvation Army, too, is built on the idea of service to humanity—service on a level, where service is needed rendered by men, who want to give it. But service loses its charm unless its purpose is maintained."

"What interests man in the social outcast? Why should the Salvation Army be interested? Is it because we want a good name? Or is it because we hope that by our good office to redeem the social outcast we may bring him back to a position of usefulness in the community?"

Share An Interest

"Kiwanis and the Salvation Army share an interest in underprivileged children. Why? Do we want to give the children a good time? Or is it to satisfy our own sense of benevolence? Or do we want to do something on a plane to meet the conditions that bring children to a state of being underprivileged. Kiwanis and the Salvation Army jointly operate a camp to give children a holiday. But as a Salvationist I must concern myself with the causes that make a child underprivileged," the Major said.

"Children are not underprivileged always because monetary support is unavailable but because fathers shirk their responsibilities. Service agencies must make men aware of their responsibilities," he added.

Major Honeychurch then gave examples of fathers in Belleville who have shirked their responsibilities to their children—men earning 50 to 60 dollars a week who spend their money selfishly before their obligations to their families are met. "Broken homes are the greatest cause in rendering children underprivileged," he said.

Must Change Conditions

"We have not done enough for these children in just giving them a holiday," Major Honeychurch continued. "We have to change the basic conditions causing these situations. We cannot probe people's private lives. But we can see that children who literally have no fathers receive fatherly attention. We cannot pour money into homes. In many cases that would be the worst thing to do. Some parents selfishly spend more than enough money to care for their children."

"We in Kiwanis and in the Salvation Army all have a spirit of selfishness, but if we let it spring up we are unworthy of the Kiwanis badge we wear or the uniform of the Army. If we want to do things for World Brotherhood we will not let an opportunity for service escape us. If we bring the realm of high ideals to the realm of reality we will have done something for World Brotherhood and for ourselves."

Meet on Lofty Plane

Major Honeychurch went on, "Have we in Kiwanis forgotten something since joining Kiwanis? Perhaps some of you are here for selfish reasons. I can say this as a stranger to you but I hope to prove to you as a new member of Kiwanis, that I am here for unselfish reasons. I trust that many of you who may have forgotten why you joined Kiwanis will remember your high ideals. In the future I hope to meet all of you on this plane of unselfishness," Major Honeychurch concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Frank Harbeck and received the thanks of the club as expressed by Ray Grant and passed along by president Taylor Franklin.

Five new members were installed by Past-Lieutenant Governor Cliff Barager. They are Gord Bates, Bill Hollingsham, J. C. R. Puncher, Doug. Sinclair, and Major Honeychurch.

Ab Mazer, Bill Brown, Bruce Lattimer, and "Widdie" Widdifield, did their best as a quartet of song-leaders while the members hooted them down.

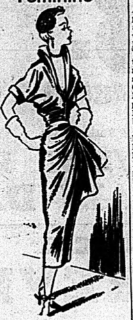
Frankly Feminine



Silk taffeta afternoon dress.

By VERA WINSTON

HERE is a pretty, frankly feminine dress that is bound to go places, and the right ones at that. Fashioned of mink brown silk taffeta, it has a low plunging neckline framed with a flattering stand-away collar. The bodice buttons snugly to the midriff. The skirt, slender and straight in back, is drawn sharply up to one side where the drapery forms a graceful fan arrangement.

WEDDINGS

CORRIGAN—MOHER

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was the scene of a pretty wedding on September 4, at ten o'clock, in the morning when Robertta Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Moher, 72 Victoria Avenue, this city, became the bride of Francis Joseph Corrigan, 48 Clergy Street, Kingston, son of Mr. Francis J. Corrigan, Cleveland, Ohio, and the late Mrs. Corrigan. Rev. C. E. Baker performed the ceremony and Mr. Robert Moher, brother of the bride, sang.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of ice blue French lace with matching shoulder-length veil and carried a white prayer book with beribboned bouquet of white fleur d' amour.

The bridesmaids were, Miss Mary Dolan and Miss Ann Moher, sister of the bride. They wore ballet-length gowns of copper rust French lace with matching caps adorned with ice blue feathers, matching lace mittens and carried crescent shaped bouquets of yellow Sweetheart roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Charles Corrigan, cousin of the groom, and Mr. Murray Kennedy, of Kingston, and Mr. Owen Moher acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Golden Acres, where the mother of the bride and Mrs. Kelly, Kingston, aunt of the groom, received with the bride and groom.

For a motor trip to New York and other points the bride donned a brown tailored suit, with yellow accessories.

Out-of-town guests were from New York, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Brockville, Toronto, North Bay, Hamilton and Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan will take up residence in Kingston.

GRIFFIN—NAPHAN

St. Michael's Church, tastefully and beautifully decorated with gladioli and asters, was the scene of a smart September wedding on Saturday, when Glenna Ruth Naphan, daughter of Martin Naphan, of this city, became the bride of Harold Griffin, son of Mrs. Landon, and the late George Griffin, of Madoc. Rev. C. E. Baker officiated with John Robetaille and John Barineau, acting as altar boys.

The bride, gowned in white satin, with sweetheart neckline, and bustle back; long sleeves pointed over the hands; Queen of Scots headdress with shoulder-tip veil and carrying a bouquet of cream Sweetheart roses, was given in marriage by her father. Her maid of honor, Miss Geraldine Gilbey, wore a pink taffeta dress with matching accessories and carried a nosegay of Bettertime roses. The junior bridesmaids, Miss Mary Jane Uens and Miss Doreen Burns, cousin of the bride, wore green taffeta floor-length dresses, with matching headdresses of nylon with forget-me-nots.

Robert Burns, cousin of the bride, was best man, and Francis Buckley and Fred Griffin, brother of the groom, escorted the guests to their respective pews.

After the signing of the register, the happy couple with a number of guests, repaired to the Lattimer Town Room, where the wedding breakfast was held. Mr. E. Lee, acted as master of ceremonies, and proposed the toast to the bride, which was suitably replied to by the groom. The wedding cake placed prominently in the centre of the bride's table, was cut by the bride with the groom assisting.

At the conclusion of the breakfast, the guests went to the home of Mrs. Ethel Lattone, 205 Station Street, where more than 125 guests from Toronto, Oshawa, Picton, Bowmanville, Madoc, Tweed, Kingston, and London, England, joined to wish the happy couple every success in their married life.

Mrs. Lattone received in navy blue dress with accessories to match and wearing a corsage of Bettertime roses and was assisted by the sister-in-law of the groom, Mrs. Fred Griffin, of Bowmanville, wearing a wine dress with black accessories, and a corsage of roses. Those who served the guests were Mrs. Violet Henry Mrs. Mabel Gibson, Mrs. L. C. Soules and Mrs. Thomas Burns, assisted by the hostess and Mrs. Landon.

The wedding trip took the couple to western points, the bride travelling in blue taffeta, with matching accessories, and carried a bouquet of red roses. On their return they will reside in this city.

NOYES—FOSTER

A quiet, but very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Alliance Tabernacle Church parsonage, Belleville, when Frances, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Foster, Deseronto, Ont., and Harvey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Noyes, of Belleville, Ont., were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony by the Rev. J. Robert Gray.

The young bride lovely in an ankle-length gown of pink taffeta with full overskirt of net and wearing a fingertip silk embroidered veil and headdress of seed pearls and wearing a corsage of American Beauty roses, baby's breath and fern, was attended by Mrs. Wm. Walt, who was lovely in a gown of Nile green brocaded nylon, shoulder-length veil and headddress of sequins. She wore a corsage of roses, baby's breath and fern.

The groom was attended by Mr. Wm. Walt.

After a few days at several points the happy couple will reside in Belleville, where the best wishes of their many friends go with them for a happy married life.

Scoharie Ladies Bid Farewell to Mrs. H. Davison

On Wednesday, August 30, the ladies of the Scoharie community gathered at the home of Mrs. Harvey Davison to spend the evening before her departure for her new home in Picton. The early part of the evening was spent in visiting, then the gathering was called to order. An address was read and Mrs. Davison was presented with a lovely green blanket from the community and a wall mirror from the "Circle". Mrs. Davison appreciated this gesture of friendship very much and thanked her friends sincerely. Friends are not going to say goodbye to Mildred as they hope to have her with them in some of their future gatherings and to see and visit with her in town.

Refreshments were served and the ladies departed, leaving their best wishes with Mrs. Davison for her future happiness in her new home.

RAWDON

Enamelware Shower Given Grace Dunham

Rawdon.—On Friday evening, September 1, Mrs. Eric Summers entertained about thirty ladies in honor of Miss Grace Dunham, bride-to-be. The co-hostesses were Mrs. Don Johnson and Mrs. Bob Merrick.

The rooms were artistically decorated with pink and white crepe streamers and bouquets of asters, gladioli and seasonal blooms. The bride's chair was a picture of pink and white.

The evening was spent in playing numerous records of old and new selections and a lengthy contest entitled "The Muddled Marriage Ceremony".

Mrs. Bob Merrick read an address of appreciation to Grace and two small children, Linda, and Jimmie, dressed as bride and groom, presented a wagon-load of red and white enamelware. The little wagon was decorated in pink and white.

Grace thanked her friends for the lovely gifts and invited the ladies to visit her when she was settled in her new home at River Valley.

Refreshments and plates of candy were served and all enjoyed a delightful evening.

The guests included Mrs. Charles Hoard and Miss Doris Hoard, of Hoard's Station; Mrs. Roy Bush, Mrs. Jack Bush and Miss Flossie Rosebush, River Valley; the ladies of the Williams School section, and a few others in the Mount Pleasant community.

MADOC

Beatrice Davies Honored With Shower

Madoc—A pleasant event took place on Friday night when Mrs. Gordon Pigden entertained in honor of Miss Barbara Davies (bride-elect) at their summer cottage, Moira Lake. School chums and friends were among the guests. The house was gaily decorated for the occasion with colored balloons filled with confetti and showered on Miss Davies who was escorted to a gaily decorated seat of honor. In an impromptu address Mrs. Pigden wished for the bride-to-be the sincere good wishes of her friends and asked her to accept the gifts which had been placed in a decorated basket. To add mirth to the party a basket of unlabeled can goods was also presented to Miss Davies who in turn thanked her friends for the remembrances. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

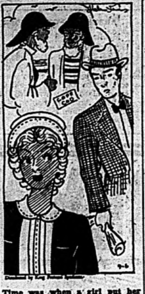
BEAUTY

Reconditioning the complexion

For the good of feminine faces there are fewer sun worshipping maniacs every year. Time was when a girl put her summer mind on getting a tan and what she got was a leathery-looking skin. The sisters have found out that excessive exposure to the rays of the sun bodes no good. First there is the blazing redness, then gradually one develops into a nutty-brown maid, and the horrid bronze sticks on like all get out, finally departing in patches, leaving a mottled effect that is nothing to get joyously crazy about.

Vacations, holidays and travelling about are no help in the beautifying project that must go on all the time, rain or shine, willy-nilly. One is likely to neglect the small duties that one attends to so faithfully when at home. So this is the time to put your face in order. Give it a little extra attention to make up for summer neglect.

If you would restore your complexion to its normal creamy color, combine equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide and use it on alternate nights, plying a fragrant cream between times. This lotion has mild bleaching effects. It should dry on, and the best means of application is to use pledgets of absorbent cotton. Don't fancy that because lemon juice is an old fashioned idea it isn't worth bothering with. It works. Our great-grandmothers used it and our great-granddaughters will probably find it an effective beautifier.



Time was when a girl put her summer mind on getting a tan and what she got was a leathery looking skin.

If you have collected blackheads during your flirtations with the sun during the past season, lemon and peroxide will tend to soften and dislodge them.

In the morning use clear cold water to give freshness to the skin. If the flesh feels drawn, as it may after your bleaching session of the night before, friction in a little cream, patting it in briskly. Remove with tissues. There will be enough of a light film remaining to make your synthetic blushes stay by you.

As the whitening process goes on you may find it necessary to get a powder of slightly lighter tone. Be fussy when selecting a powder. If you will patronize a cosmetic bar where there are open containers you will be able to experiment. It is about the only way. Beauticians say that women don't know the color of their skins; they buy powder that looks pretty. Mebbe so.

A shade too light is fatal; it does not impart the velvety smoothness that is the delight of every good looks candidate. With a brand new cosmetic calcimine, you may wish to experiment with a change in the color of rouge and lipstick. There are some dandy offerings right now. Look them over.

Brush Your Teeth Nightly

You can't have a lovely smile unless you take care of your teeth, says Screen Star Jane Russell. They need brushing at least twice daily.

By HELEN FOLLETT

NO matter how many times you brush your teeth during the day, the grooming that will count most in the preservation of your mouth pearls is the one before retiring at night. It is during sleep that chemicals form, due to particles of food left in the mouth. These chemicals can have a deplorable effect upon the teeth. Brushing after every meal is what the dentist orders, but with life such a delirium of hurry that isn't always possible.

If there is difficulty in reaching the back teeth with the brush you are using, get a small one. The size of the brush for your particular mouth is important. You should have two, and they should be carefully washed after using, as food particles cling to the bristles. When you get a new one soak the bristles in a salt solution for several hours.

Spaces Between Teeth

If there are spaces between the teeth, be sure to clean the sides of your biters. Do not overlook the biting areas, where caries first appear as a rule. Finish with a rinsing with a mouth lotion. If you haven't a favorite mouth wash, use salt water. It has a tonic effect upon the gums.

When the gums bleed you should hie yourself to the dentist. This condition may come because tartar has banked up under the flesh, causing wounds. No amount of brushing will remove these adhesions; only the little axes and picks of the dentist will efface them.

While the toothbrush is your best weapon against decay, it will not prevent caries from forming. Every six months you should seek the services of a dentist. He will make a careful examination, give your teeth a grand cleaning, overhauling, make such repairs as may be necessary.

There seems to be a difference of opinion among professional people as to the effect of diet upon the teeth. But why not play safe, eat a variety of foods so that you will get all the necessary elements, vitamins and mineral salts that are necessary for well being and good health?

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

The word saute meaning to pan fry comes from the French "sauter" meaning to jump. The fat in a pan sputters and jumps. The cook must jump to avoid the fat. This doesn't imply that a cook must always create a commotion just to be alert.

When pan frying, there are certain safety rules every cook should know. Always use a long-handled fork or long tongs to turn the food. Hold the head back when adding food to the pan. Expect the sputtering to increase when you add wet food to the pan. Finally use a pan deep enough to keep the fat from running over the sides into the open fire.

You shouldn't have to do too much jumping when you saute veal chops. The fat should be hot but not smoking, or the intense heat will harden the meat. Melt the fat slowly and add the chops carefully.

You may have to turn the meat several times to brown the chops evenly. The veal, however, should only be lightly browned, and then baked slowly either with a sauce or vegetables as in today's recipe. Veal will be at its tenderest when cooked in a low or moderate oven.

If fresh okra is not available in your neighborhood, use canned okra. Don't cook okra in a black iron pan or it will become discolored.

Veal Chop Saute with Okra.
4 Servings

Order 4 loin or rib veal chops cut 3-4 inch thick. Place the chops in a paper bag with 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon paprika and 1 teaspoon salt. Shake the bag well to coat the meat thoroughly.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-2 inch in a heavy frying pan. Brown the chops lightly but evenly on both sides. Transfer the chops to a baking dish, fitted with cover.

Cut stem ends off 2 large size fresh tomatoes. Cut tomatoes in wedges. Place tomatoes around chops. Sprinkle tomatoes with salt.

Cut off the stem ends of 1 pound of fresh okra. Cut okra into 1-2 inch crosswise slices. Simmer in boiling salted water until semi-tender, about 15 minutes. Drain okra.

Spoon okra over chops. Add 1-4 cup water. Place lid on dish. Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees, 40-50 minutes or until veal is very tender.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply.—Ed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her husband feels guests disturb his privacy

It's rather unusual to find a wife whose problem is that her husband loves her and his home too much. Yet that's the complaint in which one of my correspondents bases her plea for help.

She writes me:

"I am 36 years old and my husband is 37. We have been happily married for 15 years and have two children, a girl of nine and one five. There is one thing about my husband, though, that makes me very nervous. This is that he loves his home, the children and myself too much.

"He doesn't like to have company come to the house. He says he wants privacy. He is polite to visitors until about eleven o'clock, then he begins to make nasty remarks. He doesn't care whether it's his family, my family or friends of ours. When I ask him why he acts this way, his only reason is that they should know enough to go home when it gets as late as eleven. I have always told my husband to go to bed when he is tired, regardless of who is here. He could close the bedroom door and nobody would bother him. But he won't do that.

"Although I feel terribly embarrassed about this, I never let anyone know. We do our arguing after the visitors are gone. I always try to cover up his mean remarks by turning them into jokes.

"I too, love my home, but I also love my friends. He has no men friends who come to the house, and he never goes visiting himself. He is very moody, and sometimes days go by without so much as a smile from him. When he is in a good mood, he can be lots of fun, but that is very seldom."

This woman goes on to say that her husband's conduct when they have company puts her so on edge that she cannot enjoy the visit. "I keep saying to myself, 'I wish they would go!' and by the time they do go I'm a nervous wreck. After they've gone and we go to bed, I lie awake for hours, trying to make up my mind what to do about this."

When a wife is sociable and her husband is not, or vice versa, there is no doubt that the situation presents a very difficult problem. The only real solution is for the two to get together on a compromise of some sort. Unless this husband is so completely unreasonable that he refuses to co-operate, they should be able to find some workable plan that would keep them happy and at peace with each other.

One thing the wife might suggest is that they limit the number of nights each week when they have company come to the house. It wouldn't hurt a man to be pleasant to guests on, say, a couple of nights a week, if he knows that on all the other nights he can have his family to himself and can go to bed as early as he likes.

The simplest thing, of course, would be for him to do as she suggests and go to bed when he likes, regardless of who is present. It's not bad manners for a wife to explain that her husband works very hard and needs to get to bed early so he can be fresh for the next day. No guest should be miffed at such an explanation.

If she could bring up in a friendly, non-hysterical way, the possibility of their making a program together such as I have suggested, she might yet be able to work this thing out. It is important, though, that she refrain from creating a scene over it, and if she has been going this, she had better school herself to be more controlled. Her best chance lies in taking it all with as much easy good nature as she can. Tears and arguments will get her nowhere.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Same old racket: to make the best man pay some of wedding expenses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is to be best man at a wedding soon. The bride's parents insist that the best man should pay for all the flowers, even for the bride's mother's corsage and corsages for the intimate friends of the family, such as the mother of the maid of honor. They also insist that he should pay for the bridal car. Will you please assure us as to what his duties are as best man, and just who should pay for the flowers and the bridal car.

L. D.

I marvel at what wedding expenses the bride and/or the groom and/or the bride's parents persuade, or try to persuade, the best man are his "responsibility"! Actually, traditionally, correctly, the best man has only two "financial responsibilities"; (1) you and he send a wedding present to the bride-to-be; and (2) he provides for himself the attire the groom prescribes for his attendants to wear at the wedding.

It is the groom who buys the bouquet for his bride, the corsages for his bride's mother and for his own mother (generally the mother of the maid of honor provides her own corsage), and the boutonnieres for the best man and ushers, for the bride's father and for his own father. And it is the bride's parents who provide the bridal car.

The escort's courtly attention

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a man and a woman enter a restaurant together and the headwaiter or waiter is directing them to a table, pulling out the woman's chair for her, is it the headwaiter (or waiter) or the woman's escort who helps her take off her coat and puts it on the back of the chair? My husband says it is the woman's escort who should do this, but my brother insists that this is the duty of either the headwaiter or the waiter. Who is right? (A bet is on about this!)

Emilia M.

Your husband is right. . . he has the proper, the courtly point of view. The host should be on the alert to "stand by" at the back of the woman's chair, to help her with her coat and to see that she is comfortably seated. And you and I know . . . don't we?. . .how a woman loves this gallant attention!

Shower guests invited to wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper, in good taste, to invite to the bridal shower the women guests who have also been invited to the wedding and reception?

B. F.

Yes, indeed it is. Intimate friends of the bride-to-be are invited to a bridal shower, and they bring gifts of a designated type, thoughtful but not at all expensive. The guests invited to the wedding and reception, which generally include those invited to a bridal shower, usually send more important gifts.

To wear black at Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me whether or not black is a suitable color to wear to a late-September wedding and reception? Would colorful accessories make a difference? Or if black is not desirable because of superstition, what colors would be appropriate?

L. S.

The mother of the bride and the mother of the groom should not year black. And generally close women relatives of the bride and of the groom do not wear black. Other women guests may correctly wear black, but lightened by colorful accessories so that it will not be confused with mourning.

Now! Proof that BRUSHING TEETH
RIGHT AFTER EATING WITH COLGATE DENTAL CREAM
HELPS PREVENT TOOTH DECAY!

2 Years' research by LEADING UNIVERSITIES proves that test groups brushing teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream showed amazing reduction in tooth decay!

Under the direction of eminent dental authorities, one group of college men and women always brushed their teeth with Colgate Dental Cream right after eating—while another group followed their usual dental care. The average of the group using Colgate's as directed, and using Colgate's exclusively, was a startling reduction in the number of new cavities—far less tooth decay. The other group developed new cavities at a much higher rate.

Research shows that decay is caused by mouth acids which are at their worst after meals. When you brush your teeth with Colgate's right after eating, you help remove mouth acids before they can harm enamel.

FURTHER PROOF FROM SCHOOL CHILDREN

Leading Canadian dentists examined and directed over 8,000 school children in corrective dental habits. In addition to diet changes where required, the children were asked to brush their teeth after each meal.

The results! 16% fewer children with tooth decay!... Cavities dropped from an average of 5 per child to just over 3! ... 53% more children received dental care that prevented either loss of teeth or serious dental troubles later in life! ... The number of children with no defects—increased by 200%!

CLEANS YOUR BREATH AS IT CLEANS YOUR TEETH!

Scientific tests prove that in 7 out of 10 cases, Colgate's instantly stops bad breath that originates in the mouth! Colgate's active penetrating foam gets into hidden crevices between teeth—helps clean out decaying food particles—stops stagnant saliva odors—removes the cause of much bad breath!

HELP YOUR CHILDREN AVOID TOOTH DECAY!

Insist that your children always brush their teeth right after eating with Colgate Dental Cream. They'll love Colgate's delicious double-minty flavor, so it's easy to get them to use Colgate's correctly.

NEW WAY TO MAKE
MASHED POTATO IN 1 MINUTE

No washing! No peeling! No cooking! No mashing!

Actually in one minute, with practically no work at all, you can now serve your family mashed potato that "melts in your mouth"!

Just get a remarkable new food product called French's Instant Potato—now at your grocer's. Then do this:—

Wait until your dinner is ready to serve. Then, bring some salted water to a brisk boil, add milk and French's Instant Potato, according to simple directions on package. Stir for a few seconds until potato has thickened to desired consistency; add butter and whip until light and fluffy.

That's all—½ cup makes 4 to 5 servings of delicious mashed potato, at only a few cents a serving.

There are many other uses for French's Instant Potato. Try it as a topping for Shepherd's Pie; in white sauce; as a thickener for gravy, stews, etc. You will find French's Instant Potato in the canned vegetable section at your grocer's. Try this magic new product today!

THE PROOF OF A BARGAIN
IS IN THE WEARING

Every wise woman knows that it isn't the price that makes a dress a bargain. Sometimes it is the most expensive dress in your wardrobe that is the biggest bargain — because you get so much wear out of it and so much pleasure. Sometimes it is the lowest-priced one that is the mad extravagance — because it's the one you seldom wear and never never feel pretty in.

Naturally, then, to avoid such mistakes, you prefer to shop where you are not hurried, where no pressure is put on you. Here we are interested not simply in selling — but in selling you the exact dress you want, the one that best suits your needs, your likes, your looks.

We offer you an exceptionally fine selection, at moderate prices and in the luxury brackets, where, remember, you may find the bargain of a lifetime.

Knows of No Evidence of Sabotage in Fires

Ottawa, Sept. 6 —(CP) —The preliminary investigation into the burning of the Canada Steamship Line cruiser ship Quebec at Tadoussac, Que, has been completed and there is no evidence of sabotage or suspicious circumstances, informed officials here said today.

An official investigation is to be made into the fire which last month claimed seven lives. Mr. Justice F. Choquette of the Quebec Supreme Court, has been named presiding judge for this inquiry and will later set a date for the hearings.

Transport Minister Chevrier, questioned about Quebec reports of evidence linking sabotage in fires aboard the Quebec and the Noronic at Toronto last September, said he knew of no such evidence.

Other Ottawa sources, including a Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman, termed the reports incorrect.

Toronto, — (CP) —The Toronto Star says today in a despatch from Quebec that evidence has been uncovered that the fires which burned the liner Noronic in Toronto a year ago and the liner Quebec at Tadoussac, Que., this summer were caused by sabotage.

The evidence was uncovered by investigators by the federal Transport Department, the story says.

The Star dispatch, giving a "high official' in Quebec as its source, says the evidence now is in the hands of the R.C.M.P. the official is reported to have said there is definite evidence of sabotage by the same two persons in the fires.

The Noronic fire took 119 lives. The fire aboard the Quebec last month, took a toll of seven lives.

Doctors Fight Battle to Save Three of Quads

Hong Kong, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —Doctors fought an uphill battle today to save three survivors of quadruplets born to a Chinese woman six days ago.

The two boys weigh three pounds, four ounces an da girl, three pounds, 12 ounces.

The fourth baby, a boy, died Saturday.

Hospital officials said the 33-year-old mother was in poor health. She has had five previous children, including twins 11 years ago. She said they died because all they had to eat was boiled rice—the diet of millions of children of the Chinese coolie class.

The father works as a coolie in a local stone quarry.

SEEK FOREIGN CAPITAL

Bombay, Sept. 6 —(Reuters) — Ceylon is considering seeking foreign capital and technical "know how" to aid in a six-year economic development program for the island. George C. Corea, Celanese Ambassador to Washington, said yesterday his government considers foreign capital a "great help" in the industrial progress of Ceylon.

SAVED BY QUICK ACTION

Tillsonburg, Sept. 7 —(CP)— Quick action by Bert Skinner was credited with saving the life of Jack Martin on Thursday. Martin fell from a ladder while painting a new high school building and severed the main artery and nerve centre of his arm. Skinner applied first aid and Martin later was taken to hospital in London.

$250,000 Loss, Three Injured In Montreal Fire

Montreal, Sept. 6 —(CP) —A three-alarm fire which blazed furiously for two hours last night gutted a six-storey commercial building in downtown Montreal, causing damage estimated at more than $250,000.

Three firemen were injured in the fire which still burned early today. Only one person—the janitor identified only as Munro—was reported in the building when the first alarm was sounded at 9.25 p.m. He escaped from his top-floor room shortly after the outbreak.

The fire centered in the Victoria Chambers building on downtown McGill Street and at times threatened to spread to two adjoining structures. The other two buildings suffered extensive smoke and water damage. About 20 business firms were affected.

Huge sheets of flame, aided by a 15-mile-an-hour wind, shot upwards from the four upper storeys as thick black smoke covered Montreal's financial district.

More than 250 men from 18 fire stations fought the flames with 42 streams.

Unknown Origin

Fire Director Raymond Pare said the fire, of unknown origin, started in the basement of the building below Child's Restaurant, occupant of the first floor.

The fire was the second in the old building in eight months. A two-alarm blaze last January caused $50,000 damage.

Flames shot rapidly up through the open staircase and elevator shaft engulfing the stone structure within minutes.

Thousands of Montrealers, seeing the red glow in the sky, flocked to the scene.

About 1 1-2 hours after the fire started, the upper floors caved in and the rear wall crumpled, sending a huge metal ventilator pipe tumbling down, narrowly missing firemen.

Injured were firemen Trefle Nantel, 31, who suffered a cut wrist vein; Arthur Yannonie, 30, chest injuries and Poitras Andre who hurt his foot on a hose. The latter was released from hospital after treatment.

Non-Confidence Motion Defeated By 145 to 59

Ottawa, Sept. 6 (CP) — The Commons voted 145 to 59 today against a Progressive Conservative motion of non-confidence in the government.

The motion, sponsored by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, charged the government with having "failed to provide adequately for the defence of Canada" and with having "failed to take steps to deal with inflation and the rapidly rising cost of living."

It was moved during debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The debate ended with adoption of the address "on division"—without a formerly recorded vote.

On the non-confidence motion, the Progressive Conservatives were supported by the CCF and Social Credit parties and by P. E. Gagnon (Ind-Chicoutimi) and Dr. Raoul Poulin (Ind.—Beauce).

A CCF motion of non-confidence was defeated Saturday by a vote of 93 to 18. It was similar to the Progressive Conservative motion, but in addition called for the reimposition of price controls and the revival of subsidies. It also urged government aid to backward countries.

Conclusion of the debate opened the way for discussion on government measures to increase defence expenditures, to recruit a force for service in Korea or elsewhere and to provide arms assistance to the countries of Western Europe.

U.S. Govt. Averts Huge Walkout

Washington, Sept. 6 —(CP) — Eleventh-hour government intervention Monday succeeded in averting a labor walkout set for today against the huge General Electric Company.

Stepping into a wage dispute between G.E. and the C.I.O. Electrical Workers which threatened vital defence production, the Federal Mediation Service won agreement from the union to put the issues to mediation.

Today's strike call was intended to have called out 37,000 members of the International Workers Union (C.I.O.) in addition to 23,000 already on strike. The dispute threatened to affect 46 or more G.E. plants and 180,000 employees —only a third of which, however, are I.U.E. members.

Barbara Ann Criticized For Photograph

London, Sept. 6 —(Reuters) — The newspaper Reynolds News has criticized skater Barbara Ann Scott for allowing her photograph to be used in the Conservative party's monthly paper, Popular Pictorial.

The Tory paper is produced on popular lines with a sprinkling of lovely ladies in bathing suits among the party propaganda.

Reynolds News, owned by a co-operative movement, said Barbara Ann, former world champion from Ottawa who now is reported to be earning $6,000 a week with a London ice show, was wrong in allowing herself to be "dragged into the political arena."

When she was questioned on the appearance of her photograph Miss Scott said, reported Reynolds, "What is a Tory? I guess it is a new word to me."

She explained that when agents arranged for the photograph she had the impression they wanted to publicize knitting wool.

The picture showed her in an attractive woollen pullover, and the paper gave directions for knitting it.

Nine Injured In Head-on Crash

Ashton, Sept. 6 —(CP) —Nine persons were injured, two cars wrecked and two others damaged in an automobile accident Saturday when cars driven by Rev. Paul Manseau, 33, of Brownsburg, Que., and Joseph H. Trudel of Ottawa collided four miles east of here.

Mr. Manseau received a possible fractured skull, fractured nose, severe head injuries and shock. Mr. Trudel is suffering head and rib injuries, bruises and shock. Lucette Proulx of Brownsburg suffered a dislocated hip, fractured jaw, and shock.

Police said the head-on accident occured when the Manseau car was trying to pass another car on highway. Ashton is 25 miles west of Ottawa.

Following the crash, a car driven by Homer Knoll of Ottawa plowed into the back of Trudel's car, shaking up Mr. and Mrs. Knoll, their son, Allan, and Miss Jewel and Mrs. Annie Biggs, passengers.

CHILD SWALLOWS DIME

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 6 —(AP) —Six-year-old Judy Dollar, a visitor from Birmingham, Ala., swallowed a dime last night. The Sacred Heart Hospital took a few X-rays, and then let Judy go — 10 cents to the good.

The dime was still inside her, and wouldn't do any harm, doctors said.

ARRESTED FOR MURDER

Manila, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —A taxi driver was arrested here for murder, charged with shooting his firm's cashier over a nine-cent shortage in his pay envelope. Police said 42-year-old Ceferino Mardoquio waylaid the cashier, Armando Santos, and fired a double burst into his stomach.

PLUNGES TO HER DEATH

Port Arthur Sept. 6— (CP) — An American woman plunged naked 75 feet to her death from a blazing hotel room here early Monday.

Stingy Husband: "My husband has a good business position, spends a lot of money on his own clothes and personal expenses, but seems to think I can get along on nothing. He kicks about the household bills, about my clothes, even about my tiny bill for cosmetics. Is there no reasonable basis of arrangement for husband and wife?"

If I were you I'd write to the Community Chest of Greater Toronto, Welfare Division, 100 Adelaide Street West, Toronto, for a very clever budget book called "A Guide to Family Spending." The cost is 50 cents.

In it are laid out the percentage of expenses for husband and wife. If your husband is a good business man and you do a smart sales talk you will be able to send him a budget program which will help you both out.

Also in print now is an excellent budget book produced by the Bank of Montreal and available on request.

Grape Jam: "A bachelor is asking for help. We have plenty of grapes in our garden but no good recipe for making grape jam and we're crazy about it. Do you have something and easy that any man could make?"

Here is our best and simplest grape jam recipe. Wash and stem four pounds of purple grapes; weigh. Separate pulp from skins. Cook pulp gently until soft; press through sieve. Mix sieved pulp and skins in preserving kettle; cook exactly 5 minutes. Add 5 cups of white sugar slowly, stirring until it is completely dissolved. Simmer gently until thick (about 15 minutes). Pour into sterilized glasses; cover with hot parowax.

Four Contenders in A.L. Race Square Off Against Each Other Tonight in Vital Series

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

The four American League contenders go at each other's throats tonight in vital series that may make or break their pennant ambitions.

Fenway Park will be the site of the big vendetta. The Boston battleground will pit the league-leading New York Yankees against the third-place Red Sox. The other will be fought out at Briggs Stadium in Detroit between the runner-up Tigers and the invading fourth-place Cleveland Indians.

Here's the picture at a glance as the feathers begin flying:

	W	L	P	Games behind
New York	83	47	.638
Detroit	81	48	.628	1 ½
Boston	80	51	.611	3 ½
Cleveland	80	53	.602	4 ½

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel has nominated Lefty Ed Lopat (15-7) to face the sizzling Red Sox who have won 18 of their last 21 games with a power-packed line-up boasting a club batting mark of better than .300.

The move is a daring one, as Fenway Park is regarded as a graveyard for lefthand pitchers. Only three visiting lefthanders have pitched a complete game there this year and only one, Hal Newhouser of Detroit, came through with a victory.

Lopat, however, has mastered the Red Sox four times this year in five decisions and one of the triumphs came in Boston where the left-field wall is entirely too cozy with third base.

Red Sox skipper Steve O'Neill has named Lefty Mel Parnell (14-8) to spike the Yankee guns. Parnell, who won 25 games last year, is back in form after a poor start, having won six straight games and nine out of his last 10.

At Detroit, Early Wynn (16-6), enjoying his best season, has been named to pitch for Cleveland against Lefty Hal Newhouser (12-9).

Both Idle Yesterday

Both of these series are two-game affairs.

The Yanks and Red Sox were idle yesterday but the Indians and Tigers tuned up for their approaching tests with victories.

Cleveland turned back Chicago White Sox 3-2 in 10 innings. The Tigers came from behind and felled St. Louis Browns 7-4.

Action in the National League also was slight as only two games were played. The surging New York Giants downed Brooklyn Dodgers 8-5 in 10 innings and St. Louis Cardinals snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 4-2 victory over Chicago Cubs.

The Giants victory dumped the second-place Dodgers 7½ games behind the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies. The Dodgers open a four-game series in Philadelphia tonight. The victory elevated the fourth-place Giants to within 1½ games of third-place Boston and to 2½ of Brooklyn.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 1 — (CP) — If Marcel Boussac's Scratch II triumphs in the St. Leger classic at Doncaster Sept. 9, the French sportsman will give much of the credit to an Englishwoman, Irene Sherwood of London.

A unique personality in the world of racing, "Mademoiselle Irene" has the responsibility of supervising the vast training establishment operated by the fabulously wealthy Boussac at Chantilly, near Paris.

After winning the English Derby and the Oaks, and topping it off with the French Derby, Boussac was asked for the secret of his success. He replied: "Good stock, efficient trainers and the right jockeys. But above all I rely on planning and organization. Mademoiselle Irene looks after that."

It was Miss Sherwood who decided to pin the stable's hopes of winning the St. Leger with Scratch II, installed as third favorite at 5-1 in the last call-over.

"We never send anything across the Channel unless it stands a very good chance of winning," she said. She proved right when Asmena romped home ahead of the field in the Oaks and when Galcador nosed out American-bred Prince Simon in the Derby.

A victory in the St Leger would give Boussac triple-crown honors in the so-called English classics. Miss Sherwood believes Scratch II will do the trick and many of the racing experts are inclined to agree — unless the favorite, Prince Simon, is fully recovered from his recent lameness by race time.

Miss Sherwood, who began working at Chantilly before the war, knows all the Boussac secrets of successful racing. She lives among his horses, numbering more than 100; supervises their feeding, checks their performances and sends them off to the races. She also directs the work of the jockeys, looks after the revenue from winning purses and pays the wages of the staff, about $6,000 a month.

Asked the reason for the success of French racehorses within recent years, she said: "I don't think nationality comes into it. We have a mixture of French and English staff at the establishment. If you love horses you look after them properly."

The stable hands think "Mademoiselle Irene" is "tops." They say she knows the horses even better than M. Boussac.

Meanwhile a bit of a storm has blown up over the date allocated for next year's running of the St. Leger. The date fixed by the Jockey Club is Sept. 12—a Wednesday — and the critics claim somebody has blundered.

With Doncaster in the heart of the country's biggest coalfield, they say the race is bound to attract thousands of miners with a resultant drop in production. In 1946, the last time the race was staged as a mid-week fixture, a government spokesman stated that more than 40,000 shifts had been lost in the mines.

Efforts are being made to switch the event to a Saturday when most of the miners get their half-day off.

Toronto Peoples Win First One From Vancouver

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) — Big Russ Johnson, hurling air-tight ball in the clutches, last night paced Toronto Peoples to a 2-0 victory over Vancouver Firemen in the first game of the Canadian senior softball championship.

The best-of-five series, first east-west softball final staged in Canada, climaxes a two-week softball tournament at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Second game will be played here tonight.

The Vancouver nine played on even terms with the powerful eastern champions for seven innings. But they were never able to start a serious scoring rally against Johnson.

The Toronto righthander didn't allow a western runner past second.

Two successive bunts, both good for base hits, caused the downfall of the western champs in the top half of the eighth.

Bill Kelly laid down a perfect bunt towards the mound to reach first. Dennis Crozier followed with a repeat performance, sending Kelly to third when the bag was left uncovered.

Johnson won his own game with a long fly to left field, scoring Kelly, while Crozier scored on an infield out.

Brampton Wins Playoff Round

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—Brampton Excelsiors eked out a 14-13 win over Mimico Mountaineers last night in the second game of a playoff series to decide fourth place in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior standings.

Combined with a 23-14 win at Brampton Saturday, it gave Brampton the round and moved them into the quarter finals against Hamilton Tigers. Mimico now meets St. Catharines in St. Catharines tomorrow.

Al Garbutt got five goals for the winners while Bill Horwood scored five for Mimico.

WINS FOUR EVENTS

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP) — Bill Helsby of Kingston Ont. won 4 of nine events of Motorcycle championship races at nearby Connaught Park Monday night.

The races, sponsored by the Ottawa Motorcycle Club and sanctioned by the Canadian Motorcycle Association, were billed as the Canadian 10-mile motorcycle championships.

Helsby won the senior four-mile event, senior seven-mile race and both senior and expert class 10-mile events.

The junior 10 mile championship was won by Albert Irwin of Cornwall.

Brewers' Rally Earns 5-Run Tie With Point Anne

Brewers Warehouse, trailing by five runs at one point, came up with a three run rally in the bottom of the eighth and last inning, last evening, to eke out a 5-5 tie with Point Anne Cementmen in the first game of their best-of-five semi-final series in the Commercial League A playoffs.

The Cementmen sandbagged the startled Brewers with five runs that might easily have been more, before the astounded sudsmen got an offensive under way. When they finally got going they left the fans limp with excitement, as the Point Anne hurlers walked in two men in the eighth inning to tie the score. The game was called at the end of eighth innings because of darkness. As a result of this abbreviated game, all playoff games from now on will start at 6.00 p.m.

Draw First Blood

Point Anne opened the scoring in the top of the third inning. With one away Doug Sword got a life on an error to the shortstop and went all the way to third on passed balls. Graham Horwood struck out and Brant walked. Perry Everett slammed one into centre field to plate Sword. The relay from the field caught Brant sliding into third.

The Pointers continued to march in the fourth. Maracle got a life on a bobble by the second baseman and moved to second when Lawrence Horwood was walked. Jack Hunter dumped a bunt to third but the relay to short got away for two bases as Maracle scored. Baldwin flied out to right field and Lawrence Horwood scampered home in front of the relay. The umpires ruled, however, that Horwood left third before the catch and was out. Logue grounded out second to first to retire the side.

Sword and Horwood started the fifth with singles. Brant moved them up with a long fly to centrefield and Everett and Maracle doubled as three runs came pouring in. That was all for starter Bob Green and Rex Young came on to retire the side without further damage, Young went the rest of the way throwing no hit ball, walking two, and striking out two.

Brewers broke into the scoring column in the bottom of the fifth when Carl Wood drilled one into left field which the left fielder let go through his fingers for four bases. John Hurrie then crashed a legitimate home run into his wrong field as usual and the Brewers were back in the ball game.

Leo Goyer started the eighth for Brewers with a towering home run to left field. Halsey singled and Reid popped out to first base. Whiting, Locke and Young walked in that order with Halsey being pushed over for a run. Pat Maracle was yanked and big Jim Hunter came in to put out the fire. Barriage hit to short to force Whiting at the plate but Wood drew a walk to send in Locke with the tying run. Hurrie struck out but the third strike was dropped. Catcher Brant beat Young to the plate by a step for the third out to end the game.

Maracle started for Point Anne and in seven and one third innings, walked four, struck out nine, and was nicked for six hits and all the runs.

Green lasted four and one third innings for the Brewers walking three, striking out five, and giving up six hits for five runs.

Sword and Everett with two for four led Point Anne at the plate.

Halsey with two singles in four trips was best for Brewers.

Lineups:

Point Anne: Sword 3b; G. Horwood rf; Brant c; Everett cf; Maracle p; L. Horwood 2b; Jack Hunter lf; Baldwin ss; Logue 1b; Jim Hunter in 8th.

Brewers Warehouse: Barriage lf; Wood 2b; Hurrie rf; Goyer c; Halsey cf; Reid 1b; Whiting 3b; Nolan ss replaced by Locke in 6th; Green p, replaced by Young in 5th.

Blaker Suffers Broken Fingers In Soccer Game

A below strength Bay of Quinte Soccer All-Star team was beaten by Toronto Celtic at Greenwood Park in Toronto on Labor Day afternoon. Some of the players originally selected had to cry off due to injuries or personal reasons at the last minute and it was impossible to replace in time for the match.

The local boys had their fair share of the play but as some defencemen had to play in the forward line they did not appear to have their shooting boots on. The All Stars won the toss and started off very strongly having the ball in the Celtic net in the first 10 minutes of play with a goal by Bill Gill of Batawa. Their lead was shortlived however as Norton equalized the score for the homesters. A few minutes afterwards to be followed by another Celtic by Wallace about midway through the first half.

In making a glorious save Lionel Blaker the Belleville United goalkeeper was accidentally kicked on the hand by one of the Celtic players and had to leave the field. A trip to the hospital and an X-ray showed that Lionel had sustained two broken fingers and will doubtless be out of the game for the rest of the season. As no reserve goaltender had been taken to Toronto a spectator Don Buchan of East York United Juvenile squad volunteered to play and for a youngster put up a very creditable performance between the sticks but Blaker was definitely missed. Ernie Tait of Trenton Merchants sustained a leg injury which necessitated assistance from the first aid man but he was able to go on the field and carry on playing in the second half. No further goals were scored in the first half and the teams changed over with the score at Celtic two, All Stars one.

The second half football was fairly even with both sides coming very near to scoring on several occasions but the defences held firm for at least twenty minutes without either side being able to tally a counter. Woolard a lad from Bermuda who plays at centre-forward for the Toronto lads managed to get the ball past Buchan and ten minutes Eddie O'Neill the inside left who has just transferred from Toronto Irish got the final goal for his new buddies.

Chalky Whyte of Trenton Flyers and Rudy Mueller of Batawa were outstanding in the All Star lineup.

Bay of Quinte All Stars. Blaker (Belleville United); Whyte (Flyers); Mueller (Bata); Rimmer (6 R.D.); Silver (Flyers): Helyer (Trenton Merchants); Kendall (Flyers); Gill (Batawa); Loutit (6 R.D.); Ellis (Belleville Utd.); Mitts (Trenton Merchants) subs (Taft (Trenton Merchants); Buchan (East York Utd. Juveniles).

Toronto Celtic: Rankin, Bell, Norton, Brechin, Collins, Smith, Wallace, Wilson, Woolard O'Neill and Black. Subs, Smith, Benson, Todd.

Referee: Bunting (Toronto).

$35,000 FIRE LOSS

Alliston, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP)—A $35,000 fire yesterday gutted the Farmers' Co-operative store here and threatened several other buildings in the business section of this town near the big army base at Camp Borden.

Fire trucks from the camp helped the Alliston brigade keep the blaze from spreading. Townsfolk assisted in the fire-fighting.

Firemen said the fire started on the second-floor feed department of the three-storey building and within minutes spread through the structure. Employees at work at the time fled into the street.

Several Thousand Dollars Loot Taken at Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 6—(CP) —Loot estimated at several thousand dollars was obtained early today from Table Rock House by two masked gunmen who tied up the watchman and blew open the safe.

The safecrackers smashed a door and two windows to enter the cashier's office on the ground floor. They used nitroglycerine to blow the safe, believed to have contained Labor Day weekend receipts.

The 62-year-old caretaker, Roy Boyle, investigating the noise from the office, was tied up with fish line. Later, he broke free and phoned police.

The money was cash receipts from the scenic tunnel and souvenir sales. Maxim T. Gray, general manager, said an official statement of the amount taken was unavailable until insurance adjusters' complete check. The building was closed to the public Tuesday while the robbery was investigated.

WITHOUT SUGAR

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 6 (AP)—The town of Cabaiguan, in the centre of this No. 1 sugar-producing country of the world, reported it was without sugar today. Reason: Retailers said they had to pay $8 80 for 100 pounds sugar. They could sell it for only $9.

Partridge at Peak Of 10-Year Cycle

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)— Ontario sportsmen this fall can expect to enjoy the best all-round bird and small game shooting in years, Lands Department officials said today.

They said surveys show that partridges are reaching the peak of a 10-year cycle and various districts report the birds plentiful. Pheasants are reported in such good supply that a four-day shoot, instead of the usual two days, will be permitted on Pelee Island.

FIRMS GO BANKRUPT

London, Sept. 5 (Reuters) — More British firms are going bankrupt now than in the years immediately after the war, statistics show. In 1946, only 323 businesses failed to meet their obligations, but last year the total rose to 1,491. The provincial figure of 921 for the first half of this year suggests that the 1950 total will not fall far short of 2,000.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BUT NEXT YEAR . . . ?

Exit the Belleville Cubs.

The "ragamuffin nine" bowed out more or less gracefully from the Belleville and District Baseball League when loop activities came to a more or leess abrupt end at a special meeting of the executive held last night.

The Cubs' management reluctantly consented to withdraw after a lengthy discussion of playing possibilities which stemmed from the executive discussion of a protest entered by No. 6 Repair Depot, league leaders. The air force team were officially declared champions of the league and as such will represent the loop in the forthcoming Intermediate "B" playdowns.

The 6 R. D. protest was entered after the Cubs' management-played Johnny Green, Point Anne player in a game between the airmen and the Cubs played Sept. 2 when the city squad swamped the airmen for their second and worst defeat of the season. The score was 20-4.

* * *

In defence of his action of playing Green, Manager Frank Grandame of the Cubs told the meeting that his regular catcher Russ Soules, he had understood, had joined the armed services. Catcher Jack Elliott was incapacitated with a fractured finger. Under the impression that the armed services teams could call in replacements when team members were called away on duty, Grandame said he was of the opinion that the same ruling applied to civilian teams when players were called out or had joined the armed servicees.

Later, he said, he had learned that the Russell Soules involved, was not the Russ Soules who was a member of the Cubs team.

Gary Schreider and Al. Galbraith, he added, were lost to the team since they had left the city to attend various colleges.

Group Captain D. Greene, representing the 6 R. D. team pointed out that the Cubs had made a distinct breach of OBA rules by using a player who was a member of a team of the same league. He regretted, he said, that 6 R. D. were forced to enter the protest since he was not desirous of winning games or championships in a committee room.

* * *

He was willing, he said, to replay the Sept. 2 game and continue with the league finals which stood at two games to no for his squad, if the Cubs management could find replacements other than players of other league teams or those who have played senior baseball. It would not leave a clean taste in the mouths of the air crew supporters if their team was forced to play a composite squad of Belleville and Point Anne, and possibly go down to defeat. He was adamant on the replacement question, and regretted the fact that the league had to end in such a manner.

Since player and financial prospects were such that will not permit the Cubs to go on in the OBA playdowns in the event they did win the league title, the Belleville team management, in the face of 6 R. D. refusal to permit the only available replacements (players of other teams in the league), withdrew its team, and the title was awarded the air force squad.

The first vote on the motion, however, was a deadlock at three yeas and three nays. The question of replacements was fully discussed but the argument ended with 6 R. D. sticking to its guns of no replacements from league teams or those of senior calibre. The motion for withdrawal carried eventually.

DOWN THE STRETCH

The Commercial Softball League A section, which wound up in two dead heats has been sorted out at last and the playoffs get off to a fast start this week. As a result of two sudden death games, Brewers Warehouse emerged as first place winners of the league. They are trailed by Howe and Hagerman, Point Anne Sementmen, and Stewart Warner in that order.

The playoffs see Brewers meeting Point Anne Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Alemite Field until their best - of - five series is decided. The Plumbers and the Alemite crew go at it Wednesdays and Fridays at the CNRAA grounds until their best-in-five series is decided. The winners will meet for the Wishing Well Trophy in a best-of-seven series. All games are scheduled for 6 P. M. in the evening.

The regular games of the B section of the league will go on as usual Monday and Friday evenings at the Alemite Field, with the final regular contest slated for Friday evening. The B section playoffs start next week.

At present Crawford Scrappers and Energetic Club are eliminated. Belleville Mercuries and Bakelite are tied for first position and Bateman Motors and Avon Jewellers bring up the rear. Bakelite meets Avon Friday evening.

If ever there was a spot where the Masked Marvel figured to be trounced and have that hooded headgear of his torn off once and for all, it is on Friday night at the Memorial Arena, when the mystery man with the unbeaten record to date will meet Yukon Eric, the powerful, be-muscled 272-pound Alaska lumberjack.

Yukon Eric has an even more astounding string of victories behind him than the Masked Marvel, so that this clash is something of a "Battle of Unbeatables." However, notwithstanding the strong physique, mat knowledge and roughness displayed here in the past by the Masked Marvel, it would appear that he has more than met his match in accepting this bout with the amazing, husky northerner.

A semi-final of exceptional interest will bring together Pat Flanagan, and Leering Lee Henning, the explosive Iowa Corn-Husker. Tiger Jack Moore, of Ohio, will meet Ray Gunkel in the opening bout. Gunkel, a talented young matman, was U. S. amateur intercollegiate champion for two years before turning professional.

Mountain View Takes Game Lead Over Wellington

Picton — Mt. View took a lead in the Picton and District Softball League finals when they scored a 15-11 win over Wellington. Both teams had previously won one game each. The series is three out of five with the next game slated for Friday night.

Mountain View came from behind in the 7th to take the lead after trailing by four runs. Don Jones, Mt. View second baseman had the end of a finger broken off when he caught a hard drive in the 8th. The finger had been nearly cut off three years ago and sewn on. He went to hospital for treatment, and will be out of the remaining games.

Rowe went five innings for the winners, yielding 13 hits. D. Minaker relieved him and went four with only three hits and 2 walks. Doug. Herrington went the route for Wellington. He yielded 18 hits and issued four walks.

Jones led the winners at bat with a homer and three singles and drew one walk and was safe on an error in six times at bat. Wood had a homer and starred in centre field. Rowe had a triple and three singles; Chalmers two doubles; Potter two singles; Doug Minaker 2 singles; Jerry Miller a double; Junior Miller a single; Arthur Minaker a single.

For Wellington, McFaul came up with a triple and three singles; Beals had two doubles and a single; Moore a double and single; Herrington and Moore two singles each; Greer a triple and single; Johnson a single.

Picton Wins From Napanee By 4-3 Score

Picton, Sept. 6—Winning, 4-3, in a twilight game here Tuesday night, Picton McFarland Athletics tied up their best-of-five OBA intermediate "B" distaict playdowns series with Napanee at one game each.

The local team outhit the visitors, 10-5, but left five men stranded. Dyer, on the mound for Picton, kept the Napanee hits well scattered. He won his own game in the bottom of the ninth, driving home MacDonald whose triple was the only extra-base hit of the game.

In the seventh, Picton scored two runs on singles by Dean, Duetta and Zimmerman. The last-named made a sensational catch of Walt Gerow's hard drive deep in centre field in the ninth. Picton infield had two double plays and Napanee one.

FALLS 50 FEET, LIVES

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Lorne McLelland, 62, survived a 50-foot fall today from the third floor window of a downtown rooming-house. He suffered concussions and minor body and neck injuries.

Police said he picked himself up after landing on the cement well in front of the basement window and told his landlady he had fallen from his bedroom.

Bowmanville-Whitby 'A' Series Winners To Meet Batawa

Batawa Shoemen will meet the winners of the Bowmanville-Whitby series in the first round of the OBA Intermediate "A" playdowns, convener Bob Smith, Napanee said today. Since all OBA zones must declare a winner by Sept. 15 the first game of this series will be played either on that date or immediately following.

The Shoemen were drawn against the Bowmanville-Whitby series winners following the announcement of the Ottawa Valley League champions to withdraw from OBA competition.

Rochester Wings Dominate All-Star Team

New York, Sept. 6 (CP) — Rochester's champion Red Wings dominate the International League All-Star team selected by the circuit's baseball writers.

The Wings captured five of 11 positions while Montreal, Baltimore and Jersey City each earned two posts.

Top vote-getter was Tom Poholsky, young Rochester right-hander, who last week was voted the league's most valuable player. He won the nod from 34 of 35 voting writers.

Here is the team: (votes in brackets—35 possible)

Manager—Joe Becker, Jersey City (14).

First base—Don Bollweg, Rochester (19).

Second base—Pete Pavlick, Jersey City (20).

Third base—Don Richmond, Rochester, (26).

Shortstop — Rocky Bridges, Montreal (23).

Outfielders—Russ Derry (32) and Hal Rice (12), Rochester; Don Thompson, Montreal (28).

Catcher—Clyde Kluttz, Baltimore (16).

Right-handed pitcher —Tom Poholsky, Rochester (34).

Lefthanded pitcher—Bill Kennedy, Baltimore (21).

Becker, also managerial nominee in 1949, attracted 14 votes to seven for John Keane, Rochester. Nick Cullop, Baltimore, Stan Hack, Springfield, Bruno Betzel, Syracuse, and Wally Alston, Montreal, received scattered support.

Nearly all positions were won by handy margins, but Don Bollweg, Rochester recruit, was able to down Montreal's Chuck Connors only after a ding-dong bout for the first-base post.

Bollweg, who pushed Steve Bulko, last year's first sacker, off the Wings' starting line-up in mide season, registered 19 votes to 12 for Connors.

Waterloo Tigers Return to Form Of Early Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Unless someone figures out a way to beat Waterloo Tigers, they can wrap up the Intercounty Senior Baseball League playoffs anytime.

The club that couldn't do a thing wrong in the early part of the season and couldn't do a thing right in the last few weeks seems to have started all over again.

Last night they took advantage of a porous Stratford infield and Marv Meyers' three-hit pitching to whip the Nationals 3-0 for their fourth straight victory of the round-robin playoff series.

Meanwhile, St. Thomas Legion got off the floor, grabbing a 4-2 decision over London Majors for their first win after two straight losses. The defeat—London's first after a pair of victories — emphasized Waterloo's prominent position in the post-season tussle.

The Tigers deserved only a 1-0 edge on their own efforts. Red Kane's ninth-inning homer was the only earned run of the game. But the Nationals presented them with two more tallies by committing three consecutive infield bobbles after Johnny Fornari had doubled in the fourth.

At St. Thomas, Defty Walt Wilson was touched for eight hits, but whiffed 13 Londoners to gain credit for the St. Thomas victory. First baseman Bill McCarthy, who drove in two runs with a single and a double, paced the Legion sluggers.

Niagara Falls Fords ended an 18-inning scoring famine to drub St. Catharines Stags 10-3 and even their Niagara District Baseball League playoff series at two games apiece.

Victims of two straight 1-0 setbacks, the Fords capitalized on eight Stag miscues and contributed a 12-hit assault to back up John Worrall's six-hit pitching. Worrall needed the support—his mates committed five errors behind him.

Peterborough Edges Belleville United In Soccer Tilt

Peterborough U.E.W. just managed to edge Belleville United on Saturday afternoon in an exhibition match played at the Belleville Fairgrounds by a score of six goals to four. Peterborough won the toss and elected to kick off with the sun in their favor and definitely most of the first half play. It was quite a high scoring game with the Peterborough boys being just that split second faster on the ball. Strong opened the scoring for the visitors after about ten minutes of play. Smith put them two up shortly afterwards from a corner by Featherstone. Gemmel reduced the lead when he got Belleville's first counter. Two more goals were scored by the Peterborough squad before the halftime whistle. These came from Featherstone and Holroyd, and the teams changed over with the score at Peterborough four, Belleville one.

The local boys came into their own in the second period when Gemmel reduced the lead. However Holroyd put the visitors farther ahead with a brilliant shot from the penalty line. Alec Gemmel netted two more in quick succession to make his tally for match four after about twenty minutes of the second half. The other goal of the match was scored by Holroyd from a scramble in front of the Belleville mouth with about two minutes of play remaining.

Belleville United: — Hughes, Dale, Findlay, Williamson, Carter, Jones, Alexander, Ellis, A. Gemmel, Moody, Cathcart. Subs, J. Gemmel, Terry.

Jersey Giants Playing Best Ball in League

(By The Associated Press)

International League observers are tabbing manager Joe Becker's Jersey City Giants as the dark-horse team in the loop's playoffs.

Despite player raids by the parent New York Giants, the Little Giants have been tough all season, and currently are playing the best ball in the circuit.

The Giants posted their sixth straight victory last night as lefty Roger Bowman turned back Springfield Cubs 8-2 on three hits for his 16th victory. The Giants pounded out 13 hits, including a home run by Dutch Mele.

By winning the fourth place Giants crept to within one game of the third-place Baltimore Orioles, who divided a doubleheader with Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs took the opener 3-1, but the Orioles grabbed the nightcap 4-3.

Montreal's second-place Royals handed the pennant-winning Rochester Red Wings their third straight setback 10-3.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons split a doubleheader. The Bisons won the opener 4-3 in 10 innings but the Leafs took the nightcap 3-1.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 6 — (AP) — There's nothing better than waivers to help a wavering ball club, as New York Yankees have shown again by acquiring Johnny Hopp from Pittsburgh Pirates . . . No doubt Hopp, who still can do a good job at first or in the outfield despite his 34 years, will be of considerable help to New York in its stretch drive . . . But a lot of fans still think it isn't quite cricket for a club in one league to come to the aid of a member of a rival circuit at such a spot, nor for the others to give their tacit approval by waiving a player out of the league . . . but who ever said baseball was cricket? . . . There was quite a hoop-te-doo, you remember, when the Yanks managed to sell Hank Borowy to the Cubs for $100,000 in 1945 and Hank promptly pitched Chicago to a pennant . . . Of course, Hopp isn't a first - line pitcher like Borowy was five years ago. Neither is Johnny Mize whom the Yankees bought from the Giants last season. But they are guys who can help . . .

HE WAS FINED

Wolverhampton England, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —Patrick MacGeehan, 40, has a temper as Irish as his name. A dog bit him Saturday night and he got so mad he couldn't resist taking a running kick at a policeman.

At least that was Pat's excuse in court yesterday. He was fined $8 for assault.

Art Larsen New Tennis Champion

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 6 (AP) —They say you're wasting your time trying to beat another guy at his specialty, but that's just what Art Larsen, the new United States amateur tennis champion, did.

The lean San Franciscan, who won the title yesterday by defeating Herb Flam of Beverley Hills, Calif., 6-3, 4-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 in the final, outran, outlasted and outfought Flam to become the first left-handed ruler since Johnny Doeg in 1930.

There wasn't supposed to be a man in tennis who could beat Flam into the dirt. But Larsen did—and to make it more emphatic, he came from behind to turn the trick. When Herbie played at baseline, so did Larsen. If Herbie made a sensational return, Larsen made sure his was stupendous. That's how it went.

Brown Bomber Beginning to Look Like Old Self

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Louis looked more like the old Brown Bomber yesterday as he gave four sparring partners a drubbing in a four-round workout.

Weighing 218 pounds and in fine fettle, Louis made his four sparmates earn their money.

Trainer Mannie Seamon beamed after the workout.

"Joe looks more like himself again," he said.

Louis is preparing for his title bout with N.B.A. heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium Sept. 27.

He's training at Pompton Lakes, N.J.

At South Fallsburg, N.Y., Charles took things easy in the ring yesterday but put in plenty of work outside it. He did six miles of roadwork in the morning and boxed a couple of rounds with Lloyd Gibson in the afternoon.

Milt Schmidt, veteran centre and captain, became the first member of Boston Bruins to sign a 1950-51 National League contract Tuesday.

Schmidt, who is spending the off-season as a golf professional in nearby Lynnfield, came to terms while visiting general manager Art Ross in the club's downtown offices.

Ross left last night for Barrie, Ont., where the Bruins have 40 amateur prospects training under the supervision of scouts Leighton Hap Emms and Hal Cotton.

In Montreal, Elmer Lach, veteran centre of the Canadiens, signed his 1950-51 contract, terms of which were not disclosed. He was the first Canadian to sign.

The United States Tuesday won its fifth Curtis cup trophy over the British Isles with a 7½-to-1½ victory in the Women's International golf team matches at Buffalo, N.Y.

The British invaders staged a valiant, late afternoon rally but it was on heart alone. The American lead in all but one of the day's singles matches was too great to overcome.

Only Frances (Bunty) Stephens last year's British women's champion, was able to salvage anything from the disaster. She came from behind with two beautiful putts on the 35th and 36th holes to draw with Mrs. A. Porter of Westmont, N.J., the current U.S. ti lttsl. hi current U.S. titlist.

Coach Frank Tindall worked out 27 hopefuls Tuesday for the 1950 Queen's University grid squad. He found many of last year's regulars absent.

Among those returning was captain Jim Charters of Hamilton who said he was optimistic about the season. The Gaels play their first game a week from Saturday, an exhibition tilt with Toronto Balmy Beach.

Two speedy halfbacks, Winnipeg's Tom Casey and Royal Copeland of Calgary, are locked in a three-way western football scoring leadership tie with Morris Bailey, lanky Edmonton pass-catching end. Each has registered 15 points on three touchdowns.

The official statistics, released in Regina by Bob Gillies, secretary of the western interprovincial football union, cover the first seven games of the season.

One point behind the leaders is Annis Stukus, place-kicking, playing coach of the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos. Stukus has booted two field goals and eight converts for 14 points.

Yukon Eric, the Alaskan Rock, who can bounce bulldozers off his elephantine torso without dislocating or disturbing his chest marcel, meets the Hooded Horror or the Masked Marvel come Friday night at Memorial Arena. If the Yuke can discombobolate the "Hood" he will be the leading character at a public unveiling for with defeat the "Mask" must shed his facial disguise. Should be a neat and gaudy tilt. Leering Lee of the Henning cult meets flashy Pat Flanagan with Jack Moore tangling with Ray Gunkel, a 'collitch' rassler in the opener.

Students returning to Assumption College in Windsor have found one big change in the sports scene. For the first time in nearly a half-century, with the exception of war years, the college will not be represented by a Varsity football team this fall.

Financial difficulties were the chief reason given by Very Rev. J. H. O'Loane, Assumption College president, for dropping football with outside teams.

SNAKE BATTLES SUCKER

Lindsay, Ont., Sept. 5 (CP) — Lands Department officials are willing to swear to this fish story.

A game warden, investigating a beaver dam near here, heard a wild threshing about in the cattails below the dam. He found a water snake wrestling with an eight-inch sucker over the luncheon menu — the sucker to be the main course.

The snake had a firm hold on the fish's snout and finally managed to drag it ashore where it took five minutes to swallow its victim.

Four Newcomers Top Scorers In Big Four

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP)—The individual scoring statistics compiled by The Canadian Press have an unfamiliar look at this early stage of the football season

Four newcomers to Canadian football—imports from the United States—head the Big Four, in which each team has played two games. And in the Ontario Rugby Football Union where only one game has been played, the leader comes from the intercollegiate loop.

Headman in the Big Four is Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who played last season with the professional Cleveland Browns.

Another Hamilton player — Bill Gregus of Wake Forest College, N.Y.—is in a second-place tie with Ulysses Curtis of Toronto Argonauts. Nick Scollard of the Alouettes ranks fourth with nine points.

Johnny Chorostecki, a Toronto Varsity product, scored 23 points in one game for Sarnia Imperials to head the O.R.F.U.

U.S. Women Golfers Cinch Curtis Trophy

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 6 (AP) — United States women golfers still are superior to their British cousins because they hit the ball farther.

Power was the deciding factor as the Americans clinched the Curtis Cup by turning back Britain's best, 7 1-2 to 1 1-2 in the two-day International competition which ended yesterday.

The British girls are as accurate as American girls but they use the old-fashioned straight left arm. They usually found themselves short of American lassies, employing the powerful whiplash lick.

The invaders sometimes were left 50 yards in arrears off the trees.

It was the fifth U.S. victory in six matches since the series started in 1932. The best Britain has been able to manage was a tie in 1936. There were no matches between 1938 and 1947.

Peterborough Player High Scorer in Loop

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) —Ara Dugan, speedy Peterborough rover, is the top scorer for 1950 in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior circuit.

League statistics released last night show Dugan scored 55 goals and 69 assists for a total of 124 points, 24 more than Brampton's Archie Browning who had 57 goals and 43 assists.

Bob Thorpe of Peterborough had 56-40—96 and Don Ashbee of Peterborough had 46-42.

Ownen Sound's Russ Slater, however, led in goals scored with 65. His 18 assists put him fifth in the standings with 83 points.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A penalty doubler expects to defeat the contract. Ordinarily, his double expects to defeat the contract two tricks. This leaves a margin of one trick that may go sour for any reason.

In expert play, a penalty doubler does not always wait for a cinch. But it is based on information he has had from partner or the information he has given his partner.

This given or received information or both determines the opening lead. Doubler depends on it. His partner knows the defeat depends on it. The leader conducts himself accordingly.

If only the leader has bid a suit, he leads it. If only doubler has bid a suit, leader starts with that suit. If each has bid a suit, the lead may be either suit, depending on leader's holding.

Thus, when each has bid a suit, partner of doubler must decide which of the two suits to lead first. How does he decide this? By the type of holdings he has in each of the suits.

If his own suit lacks a sequence at the top, his preference should be to lead doubler's suit first. The tenace he holds in his own suit will be more valuable if led up to.

South became the declarer at three no-trump after west had bid spades and east had bid hearts. East doubled three no-trump. Opening lead by west is the heart king from this hand:

♠A J 6 4
♥K 6
♦6 4 3
♣8 5 3 2

If west had a sequence in spades he would lead his own suit. From the holding he has, however, it is better for the spade lead to come from east. His partner knows this from the lead.

Rolled down to their inferences, lead rules are what the best common sense would devise. They are what non-rulers would call card sense. As long as it makes sense, who cares what you call it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 6 (AP)—Alfred Hitchcock, the director who has called actors anything from children to cattle, once remarked that Walt Disney has the ideal relationship with his stars: He can erase them if they get out of line.

When I told Disney this, he replied: "We have trouble with our actors, too."

For instance, there is Mickey Mouse. The famed rodent has been brought back more times than Sarah Bernhardt. Several times Micckey has faded and his sentimental creator has revived him in a new vehicle.

"The trouble is," Disney explained, "that Mickey isn't funny himself. He has to be surrounded with comic situations. That takes a lot of trouble."

Minnie Mouse has suffered an eclipse for the same reason. "There's no action connected with Minnie," the cartoon man said, "and we have given up the subtle stuff.

"The duck (Donald) and the dog (Pluto) are funnier characters in themselves, but even they can get out of line. We get so busy with what we're doing that we lose perspective. We have to stop and see what is happening to the characters."

Fresh Faces

Disney has taken on a new set of actors who are even more unmanagable than his film veterans. He has started a series which he calls "True-Life Adventures," starring the wild life of North America.

The first of the series was called "Seal Island" and it chronicled the life of seals on an Aleutian Island. It won an academy award. The second is "Beaver Valley," which is currently winning much praise throughout the country.

Attractions Hold Special Interest For Farmers

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) — City slickers had to take a back seat to their cousins from the country at the Canadian National Exhibition today.

It was Agriculture Day with some of the day's major attractions holding a special interest for farmers.

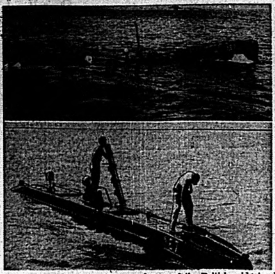
For farmers the Ex offered a parade of some of the finest livestock in Eastern Canada with champions in the various classes of the C.N.E. livestock show being led around the show ring.

Nine of Canada's junior horse judges converged on the Exhibition grounds to compete in the fair's horse show. Finalists from among 30 embryo judges who competed recently in an elimination series, the nine —five of them women—may become the future judges of Canada's premier horse shows. The age limit is 30.

The competitions for the young judges will continue tomorrow and Friday. They will enter the show ring to judge six breeds of horses still to be chosen in the contest sponsored jointly by the Canadian Horse Shows Association and the C.N.E.

The junior judges' competitions, first inaugurated in 1946, are designed to uncover young men and women to augment the rapidly decreasing number of horse show judges in Canada. Contestants placing first, second and third will be automatically listed as recognized C.H.S.A. judges.

DEMONSTRATE BRITISH SUB IN U.S.



These are the first pictures released of the British midget submarine, XE-7, made during dives in Chesapeake Bay, Va., where she is completing two months of operations with vessels of the U.S. Atlantic fleet. The XE-7 carries no torpedoes and no deck gun. Its primary purpose is to attack enemy harbors. The 50-foot submarine carries a crew of four and is armed with mines carried outside the hull. — Central Press Canadian.

Rome Shaken By Three Tremors

Rome, Sept. 6 — (Reuters) — Three earth tremors woke thousands of Romans shortly before dawn Tuesday.

The tremors occurred in the space of six minutes, each lasting five or six seconds.

No damage was reported.

Similar tremors were reported from Rieti, Spoleto and Perugia, lying in a straight line reaching more than 100 miles north of Rome.

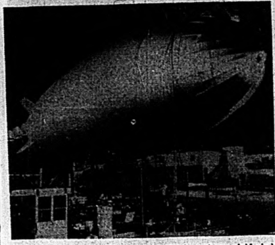
JAP SHIP ARRIVES

Seattle, Sept. 6 (AP) — The first Japanese commercial ship to come to the United States since Pearl Harbor arrived here yesterday. The Kiyokawa Maru was greeted by city, civic and Japanese community representatives. The ship carried no cargo on its eastward voyage but will carry wheat on the return trip to Kobe.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Harlan, Ky., Sept. 5 (AP) — Sheriff C. C. Ball said two men were charged with murder after Marion H. Elsea, 66-year-old retired coal miner, died of burns in a hospital yesterday. The sheriff said Sam Blair and Jack Doan were accused of beating Elsea and then saturating his clothes with gasoline and setting him afire. Ball said he did not know the cause of the trouble.

BUILT FOR SUBMARINE DETECTION



The U.S. navy's new N-type blimp, the largest non-rigid airship ever built, is nearing completion at Akron, Ohio. The airship is designed for anti-submarine warfare and is capable of carrying more anti-submarine devices and fly farther and longer without refueling than the K-type blimp of World War II. The net shrouding is used to hold down the helium-filled envelope while control car and other fixtures are attached. — Central Press Canadian.

Possibility of General Election In Great Britain Before Year's End

By E. S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 6 (CP)—Speculation has cropped up again about the possibility of a general election in Britain before the end of the year.

Latest reports are that secret preparedness instructions have been issued to Labor Party election agents and that Conservative Party organizers have been told to be all set for an appeal to the country in November.

These reports, however, have been bluntly brushed aside by government sources as "unadulterated nonsense, based on wistful thinking."

The government, these sources say, must obviously be prepared at all times for such an eventuality but they deny that election orders have gone out.

Political observers close to the government are inclined to agree with this view. With the even balance of strength in the House of Commons, they admit that a snap division might conceivably sink the government during the approaching special session, or later. But as long as the government remains in the driver's seat the date of the next election will be deferred until a favorable time of its own choice.

Meet Next Tuesday

Meanwhile, cabinet ministers have been in almost-daily consultation in preparation for the meeting of parliament next Tuesday. Details relating to far-reaching departmental commitments under the country's mammoth rearmament bill, have been their main concern.

The expenditure of £1,135,000,000 annually on defence for the next three years, has involved a sudden switch-over and the transition has inevitably posed a crop of problems.

The major headache confronting the government is how to defeat the spectre of inflation. And behind that bogey lies the problem of how to keep wages pegged in the face of rising living costs.

Resolutions before the Trades Union Congress meeting now at Brighton, show that rising prices are causing increasing concern among the affiliated unions. There is a growing agitation for lifting of the government's wage restraints, spurred by the recent pay boosts for the armed forces. Warnings of similar demands have been given in an agenda drawn up for the annual conference of the Labor Party in Margate next month.

The impact of the new rearmament program on industry has already aroused fears that inflation is on the way. Warnings have come from financial authorities that the country is on the verge of a sharp rise in prices on many necessities with the external pressure on cost of raw materials steadily growing.

The general view is that the rearmament program not only has limited possibilities of an early wage hike, but will also reduce the scope of further social benefits for the next three years at least.

TRAFFIC INCREASED

Sarnia, Sept. 6 — (CP)—More than 24,700 automobiles crossed the international span of the Blue Water Bridge here over the Labor Day weekend. The traffic represents a 10 percent increase over the 22,500 cars that passed over the bridge during the corresponding four-day period in 1949.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in his private chair and ma said, William, I bet you dont know what a funambulist is?

I bet you win, pop said.

Meening he didn't, and ma said, I knew you wouldn't.

I'm glad not to disappoint you, ppo said, and ma said, You couldn't possibly guess, even if you racked your branes to ruin. But try to guess anyway, William, just to prove I'm rite, she said.

Well, let's see, funambulist funambulist, pop said. It sounds as if it mite be a person having fun, he said, and ma said, Well, it mite be, unless the person in question happened to brake his [illegible] William, but I bet you still cant guess. So I'll tell you. A funambulist is a titerope walker. And you cant blame me for not having known it, she said.

If you dont blame me I wont blame you, pop said, and ma said, You can imagine how I felt when the master of ceremonies on the Do or Die program put it up to me as the 64 doller Do or Die question after I'd successfully told him that a heron is a berd and not a fish, and that perforate means to cut holes through. I'm sure nobody would know what a funambulist is except the man that put it in the dictionerry, and I've got a good mind to write a complaining letter ~~of~~ protest, she said.

You didn't tell me you were on the Do or Die program, pop said, and ma said, Oh, I wasn't actually at the studio. I was mentally [illegible] home, and really, William, I mean really, when he spoiled my record with that funambulist question I felt like shutting the station off in his face.

[illegible] so if you take the thing to court I'll be glad to be your witness and the case will go down in history as the famous ghost trial of 1950, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

48 Persons Die Violently Over Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

Forty-eight persons died violently during the Labor Day weekend in Eastern Canada.

Traffic mishaps claimed 38 lives, six persons were drowned and the remainder were killed in fire and falls, a Canadian Press survey shows.

In Ontario, where 25 persons died, traffic accidents claimed 17, including five killed in a train-car collision. Quebec had ten traffic deaths and four drownings. Two persons were killed while motoring in New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia had two traffic deaths and a drowning.

In Nova Scotia, Neil MacIntyre, 21, of Glace Bay and Clarence Avery, 18, of New Waterford, were killed by automobiles. James Lafosse, 32, of Francois, Nfld., was drowned.

Hiram Brewer, 70, of Everett, N.B., and Beatrice Butler, 35, died under car wheels in New Brunswick.

The greatest loss of life occurred Sunday morning when Delbert Peters, 54, His wife, Mary, 38, and their three children, Patsy, 9; Mary Ann, 6, and Harry, 4, were killed as an engine collided with their truck at Uno Park, six miles north of New Liskeard, Ontario.

Three unidentified persons died in the collision of a car and a truck near Barrie late Monday night.

Other Ontario traffic deaths were: Galvester Field, 45, Detroit; Robert Collins, 24, Detroit; Orval Z. Clark, 21, Ottawa; Mauno Maki, 46, and William Niemi, 17, Port Arthur; Ronald McLeod, 21, Sault Ste. Marie; Mrs. Winnifred Fox, 73, Toronto; Charles Booth, 26, Ajax; Adama Wahl, 80, Kitchener; W. A. Scarrow, Wiarton, and Henry Lenncheck, 62, Kitchener, Ont.

Drowned was Shirley Phillips, 3, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Phillips, of Belleville.

Other Ontario deaths: Chris Fanholm, 30, Picton, in a fall from a hayloft; John Diakum, 46, in a pressure-tank explosion in Brockville; Mrs. Alice Bray, 37, Detroit, in a jump from a burning building; Bolduc Laurin, 15, Val Gagne, electrocuted by a high-tension wire; John Martin, 5, Tweed, burned in his bed.

Killed in traffic accidents in Quebec were: Gaeton Nadon, 2; Roger Provencher, 21, Princeville; Alphonse Lambert, 62, St. Eugene de Grantham; Terry McGaghren, 18 months, South Porcupine, Ont.; Omer Beaudin, 34, St. Simon de Drummond; Rene Parenteau, 6, St. Louis de France; Ron Belleavance, 23, and Maurice Dumont, Chicoutimi; , Duncan Mitchell, 32, Montreal; Jean Serge Roy, Joliette.

Drowned were: Raoul Lavoie, 26, and Fernand Tremblay, 17, Chicoutimi; Eddie Levesque, 32, Montreal and an unidenified man.

Other Quebec deaths: Rudolphe Potvin, 54, Montreal, a fall; Omer Joanette, 36, Val Tetreau, in a house fire; Jean Baptisse Chasse, 74, St. Chardes, run over by a train.

Bathing Beauty Contest Decided In 58-Degree Temp.

Guelph, Ont., Sept. 6 (CP) — In a chilly 58-degree temperature girls in bathing suits paraded outdoors Monday night at the Miss Western Ontario Beauty contest.

Ann Petro, 18, of Toronto, won the title and her 16-year-old sister, Irene, placed third. Dorothy Singular of Guelph was second.

The contest, sponsored by the Canadian Legion, was viewed by more than 700 persons — most of whom were wrapped in rugs.

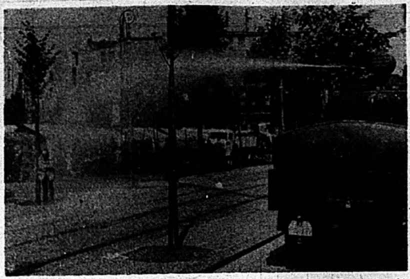
HOSE DISPERSES REDS — ALL, THAT IS, BUT ONE



One lone Berliner is shown standing under the spray of the water-thrower that was brought into use by West Berlin police to break up a demonstration by German communists who attempted to storm the West sector city hall. The communists preceded their demonstration with the distribution of handbills which said "Go home." They also carried signs reading "Korea for the Koreans . . . Germany for the Germans." With the exception of this lone man, who seemingly is enjoying his street-side shower, the water-thrower effectively broke up the demonstration by the 600 reds. — Central Press Canadian.

$500,000 Fire Loss in Two Storage Buildings

Shippegan, N. B., Sept. 6 (CP) — Damage estimated at approximately $500,000 occurred in this northeastern New Brunswick fishing community Monday when flames destroyed two buildings at the plant of the Sea Land Food Corporation of Canada, Ltd. Earlier, loss estimates ranged up to $1,000,000.

The fire started at 6:30 a. m. and raged for six hours before being brought under control. No one was injured.

It was a Labor Day disaster for this section of the province. Some 250 men were thrown out of work.

The first estimate of a $1,000,000 loss came from the company president, Nathan Smofsky. Later, after a more thorough survey was possible, the plant manager, Aubrey Smofsky, estimated the loss roughly at $500,000.

Believed to have started from an explosion in an engine room, the fire destroyed a two-storey wooden cold storage building filled with frozen sea foods.

Also lost was the largest of five packing sheds. Although this one-storey structure had been finished inside and out with asphalt, the flames penetrated into the interior. More than 250,000 pounds of cod awaiting processing were destroyed.

LEFT 164 SURVIVORS

Pay Royal Visit To Australia and N. Zealand in '52

London, Sept. 6 — (Reuters)— The King and Queen will visit Australia and New Zealand in 1952, it was learned Tuesday.

Princess Margaret may accompany her parents if other engagements permit, it was understood.

The Royal visit probably will extend from January to July. This would be as long as the one planned for 1949 when the visit was cancelled because of the King's illness.

Details of the itinerary have yet to be worked out.

It was first announced in March, 1948, that the King and Queen and Princess Margaret would visit Australia and New Zealand in the early part of 1949.

November 23, 1948, it was announced from Buckingham Palace that because of illness the tour had been indefinitely postponed.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman said Tuesday that "the King's medical advisers now consider him to be fully restored to health, or he would not be able to contemplate the trip."

Prime Minister Sidney Holland of New Zealand announced in Wellington that he had been asked to prepare a preliminary itinerary.

The King's health will be taken into consideration and a less-strenuous tour mapped out for him than that planned for 1949.

Canada's Defence Plans Will Have 'Strong Impact'

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Canada's stepped-up defence program is going to make a "strong impact" on the country's economy, Health Minister Martin said Tuesday.

However, the minister said the impact would not necessarily be immediate and would probably be far different from that made by the Second World War.

The minister predicted tax increases, also, in an address prepared for delivery at the Canadian National Exhibition.

"It would be foolish," he said, "to think that we in Canada can take this new defence program in our stride, without any interference, or with little interference, in our comfortable peacetime existence.

"This is not going to be something that will break the camel's back, but it will be something that will require a considerable readjustment of the load already on that back, and will also add to that load."

Security Drive Begun at Ports Of Great Britain

London, Sept. 6 — (Reuters)— Security precautions at British ports are being increased, a survey showed.

The port of London, world's largest harbor with its 69 miles of river and 44 miles of deep-water docks, is conducting a big security drive.

A closer check is being made daily on dock passes carried by visitors, passengers, seamen and dock workers, port officials said.

At Southampton, the Cunard White Star Company has banned visits to the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary.

The Transport Ministry has warned every major port in the country to check its security arrangements and see that they are "sufficient."

Recent alleged sabotage attempts on British naval vessels and the outbreak of fighting in Korea are believed to be among the causes of the security tightening-up.

MAY FORM POOL

Paris, Sept. 6 (AP). — The French Cabinet has decided to investigate the possibilities of forming a European pool of farm products. Albert Gazier information minister, said yesterday the study would be aimed at "organizing the principal European farm markets within the framework of the policy of building a United Europe."

STIRLING

Stirling — Announcement has been made by Principal J. L. Good of Stirling High School that Grant Richardson, Stirling, is the winner of the Hon. J. R. Cooke Scholarship value $50.00 for the local school. This award goes to the pupil with the highest standing in eight papers in the Upper School examinations.

Mr. Ambrose Kliner of Steubenville, Ohio, hooked a 25-pound muskie, measuring 48 inches in length, while fishing in the Trent River near Glen Ross on Wednesday afternoon last. Mr. Kliner is one of a party spending his vacation at Bona Vista Camp on the Trent.

A real estate deal of interest was completed recently when Mrs. W. J. Whitty disposed of her property on Front St. to John Johnston of Toronto. Mrs. Whitty has purchased a home in Peterborough and expects to move soon.

Mr. and Mrs Earl Fox were high for two wins with a score of 39 plus 10 at the mixed doubles tournament in Campbellford last Wednesday. Miss Grace Carleton and Dr. E. A. Carleton also attended from the local club.

Messrs A. Brooks, A. Livingstone, F. R Mallory and W. T. Elliott attended the General Motors Gold Cup Tournament in Oshawa last Wednesday.

Two rinks of Stirling bowlers participated in the Belleville "Triples" Tournament on Saturday. Those attending were Bob Cooke, Rev. A. . Anderson and Earl Fox, and E. D. Ketcheson, A. Livingstone and F. R. Mallory.

Miss Alice O'Connell of Toronto spent her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. O'Donnell.

Mrs. Robert Luery and son were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Huycke, Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins and family, spent last week holidaying at Sauble Beach on Georgian Bay.

Mr. John Demorest, of Murray, spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Sid Demorest.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wells have returned home after spending two weeks at Papineau Lake.

Mrs. Pete Pomeroy, and family, of Trenton, spent a week with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cooke.

NO ONE INJURED

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 6 (AP) —An alert pilot flopped a DC-3 Braniff Airlines plane into a belly landing yesterday when one engine conked out 40 feet above the ground. Not a person was hurt. The Dallas-bound plane, carrying 11 passengers and a crew of three, was taking off when the right engine failed. Pilot E. D. Matthews of Dallas landed rather than try to circle the field on one engine.

1,039 BABIES IN SHOW

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — There were 1,039 babies under 18 months old entered in the annual baby show at the Canadian National Exhibition Monday. After 12 nurses did the preliminary weighing and measuring, 18 doctors finally picked Robert William Charles Calladine, eight months, as the best baby in the show. His father, George Calladine, is a salesman in suburban Mimico.

NOT AS MUCH SUN.

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — A Transport Department meteorologist has confirmed suspicions that it wasn't much of a summer. He says Toronto had 127 less hours of sunshine in June, July and August than in the same three months of 1949.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

The other three were not listening to Shayne and Lucy. Dustin thrust his hands deep in the pockets of his slacks and teetered back and forth with his narrowed gaze on Celia's face. "Like it, honey?"

"I love it," she breathed ecstatically. "But I'd rather you didn't pay too much for something I'm going to wear. I think...don't they have synthetic rubies that are just as pretty as the real ones?" she asked the dealer timidly.

Voorland nodded and carefully replaced the bracelet in its bed of blue velvet. He didn't seem disappointed at the prospect of losing a sale, but instead appeared almost relieved at the turn the discussion was taking.

"Manufactured rubies are now called synthetic or scientific gems," he told her. "The process is quite well established and they are being manufactured in large quantities. I have a particularly fine stock on hand and will be glad to..."

"Wait a minute," said Dustin sharply. "How do the synthetic ones differ from the real?"

"Hardly at all," Voorland assured him. "Indeed, the artificial product is actually purer chemically than the natural stone. Specific gravity is practically the same, and the indices of refraction and birefringence show striking agreement."

"Then how does anyone know whether a ruby is real or artificial?" demanded Dustin.

"Most people don't," Voorland told him smilingly. "Although careful examination by an expert will generally reveal minute differences. The method of manufacture for instance, causes the synthetic stones to split parallel to the long axis which throws the vertical crystallographic axis in the plane of splitting. Hence it is difficult to orient them so as to give the best color. Also every synthetic stone shows traces of dichroism when examined through the table. Natural stones are properly oriented, and thus not dichoric."

"But that's all stuff for experts" Dustin protested. "The average person won't go around examining my wife's rubies with a magnifying glass."

"True enough," agreed Voorland. "And that is one of the reasons why this bracelet I have just showed you is absolutely unique." He pressed the top of the leather case down gently to hide the jewels from view.

"Why " asked Shayne who had been listening with interest. "Because the synthetic stones don't show up with cracks like those you're so proud of?"

Mr. Voorland popped another stick of gum in his mouth and smiled tolerantly at the detective. "I know you mean that to be funny, Mike, but the truth is, you've hit the nail on the head. Asterism is an accident or phenomenon which occurs only in natural stones and then very rarely. Authorities even disagree on what causes those rays of converging light. Some believe the effect due to inclusions, or to a lattice-like structure within the mineral. Others hold that there are minute tubular cavities within the stone. No one actually knows."

"Do you mean no one has ever cut one open to find out?" Shayne asked incredulously.

"Cut open an Asteria? Would you cut your child open to find out what make its heart beat?"

"If I follow you," said Dustin slowly, "you claim that anyone who sees this bracelet will know the stones are genuine just because they have that star inside them?"

"Anyone who knows anything at all about precious stones," Voorland assured him. He picked up the closed jewel case carefully "It is one absolute test. If you'll pardon me a moment I'll show you what I have in synthetic stones and..."

"Not so fast," Dustin said quietly. "A man would think you didn't want to sell that bracelet."

Voorland halted a few steps from him. He hesitated a moment sighed and returned to replace the leather case on the table. "I'm afraid that for a moment I allowed myself to hope.."he confessed ruefully.

Shayne laughed and slapped him on the shoulder. "I always wondered how you managed to stay in business. Like Omar, you don't know what on earth to buy one half so precious as the stuff you sell."

"There's a great deal of truth in that quatrain," said Walter Voorland sadly. He turned his attention to Dustin who had reopened the case and was seated beside his wife fitting the linked bracelet over her slim wrist.

The bracelet fitted perfectly, and when her husband closed the safety clasp Celia lifted her arm and turned it slowly to strike crimson flashes of reflected fire from the red stones.

Mark Dustin nodded and said, "I think it looks right nice, Ceil. Good enough for your second wedding anniversary?"

"Oh Mark!" She flung her arms around his neck and sobbed happily. Shayne felt Lucy's fingers tighten on his arm. He looked down at her and was surprised to see two tears rolling down her cheeks as she gazed at the embracing couple.

He got out his handkerchief and wiped her face and asked, "What the devil are you crying about?"

She said "They're so darned sweet. And after being married two whole years."

Dustin untangled himself from his wife's arms and told Voorland cheerfully, "She seems to like the gadget so I guess that settles it. How much?"

"A hundred and eighty thousand dollars," said Mr. Voorland, and munched on his wad of gum contentedly.

Mark Dustin sat very still and wrinkled his sun-bronzed forehead. " I guess I don't hear very well."

Mr. Voorland appeared to be enjoying himself completely. He repeated. "One hundred and eighty thousand dollars is the price of the bracelet. Plus tax of course."

"Now I know star rubies wouldn't look good on you," Shayne said to Lucy with a broad grin.

Celia Dustin's face had gone white. She murmured, "That's ridiculous Mark. That's a fortune." She began nervously picking at the safety catch on the bracelet about her wrist.

He said "Maybe it isn't ridiculous, honey. Let's don't go off halfcocked." He asked Voorland, "Is that an asking price or a selling price?"

Voorland seated himself in his favorite attitude with both hands on his knees. "It is a selling price ...as of today. I assure you that if the gem market were not at low ebb the price would be above two hundred thousand."

"Six stones?" asked Dustin suspiciously. "The largest one eight carats?"

"Eight and a quarter," Voorland corrected him.

"But diamonds aren't worth..."

"Diamonds," said Voorland with a smile, "are worth only what the buyer will pay for them. Rubies are appraised exactly the same way. An eight-carat diamond is not at all unusual. An eight-carat star ruby is an act of God. You know something about prices, Mike. Tell Mr. Dustin I'm not out of line."

"I don't know." Shayne scowled "I'm not stooging to help you make a sale. A hundred and eighty grand took my breath away just as it did his. But I don't know" His scowl deepened "I remember something Randolph the insurance appraiser, once told me about rubies. That a perfect four-carat rub was worth at least four times as much as a diamond of the same size."

"And he wasn't talking about a star ruby either, Mike. just a good pigeon's-blood gem. You don't have to make up your mind at once, Mr. Dustin. If you wish to take a little time to think it over..."

Dustin drew in a long breath. "Today is our anniversary. Not tomorrow or next week I'll tell you, Shayne mention of an insurance appraiser gives me an idea. You realize I'm not questioning your honesty, Voorland but I know nothing about such things and..."

"I understand perfectly, Mr. Dustin. You'd like to request a disinterested appraisal before making up your mind."

DREW CHARGES

4. A Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion in the government defeated 147 to 59 to wind up the Throne Speech debate.

Mr. Drew took the floor again after Mr. Claxton once again rejected calls for a House committee on defence. The minister said opposition members want to decide defence policy when that is the responsibility of the cabinet alone. Mr. Claxton said a House committee might be all right for the External Affairs Department —there is one—but the Defence Department handled matters of such secrecy that it would be a difficult situation.

Mr. Claxton said the amount of operations will largely determine Canada's Korean costs this year, but the bill for the three destroyers in Korean waters, for air transport aid for the army's special force will be at least $40,000,000 to $50,000,000. This was part of the $142,000,000 being sought in cash for the defence department.

Canada, all told, was spending $50 a head on defence and could hold her head high. Further, Parliament got more information than any other comparable legislature in the western democracies.

Mr. Drew said the House is not getting any real defence information at a time when reserve training is inadequate, the reserves in poor shape; when the regular airborne brigade is inadequately prepared even to defend Canada; when there are no first line aircraft available; when $1,500,000,000 had been spent on defence since 1945 with little to show for it.

Not to Make Decisions

A House Defence Committee would not make policy decisions. It would give members background information and allow experienced veterans to make valuable recommendations.

But since the government refused it and used secrecy as one reason, he wanted a secret session. It was obvious that the Russians knew more about Canadian aircraft, guns, vehicles and other secrets than opposition members. They had their own means of access to that information. Opposition members didn't and for that reason were prevented from playing their full part in a movement that involved nothing less than national survival.

Mr. Abbott, in placing the unprecedented program before the House in the form of a four-fold resolution, said he is not planning on a budget deficit this year "despite the large increase in defence expenditures."

Seeks Tax Changes

This statement came after he had told a questioner at House opening that he will seek tax changes at this session and amid indications that he will introduce a "baby" budget shortly, possibly today or tomorrow.

Mr. Abbott's appropriation bill asks $142,000,000 for the three forces in cash this year; $300,000,000 to help arm Europe; $7,300,000 for defence research and the R. C. M. P.; and authority to spend another $409,000,000 in future years on defence, that is to sign contracts now for that amount.

He said much of the arms for Europe would go free and possibly $100,000,000 of that sum would be spent this fiscal year. Mr. Claxton later said the total covers training facilities here, which might be expanded and might include the transfer of arms Canada now has in stores from the recent war.

Won't be Final Figure

Mr. Abbott made it clear that the $300.000,000 won't be the final figure and said even more than that might well be spent in the next 18 months. Details had not been completed.

Mr. Abbott said Canada's defence costs are not a weight peculiar to her alone, and he promised further comments on the economic situation later.

"We can cope with them one way or another while maintaining a good standard of living and adding to our productive capital. However, we cannot escape the real costs involved and we cannot possibly afford in real terms as high standards as living and in business expansion as we had hoped to achieve.

"We must all revise our plans in considerable measure. The government is at present reviewing its plans and programs in all fields."

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, quickly offered support for the new appropriations and urged the government to revive the wartime excess profits tax and to nationalize the munitions industry to prevent profiteering. He wanted controls over living costs as well as Canadian aid for under-developed countries.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, offered support too and predicted that the day of the $1,000,000,000-a-year defence budget is near at hand. He urged repeal of taxes discouraging production. He thought a defence committee would help the House in considering defence questions.

Fresh Communist Attacks at Taegu Repulsed by Allies

41 Enemy Tanks Put Out Of Action by Air Force

Tokyo, Sept. 7—(AP)— Fresh communist attacks north of Taegu were rolled back by United Nations troops today. The western forces were braced for a major communist blow at the important base city in the centre of the front.

Most of the 84 Russian-made tanks the north Korenas threw into battle yesterday were destroyed or damaged.

Allied aircraft were credited with destroying 19 enemy tanks and damaging 22 more in a record 625 sorties. Seventeen others had been knocked out Wednesday.

Two Thrusts Stopped

Two red thrusts against Taegu were stopped. One lunge was halted seven miles north of the rail and supply centre along the Kumhwa highway by United States troops. The other was forced back east of Yongchon, road junction 20 miles east of Taegu.

Communist commanders recklessly rushed great truck columns carrying men and suplies toward this major front.

In the southwest, an attack on the approach to Pusan, prime allied harbor in the southeast, was beaten back

Advances were made by American troops toward the Naktong River in their central front offensive west of Yongsan, 32 miles south of Taegu.

The tense challenge of the last two days, when the reds poured through the broken allied east wall, was eased at least momentarily.

A spokesman for Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said the Allies were holding firm on all fronts.

Red Casualties Mount

Red casualties were estimated to have reached 20,000 men killed and wounded during the last week of ground fighting. This was out of a total of 150,000 reds who took part in the all - out drive.

Pohang, the blasted and burned second most important east coast port, remained in communist hands. But the Allied airfield, six miles southeast of the city, was under American control.

At dawn Thursday the North Korean southwestern force hopped off in an attack on the U. S. 25th Division west of Masan, port city 27 miles west of Pusan on the south coast.

The attack was preceded by an intense artillery bombardment, the most severe the oft - tried American division has undergone.

Stan Swinton, Associated Press correspondent at the front, said one slight penetration was made but that the American lines generally held fast.

U. S. troops, pushing westward of Yongsan, won Hogback Ridge and its commanding flat ground leading to the Naktong River after bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

Total Attendance At Ex Well Ahead Of Last Year

Toronto, Sept. 7 — CP)) — The emphasis at the Canadian National Exhibition swung today from agriculture to the country's transportation and communication systems.

A special luncheon was arranged to honor railway, airline, trucking and communications officials, together with commercial travellers.

Another big sports program also was planned, highlighted by the Canadian senior men's softball championship series between Vancouver Firemen and Toronto Peoples. The eastern champions boast two straight victories in the best-of-five series.

Agricultural activities and problems completely dominated yesterday's program run off in brilliant sunshine. The day saw the total attendance for the first 11 days of the 14-day show zoom well past the 2,000,000 mark.

Attendance for the day was 151,000 — a gain of 29,500 over last year's figure for the corresponding day. Total attendance for the year is 52,000 ahead of the 1949 mark.

Climaxing the annual C.N.E. livestock show, close to $1,000,000 worth of livestock yesterday were paraded before more than 3,000 spectators, including Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

Mr. Gardiner and Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario presented trophies, ribbons and some $125,000 in prize money to the proud owners of livestock winning championships at the fair.

Mr. Gardiner told farmers that Canada was on the eve of a big increase in livestock production, particularly hogs. He urged the garmers to go in for bigger production and said returns on livestock "now are the highest ever obtained by farmers in Canada."

A tasty spice cake, shipped more than 2,000 miles to the exhibition, won a $100 prize and the C.N.E.'s golden wedding cake contest for Mrs. George Sterling, Westlock, Alta.

Wilgress Will Head Canadian Delegates

Ottawa, Sept. 7 — (CP) — L. Dana Wilgress, Canada's High Commissioner in the United Kingdom, will head the 13-man Canadian delegation to Torquay, England, where 37 nations will meet Sept. 28 to begin new international tariff-bargaining deals, the External Affairs Department announced today.

H. B. McKinnon, chairman of the Canadian Tariff Board, will be deputy chairman of the Canadian delegation. Since Mr. Wilgress has been re-elected head of the entire conference on tariffs and trade, Mr. McKinnon will have the main job of directing Canadian negotiations.

HEAVY BAIL SET

Hamilton, Sept. 7 (CP)—Bail was set at $10,000 and trial for Sept. 14 today in the case of 34-year-old Edward Phelan, Toronto, charged with armed robbery. Phelan is alleged to have robbed Albert Noyes, clerk at the Fischer Hotel of $60 at gunpoint last Sunday. He was arrested in Toronto Wednesday.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) —Synopsis: There is no indication of a change from the pleasant sunny weather we have enjoyed the past few days. Only in northern James Bay region is there anything but clear sky.

Temperatures are still rising and will reach the middle 80s on Friday.

Trades Union Congress Abandons Restraint Policy on Wage Increases

Brighton, England, Sept. 7 — (AP)—The Trades Union Congress, in a revolt against the Labor government, voted today to abandon its policy of restraint in pressing for wage increases.

The government has campaigned for restraint — which has amounted almost to a wage freeze —with the T.U.C.'s reluctant cooperation since the British economic crisis boiled up soon after the war. It argued that restraint was essential to prevent disastrous inflation.

The T.U.C., central body of labor unions, with a membership totalling 8,000,000 kicked over the traces at its annual meeting this afternoon. Rejecting the advice of its own general council, it voted 3,949,000 to 3,727,000 to abandon restraint and urge the government to limit employers' profits by law.

A general council statement supporting the restraint was rejected by 3,898,000 to 3,521,000. Each delegate casts as many votes as there are members in his union.

The voting may touch off industrial unrest throughout Britain at a time when the country's industries are being mobilized in the rearmament drive.

The Congress beat four communist candidates running for places on the 33-member general council. All four were beaten last year too. They are: Arthur Horner, secretary-general of the National Union of Mineworkers; J. Gardner of the Amalgamated Foundry Workers; W. C. Stevens of the Electrical Workers and J. Horner of the Fire Brigade Union.

MEMBER URGES SWIFT FORMATION OF DEFENCE PLAN

Pictures Devastating Effects of Next War

Ottawa, Sept. 7. (CP)—The frightening picture of a Canada brought under devastating atomic attack, her peoples maimed and driven into inadequate shelter, was placed before the Commons last night by an eminent medical doctor.

It came from Dr. W. G. Blair (PC—Lanark) as he urged the government to move swiftly in the formation of a civil defence program to meet the possibilities of a third world war—high explosive and atomic bombing and germ and gas warfare.

That program, he suggested, should include the setting up of life-saving blood banks and depots of medical and surgical supplies, the training of first-aid crews to succor the wounded and plans to evacuate cities shattered by enemy bombing.

Dr. Blair injected the down-to-earth phase of a possible war-stricken Canada into a defence debate which had grown heavy with continued opposition charges that the government had failed to bring this country to an adequate state of preparedness and was failing to give information.

He was joined in the call for civil defence preparedness by Owen Jones (CCF-Yale) and Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East), both of whom agreed with him that it was time the government got moving in that field.

In reply, Defence Minister Claxton said the federal government already has discussed the matter with the provinces most concerned with the problem. However, if war came, the federal government would take responsibility for planning and organization "at a higher level". Meantime, there were plans for co-operation in civil defence with the United States.

The side debate developed on continued study of the government's $850,000,000 defence appropriation bill, still bogged down in its preliminary resolution stage.

'Crime Does Not Pay' Says Tattoo Legend On Offender's Thigh

Los Angeles, Sept. 7 (AP) — Garry A. Juljev, 20, with a record of five terms in state institutions was jailed again yesterday on theft charges.

As he changed into prison garb the jailers noted this legend tatooed on his left thigh:

"Crime does not pay."

HOCKEY PLAYERS ARRIVE

Greenock, Scotland, Sept. 7 — (CP)—An advance contingent of 52 Canadian hockey players who will line up with Scottish clubs this winter arrived today on the Empress of Scotland after a stormy Atlantic crossing.

Commons Defeats P.C. Motion For Secret Session of House To Discuss Defence Matters

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP) — The Commons voted 156 to 64 today against a Progressive Conservative suggestion for a secret session to discuss defence matters.

Liberals voted almost solidly against the secret session, with the CCF and Social Credit Parties joining with the Progressive Conservatives.

The vote developed upon the statement "I spy strangers," made by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. This is the traditional form of demanding that the galleries be cleared of spectators.

One Liberal—Jean Francois Pouloit (Temiscouata) — broke away from the otherwise solid government ranks to support the opposition groups. J. L. Gibson (Ind—Comox-Alberni), who sits among the Liberals and customarily votes with them, also broke away.

Also supporting the demand for a secret session were two other Independents—P. E. Gagnon (Chicoutimi) and Dr. Raoul Poulin (Beauce).

Answered by Claxton

After the vote Defence Minister Claxton rose and said the seriousness of Mr. Drew's proposal for a secret session could be guaged by one of the reasons he gave—a "mistaken headline in the Ottawa Journal."

That headline said "Canadian Tank Squadron for U.N." But was not borne out in the story. Mr. Claxton said he already had said the special Korean force would consist of three battalions of infantry, a battalion of artillery and a squadron of self-propelled guns. It was probably the latter reference which had been responsible for the story.

The record bore out that the government had given "fact after fact" of Canada's defence position. He had made no reference to security or secrecy in answering questions "as fully and frankly as is possible to be done." But the opposition chose to ignore these facts then accuse the government of not telling them anything.

Mr. Drew said it was difficult to "use the right language" to describe the charge about the seriousness of the opposition desire for a secret session. That statement by the minister was "the very sort of thing" that made a secret session desirable.

Report Hoover Said F.B.I. Is Ready to Arrest 12,000 Dangerous Reds if War Comes

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was reported to have told senators today his agents are ready to arrest 12,000 dangerous communists in the United States if war should break out with Russia.

A member of the senate appropriations committee, asking not to be named, quoted Hoover as telling the group in a closed session that he needs more funds for additional agents to keep a close check on these persons.

He said Hoover wants his agents to be able "to put these people to bed at night and get them up in the morning" in watching their activities.

President Truman asked congress last week for $6,000,000 to finance increased F.B.I. activity due to "the changed international situation."

The F.B.I. told reporters then that the money was needed to permit hiring of 835 new agents and 1,218 new clerical workers.

The senate committee called Hoover before it to learn just what he proposed to do with the money.

Hoover was reported to have told the committee that a special problem is posed by the fact that half of the 12,000 dangerous communists are American citizens, many of them native born.

He was quoted as saying it would be up to the justice department to decide whether these persons could be arrested immediately, as well as the aliens.

Senators said the 12,000 have been listed by the F.B.I. as the most potentially "dangerous"—from a national security standpoint—of more than 50,000 known communists on which the F.B.I. has been keeping tabs.

US Acknowledges Planes Shot Down Russian Bomber

Washington, Sept. 6—(AP) — The United States navy acknowledged today that two of its fighter planes shot down the Russian bomber off Korea Monday.

This was the first official word that American planes knocked off the twin-engined Soviet craft when, the U.S charges, it attempted to attack United Nations naval forces.

At the time the incident was first reported the state department said the bomber "opened fire upon a U.N. fighter patrol, which returned its fire and shot it down."

A navy spokesman identified the fighter planes as two navy Corsairs attached to Task Force 77, composed of carriers and supporting units.

He said the navy had no information that would support the Moscow claim that two other Russian planes were in the vicinity or that 11 American fighters took part in the brief fight. Moscow also contended the destroyed bomber was on a training flight and was unarmed.

HISTORY TO COST $18,000

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—A history of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department by Merrill Denison, to be completed by the end of October, will cost the Provincial Government $18,000. History will cover developmet of Ontario's natural resources from Indian times to the present day.

Bermuda Alerted For Great Storm Moving North

Miami, Fla., Sept. 7 —(AP) — The resort island of Bermuda today was given an alert for a great storm moving up the Atlantic while Northeast Florida and Southeast Georgia felt the last gasps of a gulf hurricane.

The storm inching in the general direction of Bermuda had winds up to 150 miles an hour near the centre and hurricane force winds (75 miles an hour or more) extended outward 100 miles in all directions.

It was due to pass west of the island resort, but gales were forecast there and the Weather Bureau said a slight change in direction would bring much higher winds.

The hurricane was moving northward at about six miles an hour which would bring the centre opposite Bermuda tonight.

WARNED AGAINST RUSTLERS

Timmins, Sept. 7 — (CP) — Chief of Police Leo Gagnon of nearby Mountjoy township today advised dairy farmers to keep a close watch on their cattle as a precaution against rustlers.

Chief Gagnon issued the warning following the reported theft last Tuesday of a two-year-old heifer from one farm, and the slaying of a pig on another.

Farmers meanwhile recalled there was evidence of cattle rustling in these parts in 1945. That outbreak came to an end only after police had imposed a search of all vehicles passing through the area.

RUSSIA VETOES U.S.-SPONSORED BAN ON HELP

Action Will Not Affect Plans Under Way

Lake Success, Sept. 7 (AP) — Russia made another unsuccessful effort today to exclude South Korea's ambassador, John M. Chang, from United Nations discussions on Korea.

The Soviet move was made by Jakob A. Malik, Russian delegate immediately after the Security Council met this morning to take up a Soviet resolution seeking to end what Russia calls "inhuman and barbarous" bombing attacks on North Korea.

Malik said this resolution did not concern Chang in any way, since the "Syngman Rhee Clique" and Gen. Douglas MacArthur are not victims of the bombing but aggressors and "have no place here."

Council President Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain ruled that the council had decided that Chang had a right to take part in the Korean discussions. Malik did not make a formal challenge.

It was this issue of Korean representation that tied up the council in a procedural stalemate for the whole month of August, while Malik was president.

The council took up the Soviet bombing resolution after Russia used her 44th veto yesterday to prevent a U.S. sponsored ban on aid to North Koreans. Malik faced certain defeat on his move to call a halt to the American bombings.

The council, trying to speed up its work, has scheduled two meetings today.

First on the agenda is Malik's resolution condemning "inhuman barbarous bombing" in Korea by U.S. airmen, and calling for an end to the U.S. air attacks.

Malik refused yesterday to argue about conflicting U.S. and Russian versions of the shooting down of a Russian bomber off Korea. Though he had read into the council records a Kremlin note asserting the red plane was on a training mission when it was shot down, he said the incident was a matter between the U.S. and Soviet governments and not the concern of the United Nations.

Nine countries, including India, voted yesterday for the measure. Yugoslavia abstained, as she has on most Korean questions and despite a statement by Foreign Minister Edvard R. Kardelj in Belgrade Tuesday condemning the North Koreans as aggressors.

The Soviet Union, with its veto-carrying "nyet (no)", was the lone opponent to the resolution. Austin predicted the General Assembly, in which there is no veto, would take up the Korean question at its annual session starting Sept. 19.

BLACK MARKET IN BRUSSELS

Brussels, Sept. 7—(AP)—News that the Belgian government is printing ration tickets, "just in case," has brought the black market back to Brussels streets after a three-year absence.

Packets of matches unobtainable in shops were selling for 10 francs (about 22 cents) against the legal price of three francs, 75 centimes.

Professor Spends Summer With Races Who Don't Know Meaning of 'War'

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) — A United States Anthropologist, his wife and two children stopped off here on their way to New York after spending a summer with two races who don't know the meaning of the word war.

Dr. John F. Honigmann, a professor at New York University, and his family have been living at an Eskimo and Indian village at Great Whale River on Hudson Bay in a "perfect laboratory of race relations."

Dr. Honigmann said the Indians and Eskimos forgot their traditional rivalry years ago and now live side by side in the greatest friendship and understanding.

It is almost impossible to make them understand the meaning of war, he said.

"It's hard even to find a word for it. You say 'great big fight' and about the only thing they can think of is the worst brawl they've seen along the Ontario Northland Railway."

Mrs. Honigmann, who plans to write a paper on Eskimo child training said: "They're very strong against aggression. The only ones who fight are the very young children—but that's just to see who's going to get on the swing first.

"It's out of them by the time they're 10. After that, the worst thing for a boy to do is pick a fight."

Legislation Will Affect Regulation Of Consumer Credit

Finance Minister Will Make House Announcement

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP)—Canadians will have to shell out bigger down payments on instalment purchases of such items as passenger cars, refrigerators, electric stoves and other consumer goods as a result of government legislation to be introduced during the current session of parliament.

Notice of the government's proposal to bring down legislation affecting the regulation of consumer credit was given today by Finance Minister Abbott on the Commons order paper.

A government source later disclosed that the government does not intend to increase the down payments required on the construction of new homes or the purchase of new trucks or farm machinery.

The government's edict will mainly be directed at items which Canadians can obtain in department stores, but will include passenger cars. Main purpose of the regulations will be to fight inflationary trends in consumer prices.

The source said the consumer-credit control program will be similar to the one carried out during the Second World War but will not be so tough on the purchasers' pocketbook. Details of the government's program still have to be worked out.

During the last war, the government ordered that purchasers on the instalment plan provide a down payment of one-third. On purchases of less than $500, the time limit of payment was 12 months. On more than $500, it was 15 months.

Mother Throws Self on Children To Save Them

St. Catharines, Sept. 7 (CP)—Mrs. Richard Daniel said she threw her two young children out of the path of a 1927-model automobile Wednesday night and fell on top of them to protect them seconds before the car struck the park bench on which they had been sitting.

The mother suffered a wrenched wrist but the children, Carolyn, 1½, and Timothy, 2½, were uninjured. Police said the driver of the car was 16-year-old Richard Bye, who told them he bought the vehicle a week ago for $30.

CHIEF OF DESK DIES

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 7 (AP) —Robert R. Reeves, chief of the editorial copy desk of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle died last night at the age of 49 after a heart attack. Reeves joined the morning newspaper in 1937 as a copy reader. He had been city editor of the Albank Evening News before it merged with the Albany Knickerbocker Press.

Father and Sons Live Comfortably In Thick Bush

Kapuskasing, Ont., Sept. 7 — (CP) — An air-ground search for Phillip Tailleur and his two sons was called off yesterday when the 53-year-old resident of nearby Brunetville wandered out of the bush, astonished he was reported missing.

"Lost?" he enquired. "First I knew of it."

Lands Department planes assisted in the search when Tailleur and his sons, Ronald, 13, and Dennis, 15, did not return from a Labor Day fishing trip.

He said they made themselves comfortable in the thick, rocky bush country and lived off berries and fish. They spotted many moose and bear.

"The bears didn't bother us," he laughed. "I was more frightened of my wife after we returned home than I was of the bears."

Nosey Dog Starts Chain of Events In Rural Hencoop

Goderich, Sept. 7 (CP) — An inquisitive dog; a suspicious farmer; a hair-trigger shotgun and the tricky light of a moonlight night combined to give insomnia to most of the occupants of a henhouse.

All but six of them went into the "big sleep."

Dick Buchanan, bothered recently by chicken thieves, investigated a suspicious noise at three a.m., his shotgun cocked and his faithful collie at his heels.

As the farmer leaned over to inspect his hen house, the collie shoved an inquisitive nose forward, poling Buchanan in the seat of trousers. The startled farmer pulled the trigger, discharging a double blast into the snoozing hens.

When the smoke and the feathers cleared, the silhouette of a collie could be seen against the horizon, still running.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Sept. 7 —(CP)—A charge of manslaughter today was placed against John Angus Cada, 36, of Korah township as a result of an accident in which Ronald MacLeod, 21, was fatally injured Sunday.

Magistrate James McEwen granted a remand of one week at the request of Crown Attorney Ian Munro. MacLeod was a passenger in a car driven by W. H. Wilson which was knocked off Highway No. 17 six miles east of here by a driver who failed to stop.

BELLEVILLE MAN HAS WINNING TICKET

Mr. C. A. Holmes, 18 Isabel St., was the lucky winner for Saturday, Aug. 26th. in the daily draw sponsored by The Dairy Farmers of Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition. At the Ex. the above organization has on exhibit the model of a cow modelled in butter, the person guessing closest to the number of pounds of butter used in modelling the cow coming in for a daily prize. The daily winner receives five pounds each of butter, cheese, cans of evaporated milk and bottled milk.

70 Per Cent Of Threshing Done In the County

Grain yields and corn crops are above average in central Ontario, the Department of Agriculture weekly crop report indicates. In Durham county, the corn crop will be abundant, if frost does not get to it. On the darker side of the picture, many Durham farmers report that their wheat in many cases has been ruined for germination by wet weather.

In Hastings county, grain is approximately 70 per cent combined or threshed, and yields of fall wheat have averaged from 35 to more than 50 bushels per acre. Ontario reports a splendid second growth of Alfalfa being cut for hay in some areas, but husking corn is not advanced as far as it should be at this time of the year. Harvesting is over for many farmers in Ontario. In Victoria, quality of threshed grain is reported exceptionally good and yields are well above average. Much of the spring grain has not been combined or threshed, and some still waits to be cut.

In Eastern Ontario, the outlook is bright. In Frontenac, the farmers are pleased with the spring crops, good fields of corn are evident, and the predicted hay shortage may not be as dangerous as previously thought. In Lennox and Addington, the grain crops are, without exception, said to be excellent. Leeds reports grain crops well above average, and Stormont shows extremely good yields.

The overall provincial picture seems to be favorable.

Dean Garvin, Tweed, Named Parish Priest at St. Michael's; Rev. C. E. Baker Goes to Stoco

Very Reverend L. B. Garvin, V.F., pastor of Tweed since 1946, has been appointed pastor of St. Michael's Church, Belleville, succeeding the late Monsignor J. F. Nicholson. The appointment, announced by His Grace, The Most Reverend J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston, becomes effective September 29th.

The appointment also carries with it the title Dean of Belleville, with the new pastor being Dean of that section of the Archdiocese which formerly constituted the Deanery of Trenton.

Reverend J. J. Shannon of Carleton Place will succeed Dean Garvin at Tweed. Reverend J. G. McCabe of Stoco will go to Carleton Place, and Reverend C. E. Baker, assistant at Belleville since 1929, will become the pastor of St. Edmund's Parish, Stoco.

The new pastor and Dean of Belleville, was born at Westport. He received his primary and secondary education at St. Edward's School. He graduated from St. Michael's College, University of Toronto, in 1913, and was ordained from the Grand Seminary Montreal, Dec. 22, 1916.

Following his ordination he was assistant at Brockville for 11 years. He was the pastor at Spencerville, Stanleyville, Elgin and Picton before going to Tweed in 1946.

18-Pound Lunge Caught on New Lure in Moira

There's an old saying that a new broom sweeps clean, and in parallel with that, Edward Pope of Gilbert St. found last night that a new plug catches fish. Mr. Pope bought a new lure yesterday afternoon, and at 7:30 last night, he nailed an 18 lb. lunge in the Moira River near O'Brien's Bridge.

The fish battled for half an hour before giving up the fight. It was 32 inches long, and was taken while Mr. Pope and Ted Flunder of Donald St., were trolling in a motorboat.

Mr. Pope has more reason than usual to be proud of his catch, because he has only one arm. His is the second 'lunge to be taken from the O'Briens Bridge area within four days. On Sunday, Pat Blaker hauled a 31 pound 'lunge from the Moira.

Marmora Takes First Game In T.V.L. Finals

Marmora— Marmora T.V.L. team defeated Campbellford by 2-1 in the final playoffs game played at Deloro on Wednesday evening. The game was closely fought and both pitchers were in good form. An error by Marmora cost them a shutout game. Drummond struck out ten opponents. In the second the home team brought off a neat double play; Brooks to Borland. Dikun got the best of the few hits of the game with a fine double to centrefield. The next game will be in Campbellford on Monday evening.

BLAMES DRINKING SPREE

Brampton, Sept. 7 — (CP) — William Chilvers, 29-year-old Toronto bakery salesman said by police to have been found with three stolen pigs in his bakery truck two weeks ago, in court Wednesday blamed the incident on a drunken spree.

"I'll never take a drink again," he promised.

Magistrate T. H. Moorehead placed him on a year's suspended sentence for theft of the pigs.

Hastings County Club Members Judge at C.N.E.

Of the group of Calf and Grain Club members who attended the Canadian National Exhibition Live Stock Judging Competition on Friday, September 1st, four of the boys made an excellent showing for Hastings County. Sixty-three contestants took part in the Dairy Cattle Competition, and the boys from Hastings placed as follows: 5th, John McComb, R.R. 5, Belleville; 10th, George Cooke, R.R. 2, Stirling; who tied with Merle Moore, Springbrook; and tied for 13th, with a number of other contestants, was Frank Harry, R.R. 5, Trenton. Final results are not available for the competition for only the first eighteen were announced at the time of the Show. To those boys as well as the others who attended from the County, we offer congratulations and continued success.

The newly formed Club Leaders' Association of Hastings County is certainly progressing at a favorable rate. On the suggestions of the club leaders, the distinctive club members sweaters have been ordered, which are white with the crest in green. These are being worn by the members when they show their calves and grain and are certainly being received with enthusiasm by the members.

The leaders themselves are also planning various social events, and the first of these was a visit to the 1000 Islands last Sunday. To top the day off a picnic lunch was provided by the ladies. It was greatly enjoyed by all members at one of the roadside parks east of Gananoque.

Prices Remain At Same Level On Local Market

Vendors were plentiful on the farmers' market this morning, but sales were "slow, very slow". Better variety was offered today than on Tuesday, but prices remained, once again, at the same level.

Tomatoes featured the offering, and were priced as low as 30c for six quarts. Corn was shown in quantity also, and fluctuated between 30c and 40c per dozen. Only quantity apples for sale were Duchess at 50c per basket.

Blueberries made a re-appearance at 50c per quart, but it was a light offering. Also in the fruit line, pears were 75c per basket, and plums, in different varieties moved between 75c and $1.00 per basket.

MISS CHARLOTTE (LOTTIE) CLARKE

Miss Charlotte (Lottie Hudgins) Clarke, late residence, Foster Avenue, and who for many years resided on Victoria Avenue died in the Belleville General Hospital early Thursday morning after an illness of about two weeks' duration.

The late Miss (Hudgins) Clarke, who was 76 years of age, was an adopted daughter of the late Rev. Dr. W. C. Clarke, who was rector of Christ Church from 1878 to 1882. Practically all her life was passed in this city and in the regard of many old friends she held a high place. In former years she was active in church work. Of late years she attended St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving her is a sister, Mrs. W. T. Sawyer, Virginia Beach, Va., and a brother Mr. Alex Hudgins, Hamilton.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Victoria Avenue, at Church Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE MRS. ESTHER VANDERVOORT

The funeral of Mrs. Esther Vandervoort, wife of Mr. George W. Vandervoort, 130 Catherine Street, was held Wednesday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home. Everett Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Canon J. Grant Sparling, Rector of Christ Church.

The bearers were Stanley Lessels, George Thompson, Walter Harden, Harry Baker, John Johnson and Wilbur Latchford.

PICTON

Fair to Open Next Thursday

Picton— Wardens of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties will officially open Picton Fair on Sept. 14th. The show continues until Sautrday night. Horse races for $1,000 in purses are being run the last two days. The first day is featured by a tractor rodeo, a rooster race and novel events. Each night a spectacular western rodeo, featuring 25 trained horses, is given in front of the grandstand. Professional entertainers present a vaudeville show each afternoon. Trenton Lions Club, Trenton R.C.A.F. and Havelock Pipe Bands will provide music. With more than four thousand exhibits, Picton Fair claims to be one of the biggest in the district and many from here are planning to attend.

3 Plead Guilty Further Charges Laid by Crown

Already awaiting sentence on charges of attempted armed robbery of a service station at Rossmore, as well as on theft counts, three youths in county magistrate's court pleaded guilty to charges of auto theft and of stealing licence plates.

The three youths are Thos. Henry, 22, and Orville King, 18, of Toronto, and John Deseno, 18, of Oshawa. All three, along with Wm. Bailey, 18, of Kingston, were remanded for one week for sentence.

The four youths were arrested three weeks ago at Marmora and later pleaded guilty to the attempted armed holdup at Rossmore, as well as to several charges of theft of money at Belleville, Picton, Kingston and Madoc.

The auto theft charges were preferred by Toronto police and were forwarded to this city for presentation.

Fascinating Hobby In Modelling Historic Figures

Ewell, England — (Reuters) — Modelling the Kings and Queens of England is the fascinating but intricate hobby of 19-year-old Vivienne Price.

Vivienne, with painstaking care, makes her dolls correct to the smallest detail. She spends hours in the public libraries looking at old books from which to copy details of dresses and regalia worn by British monarchs and their queens in past times.

She began with Henrietta Anne, sister of Charles II, and continued at the rate of one a month with such historical figures as Queen Elizabeth, Margaret of Anjou, Queen Anne, Henrietta Maria, Elizabeth of York and Queen Charlotte.

"Henry the Eighth was more trying than his six wives put together," she said. "The trouble was his legs, which unenclosed by female skirts, required a special form of wiring."

16,000 Workers Get Increase Of 12 Cents Hour

Detroit, Sept. 7 (AP)—Kaiser-Frazer Corporation and the United Automobile Workers Union signed an agreement last night giving some 16,000 production workers an increase of 12 cents an hour.

Eight cents of that was a cost-of-living wage boost. The other four cents represented an improvement factor increase, due June 1, 1951, but to be paid immediately.

The improvement factor, written into the Kaiser-Frazer-U.A.W. contract along with a cost-of-living escalator clause, also provides four-cent hourly boosts on June 1 of 1952, 1953 and 1954.

In addition the new agreement provided an extra five cents an hour for skilled workers and upped vacation pay and night premium pay.

The adjustable cost-of-living feature was identical to the General Motors and Ford agreements.

The increases in the agreement are contingent upon ratification by the union members of a pension contract signed by the company and the U.A.W. less than a month ago. If that contract is ratified, the new terms will be written in.

Kaiser-Frazer was the sixth major auto company to fall into line with a higher wage level.

Suicide Attempt In Jail Fails

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 7—(AP) —Sheriff's officers said Wednesday that three county jail prisoners who slashed their wrists, apparently in a concerted suicide attempt, included a man wanted in Toronto on a murder charge.

Chief jailer Charles Fitzgerald said that one is booked as Frank P. Miller, 23, but is known in Canada as Stanley Buckoski. Fitzgerald said a warrant has been received from Toronto for Miller or Buckoski in the slaying of Alfred Layng, a bystander at a robbery, in Toronto, July 30, 1949.

11 DROWNED

Gwalior, India, Sept. 7 (Reuters)—Eleven of 20 passengers were drowned when a truck plunged into a swollen river in Gwalior State, reports received here today said. Most of the victims were women and children. The truck was crossing a causeway which collapsed.

May Soon End Some of Confusion In Civil Defence

Ottawa, Sept. 7—(CP)—Maj. F. F. Worthington hopes next week to end some of the confusion that now exists in civil defence planning by the distribution to the provinces of an organizational manual, detailing how the country should organize to meet the threat of atomic or other kinds of war.

Broadly speaking, the federal civil defence co-ordinator said in an interview Wednesday, the organizational strategy is for the federal government to offer guidance to the provinces. The provinces in turn would have the responsibility of co-ordinating and guiding the efforts of each of the municipalities within their boundaries.

Gen. Worthington made this clear in the light of conflicting views by various municipalities, some charging that the federal government and others charging provincial governments with responsibility for directing civil defence programs in the cities and towns of Canada.

In Sudbury, city council said Tuesday night that civil defence was primarily a federal responsibility. A similar stand was taken in Windsor, Ont. In Ottawa, mayor E. A. Bourque said he was waiting for direction from the Ontario government. In Toronto mayor Hiram McCallum said he would not wait for federal direction. Toronto was setting up a civil defence plan on its own hook. So was Winnipeg.

Deal With Provinces

Gen. Worthington said the general organizational policy was formulated at a federal-provincial civil defence conference held here Aug. 24.

"We will deal with the provinces and the provinces will have the responsibility of guiding the efforts of the municipalities," Gen. Worthington said.

From other quarters it was learned that some of the provinces already have indicated they will proceed on these lines and plan to call conferences of municipalities to push provincial planning.

Meanwhile, the federal authorities were pressing ahead with their own plans to make available to the public the latest information on how to cope with incendiary attack, radiation from atomic bombing, and the reception of casualties and refugees.

Gen. Worthington said his own staff of three or four officials will be expanded as quickly as he can train the necessary manpower. One officer now was in England taking civil defence training and others would be dispatched at later dates.

He also was proceeding with plans for the establishment of a special school on atomic warfare, probably at Meaford, Ont., to be made available to all of Canada. It will have a series of courses for doctors nd others to build up a core of leadership on which local organizations can build.

SOUGHT FOR STABBING

New York, Sept. 7 (AP) —A wealthy contractor sought for questioning in the stabbing of his wife on an isolated New Jersey hilltop was found dead in a hotel suite yesterday, apparently a suicide. Leonard Cohen left notes indicating he believed his wife, Beatrice, 43, was dead. One note gave instructions on where to find her body. Mrs. Cohen was reported in "very critical" condition from knife wounds about the head and neck.

DEATHS

CLARKE — In the Belleville General Hospital early Thursday morning, September 7th, Miss Charlotte (Lottie Hudgins) Clarke, late residence, Foster Avenue, and formerly of Victoria Avenue, age 76 years.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Victoria Avenue at Church Street, for service in the chapel on Saturday morning, September 9th, at 11 o'clock.

Interment Belleville Cemetery. S7-2t

IN MEMORIAM

DAINARD — In proud and loving memory of the late C4446 Pte. Stan E. Dainard, killed in action in Italy September 7th, 1944.

There's a road we call remembrance
Where thoughts and wishes meet
We take that road in thought today
For the one we cannot greet
Dearer still as the years depart
His memory lives within our hearts
With tender love and deep regret
We who loved you will never forget.

Fondly remembered by his Mum and Dad and brothers Fred and George. S7

DAINARD — In loving memory of our brother C4446 Pte. Stan. E. Dainard, killed in action September 7, 1944. Buried in Mazargues Cemetery, Marseilles, France.

Six years have passed, but still we miss him,
Never shall his memory fade.
Loving thoughts will always linger
Round the grave where he is laid.

Always remembered by sister Jennie, brother-in-law Gordon and nephew Bobbie Burrell. S7

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 7 — (CP) — Signs of recovery appeared on the Toronto stock exchange today following yesterday's severe drop. All groups had mild support as key stocks crept thead fractionally.

Industrials, which were thrown for the greatest loss, pushed ahead cautiously. Utilities and refining oils broke about even in gains and losses while steels, papers, agriculture, manufacturing and constructions still showed a majority of minus signs.

Golds, which were the most stable group in yesterday's drop, pushed ahead for gains of five cents. Seniors were still weak but Chemical Research, Bagamac, and East Malartic eased forward on the secondary board.

Base metals brightened slowly. Quemont, Steep Rock, Waite Amulet and Falconbridge chalked up advances.

Western oils began to climb in mid-session. Gains ranged up to 15 cents. British-Dominion, Pacific Pete, Del Rio and Calvin were among those which gained.

Two Masked Men Being Sought By Police Posse

Binbrooke, Ont., Sept. 7—(CP)—Two masked men who escaped with $14,000 after blowing open the vault of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here are being sought by provincial police and officers from Hamilton, 17 miles north of this town.

It was also reported that the bandits obtained $10,000 in negotiable bonds from the private safe of an 84-year-old business man living next door to the bank, whom the bandits trussed up before breaking into the bank. But this report was unconfirmed late last night.

The robbery occurred early yesterday. The men broke into the house of George Beer, elderly equipment dealer, and forced him to open his safe before tying him up with bedsheets.

They then broke down a wooden door leading to the bank and blew open the vault with three charges of nitroglycerine. A nearby door was smashed and large chunks of plaster were blown from the walls by the force of the explosion.

More than five hours after the holdup, Mr. Beer was able to struggle to a window and give the alarm to a neighbor who released him and called police.

Mr. Beer was not harmed by the bandits. He told police the bandits had taken his wallet but returned it to him untouched.

Corporal So Small Army Can't Fit Him

Dayton, O., Sept. 7 (AP) — You've heard about soldiers so big that the army can't fit them in clothes or shoes.

Dayton's 423rd Engineer Construction Battalion may have a barefoot corporal. His feet are too small—they take a 4 1-2 triple-E shoe to be exact.

Charles Arnold, 24, had been drilling in civilian clothes. But the battalion is to go active soon and he needs combat boots.

A desperate supply sergeant tried padding the army's smallest boots with extra socks and sponge rubber without success.

Arnold insists the army managed to fit his tiny feet in the last war.

Nearly 3,000 Employees Will Be Released

Ottawa, Sept. 7 — (CP) — The government's income tax division has caught up with its back-log of work and between 2,500 and 3,000 employees will be released by next spring, the civil service commission announced today. About 1,600 have been released within the last year.

About one-third of them are expected to be absorbed by other government departments. No provision has been made for the others.

The reductions in staff will take place across the country with Toronto and Montreal getting the biggest cuts — about 500 in each city. Almost 200 in Ottawa already have received notice.

Many will be taken into the defence department and related agencies, gradually expanding to meet new defence commitments.

The lay-offs are due to the disappearance of work back-logs and to the introduction of new methods which permit more efficient handling of day-to-day work.

In re-appointing discharged employees, veterans and efficient long-term employees will receive preference for vacancies over others.

Procuring Charge Against Youth Is Dismissed

Windsor, Sept. 7 — (CP)— A charge against 18-year-old David Carswell of procuring an abortion that caused the death of his 16-year-old high school girl friend, was dismissed in a preliminary hearing today.

Carswell was charged with procuring an abortion for Margaret Jean Smith, whose bound and weighted body was pulled from the Detroit River July 12. She had been missing from her home for a week.

Detective Sergeant John J. Mahoney told Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan that a 10-inch piece of twisted wire and a file, both with traces of blood, were found in Carswell's room.

Pathologist Dr. S. M. Asselstine said the stains were blood, but were insufficient to determine whether it was human or not.

Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey admitted the case against Carswell was circumstantial.

Motorists Are Taught Not to Follow Trucks to Fire

Washington, Ia., Sept. 7 (AP) —Fifty six motorists were "burning" today, but not from the fire started in a ball park by the Washington Fire Department.

After setting the fire last night the department sent a truck speeding to the scene. Many motorists in this community of 5,000 followed and police nabbed 56 of them.

The whole thing was planned by the city council to teach residents not to violate an ordinance which makes it illegal for motorists to follow fire trucks.

"We're going to educate people some way not to follow fire trucks," Mayor G. E. Mace said.

Violators were each fined $1 plus $1 costs.

DISEASE ATTACKS POULTRY

Windsor, Sept. 7 — (CP) — An outbreak of virus disease in poultry flocks in the Leamington area was reported today by an official of the Federal Department of Agriculture. He said the disease is known as Newcastle Disease, or encephalitis.

All birds found with the disease, fatal to young birds, are being killed to prevent its spread.

Retroactive Wage Increase Given Steel Workers

Hamilton, Sept. 7 — (CP)—A retroactive wage increase of eight cents an hour for more than 900 employees is the highlight of a one-year contract between the Steel Company of Canada Limited, Canada Works, and Local 3250 of the United Steelworkers of America (C. C. L.).

The wage increase, announced today, dates back to May 1, of this year. It boosts the basic labor rate from 99 ½ cents an hour to $1.07 ½ cents an hour.

A 40-hour week reduces the work week from the previous 42½ hours for shift workers and 43½ hours for day workers.

The agreement which will run to May 1, 1951, makes certain minor changes in the vacation with pay and statutory holidays clause.

LOSES MOTHER, SISTER

Toronto, Sept. 7 — (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow has suffered the loss of his sister and mother within two days.

Two days ago Mrs. Bertha Buchanan, 62, of Colborne, his sister, died. His mother, Mrs. Martha Goodfellow, 86, had lived with her daughter, died early today.

Criticizes Emphasis On Training Young People to Make Money

Toronto, Sept. 7—(CP)—James Cardinal McGuigan, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Toronto, Wednesday night criticized the emphasis he said some educational institutions place on training young people to make money. He was addressing more than 350 members of the St. Michael's College Old Boys' Association on the eve of the opening of a new Roman Catholic school.

The new school accommodates 1,000 students.

RESTORES CITIZENSHIP

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP) — President Truman yesterday signed a bill restoring United States citizenship to the daughter of Saburu Kurusu, Japan's special peace envoy to Washington at the time of the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7 1941. The daughter Mrs. Jaye Kurusu Maddox, was born in Chicago in 1916. Her citizenship was held forfeited when she voted in a Japanese election in 1946. She and Lieut. William William Maddox of the U.S. Army were married in Japan in 1948 and they have a child

OIL RESERVES

Russian oil reserves, according to the Oil and Gas Journal, are only 5.49 per cent of the world total, says the Christian Science Monitor in an article on "Oil and the Kremlin." The United States has 25.9 per cent and British and American companies hold about 90 per cent. It is said that Russian reserves of oil are diminishing and are lower today than it was in either 1941 or 1944. During the Second World War the great Baku field was largely exhausted and many production facilities were destroyed.

How much oil Russia consumes is of course not known outside of the Kremlin. "Normally the average Russian uses only one-ninth as much petroleum as the average American. But military action would vastly step up consumption. Tanks and planes gobble the gas." It is said that the Soviet desperately strove to get oil in Iran.

Oil is one of the products of great importance in developments today. The development of the oil possibilities of Mesopotamia has been one of the wonders of this age. Today Iraq is one of the largest producers of this commodity in the world. This is to the credit of Britain under mandate who gave equal trading opportunities to other nations.

A few days ago the representatives of Britain, American, French and Dutch companies met representatives of the Iraq government at Bagdad to discuss the question of royalties paid to the government. The result was a cordial agreement by which the company will increase the royalties by $2.70 a ton, beginning in October 1954. As a result $47,600,000 a year goes to the Iraq government.

TRIBUTE TO THE SPARROW

One hundred years would be a long time in the life of a bird, but it is but a short stretch of time when figured on the basis of millions of such birds as the English sparrows. They are the true birds who stick with the north, face snow and ice and somehow manage to eke out their living.

One hundred years ago caterpillars were on the rampage in Brooklyn, N.Y., and a man named Nicholas Pike of the Brooklyn Institute made an effort to save the foliage from the raids of caterpillars. He had heard that English sparrows liked to eat caterpillars and as a result he got the Brooklynites to buy eight pairs. "The English sparrows multiplied into millions. They drove out the shy and useful martin. They unhoused such American kin as the song sparrow, white throated sparrow, the vesper sparrow. Today a lot of people pretend to dislike the English sparrow of its drabness, abundance and montonous chirping." So says the Christian Science Monitor, adding, "There is a lot to be said for English sparrows. They don't demand or receive special treatment. They have courage, caution, self-respect and industry. This spring a few saved from caterpillars a neighbor's favorite birch. And in the wintertime when their more glamorous featherkind wing to Miami, the English sparrows remain at home, tweedy, cheepy and companionable."

U.S. GAME HERDS GROW

In the United States the game herd is shown to be definitely growing, a fact which is good news to every lover of the great outdoors in the United States and Canada. It is an important fact that efforts to conserve game and other national resources prove successful, for the importance and wealth of a country and a people depend upon a number of factors, conservation being one of them.

In the vast outdoors "across the line" there are possibly close to eight million head of big game of various kinds. This is shown in the estimates of Fish and Wildlife Service. A writer in the New York Times comments upon this to the effect that "it would seem that the long effort of conservation forces to stop the decimation of our game has begun to bear sound fruit. At the beginning of the century the picture was indeed dark for nearly all the species of major American animals which once had roamed the land in such countless numbers. Now almost all species show a steady, if small, annual increment." The white-tailed deer are the most numerous of the big-game animals and the most widely distributed in the country. Then come the mule deer, the black bear which is gaining strongly and the elk which latterly have adapted themselves to fringe civilization so well that the problem of maintaining a balance in the herds is an important one in many localities. In some parts "the deer herd has become so large that there is not sufficient browse to maintain it and brief open seasons on does are becoming more frequent in the best interest of maintaining balanced and healthy herds" in the United States.

Courage and persistent effort have been required to prevent the extinction of many of the notable species. But success has come in time.

This news should inspire lovers of wild life in not only the United States but other lands to continue to preserve and protect wild life not only for sportsmen but also to teach lessons of wonder and beauty to man.

EVENING PERFORMANCE

Went to a show in the open air,
Sat two hours on a metal chair;
Battled mosquitoes the evening through,
Willing and happy to do it, too.
Proud! And the reason I'd have you know:
I had a grandson in the show.

High in the dark where none could see,
All in the world turned right for me.
Content was I with my present lot;
War and Russia I quite forgot.
Never once thought of the bills I owe.
I had a grandson in the show.

Papas and mammas were all about,
Just as proud as was I ,no doubt.
All with a child of their own to see,
Fairy, or goblin, or king to be.
Eyes no wider than mine were, though.
I had a grandson in the show.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PARTING GUESTS

It is such a joy to have guests in your home, but the ones that you cannot forget are those who leave something beautiful of themselves behind. When they are gone you feel as though you had parted something of yourself as well. Someone once wrote that when you leave Hawaii, you die a little. I always feel like this when a friendly guest has left me.

I have had many like this at my summer hideaway. The same glorious days arrive when these friends leave, yet they leave a void because of a stimulating personality, or some kindliness that seems to scent the very air —after they are gone. It seems quieter and lonelier. You were stirred by the anticipation of their arrival, but before you realize it, the time for departure arrives—and you are left alone again. But the memory becomes something to treasure.

In Hawaii you are greeted with an Aloha, and when you leave, Aloha rings in your ears as a final farewell—both meaning welcome and a happy return. Having experienced arriving and departing from these heavenly islands of Hawaii, I can get the meaning behind that statement that when you leave there you die a little!

All happy companioning with friends for a spell is something to be treasured in one's memory. We must learn to tie together our welcomings and goodbys and make them both serve as inspirations for all life is a series of changes to which we must early in life become acclimated, and groomed to their acceptance.

The days are so much quieter when your friends have left you. The tempo of the days is lessened You fall back into your routine and try to live over the happy days that have gone. The experience, however, has enriched your life, and that it what friends are for. We are advanced in the art of friendship every time that we part with a friend, or guest. And we wonder, and hope that we have given something in return for the honor paid to us.

Crown's Case Against Woman Is Completed

Chatham, Sept. 7 — (CP) — The Crown's case against Mrs. Emma Johnson, 28, charged with the fatal stabbing of her husband, Sherwell Johnson, came to an end Wednesday.

W. B. Beardall, defence counsel said he has only one witness to call and that is Mrs. Johnson. Mrs. Johnson testified that she was married in June 1939 and her marriage had not been happy.

Sergeant William Donaldson, of the Chatham Police Department who directed the investigation, testified that when he saw Mrs. Johnson on March 12 she was sitting in the city police station in a highly emotional condition. He said that the woman threatened to kill herself that night if her daughter was taken from her.'

Donaldson said the woman held her blood-streaked hands before the four-year-old child and said 'Shirley, that's Daddy's blood, Momma killed him Daddy is no more.'

It was then that the child was taken from her and turned over to the Children's Aid Society.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

Hep-piness Is a Thing Called Joe

For my dough and doughnuts, the best brain in the movie business belongs to a 70-year-old kid named Joe Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox.

When I was in Hollywood a couple of months back, we got to talking about the future of his industry.

"If the public is only going to shell out for good movies," said Joe, "we're all washed up out here."

"Would you mind stretching that line of thought a little?" I suggested.

"Well, it's like this," said the film executive. "The movie business is only healthy when its patrons keep coming back, week after week, no matter what picture is playing. In other words, it's got to be a habit with them, like smoking cigarettes. As of right now, our receipts indicate that a certain percentage seem to have gotten out of the habit, and obviously the only way we can win them back is with first-rate movies."

"That sounds like a pretty tough job," I said, "considering that Hollywood has to turn out over three hundred films a year."

"They don't all have to be 'Gone With the wind,' " said Joe. "As I figure it, about fifty outstanding pictures a year would be enough to convince the public that motion pictures are still their best entertainment bets. But if the studios only turn out, say, twenty good ones a year, people may begin to think that all pictures are bad — and then we'd really be in trouble.

"That's why I'm always glad to see a well-made movie," the old hepster went on, "no matter which studio turns it out. Every winner helps all of us to keep in good with the public."

"What do you think of Hollywood's chances of producing 50 fine pictures in the coming year?" I asked.

"Pretty fair."

"How does your own product stack up for the coming season?"

"I'd rather you answered that one yourself," said Joe , . .

Well, over the past couple of weeks I've taken in four of the new 20th Century films, and I'm happy to report that, by, large and in the main, I was impressed with what I saw.

1. "The Holy Year" is a beautifully photographed presentation of the rites and rituals taking place in Rome this year. With commendable sensitivity, it catches the mood and pageantry of the Holy Festival, and it strikes me as being the next best thing to actually making the pilgrimage. In addition, without belaboring it, it gets across the point that no irreverent ism is going to legislate or machine-gun religion out of people's hearts and heads.

2. "Mr. 880" is based on the memorable yarn by St. Claire McKelway and, in the gently ironic tradition of "Miracle of 34th Street," it spins the story of the old counterfeiter who only printed enough dollar bills to keep him in bed, board and beans. Edmund Gwenn as the ingratiating crook, Burt Lancaster as the FBI man and Dorothy McGuire as the inevitable girl turn in three of the niftiest acting jobs of the season — and if you don't get a little weepy in the final courtroom scene, you're not fit to hang out with yourself.

3. "Farewell to Yesterday" is a consummate documentary of the last two wars, and it howitzers home the story of what has happened in the past to countries which neglected to have a loaded pistol handy when an international thief was on the prowl. I recommend it to everyone who lives in a house, particularly those in the Washington Houses known as Upper and Lower.

4. "No Way Out." By this time, you've probably heard about the bird-calls and bravos which greeted this Zanuck special when it opened in New York. As social commentary it's worth its weight in editorials, and as hackle-raising melodrama it makes the average shoot-'em-up look like a game of ticktacktoe. The performance of Richard Widmark as a psychopathic Negro-baiter rates all the Oscars from Wilde to Hammerstein . . .

So four, so good, Joe.

Of course, that still leaves 46 to go.

Mackenzie's Column:

Western Germany Must be Rearmed Say U.S. Officers

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One of the certainties of these dangerous days is that any successful defence of Western Europe against a red advance must be based on the hotly-controversial rearmament of Western Germany.

That's a bitter pill for those who not so long ago swore that the instigator of two world wars should not again be allowed to rearm. However, it has to be swallowed.

Another general war not only would involve this keystone of Europe but probably would begin in this central zone where communism and democracy face each other across an imaginary barrier.

Therefore it's encouraging to hear John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, say after a conference with President Truman that "the Germans should be enabled, if they want to, to defend their own country." And State Secretary Dean Acheson followed this up with the statement that it is highly desirable to find an appropriate way for Germany to aid the defence of Western Europe.

The Instigators

With the institution of certain safeguards this should work out satisfactorily. I base that supposition on the belief that military aggression is not an inherent characteristic of the German people as a whole. The aggression by the Reich has sprung mainly from one special group of the population — the Prussians.

It is true, however, that many Germanic people are susceptible to regimentation. The Prussians took advantage of that; Hitler took advantage of it.

Democracy First

Acceptance of these conclusions as correct immediately raised a vital corollary: if Germany is allowed to rearm for self-defence and for participation in the defence of Western Europe with the democracies, she must be safeguarded against any form of dictatorship, since totalitarianism might again impose the regimentation which would lead to aggression.

Thus if Germany is permitted to rearm for the common good of the Western Europe to which she belongs, totalitarianism must be eliminated. That is a course already being pursued by the occupation powers and it must be intensified.

Letter to the Editor

Would Ban Parking On Residential Streets

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

How long will it be before our council wake up and pass a bylaw forbidding parking on residential streets. Some people are thoughtless enough to park opposite each other on both sides of these narrow streets and some times it is hard to get past. Nearly everyone has driveways. Why not use them? Is it laziness or what is the reason of street-parking. A little boy on his bike the other night was wheeling south on Charles as he turned on to Alexander he met another car and ran into a parked car. Winter and summer this parking has been going on. When is our council going to have backbone enough to stop it?

Yours truly,
F. A. Cory.

Delegates Travel On U.S. Lines To Convention

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 7 (CP)—"The Welland Special," a train which doesn't exist, has made history at the annual convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs.

More than 40 Ontario delegates had already purchased their tickets to Victoria when the rail strike occurred. The fire chiefs were about to forget about the convention when James Arnott of Toronto, started organizing.

He wired Chief Robert T. Brindle of Victoria that Ontario would be well represented. Then he took charge of getting refunds from the Canadian rail lines for the delegates and set about making reservations on American lines.

"He took care of every detail. We were like one big happy family all the way," said one Ontario delegate.

For his efforts, Mr. Arnott Wednesday was presented with a gift from the Ontario delegates.

The train on which the delegates travelled had no special name, but it always will be the "Welland Special" to most Ontario delegates. The name was adopted because many delegates started from Welland, Ont.

Personal Health Talks

Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THE CARE OF THE TEETH

Will children of a father who has worn false teeth since the age of 19 (bad decay) have poor teeth? The mother has excellent teeth. (B. R.)

Whether heredity is a factor of good or bad teeth is a debatable question. If one or both parents have poor jaw development, irregular teeth or defective arch formation the children are probably predisposed to similar defects. On the other hand, if one or both parents have regular, even teeth and normal jaw development the children are more likely to follow suit. So it would seem fair to say that in this instance Mrs. B. R.'s excellent teeth should cancel the effect of Mr. R's defect upon the children.

It is a sad, indeed a tragic condition when a youth neglects care of his or her teeth so recklessly that he or she requires artificial teeth before he or she has grown up. Although Mrs. B. R. doesn't say so, her query implies that her husband's teeth were lost by decay (caries) and not by accident.

Other factors than neglect of the care of the teeth are concerned formation) but they are minor or incidental—just plain stupid neglect is the important cause of destructive caries.

Up to this point a ninnyhammer may take for granted that care of the teeth means brushing the teeth after every meal or at least twice a day. In my lexicon brushing the teeth is make-believe dental or oral hygiene. As a fair appraisal of its influence upon preservation of the teeth, consider the extreme rarity of sound teeth in England and America, where tooth brushing is most popular, and the rarity of caries or cavity-formation in Tristan da Cunha (and in other parts of the world as noted in Price's Nutrition and Physical Degeneration) where tooth brushing is unknown.

Proper care of the teeth means the prevention of prophylaxis which only one's dentist can apply; regular inspection, scaling, polishing when necessary; and immediate treatment of any tiny cavities the dentist may find.

Proper care of the teeth means see your dentist, not once, twice or four times a year; it means have your teeth inspected by your dentist as often as may be necessary to keep them free from cavities

There isn't room here to mention the general or systemic factors of sound teeth and degeneration or decay. The effects of good nutrition and nutritional deficiency (malnutrition) of the mother before the child is born, of the infant and young child, of the adolescent who has not yet cut all of his or her wisdom teeth, are described in the booklet Save Your Teeth, for which send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Mind, now, I do not contend that regular brushing of the teeth with whatever flavor of soap or other detergent your fancy dictates does any particular harm—other than the waste of time and money involved. I do assert, with plenty of orrefutable evidence to corroborate the truth, that in all human experience tooth brushing has nothing to do with preservation of the teeth.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Imported Bird Seed

Please explain the particular virtues of ——— (trade name for imported bird seed) prescribed by leading physicians for chronic colitis etc. (H. S.)

Answer—In my opinion nothing is quite equal to plain old flaxseeds (not ground to meal but whole) for colon derangement. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

Shoo! Shoo!

Healthy baby, 26 months old, raised on the Brady Baby Book. Spinster aunt insists on feeding her candy to win favor. First it was tea and coffee, but we stopped that. (H. M.)

Answer—Give Auntie the old heave-ho if she does not co-operate. It is an unhappy day for any child when those responsible for the child's health and happiness begin cheating the child with substitutes for real food—such cheat-foods as white sugar, white flour, refined syrup, pop. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for The New Brady Baby Book. If you are not yet in the baby business send 25c and s.a.e. for Preparing For Maternity—required reading for both prospective father and prospective mother.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The season now closing produced no sadder figure than a gentleman of my acquaintance who got his fill of fishing.

For thirty years, he has been one of those ardent but luckless anglers who are familiar wherever anglers gather. He just has not got the knack, and doesn't seem to be able to learn. Despite the fact that he has enjoyed the fishing company of experts in all styles of angling, he remains a complete dub. He has every known sort of tackle. He has fished from Newfoundland to Campbell River. But he just can't catch fish.

Last February he went with his wife on a winter holiday of six weeks to the Gulf of Mexico, spending his time between New Orleans and Corpus Christi. In all that time, he did nothing but fish. And he got his fill of fishing.

On the postcards he sent his friends, and the six by eight enlargements of professional snapshots taken on wharves beside the abounding Gulf!

He got great big fish and little wee fish; he hoicked in tons of them. The whole deck of the boat would be covered with floundering fish of a dozen different kinds as he trolled with the tackle the professional guides outfitted him. He had literally a whale of a time.

He was a changed man. Back home in April, covered with sun tan, he walked with a new spring in his step and greeted his old sporting friends with an air of equality he had never been able to affect before.

Then came the past summer, and he returned to the haunts of trout and pike and bass.

"I don't seem to get any kick out of it," he began remarking, after a week or so. "I keep remembering the Gulf, and oh, the fish you get down there. . ."

To get your fill of anything is fatal.

"I don't get any kick out of fishing anymore," he confessed finally. "I think I'll have to take up golf or something. . ."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE BRIGHT PROMISES

Adoniram Judson, the great Baptist missionary to Burma, was cast into prison shortly after he arrived in that land. A chain attached to a heavy log bound him day and night. To make matters worse he fell ill with one of the most decimating of tropical fevers. His devoted wife Ann visited him every day and tried to comfort him and keep him alive.

When things were at the worst a letter came from the missionary board in the United States which had sent him out. It contained this eager and anxious question from his supporters: "What are the prospects in Burma?" And the poor fever-ridden prisoner directed his wife to write back these words: "The prospects are as bright as the promises of God."

Judson lived to do one of the most outstanding pieces of missionary work ever achieved in the history of the Christian Church. He was a man who could not be beaten. He knew no defeat because he regarded himself as one of God's servants and God, he believed, could not be defeated. He had nothing to rely upon through a long life of sacrifice but the promises of God. Every day these were as sunshine round about him and at night they were like the glorious stars over his head.

If we only had faith to believe, we also would say: "The prospects are always as bright as the promises of God."

Company Seeks Permission To Build 'Wall'

Trenton (Special)—To provide additional safeguards against contamination of river water by plant wastes, The Canada Creosoting Company Limited has asked council for permission to install a "seal off wall" and new drainage lines on Ontario Street, opposite their Trenton plant.

The company proposes to install a 12-inch concrete wall approximately 700 feet long in a generally east-west direction on Ontario Street. This wall is to be carried down to the rock and slightly above ground level.

The part of Ontario Street where the company intends to carry out this project is occupied by C.P.R.-C.N.R. siding tracks but the street has never been officially closed and is still town property. Both railroads have indicated that they have no objection to the company's plans.

A shallow ditch next to the wall on the plant side would be part of the installation. This ditch will lead to a settling chamber for removing possible oil contamination. Also involved is a revision of surface drains across the street to take care of surface drainage from springs.

Benedict Proctor Wins First Game In Semi-Finals

Trenton (Special) — Benedict Proctor Silvermen defeated Hinde and Dauch 7 to 3 in the first game of their semi-final Industrial League playoffs Tuesday night.

Paced by a three-run homer by Chesher in the fifth and a triple by second sacker Miron in the third, the Silvermen collected a total of seven hits off Harry Farr who handled the hurling duties for Hinde and Dauch.

Bernie Jackson on the Benedict Proctor mound also gave up seven hits but the papermen were only able to convert three of their safeties into runs.

The two team clash again tonight at Bayshore Park and the papermen have to come up with a win to stay in the series. Zigman Scrappers, the other team in the three team loop won a bye into the finals and will meet the winner of the Hinde and Dauch-Benedict Proctor series.

Proctor series.

Toronto Man Given Term For Burglary

Appearing for sentence on a charge of breaking and entering the Belleville Livestock Sales on July 30th, and also to being in possession of burglary tools, Wm. George Windsor, 29, Toronto house painter, was sentenced to 18 months definite and 12 months indefinite in the reformatory.

The above sentence was given on the breaking and entering charge, with a six months current sentence being given by Magistrate T. Y. Wills on the charge of having burglary tools in his possession. Windsor pleaded guilty to the two charges Wednesday and was remanded until today for sentence.

A third charge of being in possession of liquor was withdrawn by the Crown.

Jointly charged with Windsor on the breaking and entering count and also with having possession of burglar tools, Clifford Blanchfield, Toronto, had the charges withdrawn by the Crown owing to lack of evidence. Blanchfield, however, pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving and was assessed $20 fine and $13 costs.

The two men were charged with breaking and entering the Belleville Livestock Sales and smashing the office safe, taking approximately $80 in cash. The two men were arrested in the vicinity of Odessa after provincial police had broadcast the licence number of the car they were using.

Child Struck When Running Across Road

Trenton — (Special) — Struck by a car when he dashed across Dundas Street at the western end of the Trent River bridge yesterday afternoon, five - year - old David Waters of William Street suffered abrasions on his right shoulder and to the right side of his head and forehead.

John M. Brown, of 114 63rd Street, Niagara Falls, New York, was the driver of the car which struck the boy. Mr. Brown, who was travelling east on Dundas St., told police that the young Waters boy narrowly escaped being hit by a westbound car, as he ran in front of the two lines of traffic.

The injured boy was rushed to the office of Dr. J. V. Byrne by ambulance and after receiving medical attention, was allowed to go home.

Constable William Westfall investigated.

James Fosbraey Enters Appeal Against Sentence

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—A thick stack of letters written by an R.C.A.F. veteran to his estranged wife have been introduced as evidence in his appeal against a death sentence for her murder.

The letters, written by a 29-year-old James Fosbraey from England to his wife in Napanee, Ont., during the month before he arrived in Napanee and stabbed her to death last November were presented by Defence Counsel W. B. Williston to the Ontario Court of Appeal as evidence of insanity and provocation. If the appeal fails, Fosbraey is scheduled to be hanged Sept. 21.

Mr. Williston noted yesterday that the letters, more than 80 in number, contained threats against the woman's life as well as threats of suicide. Fosbraey had gone to England, promising to obtain a divorce with money his wife had given him, but later changed his mind and deluged her with letters pleading for a reconciliation.

"The letters were most violent at times," Mr. Williston told the court. "He called her vile names and charged adultery."

But he added that there were no threats in the later letters.

The hearing before five appeal court justices is continuing. It is expected that a decision may be handed down late today.

CONVICT GIVES SKIN

Detroit, Sept. 7 (AP) —Temporarily freed from the Iowa State penitentiary, convict Ed Wdowicki gave some of his skin yesterday in an effort to save the life of his five-year-old daughter, Carol. The girl was critically burned June 9 when her dress caught fire at her home. At the time, her 35-year-old father was serving a five-year assault term.

Chamber Wants Better Car Ferry Service at Glenora

Picton—The need of increased accommodation for cars using the Glenora - Adolphustown ferry, was stressed at a meeting of directors of Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday noon at the Globe hotel. A delegation of James DeC. Hepburn, J. D. Baxter M.P.P., Dr. Lawson Mackle, President of the Tourist Association and Philip Dodds, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was named to arrange for an interview with the Minister of Highways of Ontario to discuss the matter.

Members stated there were many complaints resulting from the delays in crossing and that these might have a serious effect on the tourist traffic. The possibility of a larger ferry or an additional large ferry was mentioned.

The matter of a free ferry at Green Point was laid over until a general meeting when merchants will be given an opportunity to voice their opinions. The Tourist Association had earlier endorsed the proposal.

Woman Praised

President G. S. Slack referred in complimentary terms to Miss Cecelia Folkard who had been given the Dow award for bravery. He mentioned the fine publicity received by the county as a result of the regatta sponsored by Prince Edward Yacht Club and the outboard racers who had been successful at the C.N.E. The baseball club was commended on its record and support urged as it continues in the playoffs. The Canadian Legion received tribute on the award received from the Provincial Command and the motorcycle races. All had contributed towards making Prince Edward better known.

The secretary was instructed to send suitable letters to each of these concerned expressing the Chamber's good wishes.

The Chamber of Commerce will in conjunction with the Yacht Club, if possible, arrange a dinner meeting with Harold Wilson as guest of honor when he comes here this month for mile trials with Miss Canada IV.

The president, secretary and treasurer K. I. Mitchell were named a committee to arrange for such a banquet.

Nick Welsh reported many big fish entered in the fishing competition, with the season closing October 15.

Report on Tourist Booth

K. I. Mitchell reported the activities of the tourist information booth operated by Quinte's Isle (Prince Edward) Tourist Association, a branch of the Chamber of Commerce. There had been 474 incoming phone calls, 985 outgoing phone calls and 866 registrations from July 11 to Sept. 3. Many had not registered. All kinds of information had been supplied and in one case the operator had acted in an emergency when a doctor was needed. "Having had close contact with the booth, I think it is one of the finest things which has been done. It has given real service," Mr. Mitchell said.

The president thanked Mr. Mitchell, Dr. Mackle, L. B. Calnan and others who had contributed to the success of the booth. It had been a marvelous success and the association deserves praise, he declared.

The Chamber decided to further assist the association, financially, if possible, at the end of the year, since the first year of operation was the most costly.

A letter is to be sent H. J. McFarland thanking him for his contribution to the success of the banquet given D. P. Pyke.

Complain of Nets

Nixon Welsh told of complaints being received from Wellington that nets set near the piers were catching pickerel going from West Lake to Lake Ontario. Efforts are being made to have this condition remedied. Such nets have been seriously affected fishing in this lake, and other waters about the county have suffered from nets, especially during the spawning season. It was stated most lake fishermen would favor a ban on nets during the spawning season but that there would be objections from some bay fishermen.

A discussion on parking meters, stressed the need for courtesy and common sense on the part of those enforcing the by-laws.

Plans for the December Santa Claus parade, in charge of Don Thomas and Phil Dodds, will be made at the next general meeting.

MAY BAN LIGHTERS

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 7 (CP)—Restrictions on importing of certain types of Japanese lighters will be requested by the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs.

Delegates to the Association's annual convention Wednesday unanimously adopted a report on the subject from Chief Arthur Burch of St. Catharines, Fire Prevention Committee chairman.

Chief Burch said the lighters are constructed to look like tripod cameras. "When one falls," he said, "the lid flies open and ignites the lighter, constituting a definite fire hazard."

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

BACHELOR'S RETREAT

Kingsmere, Quebec—Since Mackenzie King's death many Canadians seem to have felt a compulsion to understand him as a man, as he was never understood while he lived.

In Ottawa particularly, there is already the beginning of a Mackenzie King legend in which the former prime minister emerges as a somewhat mystic figure, yet with a stature few people seemed willing to concede him in his lifetime.

The thousands who filed solemnly past his casket to stare at the heavy face of a man they never knew, the crowds who are still visiting Laurier House, his Ottawa home, and the beautiful summer estate here in the green Gatineau hills, reflect a kind of delayed realization that Canada had known the statesman and politician without understanding the man.

Something of this same feeling was behind our visit to Kingsmere, but the clues available are mainly contradictions.

The estate is a beautiful place. Every corner of it looks like a color layout in House and Garden. So many tourists have driven out here since Mr. King's death that signs have been placed on the white fences inscribed "No Visitors Please" a temperate warning which Mr. King would no doubt approve). I had made arrangements in Ottawa to go through the grounds and Mrs. Frank Kelly, a lively Irish woman who had been Mr. King's housekeeper for the past six years, came out of the white two-storey house to welcome me.

We stood for a moment looking up at the window of the second floor, where Mr. King had died, and Mrs. Kelly was moved to some of the kind of reminiscing one hears a good deal in Ottawa from those nearest Mr. King.

"He was a very quiet man," Mrs. Kelly said in her soft Irish voice. "We had to be careful to see what kind of mood he was in. Some mornings he would be quite cheery and pass the time of day, but of course he was never the kind of man you felt you could chinwag with. Usually he was deep in thought and we tried not to bother him."

Mrs. Kelly paused a moment, as if trying to recall her employer's personality. "He was a very quiet man," she said again.

Morning Stroll

Wherever you walk about the 580 acres of the Kingsmere place you're reminded that Mr. King was a lonely man or, at any rate, a man very often alone.

Behind the house, where an immaculate lawn slopes away to the moors stands a giant old maple and in under its shade is a small wrought-iron table. This was a favorite retreat for Mr. King on hot days and when one heavy limb of the old tree split loose from the trunk he had a heavy chain cinched about it. From this leafy place there is a view of a large vegetable and flower garden, bright with color now.

"Mr. King loved flowers," Mrs. Kelly said, "and he liked to walk out over the moors. Most mornings after breakfast at eight he would take Pat, his little dog, and set off on a stroll. If you walk through the gate you will see the path he took."

I decided to follow the route and found that a neat path had been mowed through the tall brown grass. It wound upwards through groves of pine trees and it was not hard to imagine Mr. King, dressed in the white linen suit he wore regularly in the country, taking his morning stroll and pausing on high ground to contemplate the rolling green hills. It gives the visitor a sense of history to realize that many decisions affecting his life must have been made in this pastoral scene.

The path is intersected by another which leads to the home of the Patterson's, life-long friends of Mr. King who rented his adjoining cottage, itself beautifully kept and surrounded by summer blooms.

Mrs. Patterson, a fine-looking woman with snow white hair, came out to the porch and spoke simply of the loss of her old friend and neighbor. "We miss him, but then everyone does, I imagine," she said.

From inside the home came the sound of a news announcer with the latest bulletins on the railway strike. "It would never have happened if Mr. King had been at the helm," Mrs. Patterson said resolutely. "He had a genius for finding a way to compromise."

As It Was

In his will Mr. King bequeathed his Kingsmere home as a permanent summer residence for future prime ministers of Canada and the acreage surrounding it as a public park.

At the moment there is an almost eerie hush over the estate and to wander alone through the gardens and fields beyond, remembering that Baldwin, Neville Chamberlain, Roosevelt, Attlee and many another shaper of destiny strolled here, invites reflection. Ottawa is no more than 15 miles to the south, but it might be in another world.

The house itself is deserted except for the rooms occupied by Mrs. Kelly and her husband, who had been Mr. King's gardener for 15 years, and while some of the furniture has been moved from Mr. King's quarters to Laurier House the rooms are exactly as they were when he was alive.

The house is not open to the public, but a glance through the curtains reveals sedate, period furniture and an atmosphere with a formality not generally associated with country houses or bachelors.

Miss California Wins Preliminary Round in Pageant

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 7—(AP)—Miss California— Joanne Durant of San Diego—last night won the first bathing-suit preliminary in the Miss America pageant.

Wearing a chartreuse suit, the 21-year-old blonde won over 18 other aspirants in the bathing suit preliminary, one of three divisions of the contest.

Miss Durant is five feet, five inches tall, has a 35-inch bust, 24-inch waist and 35-inch hips. She weighs 112.

A victory in one of the three preliminary contests— bathing suit, talent and evening gown—usually means the winner will be one of the 15 finalists to battle it out Saturday night for the big crown, but not always.

Miss California will appear in the evening-gown division tomorrow night and will sing to demonstrate her talent Friday night.

The 54 girls from the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico alternate in groups of 18 in evening gown, bathing suit and talent competition. As an example, a girl who appeared last night in talent, will be in tonight's bathing-suit competition and in Friday night's evening-gown show. Miss Canada —19-year-old Margaret Bradford, of London, Ont.,—is representing the Dominion in the contest.

WEDDINGS

CARSWELL—GENEREAUX

On Monday morning, September 4th., at nine o'clock, the Sacred Heart Church in Madoc, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Theresa Mary Genereaux, Madoc, daughter of Mrs. John Genereaux, was united in marriage to Clifford James Carswell, Madoc, son of Mrs. William Carswell. Rev. F. D. Hyland was the officiating clergyman. Wedding music was played by Marjorie Lahey with guest soloist, Mr. Gerard Lahey.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, David Genereaux, wore a floor-length dress of white satin with train and a fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Ellen Mary Genereaux was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a floor-length dress of pale blue taffeta with blue accessories and her bouquet was of pink roses.

Mr. Charles Genereaux, of Tweed, was best man and the ushers, Mr. James Reid, Madoc, and Mr. Clarence Carswell, of Oshawa, Ontario.

Following the ceremony a dinner was served at the home of the bride and a reception held at the Orange Hall, Madoc. The bride's mother received her guests in a navy blue crepe dress with corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a grey suit and corsage of red roses.

For travelling through Quebec the bride chose a grey gabardine suit with navy blue accessories.

Relatives were in attendance from Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, and Oshawa.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Carswell will reside at Madoc.

CAMERON—RODGERS

On September 4th., at three o'clock in the afternoon, St. John's United Church, Tweed, Ontario, decorated with pink and white gladioli, was the setting for the double ring ceremony of Margaret Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Rodgers, to Mr. Keith Godderham Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Keith Cameron, Welland, Ontario.

Wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. Fred Porter. Mrs. Merrill Dales sang "Until" and during the signing of the register, "O Sweet Mystery of Life". Rev. A. L. Sisco officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked radiant in a graceful floor-length gown of white slipper satin which swept to a circular train, with long sleeved "bertha" bodice and peplum of French lace. A tiara of mother of pearl sequins and seed pearls held her fingertip veil of embroidered tulle. She carried a bouquet of blush roses and baby's breath. She wore a three-strand pearl necklace with matching earrings, a gift from the groom.

Miss Barbara Ann Ketcheson, as maid of honor, chose a canary yellow taffeta gown with matching picture hat and gauntlets. She carried a bouquet of gladioli petals and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids, Miss Rose Mary Breen and Miss Shirley Morgan, were frocked in Bishop's orchid and apple green taffeta with matching picture hats and boleros. They carried similar bouquets of yellow gladioli petals and baby's breath.

The flower girl, Leona Woods, cousin of the bride, was gowned in apple green taffeta with matching bonnet and carried a basket of pink roses and baby's breath.

Mr. Donald G. Cameron was groomsman for his brother, Messrs. Edwin Champagne and Ernest Rodgers were the ushers.

The reception was held in the parlor of the church which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a grey faille dress with French lace inserts and navy blue accessories. The groom's mother, wearing a navy French taffeta suit, with pink accessories also received the guests.

The bride and groom left for Toronto and Sarnia and will reside in Tweed upon their return.

The bride chose for travelling a satin dress of navy with grey accessories and wore a corsage of pink roses.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. T. B. D. Tudball from St. Andrew's College, Aurora; Mrs. R. J. E. Graham, Miss Barbara Graham, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Graham, all of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rodgers, of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farrar, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Steinson, all of Trenton.

SCULLY—QUINN

Marmora.—Gladioli and other Autumn flowers on the altar of Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, was the setting for the wedding of Frances Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Quinn, Marmora, and Leo Joseph Scully, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Scully, Lindsay. The ceremony was performed and the Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill. Mrs. Joseph Murray played the wedding music and Mrs. Hugh Brady sang "Ave Maria", "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother" and "Sweet Sacrament Divine".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory slipper satin with sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves tapering to a point at the wrists. The full skirt encircled by two rows of corded braid, ended in a slight train. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a coronet of seed pearls and she carried a crescent cascade of white gladioli.

Miss Reta Drumm, Toronto, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of yellow faille taffeta, with matching headdress and mittens, and carried a Colonial bouquet of mauve gladioli.

Miss Anne Quinn, Peterborough, was bridesmaid. She was similarly dressed in green faille taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli.

The groomsman was Mr. Kenneth Scully and the ushers were Carl Scully and Gerald Quinn.

A reception was held at the Royal Hotel, Marmora. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing a wine faille dress, with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother was unable to attend.

For a trip to Quebec City, the bride wore a navy gabardine suit with grey accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Out-of-town guests were from Rochester, N.Y., Toronto, Ottawa, Peterborough, Lindsay, Campbellford, Grafton, Madoc and Brighton.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

(The author of these articles, Mrs. J. R. Futcher, of St. Thomas, is accompanying the Canadian members of the Women's Institute on a trip to Copenhagen, where they will attend the triennial convention of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She is president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, and this series of articles is written to keep the members of the W.I. and all interested informed of the highlights of the trip.)

Cheshire, England.

You can never guess where I am and what I am seeing. I am standing in the guest room of my hostess, Mrs. Whatmough Gayton, Heswall Village in Cheshire, about ten miles from Liverpool, looking out across the estuary of the River Dee, to Wales. This is the River Dee named in the old nursery rhyme, The Miller on the Dee, and the mill still stands near Chester.

Mrs. Whatmough (Elsie) is a member of the Barnston Institute and is the efficient convener and producer of drama for the Institute. She is a graduate of the University of Liverpool in Honor English and under her supervision members are busy preparing three one-act plays for the new season. This is a very interesting household indeed. Mr. Whatmough is an ornithologist, interested particularly in zoology. Will you also have to ask what this is? It is the study of birds' eggs and nesting habits, and Frank has a collection beautifully preserved and labelled that is not surpassed anywhere in the world. At nesting time (February to June) he visits the wild moors of Wales, the highlands of Scotland and the Orkney and Shetland Islands, knowing just where to go for the species he wants. I'm learning a great deal about bird life and bird habits.

Isn't it amazing how one's knowledge is continually broadened? I know something new about the Shetlanders. They are almost entirely self-sufficient, asking very little of the outside world. Although so far north due to the warming influence of the Gulf Stream their climate is not variable, remaining about 50 degrees. But the winds are severe, a strong wind blowing all the time because there isn't anything to stop it. This is the home of Shetland wool and I was interested to know that the wool is plucked or pulled, never sheared. It is the warmest wool in the world. When I asked Frank about their livelihood he said "the Orkadian is a farmer with a boat and the Shetlander is a fisherman with a croft" (small holding). The Shetlander has a unique way of curing his hens of broodiness. He either hangs them in a bag on the clothesline, letting them spin round and round in the stiff wind, or he takes them away about two miles from home, and lets them fight their way back. In either case they are so harried and beaten about by the wind, that broodiness is forgotten.

I've always heard of the delightful English countryside, and today I took my first walk down a winding English lane to the River Dee. There were no sidewalks, but Cheshire is noted for its hard surfaced roads. On either side were stone walls, topped with beautifully trimmed hedges of hawthorne or holly. The glimpse behind these walls of English cottages with casement windows and delightful gardens is far too short. I long to swing on the garden gate and look my fill. The English can do so much with a little plot of ground. The roadside is lovely everywhere—and neat and tidy. If not walled, laurel and oak trees hang over the lane and the beautiful English ivy that we treasure in pots at home climbs everywhere, over the walls and banks and up the trees.

The tide is in when we reach the Dee, for this is really the estuary of the river ; the mud flats have disappeared and it is now a rolling river with whitecaps showing.

We drove into Wales this afternoon via the old Roman city of Chester. The wall built by the Romans still stands and two of the old gateways have been preserved. Chester is the English word for the Latin (castra), meaning camp. The houses are very old, of the Tudor type. You have all seen them on Christmas cards—gabled and beamed in black and white. The chimney pots on all the homes intrigue me. I've counted as many as eight in one chimney. Not having central heating, each room has its own fireplace and its own flue. It is one of the first things you notice about the houses, and they are quite attractive.

Just over the river we pass famous Eaton Hall, the estate of the Duke of Westminster, stretching for miles each way. He is one of the wealthiest men in England and owns about half of Mayfair—the exclusive residential district in the heart of London. We come to one little village after the other—you can't tell where you lose one and enter the next. We pass many coal mines with their big wooden shafts and huge ugly piles of slag—the only unsightly thing I've seen.

We had afternoon tea at Llangollen—a quaint Welsh town in the valley of Cwlyd. Then we started to climb the steep hills of Wales, covered with gorse and bracken and crowned with purple heather. I had to pick some and take some pictures of the Welsh mountain sheep who have the run of the hills and roadsides. The farm, homes, walls and barns are of stone—very often home and barn joined together in the shape of an L. This is the region of the slate quarries and the walls are of dry stone—mortar is only used when the stone is upended. It is hard to believe they have stood thus for hundreds of years.

We reach the top of Horseshoe Pass and the view is breathtaking—farm homes clustered in the valleys and every hilltop a mass of purple heather at its best—a vast rolling sea of purple. Here and there are beehives spread against a stone wall, brought far up into the hills so that the heather might provide the last great honey flow of the year. Heather honey is dark and has a distinct tang to the taste. On the way back we pass Hawarden, the birthplace of William Gladstone, and catch a glimpse of a lovely old stone house and a large statue to his memory. Today we climbed high Thenstasten Hill and the beautiful panorama of the countryside lay all around us—we could see the estuaries of the Mersey and the Dee rivers and away in the distance the tower of famous Liverpool Cathedral.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge — Mrs. Grant Miller and children are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sine before joining her husband who has been transferred to Nova Scotia.

Mr. John Hogg has returned home after his month's vacation with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hendrick of Foxboro and Mr. and Mrs. L. Hendrick of Trenton.

W. I. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Harris on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance.

Mr. Arnold Wannamaker spent the weekend at his home. He is working at Port Hope.

Mrs. M. Harris who has been spending the past few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Woods of Madoc returned to the home of her son Mr. Frank Harris.

Miss Ella Phillips who has been spending her vacation at her home has returned to Hamilton where she is teaching.

Vacation over, the children are seen wending their way back to school with a number of little tots beginning. Mrs. George Rikley is teacher.

Little Miss Marilyn Langabeer of Belleville spent a week with her aunt, Mrs. Frank Harris.

The recent rains have delayed the threshing but it has been a benefit to the pasture and also ploughing has been made easier.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

The private life of the oyster is again open to the public. Although oysters were cultivated as long as 2,000 years ago, only recently have scientists learned about the inside life of bivalve.

Rutgers University scientists in recent experiments discovered that oysters eat 20 hours a day and that each oyster draws through its gills over a barrel of water daily in order to feed.

While oysters are eaten all year in some states, other states go on the annual oyster fast from May until September. Oyster scientists continually point out that oysters are edible and nourishing all year long.

There is almost no limit to the number of ways in which oysters can be combined with other foods. Oysters are broiled, baked, fried, steamed and poached. They are used in stews, soups and chowders. They are delicious as a stuffing for poultry or meat, and are superb with spaghetti, macaroni and rice—as in today's recipe.

Oysters generally vary in size from 500 to 1,000 to the barrel. Eight medium-size oysters are a generous serving. Use 8 medium size or 6 large oysters per serving in today's recipe.

Rice and Oyster Jambalaya. Serves 4.

Order 32 medium-size freshly opened oysters, or use thawed frozen oysters. Examine oysters carefully to remove any pieces of shell. Drain the oyster liquor. Add enough water to the oyster liquor to make 1 3-4 cups liquid. Set aside.

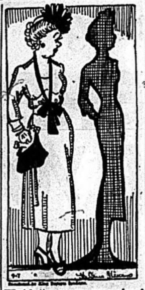
Cut 1-4 pound bacon into 1-2 inch squares. Pan fry in a heavy saucepan until crisp. Remove bacon. Let fat remain in pan.

Chop fine 1 medium-size green pepper, 1 medium size onion and 2 cloves of garlic. Add the chopped vegetables to the bacon fat and simmer until onion turns yellow.

Wash 1 cup of rice in 4 cold waters or until water is left clear. Drain. Add rice to the pan. Add the 1 3-4 cups liquid previously set aside. Add 1 small bay leaf, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Cut the oysters into quarters and add to the pan. Add bacon squares. Bring liquid to a boil. Lower heat as much as possible. Cover pan with a tight lid, and cook until rice is tender, 18-22 minutes. Do not stir rice during cooking. Remove lid and continue to cook several minutes to steam rice dry. Remove bay leaf from rice before serving. Serve with an 8-ounce can of tomato sauce heated with 1 teaspoon butter. Pass sauce separately at the table.

BEAUTY

Professional figure-remodelling



What better use can you make of your spending-change than putting it into the business of transforming your silhouette.

If it has happened that the youthful lines of your figure seem to have evaporated, and you have not the will or the heart to cut down on certain appetizing groceries and to stick to a routine of exercises, you can find professional help that will see that you do those little things. Teachers of physical education have established salons where the feminine form is altered. It is a matter of exchanging old shapes for new, and being very pleased with yourself.

What price beauty? Plenty. But what better use can you make of your spending-change than putting it into the business of transforming your silhouette? How you look has a lot to do with how you feel, as every woman knows. An observing husband has been known to remark "When my wife gets up in the morning she looks in the mirror to see if she feels well or not." Get a laugh out of that. You probably do it yourself.

It has been found that by arranging the proper diet and by treating the musculature through various exercises, done under professional supervision, that measurements can be increased or decreased, as the case may be, and weight can be regulated. You could, of course, waft happily through this state of transition under your own steam if you would stick to your health rules, but as one progresses slowly, one is likely to be discouraged, give up after a few weeks.

If you seek the services of an expert worker in figure magic, you will be told at the start that you must follow diet rules to the letter, keep every appointment. No stop-and-go customers are wanted.

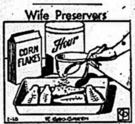
Posture correction is accented, no matter whether the patron wants her hips deleted or her bust developed. When a woman learns to carry herself properly, it is surprisingly how quickly the battle of the bulge is won. Good carriage is equally important for the skinny one who would carry curves.

Exercises are taken on a mat on the floor—leg stretching, body rolling, arching the spine. The plump ones are massaged by a rolling machine that breaks down fatty tissues. If arms need reducing, the customers are made to clutch rings, suspended by ropes from the ceiling, that are swung from side to side. Muscles have to work. On strong muscles, fat cells will not abide.

There are reducing baths, followed by vigorous massage, to put one in form.

Facials are a part of the reducing ritual. When taking off weight there is a possibility of getting saggy chin tissues, and that must be avoided.

Wife Preservers



Equal parts of finely crushed cornflakes and flour will make a crisp crust for fish. Keep heat turned low because you do not need as high heat to brown this crust.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Teen-agers and the dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it the boy or the girl who thanks for the dance? Or do both express thanks?

2. How does a boy ask a girl for a dance?

3. My brother told me that when a boy "cuts in" on me when I'm dancing with a girl, I must not cut in on this boy. Is this true?

4. Also is it true that a boy is supposed to dance the first dance with the girl he has taken to the dance?

Bob K.

1. It is the boy who thanks his partner. . .not with any particular formality, but a "Thank you" with a pleasant smile that shows he's polite. The girl doesn't thank her partner. . . but says something like, for example, "That was delightful Bob," or "I enjoyed that dance so much," or "It was grand!"

2. With teen-agers this invitation is certainly on the casual side, no grown-up formality. "Would you like to dance?". . . or "Shall we?". . . or, with a smile, the one important word "Dance?"

3. This is true. When a boy "cuts in" on a dance, you relinquish your partner, and you must not cut in again on that girl until some one else has cut in on her. In other words she must be dancing with someone other than the boy who cut in on you.

4. Yes. . .always, and a most important courtesy.

Family problem may mother give daughter in marriage?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle a discussion in our family concerning one of the plans for my youngest sister's wedding. My Dad has been dead about twenty-two years. Eight years ago, when I was married, my young brother escorted me to the altar. I wanted so much to have my mother give me in marriage. . .I felt that since my father was gone, my mother was the proper one to give me away. . . but she refused. Then when another sister was married, she was given away by my father's brother, which caused hard feeling between him and my other uncle. And now that my youngest sister is to be married, my brother's wife has suggested that my mother give her away. My sister wants this very much; my mother has finally agreed. Now several friends say that this is not correct. Correct or not correct?

J. G.

Correct. I suggest that your brother escort your sister, the bride, up the aisle, and that your mother give her in marriage. One procedure is for your mother, when the bride and her brother reach the first pew on the left, to step from her pew, the brother then stepping into this pew. During the first part of the ceremony, behind her; then she replies "I do" to the minister's question, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" Or, if your mother prefers, she may remain standing in her place in the first pew, and, in reply to the minister's question, say "I do" or merely nod her assent.

Point of business etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary for a man in a business office to stand when a woman visitor to his office gets up to leave?

W. U.

Yes. . . .and if he is really courteous he goes to the door with her, or even to the elevator.

FRANKFORD

Congregation Honors Rev. Stanley Grant And Mrs. Grant

Frankford—On Thursday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Currie, the congregation of the Full Gospel Tabernacle gathered to honor Rev. and Mrs. Stanley Grant, recent newlyweds. Mrs. Grant (nee June Richardson) is well known in Frankford, having been employed by the Bata Shoe Company for some time. She is a graduate this year of Toronto Eastern Pentecostal Bible College. The evening began with prayer by Mr. Mac Wilson. Chairman Reg. Solmes led in the singing of several choruses. Mrs. Grant favored with a solo. A trio of girls, Barbara Currie, Connie Elliott and Helen Patrick sang the motion song "The Raven's Wings Went Flap, Flap." The quartet favored with a number and also a duet by Mary Lee Appleby and Mary Elliott was enjoyed. Other choruses were sung.

The bride and groom were then ushered into the dining room where Mrs. Gerald Currie read an address from the congregation. This was followed by an umbrella shower of confetti, and response by Julia and Stan. They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts.

Refreshments were served at the close of the most enjoyable evening, and all extended their best wishes to the young people as they leave for pastoral duties in Liverpool, Nova Scotia.

BABY'S CONSTIPATION SERIOUS IF NEGLECTED

BABY'S daily movements are something of which absolutely accurate track must be kept. When he misses, something must be done at once. Constipation is serious for baby.

Mrs. John T. Reid of Hespeler, Ont., has this to say: "Having had seven children and having used Baby's Own Tablets for all seven can say they are the best and gentlest regulator for children. During teething Baby's Own Tablets were a boon to me as they cleared up at once any digestive disturbance or fretfulness."

Equally effective for simple fever, teething troubles, upset stomach and other minor ailments of babyhood.

Quick in their action. Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 30 — Money back if not satisfied.

DREFT WASHES DISHES FOR YOU

★ SAVES WIPING...
★ SAVES SCOURING

Just SOAK···RINSE···and you're through!
Dishes and glasses shine···even without wiping!

It's true! With new self-washing Dreft you let your dishes stand in warm Dreft suds for 2 minutes—give a swish of the cloth as you rinse—and you're through. Dishes and glasses shine ... even without wiping.

Pots and pans soak clean without scouring . . . These self-washing suds also work their magic on pots and pans. Have an amazing "floataway" action that gets under grease—floats away grease—better than any soap in the world. Even stubborn grease rinses away without scouring. Yet!—self-washing Dreft leaves hands beautifully smooth and white because it's so mild, and your hands are in the water such a short time. Get self-washing Dreft. Let this new Dreft wash the dishes for you.

Feuding Families In Battle Positions Over Wedding

Athens, Greece, Sept. 7—(AP)—Opponents of the marriage of Crete's romeo and Juliet were reported taking up battle positions on the island today, east of the home of the bridegroom's family. Other partisans of the Petrocogerogi clan, family of the 20-year old bride, hurried to Athens to protest her wedding last week in a lonely Cretan monastery following her abduction by swashbuckling Constantine Kephaloyannis. The two familes have been enemies for generations.

A lawyer for the bridegroom failed today to gain the hotheaded Costa's release from an Athens jail on charges of illegally carrying weapons. A hearing was held before an Athens magistrate, but a final decision of his case must come from the public prosecutor in Herakleion, Crete.

Tassoula, the bride, remained with her husband's relatives, where she has been since Costa was arrested on their arrival in Athens last weekend. She refused to see her father, Liberal party member of parliament George Petracogerogi, who seeks an annulment of the marriage.

The families have feuded for generations. Constantine has said he kidnapped Tassoula and held her prisoner in caves on Crete's legendary Mt. Ida for 11 days before their wedding because the feud made a normal courtship impossible.

Three committees, one headed by the Orthodox Church Metropolitan were here today or due in Athens to protest the marriage.

12-POUND RABBITS

Stockholm — (CP) — Experiments with rabbits at Carolinian Institute here have developed rabbits weighing 12 pounds. The original parents weighed only about 5½ pounds. The experiments were in the line of chromosome multiplication.

Johannesburg Gangs Alarm Youth Workers

Johannesburg — (CP) — Alarmed by increasing reports of juvenile delinquency in South Africa, branches of the International Child Evangelism Fellowship are launching an intensive campaign to reform these young gangsters.

Working on the principle of 'setting youth to get youth,' the Johannesburg group has sent out many teen-age workers — or "reformers" — and is busily training more.

"It will not, of course, be an easy job," Miss Fay Butler, chief organizer of the Transvaal Child Evangelists, said.

"It's happening all over the country. We must get these children before they go too far. Most of them haven't had much of a chance. The examples they get in their homes are often to blame."

Miss Butler said that reports of juvenile rackets had come from prosperous areas as well as from poorer suburbs.

Deplores Passing Of Sweep's Kisses

Dibden Purlieu, Hampshire, England — (CP) — Chimney sweep Frank Miles deplores the passing of old customs associated with his calling — especially the sweep's prerogative of bride-kissing at the church door.

He says the reason is that many people now use vacuum cleaners to remove soot from chimneys.

"How," he asks, "can you wave or blow kisses to a sweep who wears a white coat and hasn't a trace of soot on him?"

Miles has written a book about chimney sweeping in the old days. But, while the 48-year-old sweep says most of the fun has gone from the job, he plans to buy himself one of those new-fangled vacuum cleaners soon.

1,000,000 Trout Produced Yearly By Aussie Farm

Melbourne, Sept. 7 — (CP) — Australia's largest fish hatchery, built to raise 1,000,000 trout a year, will be opened shortly at Snob's Creek in Central Victoria.

The $168,000 hatchery built by the Victorian government covers 300 acres and is on a large tributary of the Goulburn River.

Its site was specially chosen because it has two qualities desirable for trout culture: slightly acid water from the creek suitable for hatching eggs and slightly alkaline water from the river good for rearing young fish.

One experiment to be made at Snob's Creek is reduction of cannibalism among trout. In an arrangement of circular connecting ponds strung along the creek, the upper ponds will be reserved for the smaller fish.

Wire screens of varying meshes will regulate the passage of fish, according to their size, from pond to pond so that the smaller the fish, the higher they will be allowed to go.

Increased Survival

By thus using the habit of trout of swimming up stream, it is estimated the usual low survival rate will be raised to about 80 per cent.

Rainbow and brown trout are already well established in most ponds and streams of the eastern Australian states. These are stocked from hatcheries in Tasmania and New Zealand, but the Victorian project at Snob's creek is more ambitious than anything previously attempted.

The hatchery will also be used to breed native varieties of fish such as Murray cod, MacQuarie perch, golden perch and blackfish. The decline in these varieties has caused state fisheries authorities grave concern in recent years.

From this state-sponsored experiment, the authorities hope that fish farming will be evolved as a part of general farming. Land farmers, especially in the irrigation areas, will be encouraged to breed fish of all varieties to help restock rivers, streams and lakes in all parts of the Commonwealth.

NO FACILITIES

Auckland, N. Z. — (CP) — When a leading gynaecologist was called in to see an elephant suffering from displacement of internal organs, he said: "Although professional ethics normally preclude a medical practitioner from discussing his patients publicly, I have no hesitation in issuing a reassuring bulletin . . . I do not think that surgery will be necessary. In any case, I do not know where theatre facilities large enough to cope with the patient would be available."

'Catman' Knocks With Arrow

Capetown— (CP)—Housewives in the Parow and Tiervlei areas are being worried by an archer calling himself "the catman."

Steel-tipped arrows have been left quivering in doors at night. The thud of the arrow is mistaken for a knock on the front door, and householders answering the "knock" have been rudely surprised.

The three-foot arrows are well-fashioned and the mysterious archer attaches a note to the shaft of the arrow. It reads: "Your house is marked. The catman will come again!"

JUST DON'T WORRY

London — (CP) — Dr. A.G.G. Thompson, health officer for Lambeth, said in an annual report that the best chance for elderly persons "would seem to be to remain active and go on in harness until death overtakes them."

Beesands, Devon, England — (CP) — An 11-year-old boy caught, without help, an 11-pound bass.

GOING FISHING?

Now the fishing season is in full swing. Now, too, is the time to remember, and observe, the fishing regulations. There's a reason for them.

The number of fish available for each season is estimated. The authorities then balance this against the expected number of fishermen to establish catch limits. This is done for your protection to provide a continuing supply of game fish for the future. To permit full growth, minimum lengths are set for various species of fish which may be taken.

Take Black Bass, for example. The maximum catch allowed in Ontario is six per day and the minimum legal length is 10 inches. Only by observing regulations like these will you be sure of enjoying this sport in the future.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"Yes. Someone like an insurance appraiser. That's a splendid idea. I'll have to have it insured if I do buy it. What portion of the appraised value do those people generally write coverage on?" he asked Shayne.

"Up to eighty per cent. Sometimes more. Depending on the reputation of the dealer the current market, things like that."

Voorland nodded approvingly. "In general cases, you are quite correct, Mike. But this isn't a general case. This bracelet is unique and therefore practically priceless. I'm ready to stake my professional reputation that any reputable insurance company will be glad to issue you a policy covering the full purchase price."

"That's good enough for me. You've made a sale if you can fix up a policy on that basis."

Mr. Voorland chuckled and smacked over his gum. "Is Earl Randolph in town, Mike "

"I saw him a couple of days ago."

"Mr. Randolph is one of the shrewdest appraisers in the business," Voorland told Dustin. "I showed him this bracelet two months ago when I was holding it at two hundred thousand, and he asked for a chance to write a policy on it when I sold it. I'll get hold of him at once and I'm sure we'll have no difficulty."

"In that case, I presume you'd like to have a little cash on the line." Mark Dustin's voice was strained as though he realized for the first time what he was letting himself in for. He reached in a side pocket of his slacks, adding "Naturally I don't carry that kind of cash around with me."

"Naturally not, Mr. Dustin." Voorland's voice was shooting and understanding.

"But the bangtails have been coming in for me," Dustin explained as he withdrew a thick clip of bills. "Suppose I give you ten thousand down to bind the sale and a check for the balance."

"Perfectly all right Mr. Dustin."

"It will have to be a check on my bank in Denver. I'm just here for a short time."

"I quite understand," Voorland purred. "Of course you won't expect to take possession until your check has cleared through my local bank."

"Of course not. Wait a minute." Dustin turned to his wife. "When is that shindig in Miami? That fancy shindig at the White Temple."

"Next Friday, Mark. But it doesn't matter..."

"The hell it doesn't. The Crowthers will be there and the Buckleys. And old lady Bastrop with all her diamonds. Do you think I can have it for my wife to wear Friday night?" he asked Voorland.

"This is Monday." Voorland pursed his lips and looked doubtful. "I'm sure I can have the insurance coverage arranged by that time, but the check on Denver will scarcely have time to get back."

"Nonsense," said Dustin. "Give your bank instructions to send it through special. By airmail. And have the Denver bank wire when it clears. Shouldn't take more than two days." His manner evidenced the westerner's contempt for the conservative pace of easterners, and it brought an indulgent smile to Voorland's lips.

He nodded and said, "Very well. If you'll step back to the office Mr. Dustin we'll take care of it right away. Wander around and see what you'd like," he added over his shoulder to Shayne as the three of them went toward his private office. "This will take only a few minutes."

"Who is he?" Lucy exclaimed when they were out of hearing "He looks like a cowboy...or something. I could live in luxury the rest of my life on the money he's throwing away on that trinket."

Shayne grinned and tweaked her ear. "You thought it was pretty in the beginning."

"I still do, but a hundred and eighty thousand dollars! It's criminal to spend money that way. Think how many loaves of bread that would buy for starving children all over the world."

"Let's not think about it." Shayne led her toward the long row of showcases. "Start looking around. but don't stop if you come to any star rubies."

Mark Dustin's sport roadster was one of an unending parade of cars rolling across the Venetian Causeway toward Miami Beach. The last race of the day had been run at Tropical Park, and Dustin was content to relax while the procession crawled at a snail's pace. He had hit a freak daily double at 420 to 1 with a ten-spot, and his four grand winnings made a comfortable wad in his pocket.

Celia was supremely happy beside her husband, pressing close against his shoulder and dreamily contemplating the shifting mass of fleecy clouds above the palm-fringed shore eastward. She was always happy when Mark won at the races. It gave her a deep-rooted sense of security to know that Mark was one of those people who are almost invariably lucky. She no longer worried when he gambled and that part of her past when she was poverty-stricken had gradually become an unreality. Mark had snatched her away from it after a whirlwind courtship lasting exactly five days.

Tonight they would attend the society concert in Miami and she would wear the ruby bracelet She, little Celia Hicks would wear a piece of jewelry worth almost two hundred thousand dollars. She would make herself so beautiful for the occasion that Mark would never forget it never be sorry he had paid so much for the bracelet.

A shiver of delight pulsed through her. She asked excitedly "Will it come Mark? Do you think it will be at the hotel when we get there?" A queer sense of dread suddenly mingled with her happiness.

Mark grinned tollarantly and chided, "Say star ruby bracelet when you mention your anniversary gift, Mrs. Dustin. The idea ...calling it 'it.'"

They laughed together and she said, "Didn't Mr. Voorland tell you this morning?"

"He promised to deliver the bracelet by evening." Mark's voice was quietly emphatic. "His bank had a wire from Denver yesterday saying the check had cleared."

"But didn't he say he would rather have the actual money back here in his account first?"

"Naturally. In a transaction like this where I'm completely unknown to him he wants to take all the precautions possible. He hopes the money will be credited to his account before his bank closes this afternoon, but even if it isn't he said over the phone that the telegraphic assurance would be enough. Don't worry, darling you'll knock everybody's eyes out with that bracelet tonight."

"You should never have bought it, Mark," she said earnestly. "I'll be frightened to death every moment I have it on.. just thinking about how much it cost."

"You'll get used to it," he told her cheerfully. "Just remember it's insured."

"Some people keep expensive things like that locked up in a safe and never wear them," she told him.

"I know. They have cheap replicas made and wear those instead Of all the fool ideas I ever heard of," said Mark explosively, "that's the worst."

They reached the end of the causeway and some of the cars ahead of them turned off to the right or left onto winding, palm-lined drives threading through the length of the peninsula. With the congestion eased, Mark Dustin sat up straight and darted expertly past laggard cars, gauging his speed and distances superbly to gain a couple of minutes in the short distance to the hotel.

In the hotel lobby Celia stood back and waited breathlessly while Mark went to the desk to inquire about the delivery of the package from the jeweler. Her heart sank when she saw the clerk shake his head emphatically and saw the taut anger come into Mark's face.

He strode back toward her and she made herself smile as he hurried to meet him. "Don't you mind darling. It really doesn't matter whether I have it tonight or not."

"Oh yes it does," he said furiously. "That Dutchman promised to have it here and he's going to." He hurried her to the elevator and up to their suite strode to the telephone and brusquely asked for a number.

When a voice replied at the other end Dustin asked for Mr. Voorland. In a moment he said curtly, "Voorland? Dustin. Where the devil is that bracelet you promised to deliver this afternoon?"

He listened a moment and the lines of anger gradually smoothed out of his face. "I see. Then we'll expect it right away. Have him bring it straight up to our suite." He hung up and said, "It's all right, Ceil. Everything is fine. The check cleared through his bank this afternoon and he held up delivery until we were here to sign for it."

Truman Apologizes to Marine Commandant For Harsh Words Put in Letter About Marines

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP) — Harry S. Truman has apologized for his harsh words about the marines in the greatest display of presidential word-eating in recent American history.

One immediate result was an ebbing away today of some of the fury over President Truman's description of the marines as simply a navy police force with a "propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's."

That was the way he sized up the leathernecks in a letter to Representative Gordon McDonough (Rep. Calif) that came to light Tuesday. His words blew up a gale of counter-criticism.

The President was worried. Late yesterday he called marine commandant Clifton B. Cates to the White House and personally handed over a letter that began:

"I sincerely regret the unfortunate choice of language which I used in my letter. . ."

Washington old-timers could remember no comparable language from the White House.

Even so, Republicans are sure to see to it that country hears more about the Truman slip during this year's election campaign.

On Capitol Hill, the incident is cited as proof that the President is (A) A big man or (B) A careless bungler—depending on whether it is a democratic or a republican viewpoint.

Gen. Cates walked from the White House with a wide grin, and a word to reporters that the marines were "very gratified to receive this letter."

Truman rushed a copy to Clay Nixon, national commandant of the Marine Corps League, suggesting that it be read at the National convention of that organization of marine veterans. Nixon complied.

The convention opened yesterday with many a delegate demanding a presidential apology. Some wanted Truman thrown out of the league—he is a member as Commander-in-Chief of Armed Forces.

But it closed the day with a yelling, rising vote of approval for Nixon's statement that the Truman slap at the Marines now is "a closed incident."

The letter to McDonough was in reply to one from the Congressman urging that the marine corps be given a place beside the army, navy and air force on the policy-making joint chiefs of staff. Truman rejected that idea and said:

"The Marine Corps is the navy's police force and as long as I am resident that is what it will remain. They have a propaganda machine that is almost the equal of Stalin's."

English Setter Best-in-Show At Exhibition

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—A five-year-old English setter with four similar awards to his credit won best-in-show honors in the Canadian National Exhibition's dog show Wednesday.

Prun's Own Blue Moon, owned by Jack Thorndyke of Oakville, Ont., walked off with the show's top award, just as he did at [illegible] Kitchener and in last year's C.N.E. show.

Hucko of Newport Knoll, a boxer owned by H. D. Yeager, Ann Arbor, Mich., was named reserve best in show.

Show judge Mrs. Sharman R. Hoyt, Stamford, Conn., picked a dachshund, Egyptian Moe of Joyce owned by Joy Osterdahl, Highland Creek, Ont., as the best Canadian bred dog. The best Canadian bred puppy was Hill House High Hope, a black American cocker spaniel owned by Mr. and Mrs. Austin, Unionville, Ont.

Winner of the non-sporting class was a two-year-old bulldog, Draftsman's Choice O'Vardona, entered by Dr. E. M. Vardon, Detroit. The toy class was won by Bambi Boy of Palermo owned by Charles F. Gilbert, Fergus, Ont.

POSSIBLY ARSON

Whitby, Sept. 7 (CP)—Provincial police said they are investigating the possibility of arson in connection with a $10,000 fire which destroyed the barn of Mike Shisko, two miles southwest of here.

Machine-Gunning 'Cold-Blooded' Says Attorney

Simcoe, Sept. 7 — (CP)—Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven, presiding at the Supreme Court trial of Joseph Herbert McAuliffe, charged with double murder, told the jury Wednesday that it was apparent that much of the Crown's evidence was circumstantial and they would have to draw certain conclusions from the facts.

The slim, sharp-featured McAuliffe appeared calm as he heard Crown counsel D. E. W. Tisdale describe the machine - gunning of Arthur Lierman and William Goddyn June 21, as the "most cold - blooded killing Norfolk county has ever known.

The two men were killed as they chased a lone bandit who held up a branch of the Imperial Bank at Langton, Ont., and sped away in a stolen car. McAuliffe was captured in the area of the slaying after a three day manhunt by police and civilian posse.

Mr. Tisdale said police found McAuliffe's fingerprints on the windshield of the stolen car used by the Langton killer.

The court sustained a defence objection against a Crown attempt to link the theft of a car in Windsor with the robbery and subsequent slaying.

Inspector Leonard Neal of the Ontario Provincial Police described the condition of the bullet-drilled cars found at the scene of the slayings. Thirty discharged .45-calibre cartridge cases were found on the floor of the bandit's car, he said. All bullet holes in the windows of the bandit's car were "exit" holes.

The inspector told of the identification lineup held on Sunday following the capture of McAuliffe. The suspect had been given a bath, shaved and fed. His fingerprints were taken after the lineup and when formally charged with murder, he was asked if he had any statement to make.

"What did he say?" the Crown asked.

"He said 'Let's not go into that,' " replied Inspector Neal.

WANTS ROAD WIDENED

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP)—City Council's Works Committee Wednesday adopted a proposal that [illegible]keshore Boulevard be widened from four to six lanes in order to relieve traffic congestion which develops along Toronto's waterfront during the Canadian National Exhibition.

Third Estimate Shows Canada Fruit Crop Down

Ottawa, Sept. 7—(CP)—Though prospects have improved slightly during the last month, Canada's fruit crops this year will be down from a year ago, the Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday in its third estimate of fruit production in Canada.

All tree-fruit and grape crops showed improvement with the exception of apples and pears. The apple and pear crops are estimated to be three-per-cent lighter than that anticipated in July.

The apple crop, currently set at 15,209,000 bushels, will be 16 per cent below the 1949 harvest of 18 151,000. The drop is expected to result from poorer prospects in Nova Scotia where high winds and severe scab infestation have reduced both the size and quality of the fruit.

The crop in Ontario and British Columbia showed some improvement during the month. Prospects in New Brunswick and Quebec remained unchanged.

The anticipated pear harvest is set at 703,000 bushels 30 per cent lower than last year's crop of 1,000,000. Plums are also down sharply this season the current estimate of 519,000 bushels being 37 per cent below the 1949 level of 827,000. But seven per cent higher than was expected last month.

The peach crop shows a minor upward revision since July at 1,160,000 bushels. The crop, however, still is well below the 1949 harvest of 2,011,000.

Apricots remained unchanged since last month at 12,000 bushels. The cherry estimate, on the other hand, has been revised upward to 324,000 bushels, an increase of four per cent. A five-per-cent improvement in grape prospects since July brings this year's crop to 68,642,000 pounds of 34 per cent more than last year's harvest of 51,104,000.

Information on North Koreans' Master Battle Plan Disclosed After Officer is Captured

Tokyo, Sept. 7 (AP)— Vital information on the North Koreans' master battle plan has been disclosed by a captured officer, an American intelligence officer said today.

He said the plan showed the North Koreans hoped to take the important communications centre of Taegu in a surprise operation. The officer, a lieutenant, was captured in an attack against the red 15th division.

He disclosed that on Aug. 22 his division was ordered to join with the North Korean 1st, 3rd, and 13th divisions for a surprise power drive toward Taegu through the Waegwan and Kunwi corridors northwest of the city.

The intelligence officer quoted the prisoner as saying the plan was changed for two reasons: The determined American resistance in the so-called highway "bowling alley" where red forces were knocked about, and because of a report concerning Yongchon.

Yongchon, 20 miles east of Taegu, is an important highway junction city. It was retaken by Americans Tuesday night after being occupied for a time by Red guerrillas.

The lieutenant said his division was moving west toward Taegu in the bowling alley when it was ordered back to the east. He added that the change resulted from information that Yongchon was lightly defended.

Ordered to Hit Weak Spot

The communists' 15th division was ordered to hit the weak spot as soon as possible. Simultaneously, huge convoys started down from the north, bringing artillery men and supplies.

Gen. MacArthur's intelligence officers said the convoys were spotted, but their destination was not immediately determined. He said the trucks rolled south bumper-to-bumper at night with no regard for secrecy.

The prisoner said it was decided at the same time to put the North Korean 2nd division in the line.

American interrogators were told that the master plan entailed an all-out smash on the southwestern front and steady pressure in the vicinity of Taegu. That offensive began at dawn Thursday and rolled back allied lines on a broad front.

The red 15th division then struck at Yongchon. It was supposed to make a break-through there and drive westward to Taegu while Americans and South Koreans were pinned down by heavy fighting elsewhere.

But the plan fell apart because of rapid recovery of American forces on the southwest front and quick reaction to the Yongchon threat.

RESCUED BY WORKERS

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) — Rescued by fellow-workers Wednesday when he was buried to the waist by sandy earth and heavy timbers in the collapse of an excavation wall in Toronto's subway, 26-year-old Clarence Scott was taken to hospital with a broken leg, a possible broken nose and possible internal injuries.

May Not Open Officers' Camp At Brockville

Ottawa, Sept. 7 (CP) —Defence Minister Claxton told George Fulford (L-Leeds) in the Commons Wednesday it has not been decided whether the wartime officers training camp at Brockville will be reopened. Pending further developments, the department is keeping the establishment intact.

Reviewing officer training plans he said more than 6,000 officers are in training in Canada at present "so that to a very large degree we are meeting current needs in each locality and also to a smaller degree, building up a pool of trained officers across the nation."

"In the event of an emergency this would enable us to meet the first shock and have time to accelerate training under arrangements such as those in effect during the Second World War."

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Fairway classic! in Canada Unlimited

The nation's top golfers had gathered at Saint John, N.B. It was July 23, 1949 . . . and eight four-man teams were set to tee off. At stake was the annual inter-provincial golf team championship—classic struggle for the ownership of the Willingdon Cup.

Upsetting pre-tourney predictions, Quebec took the lead in the 36-hole contest. Ontario's last man on the 17th hole needed a 73 to even tie. In a brilliant last-ditch display he took a one-over-par 71. Ontario had won Canada's hardest-fought cup match.

Skill and keen sportsmanship put golf in the first rank of our summer sports. And together, skill with sportsmanship help you in work and play . . . keeping your scope for opportunity in Canada . . . unlimited.

Expert Guidance For New Writers At U.S. College

Battleboro, Vt., (CP) — The century-and-a-half-old buildings of nearby Marlboro College are echoing with the problems of serious new writers.

The answers are being supplied by such literary figures as John Farrar, Charles Jackson, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Edmund Fuller, Ludwig Lewisohn, Shirley Jackson, Mavis McIntosh and others.

The occasion for their two weeks' presence at Marlboro is the second annual Marlboro College Fiction Writers Conference. John Farrar of Farrar, Straus and Co. Inc., New York, who originated the conference, was also the first director of the Bread Loaf Writers Conference, established at Middlebury, Vt., a quarter of a century ago.

Discussing the aims of the gathering, Farrar said:

"In these dangerous times the writer's job is growing harder and harder. Our American writers and publishers must nevertheless continue to make books and stories the citadel of freedom serious fiction has always been. Every single one of us has come here to work. If it weren't for the conference's intent, none of us would feel that he could afford to take the time called for to discuss with young writers their individual experiences and difficulties.

Words Being Traduced

"Words are more important right now than they have ever been before," he continued, "and they are being traduced. Our obligation is to emphasize the new words and the new combination of words to give new strength and emphasis to the free ideals."

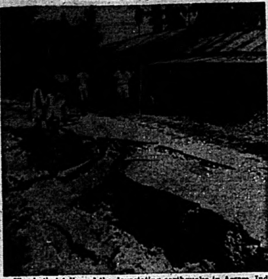
In addition to Farrar and Dr. Walter Hendricks, founder of the college, the staff of the conference includes Margaret P. Farrar of Farrar, Straus and Co. Inc.; Edmund Fuller, author of "A Star Pointed North" and director of the conference course on the novel; Mavis McIntosh, author's agent, who heads the short story sessions, and John Brick, author of "Troubled Spring."

Visiting lecturers address the conference. The first was John Hooper, editor of the Battleboro Reformer Other speakers include Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Ely Culbertson, Charles Jackson, Dorothy Thompson, and Ludwig Lewisohn.

The conference members include many who already have made names for themselves in various branches of fiction writing. Among them are Lawrence Lariar, author of the Dodd, Mead prize mystery novel, "The Man With the Lumpy Nose," and Laura Harris, author of the forthcoming novel "Ring in The New."

"I have no doubt that among those at this year's conference there are some whose work will be widely recognized," Farrar said.

AT MIDDLE OF QUAKE AREA



Floods that followed the devastating earthquake in Assam, India, continue to spread and the death toll approached the 5,000 mark from what seismologists say is the world's fifth most severe recorded shock. Pictured is a view of a road, about 50 miles from Dibrugarh, Assam, which has been heavily damaged by the quakes. The fissures in some places are height of a man. — Central Press Canadian

WANT 2,000 FOR HARVEST

Caribou, Me., Sept. 6—(AP)—The Maine Employment Security Commission will begin next Monday recruiting 2,000 Canadians to help harvest potatoes.

The Canadians, recruited each fall, will come from Quebec and New Brunswick, Milton Bradford, farm placement specialist, said today.

Commission Seeks Desert Preserve For SA Bushmen

Windhoek, South Africa, (CP) —A reserve may be proclaimed to give the Bushmen — South Africa's vanishing race—from extinction.

Col. P. I. Hoogenhout, native administrator, said a two-man commission, consisting of Professor P. J. Schoeman and Major J. W. Naude, a former police officer, now is in the Kalahari desert investigating means of preserving the Bushmen.

These primitive little people now are estimated to number between 2,500 and 3,500 and they are dying out.

They are scattered in southwest Africa over an area of about 60,000 square miles, most of which is inaccessible, unknown and largely uninhabited.

They migrate with the wild animals, following the lightning, which to them, indicates rain and, therefore, water and good hunting.

The idea of a reserve is not so much to fence the bushmen in as to keep their traditional enemies—the Herero and Ovambo tribesmen—out. The Hereros and Ovambos rate the Bushmen no higher than a wild animal.

Child Murder

They are, however, not the only threat of extinction to the Bushmen. They are decimating themselves by child murder, a ruthless pruning of their decreasing numbers in order that the few may continue to exist.

If, as often happens, the infant of a mother who has died in childbirth cannot be disposed of by adoption, the baby is buried alive with the mother. Illegitimate children are also usually put to death. When twins are born one is invariably killed. Because of the severe conditions of life infant mortality is unusually high.

This is not the first attempt to save the Bushmen from himself and his enemies. In the eighteenth century an effort was made to persuade this Nomadic people to settle down. They were given farms and livestock.

They killed and ate the stock and returned to their hunting in the trackless wastes.

Daddy Elephant Quite Concerned About His Mate

Rome, Sept. 2— (AP)—Romeo, the big daddy elephant of the Rome zoo, had a wherefor-art-thou look in his beady eye today.

For the time is long past for his expectant mate, Juliet — the most famous lady elephant in Europe — to become a mother again.

Her pediatrician, Dr. Ermanno Bronzini, says Juliet's appetite is excellent.

In addition to a wheelbarrow filled with beets, Juliet disposes of 160 pounds of hay, bread, fruit, and other vegetables daily.

And she seems in great shape, physically, according to Dr. Bronzini.

Juliet has every reason to be one of the proudest elephant mothers outside the jungle.

When her baby arrives, Juliet will be the first elephant in a European zoo to bear two calves in captivity.

Juliet's two-year-old daughter, Roma, is the first European zoo-born elephant to survive in 120 years.

Fourteen others have lived only briefly — a few months at best.

Erzatz Elephant Is Dollar Earner

Thaxted, Essex, England — (Reuters) — Jeannie, an eight-feet-high "elephant" which carried a party of children through this little village today, has bones of steel, gasoline filled arteries and a gear-shift behind her left ear.

Jeannie, who from a few yards away looks exactly like an elephant from the Malayan jungle, has an eight-horse-power engine inside her grey felt hide. She is Britain's biggest toy.

Her Scottish creator, mechanic Frank Stuart, who spent about $25,000 in experiments during the last six years now sells models for $3,360, spare parts included.

He began work on Jeannie (named after his wife) because he thought live elephants too expensive to buy and keep.

Secret of Jeannie's life-like movement is her legs, operated by compressed air, like the struts of airplane under-carriages. Around them the inch-thick hide ripples realistically as she ambles along.

Weighing one ton — about a third of a normal elephant's weight—Jeannie reaches 27 miles an hour in top gear. She carries 12 children at a time in her howdah, plus a "mahout" handling the controls behind her big ears.

United States buyers have already ordered five, Canada two and Africa and Australia one each.

Defy Plan to Send Pupils To Modern School

Hamilton, Sept. 7 — (CP) — Seventeen families invaded a vacant one-room school in Nelson township yesterday and defied the school board's plan to send their children to a more modern school several miles away.

The embattled parents installed Mrs. William Leslie, who taught in the Nelson school last year and was dismissed when it closed, and told her to keep on teaching.

William Brecken, chairman of the school board, said the board would discuss the matter in a few days — as soon as all its members returned from their vacation.

Nelson school was one of four one-room establishments closed during the summer, following additions to the Glenwood Consolidated School near Burlington, some five miles away. The board felt that the Glenwood school was better equipped to look after the pupils of the four schools, who could be picked up by school bus.

The objecting parents said they didn't want their children riding school buses on slippery roads during the winter.

Mr. Brecken said the other 54 families affected were willing to send their children to Glenwood school.

GIRL REGAINS MEMORY

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 7 — (CP) —Marie Coleman, 17-year-old London, Ont., girl regained her memory in a police cell Tuesday night after police found her wandering in a city park.

When found she told police she didn't know where she was or where she came from. Police found a name in her purse and traced it to London, where they identified her and made arrangements for a sister to come to Windsor.

Police said it was not until after the arrangements were made that the girl remembered her name and address.

Denies He Appeared And Disappeared

Edmonton, Sept. 7 (CP)—Otis Hallock, formerly of Vancouver, today denied reports from the coast city that he "appeared and disappeared" mysteriously after being missing and presumed dead for two years.

Dispatches from Vancouver last week quoted Hallock's wife as saying Hallock turned up at home suddenly, stayed for a day, then went away.

An extensive search was conducted for Hallock after he disappeared in a Tiger Moth plane in 1948. His aircraft is believed to have crashed on a mountain near Ashcroft.

Mr. Hallock said today that events immediately following the crash were hazy. He crawled away from the wreckage and rode the rods to Northern Ontario where he worked for two years.

"I was pretty sick most of that time," he said. "I didn't want to go back home until I was well enough to provide for my family."

Mr. Hallock said he had been writing to his wife for about two months from the east before he went to Vancouver. He said he stayed at the coast for about nine days, then came on to Edmonton.

Red Aggression In Korea Blamed By Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 7—(AP) — Communist Yugoslavia lined up with the west Tuesday in condemning aggression by the North Korean communists but indicated she will not intervene directly in the war.

In the first statement of a definite Yugoslav position on the Korean conflict, Foreign Minister Edward R. Kardelj told the newspaper Borba that the Korean War "is a strong blow to peace in the world."

"Those who are to be blamed for the war in Korea," he said, "must know that such a war will jeopardize world peace, stir up all the powers of aggression, start the war machine of the great powers and on all sides sharpen the international conflict . . ."

Kardelj's statement was published as he left for New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly.

Intimating that Yugoslavia will continue its hands-off policy on the question of armed intervention in the conflict, Kardelj said his country will pursue its present course of trying to keep the war within Korea's borders.

Reds in Denmark Score Lowest In Danish Voting

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 7 (AP)—Complete returns Wed., from Denmark's parliamentary election showed the voters in this Atlantic Pact country gave the Conservatives and Georgists (single tax party) a boost and handed the communists a setback.

The interior ministry announced that the Conservatives and Georgists, both right-of-centre parties, had received more than one-fourth of the 2,000,000 votes cast Tuesday.

The communists were reduced to the smallest party in parliament. The Agrarians also lost heavily. The Socialist Party, the government party since 1947, barely held its own. However, it remained the largest single political organization in the country. The balloting was for seats in the Lower House of Parliament.

ACTOR INJURED

SAYS HE COULD WRECK RUSSIA'S A-BOMB PLANTS

Maj.-Gen. Orville Anderson, commandant of the Air War College in Alabama, has been suspended by the U.S. air force, charged with advocating a preventive war. The suspension order was issued personally by Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air force chief of staff. Gen. Anderson, who was chairman of the combined operational planning committee during World War II, insisted: "I don't advocate preventive war. I advocate the shedding of illusions." Earlier Anderson declared he could break up Russia's A-bomb nests in a week if he received the order to do so. —Central Press Canadian.

Stewart-Warner Springs Surprise Beating Plumbers

Stewart-Warner's hustling ball team threw the A section playoffs of the Commercial Softball League into a four way dog-fight last evening when they humbled Howe and Hagerman with a 5-3 victory at the CNRAA grounds on Station Street.

The Alemite attack, frustrated by some fabulous fielding by the Plumbers, particularly by two sensational catches in left field by Ed Donovan, finally broke through for three runs in the top of the ninth inning to wrap up the contest.

The Alemite crew, which charged into the playoffs with straight victories over Point Anne, Brewers Warehouse and Ramsay Paints, was hotter than a two bit pistol last evening as they came up with a four-hit attack in the ninth with two away, to score three runs to scuttle the plumbers in the first game of their best-in-five series.

Howe and Hagerman jumped into a two-run lead in the bottom of the second frame. With one away Mallory beat out an infield roller. Don Adams popped up to short, and Bill Spafford drilled a double into right field to push Mallory to third. Stan Amo punched a fast grounder through second base as Mallory and Spafford scored with Amo taking second on the relay to the plate. Hunter grounded out pitcher to first to retire the side,

Planters Swarm Back

In the fourth inning Stewart Warner stormed back to tie the score. With two away, Claude Carr singled, Ray Lunberg doubled and Maurice Leforte lobbed a Texas Leaguer over second base as Carr and Lunberg raced across with the tying runs.

Howe and Hagerman edged into the lead again in the fifth with a double by Stan Amo down the right field line, and a single by Bob Hunter producing the run.

Stewart Warner pulled the ball game out of the fire in the ninth with a stirring rally. With one away Marty Halloran beat out an infield single. Rowbotham flied out to left field and John Ronsky drilled a double in right field to put Halloran on third. Vern Carr singled over second base to score Halloran with the tying run and Ronsky with the winning run. Jack Moon hammered a single into centrefield to plate Carr with the insurance.

That was all for Howe and Hagerman starter, Bob Hunter, and Al Adams came on to put down the uprising. He ended the rally striking out Claude Carr.

A walk, and a single put two Plumbers on in the bottom of the ninth with one away, but S. Amo popped up weakly to the catcher and Al Adams struck out to end the game.

These two teams meet in the second game of the series tomorrow evening at the CNRAA grounds at 6.00 p.m.

Halloran Goes Routes

Marty Halloran went all the way on the firing line for Stewart Warner. He walked two, struck out seven, and gave up seven safeties for three runs. Bob Hunter toiled eight and two thirds innings for Howe and Hagerman, walking two, striking out one and giving up eleven hits for all the runs.

Claude Carr and Leforte with two hits in four tries led Alemite at the plate. Bill Spafford was best for the Plumbers with a double and a single in four trips.

Lineup

Alemite: Rowbotham 1b; Ronsky 2b; V. Carr 3b; Moon c; C. Carr lf; Lunberg cf; Leforte ss; R. Reid rf, replaced by Bertrim in 9th; Halloran p.

Howe and Hagerman: Doyle 2b, replaced by Rollins in 5th; Tomaso 3b; E. Donovan lf; Wardaugh lf; Mallory 1b; D. Adams c; Spafford ss; Amo cf; Hunter p replaced by A. Adams in 9th.

Petes Square Series With Owen Sound

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton and St. Catharines both picked up a win in their first games of the best-of-seven Ontario Lacrosse Association quarter-finals Wednesday night.

Athletics edged Mimico Mountaineers 13-10 with Croft tallying four times for the winners. Hamilton downed Brampton Excelsiors 11-9.

In Peterborough, Petes squared the series by turning back Owen Sound Crescents 7-3.

In the St. Kitts contest Ken Dixon rapped home three of the visitors' goals with Kapasky, Simpson and Ranking getting two apiece. Besides Croft's tallies Teatro added three and Smith and McMahon two each for the winners.

At Brampton, Tigers swept into the lead in the second quarter and were never headed. They led 8-4 at the half and maintained that margin to the end of the third canto when they led 11-7.

The game was tighter in Peterborough with a 1-1 tie in the first quarter. Then the home team tallied twice to lead at the half. Both sides counted twice in the rough third, but Petes fought in for two more in the final quarter.

FIRST SUNDAY MORNING

Cannifton Takes Latta 4-1 For Third Victory

Cannifton took a stranglehold on the South Hastings Baseball League championship at Plainfield last night when they defeated the Latta team 4-1 in an abbreviated six-innings semi-final tilt. The victory gives the winners three wins as against two losses and a tie in the best-of-seven final series.

The seventh game will be played in Cannifton on Friday evening starting at six o'clock. A victory for the home team, naturally, will give them the loop title.

The game, played before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans was productive of some good hurling with Oliver, Cannifton relief hurler turning in a one-hit job after Bradden, starting pitcher was injured in the second innings and forced to retire. Bradden yielded two hits for one run during the two innings he worked.

Good Pitching

Hall, tall lefthander went the six-innings route for the losers and yielded up six hits, one a gift, when his first baseman stood near the bag with the ball in his hand and allowed the runner to cross the sack unmolested. Hall struck out three and walked four.

Latta forged into a one-run lead in the second off hits by Sullivan and McWilliams plus a pair of walks. Cannifton went ahead in the third when Waite's single drove in Bradden and Cooke. They scored the remaining pair of tallies in the sixth when they got to Hall for three safeties.

White's somersault catch of a long fly to left field was the fielding feature of the game.

Cook and Sheffield with a pair of hits each led the Cannifton offensive with White and Bleekman getting the other two. Richardson, Sullivan and McWilliams were the only Latta players to hit safely.

Cannifton	002 002—4	6	1
Latta	010 000—1	3	3

The teams:

Cannifton: Cook, Sheffield, Waite, Laurenson, Jarrell, White, Bleekman, Oliver, Bradden.

Latta: Hazard, Richardson, Glass, Sullivan, Marsh, Rigby, McWilliams, McCreary, Hall, Flindall.

Umpires: Carson, Belleville, plate; Strachan, Point Anne, bases.

Vancouver Blows Three-Run Lead To Lose by 4-3

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) —Vancouver Firemen blew a three-run lead Wednesday night to fall two games behind Toronto Peoples in the best-of-five series for the Canadian Senior Men's Softball championship. Toronto won 4-3.

The victory made the eastern champions overwhelming favorites in the series, first east-west softball final staged in Canada.

The third game will be played at the Canadian National Exhibition ball park tonight.

Firemen, who eliminated Winnipeg to reach the finals, appeared headed for an easy victory. They rolled up a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Laurie Shuttleworth's homer. Then they fell apart in the second to yield four easy runs and the game was over.

Neither club was able to score in the last seven innings.

When President Truman made his talk in the country Sept. 1, the Spartanburg (S.C.) SOUTHHASTINGS "WORLDS SERIES"

Dose boids on the banks of the Gowanis can have their Dodgers; Back Bay socialites can glance down upturned snoots and if no one is looking breathe a prayer for their Red Sox; Woodward Avenue can stroke the Tigers tail and Cleveland tub thumpers warble an Indian love song, but if you wander out Cannifton or Latta way these cool evenings and mention baseball, you'd better smile, podner when you mention your favorite club.

* * *

Right now these clubs are in the throes of the South Hastings Baseball League finals and as far as current events are concerned the price of tomatoes, feed, peanuts and underwear; the Korean situation and next year's taxes, are but secondary topics over the gossip routes of telephone, post office, backyard fences and the back fifties.

* * *

It is not world series baseball by any stretch of the imagination. The playing fields are a far cry from the Polo Grounds, Wrigley Field or the Yankee Stadium. The grandstand has yet to see a ball hit over its top for it is the wild blue yonder. And if the bleachers are some planks set up on boxes, or just ordinary logs placed on a parallel with the baselines, who cares. Nobody wants to sit down after the first innings anyway.

* * *

You couldn't exactly use the infields for roller skating rinks. The outfields are bereft of fences and lush pasture. Using the Latta diamond in Plainfield as an example, the backdrop is a natural in the literal sense of the word. Tall trees atop a knoll look down on these strange baseball capers. But who cares. The good folk, supporters of both squads, and they range from rompered kidlets to silver-haired grandmothers, not to mention a goodly flock of city slickers from the Front Street environs of the city, are interested only in the outcome of these hectic struggles for the leader championship.

* * *

And brother, if you think these ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls and all sorts of family pet species, do not take their baseball seriously, go see a psychiatrist. They line the baseline bleachers three and four deep. The Latta faction takes up position along one baseline and the Cannifton supporters are just across the diamond. If you are there just for the spectacle and suddenly decide to take sides, here's a tip. Keep your opinion to yourself, especially if you are mingling with the supporters of the team opposite your choice. If you are looking for a verbal argument, you can be accommodated in a matter of seconds.

* * *

The teams do not lack for verbal support. Every smart play, a base hit brings forth a round of vocal appreciation from the packed bleachers. An error on the part of a member of the opposing team likewise calls for decisive chatter. Players are sometimes singled out and pelted roundly with verbal pellets. It's all in good fun, but there is an undercurrent of sincerity in the playful patter.

* * *

We witnessed the game last night between Cannifton and Latta which ended after six innings of play in victory for the Cannifton squad. But not before long sustained argument as to the legality of the victory. Players, umpires, spectators gathered in a crap-shooters huddle (there must have been 50 of 'em) and the verbal battle lasted long after the shadows had deepened into near darkness. It seems the boys of the South Hastings League not only play their own brand of baseball but they toss in a few rules of their own just to make matteers more interesting.

* * *

The game last night was called by Umpires Red Carson and Bobby Strahan after six innings of play. Cannifton was leading 4-1 when play was stopped on account of the lengthening shadows. The crowd slowly dispersed — and the bull session got under way. Latta claimed the game had to go seven innings to constitute an official fixture. Cannifton said "No". Latta claimed the game was null and void and as such should be replayed on Friday night. Cannifton said "No." Cannifton claimed the next game was the seventh of the series and as such should be played in Cannifton. Latta said "No".

* * *

Spectators got into the tonsilar fracas. Opinions flew back and forth. But "nobody got nowhere". It looked like a stalemate until somebody suggested the league constitution be referred to. It seems there is a ruling in that honorable tome that would affect the situation. They called for it. It was discovered the book of words was reposing in somebody's vault in Read. And to settle the argument a hurried trip was made to that village to consult the South Hastings League Koran. Perusal of the book of words brought out the fact that Cannifton was right, so the game goes down in the loop archives as a win for that team. It gives the Laurenson crew its third victory of the four-of-seven series. Latta has won two and one game ended in a tie. The seventh game will be played in Cannifton on Friday starting at 6 p.m. and if the homesters come out with a win they will be the 1950 league champions.

* * *

Don't get the idea that these boys do not serve up a good brand of baseball. True they make errors. So do the Yankees. But they give all they've got when out there on the diamond, and they come up with some neat plays. They know a lot of the baseball answers and as we said before, while the calibre of baseball dished up to the several hundred loyal fans who attend each game (are yuh listening, Belleville?) is not of world series calibre, nevertheless it is exciting, entertaining and interesting.

* * *

So if you want to see two teams battling with all they've got; spectators standing or sitting on edge, tense with expectancy at every pitch, and loyal to the core to their respective teams, drop around to the Cannifton diamond Friday evening. Half the county will likely be there for it is do or die for dear old Latta and a championship for canny Cannifton, if they win. You won't be sorry. Take along a shilling or two, for they pass the hat. At the start of the season they used a size 6½ fedora, but the nickels and dimes garnished with plenty of folding money, gardually increased until now they are using a Size nine.

Casey Stengel Defied Fenway Park's Jinx on Southpaws, Lost, Yanks' Lead Shaved to ½ Game

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Casey Stengel defied the Fenway Park southpaw jinx and lost. As a result his New York Yankees are fidgeting atop the American League pennant scramble by only a half game today.

The Yankees invaded the lair of the torrid third-place Boston Red Sox last night for the opener of a two-game series. Old Case sent lefty Ed Lopat to face the murderous Red Sox completely aware that only one visiting lefthander, Hal Newhouser of Detroit, had pitched and won a complete game in the Fens this years.

Casey didn't have long to wait to rue his decision. The Sox bombed Lopat for four runs in the second inning and went on to slaughter the Yanks, 11-2.

While the Yanks were smeared, the runner-up Detroit Tigers, behind Newhouser, turned back the fourth-place Cleveland Indians, 5-3, in the opener of a two-game series in Detroit to move within a half game of the lead.

Here's the picture at a glance:

	W	L	Pct.	GB
New York	83	48	.634
Detroit	82	48	.631	½
Boston	81	51	.614	2½
Cleveland	80	54	.597	4½

For today's final game, Stengel has named righthander Allie Reynolds (13-11) to oppose righthander Ellis Kinder (13-12). Kinder hasn't started a game since Aug. 17 but has performed brilliantly in relief to earn another chance.

Lefty Mel Parnell breezed to his 15th victory as the Sox supported his eight-hit pitching with a 16-hit attack against Lopat and lefty Ed Ford, who worked the final two innings.

Parnell, who now has won seven straight games and 10 out of his last 11 decisions, was in trouble only in the first and ninth innings.

Stephens Led Hitters

Vern Stephens led Boston by driving out his 29th homer, a triple and two singles.

At Detroit, the Tigers came up with four runs in the seventh inning to erase a 2-1 deficit. Hoot Evers and Johnny Groth knocked in the first two runs and Charley Keller slammed home the two clinching ones with a pinch-hit single. Newhouser allowed eight hits, including a home run by Allie Clark, in besting Early Wynn.

Rookie Sandalio Consuegra pitched the Washington Senators to a 3-0, six-hit victory over Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago White Sox edged St. Louis Browns, 6-5, on Mike McCormick's ninth-inning single in other American League games.

Brooklyn Dodgers supplied the biggest surprise in the National League by defeating the league-leading Philadelphia Phils, 2-0 and 3-2, in a twi-night doubleheader. The victories moved the 5½ games of the Phils.

Big Don Newcombe attempted to perform the iron man stunt. He blanked the Phils on three hits in the opener but was forced to bow out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning of the second game, trailing 2-0.

Newcombe is the first pitcher to try the feat since Buck Newsom attempted it and failed for Detroit in 1940. The last big league pitcher to pitch and win two complete game in one day was Emil Levson of Cleveland in 1926.

The Dodgers, blanked on one hit by Curt Simmons, came to life in the ninth inning and scored three runs to pull the nightcap out.

Hodges Hits Clincher

Simmons struck out Ed Miksis to start the ninth but then granted a walk and a single and left in favor of Jim Konstanty, who made his 62nd appearance of the season. Jackie Robinson singled to load the bases. Carl Furillo fanned but Gil Hodges followed with a game-tying single.

Robinson raced to third on Hodges' hit and when third baseman Willie Jones cut off the throw from the outfield and pegged to second in an attempt to get Hodges, Robinson broke for the plate. Second baseman Mike Goliat took Jones' throw and fired to the plate. Robinson was caught in a rundown but catcher Andy Seminick, threw the ball wild to third and Robinson scored the winning run. ning.

Robinson drove in the first run in the opener and scored the second after some daring base running.

The Dodger triumph was costly, however, as they lost the services of their brilliant catcher, Roy Campanella, who broke his right thumb on a foul tip. Campanella probably will be out for the season.

The surging New York Giants turned back Boston Braves, 3-1, to advance to within a half game of the third-place Braves. Larry Jansen pitched a strong nine-hitter to gain his 15th vitory. The Giants pitched a strong nine-hitter to gain his 15th victory. The Giants collected only six hits, including Wes Westrum's 20th homer.

St. Louis took a day-night doubleheader from Chicago Cubs, 5-4, in 10 innings, and 7-3. Stan Musial homered to win the opener. The Cards scored five runs in the eighth inning to take the finale.

Anonymous Letter Writer Threatens Lives of Four

(By The Canadian Press)

An anonymous letter writer has threatened the lives of four members of New York Yankees—Phil Rizzuto, Hank Bauer, Yogi Berra and John Mize.

A pencil scribbled note, postmarked at Hartford, Conn., was received at Boston by shortstop Rizzuto last night. It read, in part:

"If the Yankees are still in the pennant race on the last two days of the season, and you dare to show up at Fenway Park to play the Red Sox, I have contrived to shoot you (Rizzuto) Bauer, Berra and Mize from the stands."

The letter was turned over to Boston police.

A team of Sunday golfers, marshalled by Dick Young, president of the Ontario Golf Association, overcame a 16-14 lead to surprise a group of professionals by winning the third annual amateur-pro match on a one point margin.

The amateurs won the tourney —for the Hulbert Memorial Trophy—by beating 20 members of the Professional Golfers Association 30 1-2 to 29 1-2 at Islington, Ont.

After a 16-14 licking in the morning matches, the amateurs pulled up when Moe Norman of Kitchener-Rockway and Emerson Creed of London Hunt came in 10 under par to score a 5-4 win over Jack Littler of Oakdale and Lou Cumming of Toronto Golf.

Another win by Phil Farley of Toronto and Jack Nash of London over Gordon Brydson and Murray Tucker of Toronto cut the pros lead to a single.

Nick Weslock of Windsor and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener beat Bobby Gray and Dick Borthwick of Toronto in the tight final contest.

It was the amateurs' first win since the tournaments began.

Ferman Hanover, owned by Cleo A. Young of Timmonsville, S.C., yesterday set a world record for three year-old-pacers of two minutes and two-fifths of a second for a mile.

The time clipped three-fifths of a second off the previous record set in 1936 by Worthy Gratton.

Ferman Hanover, driven by Clint Hodgings, set the new mark in a $5,000 pace at the Syracuse State Fair.

Hamilton Slaters advanced into the finals of the Canadian National Exhibition softball championships last night when they won by default from Cobourg Orphans. The Cobourg Club was unable to appear for the semi-final game because of a previous engagement.

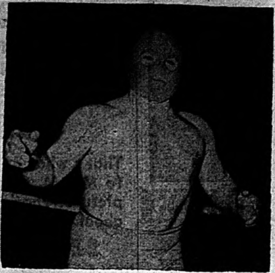
Slaters will meet the winners of the sudden-death semi-final game betwen Oshawa Pedlars and Toronto Hustlers. The finals will be played Saturday.

E. K. (Eddie) Emerson head of the Ottawa Rough Riders, says the Riders have decided not to sign Fred Doty, former Toronto Argonaut quarterback.

Emerson said it was too late in the season for Doty to start learning the plays. He also is too small to fit into the "big rough game" of today, Emerson said.

Sarnia Beavers, champions of the Canadian-American Lacrosse League are slated to enter the Intermediate A lacrosse playoffs. Ken Oliver, manager of the Beavers, announced that Sarnia will meet Dundas Bombers in a semi-final clash.

Pete Karpuk, fleet backfielder with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four for the last two years, has been signed to play football for Riders again this fall.



The Masked Marvel has had matters pretty much his own way up to now, but it looks very much as if the Hooded Horror has bitten off a chunk that might choke him in Friday night's mat headliner at the Memorial Arena. Yukon Eric, the muscular, iceberg Alaska lumberjack will be the opponent of the unbeaten mystery-man. The particularly interesting aspect of this bout is that the unbeaten Masked Marvel will be up against a rival who has an equally impressive victory record. Also, if the massive northerner succeeds in defeating the Mask, that mysterious grappler is obliged to take off his face-covering so that all can see who he is. Fans' guesses include Bob "Strangler" Wagner, Dr. Len Hall, Lou Reynheer and Ernie Dusek. If Yukon beats him here Friday night, all will know which, if any, of these conjectures are correct.

Five-Game Set Will Decide Third Position

(By The Associated Press)

Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles begin the final important series of the International League season when they clash tonight in the opener of a five-game set in Baltimore.

Third place is at stake. The Giants trail the Orioles by two games.

Baltimore tuned up for the clash by edging Syracuse Chiefs, 2-1 last night on a ninth-inning home run by Austin Knickerbocker. The Giants dropped a 6-5 decision to Springfield Cubs.

Dave Jolly had the Orioles blanked on four hits going into the ninth when disaster struck. Jolly retired the first Oriole but Butch Wort followed with a single and Knickerbocker with his home run.

Springfield piled up a 6-0 lead over the Giants in the first two innings and then staved off a counter-bid in the late frames. The Giants scored twice in the seventh on a pinch-hit homer by Johnny Metkovich and routed Bill Mosian with three runs in the eighth Tony Jacobs halted the eighth-inning rally and blanked the Giants in the ninth. The victory snapped a seven-game Springfield losing streak and six-game Giant winning skein.

In the only other game, Toronto Maple Leafs downed Buffalo Bisons 6-3. Bill Glynn socked a pair of homers and Ed Sanicki one to lead the Toronto attack.

Rochester and Montreal were idle.

Waterloo Tigers Lose First Game In Six Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers lost their first game in six starts Wednesday leaving Brantford Red Sox the only undefeated team in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League playoffs with five straight.

The mighty Tigers went down before London Majors 3-2 when Joe Bechard doubled in the last half of the 11th to send Lew Johnston home from second.

Elsewhere in the league, the Red Sox took Stratford Nationals 6-4 and Kitchener Legionnaires, playing their first game under their new manager, Don Gallinger, came up with their first win in five starts—a 4-2 victory over St. Thomas.

Bechard was definitely the hero of the Tiger-Major fray, singling home the tying London runs in the last half of the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

The second Bechard blow broke up one of the tightest pitching duels in London this year. Al Dumouchelle, who went all the way for Waterloo, hurled seven-hit ball. Duan Gottschall started for London and was removed in the eighth for a pinch hitter. Ted Alexander, who relieved him, was credited with the win.

Billy Gibbs of Brantford registered his fourth win of the season over the Stratford crew. He gave up four hits, striking out eight and passing five.

In Kitchener, Bobby Schnurr, former manager of the Kitchener team, held Saints to seven hits. Legionnaires played errorless ball all the way and came up with four of the five double plays of the game.

In the Niagara District Baseball League Alonzo (Sunny) Hicks pitched and batted the visiting St. Catharines Stags to a 3-2 district playoff triumph over Fords. The win gave the Garden City team a three to two lead in the best-of-seven semi-final round.

Batting — Vern Stephens, Red Sox, belted out homer, triple, two singles, scored twice and batted in two runs to lead Boston to 11-2 victory over New York.

Pitching — Don Newcombe, Dodgers, blanked Philadelphia, 2-0, on three hits and then started and pitched seven innings of second game which Dodgers won 3-2, with three runs in the ninth inning.

Around the Home...

TOM GARD'S NOTE BOOK

Conservation is a frequently-used word these days in Ontario. Nor are we awakening to the seriousness of the situation a minute too soon. The increasing evidence of soil erosion, floods and poor soil management is appalling. As I travel the province, the signs of increased pride in our homes thrills me but bare hillsides, deep gulleys and rich soil deposited in hollows modify my feelings of jubilation.

Even the urban dweller can do his part to help the situation by maintaining soil fertility and planting trees. There is no need to wait until next spring to plant one, as most will do well when planted in September.

Rimmed

If you look longingly at andirons and fire baskets for your fireplace but decide they're still beyond the budget, try this simple suggestion picked up while visiting a friend's cottage. An old steel tire rim had been picked up at a junk yard and cut with a hack-saw as shown in the illustration. Placed in the fireplace, the rim was particularly effective and not unattractive. The open space permitted good draught and the rim made the task of cleaning out the ashes much lighter.

Jewel Boxes

Christmas is still a long way off but at least one person is thinking about it. I found my sister making jewel boxes as Yuletide gifts for a few of her friends. Tin powder boxes and cardboard cheese boxes were being transformed into attractive jewel cases. The bright plaid covering on some of the boxes was as eye-catching as the frugalness of the idea.

Ski Holder

If you have tripped over your skis all summer as they reclined in the corner of the garage, you'll be receptive to a suggestion for their storage. Try hanging them between the studs as shown in the illustration. I did and it has been marvellous.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Foolish leads can wreck a bridge partnership. Getting down to cases is one of the boys are still feuding about. It was in the rubber bridge deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K Q 10 2
♥10 9 8 3
♣K 8 5

WEST
♠8 7 5
♥K 7 5
♦J 4 3 2
♣4 3 2

EAST
♠A J 4
♥J 6 4
♦K Q 10 8 5
♣Q 6

SOUTH
♠9 6 3
♥A Q 2
♦A 7
♣A J 10 9 7

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 C	Pass	1 S	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 C	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	Dbl

Let's not mess around with where the bidding was wrong. Confine this piece to matters concerning the opening lead from west. He came out with the amazing lead of his king of hearts.

This was just enough to let declarer take his needed nine tricks in time; two hearts, five clubs, diamond ace, spade king. And he could have made more by finessing hearts through east thereafter.

East almost burst a blood vessel yelling: "What in heck got into you to lead that king of yours without any backing to it. You had a natural diamond lead that would have beat them."

West got all steamed up explaining his lead. He hoped to find east with hearts that would set up. So he got out of the way in that suit at once. Just hard luck that he guessed wrong, he said.

Bad luck he says. The only bad luck was having such an ox for a partner. It is the stock excuse of rule haters. They cover up with that moth-eaten sign of ignorance "I play poker bridge."

The doubler says he can defeat the contract. If ever his partner should not guess it is then. The double is based on an expected lead. He is looking for co-operation. Not the double cross.

Unless a convention is being used the expected lead is the normal lead. Not some independent lead is the normal lead. Not some independent lead suddenly concocted out of nothing.

Few partners are as cruel as a master-minding fool.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 7 — (AP)—Jack Benny announced today he is going to take the big jump into television.

The fiddle-murdering comedian will make his regular television debut Oct. 29. The show will be for his radio sponsor and he will do three others this season, at intervals of eight weeks. I asked him how he picked his timing.

"I have to go to New York for the television shows," he explained. "That means I will have to tape-record my airshow a week in advance so I can get away. If I tried to do this every four weeks it would be too much. So my sponsor and I agreed on every eight weeks."

Debut Last Year

Last year Benny made his TV debut on a program to dedicate a local station. He views his new program with this philosophy:

"I don't say that I'm going to be any better than anyone else on television, but on the other hand, I see no reason why I should be worse, either."

What About the Format?

"I'll do an hour-long show. It will be variety entertainment with perhaps a scene from my radio program. . .

"People tell me that television is a completely new medium. I don't think so. I'm going to give them the same kind of entertainment I do on stage appearances.

TV Future

Benny foresees the day when he will give up radio entirely.

"It would be hard to do both radio and TV and make both of them good," he said. "And perhaps radio will not be able to afford a show like mine. After all, the others on my show are stars in their own right and have their own shows."

AT THE BELLE

Powerful Love Story Keys Unusual Adult Drama

The dramatic story of a beautiful young woman's rebellion against a loveless marriage is the theme of Paramount's "Song of Surrender," showing today and Friday at the Belle Theatre, matinee daily.

Preview reactions to this Wanda Hendrix-Claude Rains-MacDonald Carey co-starrer have been highly enthusiastic, praising the high quality of the performances, the absorbing plot and the thrilling Victor Young musical background.

Lovely Wanda Hendrix, reports have it, gives a glowing performance as the young devoted wife of a man almost three times her age. Claude Rains co-stars as her husband, a man who takes his marriage for granted, displaying little warmth in his relationship with his wife. MacDonald Carey appears as the man who wakens the young girl's passion and the yearning for love.

Getting back to the music, it must be said that it is of star calibre and rates a special contribution to the effectiveness of the film. Four actual recordings of Caruso's voice play a vital part in the story and these are incredibly wonderful to listen to. Richard Tucker, of the Metropolitan, sings Schubert's "Serenade" and Buddy Clark handles the title song as addition musical treats. The title song, incidentally a new ballad written by the team responsible for "To Each His Own," seems destined for the same widespread popularity.

Saints and Sinners Entertaining

"Saints and Sinners," the second new feature attraction starring Keron Moore and Christine Norden, and the Abbey Players, is a merry Irish Romp.

This is indeed a welcome piece of Irish Blarney. Its humor and sentiment will be appreciated by audiences everywhere. The last complete show nightly starts at 8.30 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL — Walter Brennan co-stars with William Elliott in Republic's fast actioned western "The Showdown," now having its first Belleville showing. On the same program, "The Lone Wolf and His Lady," starring Ron Randell.

AT THE CAPITOL — Favorite rogue of millions, the Lone Wolf is at the Capitol Theatre in Columbia's "The Lone Wolf and His Lady," with Ron Randell as the adventurer. On the same program, "The Showdown," starring William Elliott, Walter Brennan and Marie Windsor. Both hits are first city showings.

ACCUSED REDS SHOT

Taipei, Formosa, Sept. 7—(AP)—Four accused communist spies were executed Wednesday. Two were women.

All were shot in the back of the head as they knelt with their hands tied behind them. The executions were on orders of the Chinese Nationalist government.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Puds Simkins and Shorty Judge were talking and arguing about the rules and regulations of our new club, being the Helping Handers Club and the secret passwerd being Thick and Thin, and Shorty said, Well hay, we got to have a president, and it awt to be me.

Why awt it? me and Puds said, and Shorty said, Because I was the ferst one that mentioned what a heck of a while it was since we got up a club.

Aw, thousands of people say that to each other every day, I said. I was the ferst one that suggested to actually get one up, I said, and Puds said, Yeh, but you [illegible] I was the one that thawt up the name of Helping Handers because we're suppose to go to each others rescue when we need help. So I'm really the founder of the club, so I awt to be the president, he said.

Yeh, and that's just the reason why you cant be, I said. You cant [illegible] 2 things at once, I said, and Shorty said, Sure, that's the main rule in every club.

Which just then somebody said, What club are you guys talking about?

Being Reddy Merfy just coming up, and I thawt, Heck, if he knows about it he'll force his way in and elect himself president. And I said, Aw, we're just thinking of getting up a club, but there's too mutch argument, so I guess we wont.

Sure, it aint werth all the trubble, Puds said, and Shorty [illegible]

Well if you do get one up, I expect to be in it, see? Reddy said.

And he kept on going, and the [illegible] and said Thick and Thin, and decided to keep on a while without a president.

Will End Confusion

As the debate proceeded in the Commons, word of civil defence steps came from Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, the Federal Civil Defence co-ordinator.

He said in an interview that he hopes next week to end some of the confusion existing now in civil defence planning by the distribution to the provinces of an organizational manual detailing how the country should organize itself to meet the threat of attack.

In the early stages, Finance Minister Abbott said he will bring down his interim budget at 8 p.m. this evening.

The defence debate proper rambled over a broad field and External Affairs Minister Pearson, stepping into it briefly, said the nature and scope of Canada's military obligations both under the United Nations Charter and the Atlantic Pact will be known shortly. At the moment, they are political.

He said this country hopes to see her own example of forming a special army brigade for U.N. service followed by other U.N. members to give that body its first military strength in the world-wide fight against aggression.

Both he and Trade Minister Howe, who also joined the debate briefly, made it clear that Canada's activities in wartime would include the dispatch overseas of both men and materials.

Mr. Claxton said a major amphibious attack on this country is considered highly unlikely at this stage. The time is not yet believed here to bring the army's regular airborne brigade together for the one or two months' training needed to fit them to fight as a formation.

Meantime, the raising of the special force will give the army roughly the equivalent of three-quarters of a division of 20,000 men in actual but separate fighting units.

No Force Ready

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC—Nanaimo), charged that Canada has not a single land fighting force ready for action at a moment's notice, while George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) attacked the government for planning to have another period of six to eight months to build up once war strikes.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) asked for legislation to enable the government to raise fighting forces without delay if needed. He did not specify conscription directly, but asked for an act that would distribute the manpower burden fairly.

Julian Ferguson (PC—Simcoe North) said the government has given the House no more information about the Korean situation and the state of defences than they could obtain from the newspapers.

The House was summoned in a time of crisis and yet there was not even a guard on any of Canada's most vulnerable installations, such as the power sites, the Welland Canal and the Sault Ste. Marie Locks.

People Being Lulled

The people of Canada are being "lulled into a false sense of security," he said, "by the fact the great parliament of Canada is meeting here doing nothing and wasting time."

Mr. Ferguson said Canada was going to be rushed into war as unprepared for war as in 1914 and 1939. The young people of today could see no reason for volunteering because the government had not spoken frankly and urgently of the "God-awful mess we are in."

Dr. Blair warned that Canada's hospitals are so crowded now that some other places would have to be found to shelter the wounded if war brought attack on Canada.

Modern war had placed the civilian population in the front line and the municipalities were looking to the Dominion for guidance and leadership.

The situation, he said, would be complicated further if the army had to fight on Canadian soil and had its own share of wounded.

Easy to Infect Water

It would be easy, for example, for an enemy to use bacterial agents to infect food and water supplies. The population would be crippled and industry slowed or halted.

"This is a very important matter," said Dr. Blair. "It is just as important as any plans we may make for the future for repelling an enemy attack."

Mr. Jones said the recent railway strike had demonstrated that few towns in Canada had supplies sufficient to carry them beyond a couple of weeks in an emergency. British Columbia communities would be in the danger zone.

STRIKE IN SECOND DAY

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 7 — (AP) —A strike by Cedar Rapids City Lines went into its second day today, leaving this city of 72,000 without bus service. The strike started when 60 drivers and 10 shopmen walked off their jobs after a breakdown of wage negotiations with the company. The Bus Drivers Union (AFL) is asking a pay raise of 10 cents an hour.

Police Boat Does 93-Mile Beat

Vancouver, Sept. 7 — (CP)— A 93-mile nautical beat where tots may be "lost at sea" or sailers stranded on sand bars is the responsibility of two Vancouver city constables.

In their 40-foot police crash boat, John Knight and Roy Chapman are protectors of the city's harbor front water line. They've done the job so well that when two years ago the service was eliminated as too expensive, the outcry brought them back in two months.

Both Constable Knight, who skippers the former RCAF crash boat, and Constable Chapman were sailors before they joined the force.

It comes in handy. Skipper Knight usually handles the two-motor craft in rescuing stranded sailors or persons overboard while Chapman lugs them aboard. In the harbor mouth's tricky waters, there isn't usually more than one chance to get near the swimmers.

They have had to act as emergency lighthouse keepers and search for missing children — in all likelihood playing pirate somewhere along the harbor line — as far away as Nanaimo, 30 miles across the Gulf of Georgia on Vancouver Island.

Their work calls for such incidental knowledge as the facts a rip tide may travel six knots an hour through the harbor mouth and that an ebb tide combined with a west wind makes conditions far worse.

Marine men consider their work "absolutely essential" — especially boat livery operators who day in and out are in touch with weekend sailors handling small craft.

Barrett* Rust-Proofing Paints

SILVEX* ALUMINUM PAINT Now, a really effective, ready-to-use aluminum paint. No mixing! Just open the can, stir lightly, and brush (or spray) it on. Resists moisture, corrosive fumes, even salt spray . . . reflects light and heat up to 75%. Use all-weather, all-purpose "Silvex" Paint to protect any metal, wood or concrete indoors or out.

EVERJET* PAINT Another fine Barrett rust-proofing paint. Apply "Everjet" Paint with either brush or spray to any exposed metalwork. Dries fast to a hard, black, glossy surface that seals the weather out.

STOP LEAKS with Plastic Elastigum* Cement. Seals flashings, ideal for patching. A thin coating of Liquid Elastigum* Cement reseals old roll roofings.

STOP SEEPAGE with Hydronon* Paint. An ideal damp-proofer for cement or wood.

INSULATE with Barrett* Rock Wool. Available in Batts, Blankets, Loose or Granulated forms.

NEW ROOFS cost less than you'd guess! Ask about Barrett* Asphalt Shingles with a whole new selection of colour harmonies. For barns, you can't do better than hard-wearing Barrett Storm King* Roll Roofing.

Your Barrett dealer sells Protection Plus

He stocks a complete line of roofing, insulation and weatherproofing materials. He's got what it takes to stop almost any weather. Whether your problem is leakage, seepage, rust or rot—see your Barrett dealer first!

Newfoundland Sees Industrial Development

By C. E. A. JEFFERY
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — As time counts in a country's history, it was not long ago when Newfoundland's economy depended almost entirely upon the disposal of the products of the sea. The primary product was salt cod.

An industrial revolution within the short space of 50 years has changed the whole economic outlook. May it not be regarded as but the beginning of an industrial era?

Here are some of the things that have happened:

In 1864 copper mining began in Notre Dame Bay and for a time Newfoundland ranked sixth among copper exporting countries. The available supply petered out, but it is possible such mining may begin again.

Then in 1895, iron ore mining began on Belle Island. This industry now can provide employment for 2,000 and maintain a population of 7,000.

Since 1905 the pulp and paper industry has mushroomed until now Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company and Bowaters Newfoundland Pulp and Paper Company employ more than 15,000. Indirectly, they provide employment for thousands of others and bring millions of dollars to the island.

Base Metals

The lead-zinc-copper mines at Buchans have increased in value from $4,000,000 to $12,000,000 in the last 10 years. A quantity of gold and silver also is obtained.

Local enterprise shared substantially in the change — as exemplified by secondary industries, power plants and the cross-country railway.

Those engaged in the primary industry of fishing were not backward. Today, fresh fish is reaching markets in the Western World and demand exceeds supply. Lobsters are shipped alive. Herring is cured in a variety of ways. Fish and fish offal, formerly discarded, are being converted into fish meal and fertilizer. Further, the methods of reaping the harvest of the seas have undergone changes that increase the catch, reduce the hazard and bring better returns.

Now the eyes of Canada's 10th province are focussed on Labrador where recent discovery of vast quantities of iron will mean a great deal in the development of Newfoundland's economy.

"A Good Medicine To Know About," Says Mr. Aberhart

Tells of Benefit from Using Syntona. Helped Overcome Stomach Disorders, Rheumatic Pain, Backache and Nervousness. "Wouldn't Be Without it," He Says.

MR. JOHN ABERHART

The great popularity of Syntona Herbal Compound is by no means accidental. It is due almost entirely to the experiences of men and women who have taken it and who in turn have recommended it to their friends and neighbors because of the good results it gives.

A typical example of the benefits to be obtained by taking Syntona is found in the recent experience of Mr. John Aberhart, 59 Delatre Street, Woodstock, Ontario, who said:

"A few years ago I began suffering from stomach disorders and rheumatic pains. After my meals I would have very bad distress from gas, heartburn and sour acidity. I often got dizzy spells and sick headaches and my nerves were so on edge I couldn't sleep well at night. As a result I felt fatigued and listless. I had a nagging pain across my back and this with the pains in my limbs, joints and muscles often made me feel sore and lame all over.

"I began taking Syntona after it was recommended by a friend and it wasn't long until people began saying to me, 'My, how well you look.' I felt ever so much better, too, as my food was digesting without any distress afterwards and the aches and soreness had left my back, limbs and joints. My nerves calmed down so I could once again get sound, restful sleep and the fatigued feeling went away.

"Ever since then I have kept Syntona in the house. If a cold or anything gets me down, I take this medicine awhile and soon I'm all right again. It's certainly a good medicine to know about and I wouldn't be without it."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you too.

LIFE BEGINS AT 71

Weston - Super - Mare, England — (CP) — The town's labor exchange found a full-time job for a 71-year-old woman.

Thumbing Decried By Youth Official

Berkhamsted, Hertfordshire, England — (CP) — Hitch-hiking can be harmful, says E. St. John Catchpool, secretary of a British youth movement.

Criticizing what he called the "false rumors" spread by praising the spirit of adventure in hitch-hiking, Catchpool told an International Youth Hostel Conference that people who travelled "on their thumbs" were made to appear almost heroic in the newspapers.

He suggested a country - wide "youth saving for travel" scheme and cheaper rail-and-boat fares would counteract the trend. Otherwise, he said:

"Hitch-hiking may, if not faced squarely, lead to a 'something for nothing' attitude and loss of self-respect."

Peaslake, Surrey, England — (CP) — A lecturer named Nightingale talked to residents on bird life.

Controls Bill Designed for Emergencies

Fair Allocation Of All Resources Necessary - - Howe

Expresses Hope Business Will Make Voluntary Adjustments

Ottawa, Sept. 8 (CP)—A bill empowering the government to control key materials and services authorizes it to direct the price and distribution of all items designated as essential including electric power, Trade Minister Howe told the Commons today.

Moving a resolution preliminary to the bill, the minister said it will give sweeping powers over all materials and services that may be designated as essential by the cabinet from time to time.

However, he expressed the hope that much of the allocation of these goods and services to defence needs will be done voluntarily by business and without the need of government action.

"Stand-by" Power

The authority to control prices of the essential goods and services, Mr. Howe said, was a "stand-by" power and there might be no need to use it if reasonable price levels were maintained.

"But if that is not the case," he added, "we cannot allow allocation of essential materials and service for defence purposes to be defeated by the charging of exorbitant prices.

"While we are primarily concerned with getting the materials and services required to see through our military preparedness program, we must have the authority to control all aspects of production, supply and distribution, use and prices of essential material and services.

"For, if output or supply cannot be increased, it is only by taking away from less essential civilian needs that the rising military demand can be met."

Mr. Howe said that, barring a major emergency, the government believes the powers provided in the act will be enough to meet the situation.

If greater difficulties than now indicated crop up in the next 18 months, he said, parliament will be asked to give additional authority.

"But for the present," he declared, "we have no intention of being drawn into, or getting involved prematurely, in a set of overall controls which would be particularly appropriate to an emergency much more intense than the difficulties we are facing at the moment."

Materials Not Named

Mr. Howe's explanation of the controls bill did not mention materials or supplies specifically except for steel and electricity. It said these would be designated by the government as the need arose.

FAIR ALLOCATION—Page 3

North Korean Attacks Weaken On All Sectors

Tokyo, Sept. 8 — (AP)—North Korean attacks weakened before Allied guns today on the rain-lashed Korean battlefields.

A United States Eighth Army spokesman in Korea said the fourth massive communist effort to drive the Allies into the sea had "petered out." He also told Associated Press correspondent Jack MacBeth: "We believe they are running out of ammunition, supplies, men and other things necessary to press an attack."

But a general staff officer at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo warned that 130,000 reds pressing against the Allied beachhead from all sides retain the power for a fresh new offensive.

Taegu, main northern and western Allied base, was reported safe for the time being. The red threat there was stopped seven miles north of the city.

Waning Visibility

The communist power and force northeastward from Taegu to the Sea of Japan was waning visibly.

Down in the southwest corner of the front, another red build-up behind the lines was foreseen. And there were indications of reserve build-ups behind all sectors.

Heaviest action of the last 24 hours was in the southwestern coastal sector where the reds are building for a new drive on Pusan, main allied port.

An order went out today for the removal of all non-essential civilians from Masan, port base town on the southwestern front.

AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported the evacuation followed information from North Korean prisoners that a special force of at least 100 reds had been ordered to infiltrate into Masan and create trouble.

Insp. Syd. Hunter Of OPP Retires

Cornwall, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Inspector Sydney Hunter, head of Ontario Provincial Police District. 11 with headquarters at Cornwall, today announced his retirement after 35 years of service. The retirement is effective at the end of September.

Inspector Hunter started his police career in 1916 as the first motorcycle patrol constable on the then incomplete Hamilton-Toronto highway. In 1930 he was appointed area motorcycle patrol inspector. In 1934 he was transferred to Brockville and in 1940 went to Belleville. He was appointed district inspector at Cornwall in 1948, coming here from Perth.

Inspector Hunter and family will reside in Perth.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 8 (CP)—Synopsis: Cloud and rain are spreading northward from the remnants of the old hurricane which separated Florida and Georgia this week. During the night the cloud reached Lake Michigan and Lake Erie and rain was but 100 miles farther south. Clear skies have been general over Ontario but will be replaced by cloud and rain in the southwestern area tonight.

The northern regions will remain clear but will be cooler on Saturday.

SUPPLIES FOR MAROONED

Lahore, Pakistan, Sept. 8 — (Reuters) — Pakistan Air Force planes today swept low over flood waters which had submerged 50 square miles of countryside around Lahore to drop supplies to marooned villagers.

WORKERS TUNNEL THROUGH SLUDGE TO REACH MINERS

128 Men Are Trapped In Scottish Mine

New Cumnock, Scotland, Sept. 8 (AP) —Rescue teams worked at top speed today to open an escape tunnel for 128 miners trapped 700 feet down and threatened with drowning in a river of mud.

"There are reasonable hopes for the trapped men," a mine-workers' union official said.

The miners were entombed last night when a rain-soaked surface area the size of a football field sank into the workings of the Knockshinnoch Castle Colliery, 30 miles south of Glasgow. The sodden earth mass cut off their path to the exit.

Rescuers tried all night and through the morning to clear dangerous gas fumes from an adjoining mine tunnel so they could cut through a 30-foot wall of coal separating them from their imprisoned co-workers.

The entombed men were in telephone communication with the pit head.

"We are in good spirits," one of them reported.

None was reported injured and they said they were getting enough air.

In One Room

The miners were believed to be together in one room. The mass of mud clogged most of a tunnel through which they were getting air.

They telephoned that there was a six-inch gap between the mud and the roof of the tunnel. They said they were moving coal and timber to dam the flow of mud into their chamber.

Eight miners on the pit-shaft side of the cave-in escaped. One of these lucky ones, John Stevenson, 56 whose son was trapped, told reporters.

"We went along to a turning about 100 yards from the pit bottom and were met by oozing sludge which came through with a burst and we had to run for our lives."

Stevenson said they rang an alarm bell and then got out up the main shaft.

Caused by Rains

The cave-in is believed to have been caused by heavy rain throughout yesterday.

A colliery official said the entombed miners seemed confident they would be saved.

On the surface other miners worked to fill the cave-in with wood, branches and hay so the sides of the hole would not collapse.

Relatives of the trapped men stood around the pithead throughout the night in grim-faced, whispering groups.

British Guardsmen Used in Test, Fail to Show Why M.P.'s Nod

London, Sept. 8 (Reuters) — An air-conditioning engineer put half a battalion of British Guardsmen into the new House of Commons Building to find out how to keep members of Parliament awake. But today he's doubtful that fresh air is the answer.

Dr. Oscar Faber thought plenty of ozone would cure the notorious tendencies of M.P.'s who frequently nod off during debates.

He tried his theory out yesterday on 400 deep-chested Guardsmen who, as guinea pigs for the experiment, filed into the new chamber built to replace the historic old house blitzed during the war.

They took their places and waited expectantly.

The experiment started when an engineer began reading a boring lecture entitled "The Law Courts of England."

It was Dr. Faber's big moment. He pulled the switch on his air-conditioning unit and shot a great blast of fresh air into the room.

It should have electrified the "members" but one private gently closed his eyes and dozed off. Across the chamber, another private sitting in the seat that will be Prime Minister Attlee's, frowned and then seemed to lose interest in the proceedings.

The verdict on the proceedings was that more trials are needed.

Discovery of Plot to Smuggle Vital War Material to Russia And East Europe Reported

Vienna, Sept. 8 — (Reuters) — A plot to smuggle vital war material, possibly including uranium, to Russia and East Europe has been unearthed by a police swoop in Carinthia, British sources said today.

Acting only on suspicions, Austrian police and men of the British Army Field Security Service raided an innocent - looking "export and import" firm in Carinthia.

They claim to have found there documents offering Russia bomb and mine detonators, aircraft engines, ball bearings, spark plugs, gold and radium. Uranium, used in atomic energy, was also mentioned.

Two employees of the company whose headquarters were said to be in Basle, Switzerland, were arrested. Both were alleged to have close connections with the Austrian communist party.

Seized documents showed that some deals already had been concluded for delivery, against payment in dollars, in the near future.

Samples of some of the goods had been sent to Austria from Switzerland, and complete consignments were to have been smuggled across the border and delivered to the Soviet occupation authorities in Austria. They would have arranged for despatch further east, it was stated.

Farm Loans Will be Stiffer Under New Budget

Ottawa, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Farmers received notice from Finance Minister Abbott Thursday night that the government is stiffening the terms of farm improvement loans.

Generally, they will be able to borrow less money than now and will have to pay it back sooner

Mr. Abbott announced the move in his budget speech as one of a number of "anti-inflation measures" being undertaken by the government.

Future policy, he said, will be to reduce the proportion of improvement expenditures financed under the Farm Improvement Loan Act and to "accelerate the repayment of such loans in a reasonable and practicable manner."

The minister gave no details, but it was learned there will be no government legislation covering the change. The banks, which make the loans under government guarantees, will simply be told to tighten up on the amount lent and on the repayment period. They will have discretionary power to deal with individual cases.

The loans are issued for farm improvements such as the purchase of equipment and renovation of buildings on a long-term repayment basis. They do not apply to purchases of land.

GRIM TASK OF NO AVAIL

Port Orford, Ore., Sept. 8 (AP) —A logger slashed off his employer's leg with a woodman's ax yesterday to free him from a burning tractor. But the grim task, that put logger Arlo Gore on the verge of collapse, was in vain. Gordon Johnston, the employer, died in hospital of burns and shock. Johnston had pleaded with his logging crew to cut off his leg caught when the tractor overturned on a steep slope.

10-Cent Chocolate Bar May be Around Corner

Ottawa, Sept. 8 — (CP)—The days of the 10-cent chocolate-bar may be just around the corner.

A five-cent package of chewing-gum may become a thing of the past.

That's what Finance Minister Abbott's "baby" budget has done to the gum-chewing and the candy-eating kid.

A Finance Department expert said Thursday night that the 30-per-cent tax levied on this sweet stuff may mean a one-cent increase in candy-bars. It is applied at the manufacturer's level.

Some candy manufacturers recently raised the price of their small-sized bars from five to 7 cents. The tax could bring it up to eight which the department spokesman pointed out wasn't far from 10.

Presumably gum will be upped too from five to six cents.

Life's also going to be tough for the youngsters who hang around the soda-fountains. The same tax applies to bottled soft drinks. And a tax of 50 cents a pound has been levied on carbonic acid gas used in preparation of fountain drinks.

PAPER OFFICES GUTTED

Arnprior, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Fire of undetermined origin Thursday swept through the offices of the Arnprior Chronicle, a weekly newspaper in this town 40 miles west of Ottawa.

Presses, typesetting machines and other equipment were heavily damaged while an apartment above the office, occupied by Charles Moffat, an employee of the Chronicle, also was damaged considerably.

This week's edition of the Chronicle was off the press and mailed before the blaze started while the employees were out to lunch.

COMMONS TOLD CANADA WORKING ON SECRET ARMS

Army Buying Bazookas For Special Brigade

Ottawa, Sept. 8 (CP) —Canada is working on two highly-secret anti-tank weapons. For the army's special force the government is purchasing quantities of the Americans' sensational new 3.5-inch bazooka.

Canada also is working on a new military transport plane she may produce for herself and for allies. She is strengthening Pacific coast defences but is holding aloof from any commitments, military or political, in the Pacific area.

Those and numerous other facts about Canada's rearmament program and the build-up of the forces poured into the Commons' record yesterday as three cabinet ministers faced up to another barrage of opposition questioners' assertions and accusations in a short-tempered House

Among others facts were:

1. Canada has no plans to buy new tanks this year or next because the west hasn't yet produced a new tank that would justify the cost. She has more than 300 medium Sherman tanks bought as late as 1946. The Korean force will contain an experimental unit, a self-propelled anti-tank squadron manned by personnel of the armored corps rather than the artillery. It won't have any Canadian tanks.
2. Canada is turning two railway cars into hospital cars and is earmarking more than $8,000,000 for northern housing and accommodation. She is spending more than $9,000,000 to fit last war-type heavy anti-aircraft guns with automatic fire control to take their part in the interceptor network of guns, planes, and radar.

COMMONS TOLD—Page 9

STUDENTS ON STRIKE

Greenwood, B. C., Sept. 8 (CP) — Two hundred students Thursday struck for the second day protesting what they described as "deplorable" conditions in the two Greenwood schools they attend.

While the boys and girls picketed, roamed the streets in jalopies and placed protest notices around town, their parents met with school board officials to seek a promise of a second money by-law financing a seven - room school. Such a by-law was defeated earlier by the rural vote in the school district.

Strikers have threatened that until satisfactory arrangements have been made, classrooms will remain empty.

Wiesbaden, Germany, Sept. 8— (Reuters — Two American jet fighters crashed in southern Germany last night killing their pilots, United States Air Force headquarters announced today.

Finance Minister Hints at Bigger Taxes in Future

Semi-Luxury Goods Will Be Hit Hardest by New Tax

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 8. (CP)—A stop-gap budget, born of the Korean war and the threat of an even-larger conflict, put moderately-higher commodity taxes into effect today—with an ominous hint of bigger levies in the not-too-distant future.

The tax boosts, some an extension of existing levies and others newly installed, apply to corporation incomes, liquor and beer, soft drinks, candy, chewing gum and a variety of semi-luxury goods which include motor cars and household electrical equipment. These apply at the manufacturing and importing level.

There was one major concession for the housewife. The new taxes don't touch electric stoves, washing machines or refrigerators.

Personal income taxes also were left undisturbed, but the little man who pays the shot in this department is living on borrowed time.

Finance Minister Abbott, as he placed the off-season "baby" budget before the emergency session of the Commons last night, made it plain that he is holding this "important" source of additional revenue "in reserve" for future use.

In a frank forecast of things to come, he said the plain fact is that Canada now must undertake defence measures running at about $1,000,000,000 a year. This year's defence budget, including increases for Korean aid, runs to $860,000,000.

Mr. Abbott then spelled out future tax expectations with these words:

"It is obvious, therefore, the total federal budget will be further increased in the year 1951-52."

Curbing Inflation

He was equally clear on two other points—that the budget is intended to curb inflationary pressures already apparent in Canada's economic structure, and that its provisions arise directly from this country's military commitments under the United Nations Charter and the North Atlantic Pact.

He replied with a terse "no" to suggestions, made both in parliament and without, that the government reintroduce price controls and subsidies, and that it revive excess-profits taxes.

The budget was a not-unexpected reversal of the tax-cutting trend which has marked government financing since the end of the Second World War. Its provisions will reap revenue of $58,900,000 in the current fiscal year, ending March 31 next, and will produce $189,500,000 in a full year. They also will bring a budget surplus of $15,000,000.

Padre's Few Well Chosen Words Result in Surrender of 65 Reds

Central Naktong River Front, Korea, Sept. 8 (Reuters) — Rev. Frank Woods, a carbine-carrying priest from County Louth, Republic of Ireland, shouted a few well-chosen words in Korean across a rice field west of Changnyong one day this week.

There was a pause of a few minutes. Then 65 strongly-armed communists who had been about to attack came out to surrender, their arms held high above them.

American troops, keyed up for a last-ditch stand, were dumbfounded.

Father Woods said today it was "all a mistake." With a twinkle in his eyes, he said he was merely advising a wounded man he had better give up.

"I think he was dead even then, but to my surprise all the others popped up," he added.

But the soldiers commented: "It was tough going. Without Father Frank there it could have been nasty."

Father Woods first came to Korea 15 years ago as a missionary.

Previously he served for two years in the Irish Republican Army. Then he worked in a grocery and liquor store in Dublin before entering the church.

Now he is unofficial chaplain to a battalion fighting here. He joined the men in their foxholes with his carbine when north Koreans infiltrated during the night to within 25 yards of a command post

Communist China And Russia Being Pushed to Decision

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP) — Two developments appeared today to be pushing Russians and communist China toward a decision on helping the North Koreans with troops and air power, or by some action to engage American forces elsewhere.

These developments are:

1. The gradual buildup of United Nations forces which, if not checked by the North Koreans or by the outbreak of communist aggression in some other quarter should assure a successful offensive eventually.
2. The heavy casualties which U.N. forces claim to be inflicting on the Korean communists.

Exact information as to the size of the North Korean army is not available, but there seems little doubt that it still outnumbers the United Nations forces heavily. Original U.S. estimates of North Korean strength at between 90,000 and 100,000 have been revised upward steadily as the conflict progressed. Units with an estimated total strength of 150,000 men have been identified, and one of Gen. MacArthur's intelligence officers estimated at the end of July that the North Koreans had brought their army strength up to 200,000 by frantic mobilization.

The U.S. Army estimated several weeks ago that the North Koreans had suffered 57,000 casualties. No estimate of the total North Korean casualties has been made since then. However, an army spokesman said today that estimates of 20,000 casualties among the Korean communists during the last week did not seem out of reason.

American casualties based on notices sent to next of kin through Sept. 1, have been announced as 8,863. South Korean casualties have been estimated at about 40,000.

Continued losses at such a rate undoubtedly would increase North Korean demands that aid from the outside go further than Russian tanks, heavy artillery, mortars and ammunition.

Russian tanks have been a major factor in enabling the North Koreans to retain the initiativ in the fighting thus far.

FRANKFORD BANK MANAGER MOVES TO CAMPBELLFORD

Mr. J. D. Mills, formerly of Stirling, manager of the Campbellford branch of the Bank of Montreal will retire from active duty with the bank at the end of the current month. Mr. Mills was manager of the Stirling branch from 1924 to 1929 and has been in charge of the Campbellford branch since 1936. He will be succeeded by R. D. McDonald, Fankford.

CAR CATCHES FIRE AT SOFTBALL GAME

A little extra excitement was provided at the Point Anne-Brewers softball game at the Elemite field last night when the back seat of a car belonging to Harry Rollins caught fire. Bystanders noticed the car filling with smoke and ran to pull the seat out of the car. A hole the size of a man's two fists was burned in the seat, and another hole of comparative size was spotted in the curve of the back support.

The seat was carried to a nearby outdoor tap and the fire doused.

CLOUTED ON NOSE

Blind River, Ont., Sept. 8 (CP) — Mrs. Vernon Solomon routed a big black bear with a hatchet Thursday. She ran, too. Mrs. Solomon met the bear in the bush near this town on the north shore of Lake Superior and clouted the bear on the nose with the rusty hatchet.

Re-Name Streets To End Confusion

That duplication of street names in the city which has caused no little confusion on the part of strangers in Belleville as well as to many others, will soon be no more.

Thursday night in committee, members of city council accepted the recommendation of a special committee appointed to look into the re-naming of streets having duplicate or similar names.

In their recommendation the special committee composed of Alderman Hyde as chairman with Aldermen Potter and Argue, introduced a long list of name changes which will become effective when the change of name has been properly advertised and the necessary by-law passed.

For the most part the new street names chosen are after prominent names in the city as well as after men who have been active in municipal affairs and members of parliament. The names of one or two members of the present city council are included.

The move to have duplicated street names changed saw its birth in the city at least a year ago, the attention of city council being brought to the matter with result that the special committee was named to investigate and make a report.

Venue of Game Has Been Changed To Plainfield

The venue of the South Hastings Baseball League finals game between Latta and Cannifton has been changed, according to loop officials.

The game will be played this evening at Plainfield instead of Cannifton as formerly reported. Officials also stated that the game played on Wednesday night between the two teams which ended in a 4-1 win for Cannifton after six innings of play, has been declared "no game."

The fact that Cannifton had won the game was reported to this newspaper by the Cannifton management.

Tonight's game gets under way at six o'clock.

Former Tourist Park Buildings May Serve as Tourist Booths

Buildings on the former city tourist park on Dundas Street, East, will be made available to the local Chamber of Commerce for use as tourist booths at the east and west entrances to the city.

Councillors Thursday evening passed the recommendation dealing with the matter and at the same time made certain other small buildings from the tourist park available as lavatories at city playgrounds.

The one-time city tourist park has been taken over by the Kinsmen Club which proposes to construct a community swimming pool on the site. The club will be asked to keep the property in good condition.

Bus Line Franchise

The franchise of the Rawson Bus Line comes up for renewal next year and a committee of Aldermen Lattimer, Butler, Potter, Liddle and Mayor Allin was set up to discuss the business contract and report back to council.

Several recommendations with respect to traffic were approved by council. Among these was one barring parking on the west side of Cannifton Road from Station Street to College. The traffic committee will also investigate conditions at Campbell and Front and at Campbell and Pinnacle with the view of placing pedestrian traffic lights.

Additional street lights were recommended for the intersection of Bridge and Coleman, at Benjamin and Sidney, and on Cannifton Road south of the C.N.R. tracks. Lights were also recommended for Dundas Street, East from Macdonald to the city limits near Herchimer Ave.

The city solicitor will be asked to prepare a by-law prohibiting parking on city streets at night so as not to interfere with snow removal and street cleaning.

Civil Defence

Alderman Duffy was named a committee of one to collect information and bring in a recommendation to council with respect to civil defence.

Calling of tenders was approved for the construction of concrete sidewalks in Bayview Heights north of Dundas Street, East.

City plumbing inspector, J. W. Holley, will attend as delegate at the annual convention of Ontario Plumbing Inspectors to be held at Brantford.

The small store which is part of the market weigh scales building was rented to Mrs. Earl Barr, Turnbull Street, at $20 per month.

Former Pupil Of George Maybee Given High Post

David S. Smith, newly arrived organist and choir master at Boniface Church, arrived in Medicine Hat, to assume his new duties.

Mr. Smith was the unanimous choice of this new combined post of the church vestry after a lengthy search for a replacement for the former incumbent, Robert Thompson, choir master, and Norman W. Waite, organist.

Mr. Smith comes to the church to assume his dual position with high qualifications. He has been organist and choir master at Christ Church, Gananoque, the past year. Previously he was organist at St. Xavier's Church, Toronto. During his time in Gananoque he was attached to the public school staff as music teacher, and his church choir won first prize in its class at the annual Rotary Music Festival held in Kingston.

Mr. Smith himself won a special award at the festival for his pianoforte interpretation of Bach music.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of Queens and during his student years was a pupil for organ of Mr. George N. Maybee, organist and choir master at St. George's Cathedral, Kingston. He completed his studies at the Royal Conservatory, Toronto, and holds his A.R.C.T., for organ.

The new St. Boniface organist, Mr. Maybee writes in a letter of recommendation to the rector, "has a fine ability as a church musician; a good sense for organ playing, and a fine technique for piano and organ."

Natural Gas Pipeline Explodes

Big Rapids, Mich., Sept. 8 — (AP)—A spectacular natural gas pipeline explosion and fire rocked an area north of here last night.

The blast, followed by a blaze which scorched across 10 acres of farmland, frightened citizens from their beds.

There were no casualties.

INQUEST ORDERED

Toronto, Sept. 8 — (CP) — An inquest has been ordered in the death in hospital today of Sergie Koski, 49-year-old carpenter believed to have suffered fatal injuries when ejected from a beverage room. Death was attributed to abdominal injuries.

$45,000 Permit Tops the List For Buildings

A total of 29 building permits with a construction value of $107,735 was issued at the city hall by city building inspector J. W. Holley during the month of August. Of the permits issued, nine were for the construction of new buildings.

A permit for the construction of a new garage and warehouse by A. C. Reynolds on Bridge St. West, for $45,000 topped the month's building list. The building will be of two-storey construction with space for office accommodation on the second floor.

Permits for the month were as follows:

Obituary

MRS. KENNETH MCKENZIE
(Picton)

Picton, Sept. 8—The death occurred in Prince Edward County Hospital on Wednesday September 6th., of Catherine Clow, widow of Kenneth McKenzie, in her 90th year. Mrs. McKenzie had been ill and confined to hospital for many months. She was a woman of many fine qualities and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends who regret her passing. She was a member of the Rebekah Lodge.

Mr. Wm. Clow is a nephew, and Mrs. James Tully, and Mrs. Marsh Branscomb are nieces of the deceased.

The funeral service was held at the Gilbert Co., chapel on Friday afternoon with interment in Glenwood Cemetery.

ALFRED LAKE
(Holloway)

Stirling, Sept. 8— Alfred Lake died at his home at Holloway on Wednesday after an illness of two years' duration. He was in his 70th year and was born in Sidney township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lake. All his life was passed in the district where he was born. He was a member of the Eggleton United Church and fraternally he was a member of Stirling Loyal Orange Lodge No. 110 and the Royal Black Preceptory.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Almira Stapley; one stepson, Lawrence Wilson, Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. Robert (Mary) Wallace, Harold, Ontario, and Mrs. P. (Pricilla) Page, Grand Rapids, Mich; two brothers, Samuel Lake, Kingston, and Robert Lake, Stirling; also one grand daughter, Valerie Wilson, Peterborough.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE WILLIAM J. G. COLDEN

The funeral of William James Gray Colden, late residence, 324 Foster Avenue, was held Thursday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. F. R. Harback, minister of the Tabernacle United Church.

The bearers were W. A. Gardner, R. Carruthers, A. C. Miller, A. W. Buck, Eric Thoms and Frank Augustus.

LATE MRS. GILBERT SMITH
(Anson)

Rawdon—The funeral of Mrs. Gilbert Smith was held from her home at Anson on Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends. A brief service was conducted by the Rev. H. C. Vaclavik.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Jeffs, Ross Hoard, John Holmes, Arthur Phillips, Frank Hutchinson and Kenneth Weaver.

Interment took place in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Church Cemetery with two former pastors, Rev. W. H. Clarke, Deseronto and Rev. F. G. Joblin, Port Perry assisting at the committal service.

Mrs. Smith was formerly Mary Elizabeth Reid, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Allan Reid, and she always lived at Mount Pleasant. She assisted with church activities as long as her health permitted.

She leaves one son, two daughters, three grandchildren and four great grandchildren to mourn her passing.

LATE MRS. JAMES MONTGOMERY
(Stirling)

Stirling, Sept. 8—The funeral of Mrs. James Montgomery was held on Wednesday afternoon from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ross Bush to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling. The Rev. W. H. V. Walker officiated and the congregational hymns were "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

During the service Mrs. Roy Eggleton and her daughter Marilyn rendered a vocal duet "Good Night and Good Morning."

The bearers were Messrs. Carman Fitchett, Lloyd Dafoe, Cameron Montgomery, Norman Ray, Connell Leslie and W. Sills. These same nephews were pall bearers for her late husband who died in 1939.

Interment took place in the family plot in Stirling cemetery.

Crane Removes Blocks of Stone From Royal Bank

Campbell Street was the mecca for the sidewalk superintendents this morning, as a crane removed the large stone blocks from the first storey wall of the rear of the Royal Bank building. The blocks varied in size, but all weighed at least 500 lbs., and some would have tipped the scales at 1,500 lbs.

The blocks formed part of the ornamental design of the rear stone part of the building, and were laid at the top of the wall brick-fashion. Each had to be pried loose by hand from the old mortar and propped up by old bricks from the building. After the propping a cable was slipped under each, and the huge crane took over.

At the same time, workmen are dismantling the rest of the rear of the bank, and cascades of brick and dirt release clouds of dust into the air frequently. For a time this morning the street was blocked off as trucks removed the blocks. Later, the system was improved on, and traffic was allowed to use to street.

IN MEMORIAM

VANDERWATERS — In loving memory of my dear husband, Frank Vanderwaters, who passed away on September 8, 1949.

Home is not home, for Frank's not there
Angels have taken him out of our care
Dark is his room and empty his chair
He's gone to that home so peaceful and fair.
Sleep Frank, sleep, thy toils are o'er
Sweet is thy rest so of need before.
Well we have loved you but God loved you more
He has called you away to that bright, happy shore.

Ever remembered by wife Ellen. S8

ASHMAN — In loving memory of a dear brother, Thomas E. Ashman, and a dear nephew, Raymond Ashman, who drowned at Kingston, September 8, 1946.

Their memory is as dear today
As in the hour they passed away.

Fondly remembered by sister Evelyn, Eddie and family. S8

SHOCK CAUSES DEATH

Detroit, Sept. 8 — (CP) — The shock of seeing her neighbor's legs crushed between two cars caused the death of Mrs. Annie Clark, 42, yesterday.

She died of a heart attack when John Foreman, 24, was caught between two parked cars telescoped by a runaway truck. Foreman suffered compound fractures of both legs.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 8 (CP) — Industrials and base metals stocks led the upward swing at the Toronto Stock Exchange today in brisk trading as the market showed signs of complete recovery from Wednesday's plunge.

Traders bought and sold briskly for gains up to $2.50 as fears of heavy corporate tax hikes failed to materialize when the budget was read last night. Most traders had expected heavy budget proposals and the market had dipped correspondingly.

Industrials showed the greatest gains as plus signs held a strong majority. Refining oils pushed ahead with advances in McColl International Pete, McColl and Imperial Oil. Dominion Foundries, Algoma, Dominion Steel B and Page-Hershey climbed fractionally in steels.

Quemont jumped and Consolidated Smelters added 2 1-2 at $114. Steep Rock, Waite Amulet, Eureka and East Sullivan also moved higher.

Golds and western oils followed the market pattern and shoved higher. Most senior golds were ahead and on the secondary board gains doubled losses. Central-Leduc, Del Rio, Royalite and Atlantic brightened in oils.

PRODUCE MARKET

Creamery prints: First grade, 55 cents.

There was a good demand for all grades at the egg market this morning with fresh Grade A large in short supply. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 56; A medium, 49-50; A pullet, 35; Grade B, 39; Grade C, 28. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 59; A medium 53; A pullet, 39-40; Grade B, 42-43; Grade C, 33.

Butter solids: First grade, 54 cents; second grade (nominal) 51-51½ cents.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 8 (CP)—Dressed, grade A hogs, delivered, were $31.50 at Hull, Que., today.

At Stratford prices were unsettled again and not established.

Public as Usual Expected to Absorb Higher Prices Caused by New Taxes

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadian business men indicated today that they expect the public will absorb the higher prices caused by tax increases with little buying resistance.

There was no immediate comment from either the Canadian Manufacturers Association or the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Officials indicated they wished to study the budget before estimating its possible effect on business.

The special budget brought down by Finance Minister Abbott last night boosted corporation taxes and provided for new or higher taxes on cars, trucks, some beverages and a wide range of electrical appliances and luxury goods.

But a soft-drink manufacturer said the new excise tax of 30 per cent on bottled soft drinks would be a "serious blow".

E. P. Fox of Montreal, general sales manager of the Pepsi-Cola Company of Canada, Ltd., said "this item of the budget has dealt us a serious blow." G. E. Mitchell, sales manager of the Orange Crush Company, said in Toronto his product would be increased from five to six cents a bottle.

Mr. Mitchell said the company's product now sells for six cents in Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia. It seemed inevitable now that it would go up to seven cents in those provinces.

In Toronto, manufacturers of candy bars who recently raised the price of the small five-cent bar to seven cents because of an increase in the wholesale price of sugar, said the price might go to 10 cents. The new tax, they said, will raise it to eight cents at least.

Predicted, too, were increases in beer prices, the result of an increase in taxes on malt to 21 cents from 16 cents a pound. A brewing official in Toronto said an increase was "inevitable' while in Montreal, a meeting was called of brewing associations and breweries to discuss the next tax.

The excise tax on cars was raised five per cent to 15 per cent but officials said it would have little appreciable effect on sales. A Chrysler Corporation spokesman said in Windsor it would boost the retail price of the average car about $75 to $80.

Dealers said, however, there still is a strong demand for new cars, and they expect sales to be maintained.

Dealers in electrical appliances said they don't expect much change in sales as a result of the new 15-per-cent excise tax. Radio salesmen gave the same answer when queried about the possible effects of an increase in taxes on radios to 15 from 10 per cent.

One Labor spokesman, C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), immediately protested the budget. He said: "In view of the unprecedented profits, it seems that one would be able to guard against inflation and meet the added burden of increased defence expenditures with an excess profits tax."

Ontario Command Canadian Legion To Present Cheque

A cheque for $30,302.67 will be presented to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund by the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion, when the Dominion convention is held in Winnipeg starting on September 10th and continuing until the 14th. This money was raised by the various branches, the ladies' auxiliaries and individual members of the Legion to assist in the rehabilitation of those who suffered from the disastrous floods of some months ago.

The Ontario Command has also instituted a Legion Scholarship Fund to be used to put through college deserving sons and daughters of veterans. Those from the Belleville district include John Lesage of Tweed, and Miss Patricia M. Smith, daughter of Archdeacon and Mrs. Arthur Smith of Belleville. There have been 27 scholarships of $275 each awarded in the first year of operation. The Brewers Association of Ontario have generously donated 10 of these scholarships.

CHEESE PRODUCTION DOWN

Toronto, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Chedder cheese production dropped in Ontario in July, the Ontario Agriculture Department reports. Production was 10,728,000 pounds, a drop of 16.3 per cent from July, 1949, and production for the first seven months of 1950 was 13 per-cent below the same period of 1949. Creamery butter production for seven months of 1950 was down 3.3 per cent.

Soft Drink Firms Await Word on Price Changes

Local soft drink manufacturers were awaiting word from their head offices at noon today concerning the increase in the price of their product following the 30 percent tax levied on the manufacture of pop, announced by Finance Minister Abbott Thursday night.

Officials of the Coca Cola Company here stated that the company price of coke to the consumer will remain at five cents, and that any government tax will be added. Word from head office in Toronto concerning tax increases, is expected shortly.

Quinte Dry Beverages kept their trucks off the road this morning pending word from their head office in Montreal. A price increase to the consumer, "must come" said an employee.

Foy and Irwin have not yet reached a decision concerning increased prices due to taxation.

FAIR ALLOCATION

Its primary purpose, he said, was to "enable the government to make sure that Canada's military program and international commitments with regard to preparedness and defence can be implemented without undue delay or disruption.

He emphasized that a "great deal" of the allocation and price control might be accomplished by business itself.

Mr. Coldwell said it was the duty of parliament and the government to see that while there was allocation of essential materials there also was allocation of food and other supplies at reasonable prices.

There should be adequate and proper controls, he said, to protect the men and women in industry.

F. D. Shaw (SC — Red Deer) urged decentralization of war industry and said the development of oil resources in Western Canada should open the way for the establishment of war industries there.

Evidence of Profiteering

Mr. Shaw said there is every evidence of profiteering in civilian commodities. If that was true when Canada was not involved in an all-out war, how much more true it would be in an all - out war. He urged the government to undertake immediately an investigation of price spreads.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said the broad terms of the resolution would indicate the government plans to establish a constitutional economic dictatorship. It asked parliament to abdicate many of its powers. He believed that efficiency could be obtained without establishing a dictatorship.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) said the chamber should not be asked to give the government a "blank cheque." It should know clearly the precise nature of the powers sought.

He advocated a revival of the system of price controls and subsidies which, he said, had proved so useful during the war. It had saved the people and the government itself millions of dollars.

DAYS OF PROGRESS

Into this week have been poured such emotions as fill the hearts of boys and girls, days which will be remembered decades hence — the days when the school reopened and they entered upon their careers as pupils and embarked on that voyage of education which their parents and elders have wisely prepared for them so that they may well fill the niche in life to which they will gravitate in the course of the years ahead.

Their emotions are of course mixed, regret at parting with the holidays, excitement and pleasure at meeting other children with whom by fate or destiny they will be thrown into contact in the most impressionable time of their young lives.

Their studies are graduated and they link up their previous training with what is to come in the year ahead. The school days mark progress, the growth of their education is wisely provided for and in the class room and on the campus, they find an unfolding of life more and more, though the steps are in easy stages. In a few brief months they make marked progress as their friends and parents will testify. Such an awakening influence comes from the school.

The days and years of training for life are to children a deep adventure in which they step forward into life with its ever-widening horizon, expanding through their long lives.

Boys and girls who are now in schools for the first time are tasting something of that great field of education through which everyone should pass so that he or she may be prepared for the days ahead, with opportunities so great as not even to be imagined, for no life can look forward with certainty to its exact course during the years in the future.

What opportunities will lie before them, it is difficult to say in this fluid world when so much is changing from what was to what is to be. They will be the heirs of possibly the most momentous age in the world's history just as their parents and grandparents have been the heirs of a great age seeing marvellous developments in the unfolding of the unknown to what will some day be known across the world. Their age will doubtless see the attainment of an age of security and true brotherhood, which the leaders of mankind have been seeking for centuries.

At the present time they are facing opportunities never offered their parents or grandparents, so fast has been the change in the world.

ISSUE "PROOF" COINS IN U.K.

Britain's Royal Mint is shortly to issue special sets of current British Imperial coins, packed in cardboard boxes and priced at around $2.00.

The coins will be struck individually from specially polished dies and will be "proof" pieces. There will be the half-crown, the florin and the shilling piece (both English and Scottish types), the sixpence in cupro-nickel, the nickel brass threepenny piece and the penny, halfpenny, and the farthing. The five-shilling piece, the silver threepenny bit and Maundy coins will not be included.

During recent years there has been increasing public interest in the coinage and it is felt that there will be a good demand for these sets, in Britain as well as in Canada and the U.S.A.

The actual total value of the coins will be about $1.10, but, due to the extra labor required for the making of "proof" coins, the profit from their sale will be very slight.

"HM-M-M"

Recently we had occasion to remark on the use of the expression "ugh," which seems to have been a bit overdone by writers of novels on the American Indian. Perhaps one reason for that overuse is the convenience with which such a grunt may be made to signify much or little or nothing at all, depending on the context and the reader, says Windsor Star.

Pursuing this research into etymology, we are inclined to believe that a derivative of the Indian's "ugh" persists in the way some New Englanders use the expression, "hm-m-m."

It is neither affirmative nor negative; it is not "uh-huh" nor "huh-uh;" it is merely an indication of interest, "hm-m-m."

As such, it is a very useful expression when conversation verges toward subjects on which you sense that your friends have opposite and explosive feelings.

This word — if it is a word — could be the means of averting occasional clashes in politics, business, and the family circle; on the other hand, it could become unbearably exasperating on occasions when one sought a definite opinion or commitment.

JUST FOLKS

BELATED TRIBUTE

My grandma on my mother's side
Was grandpa's second wife,
But still with loving care she tried
To train me well for life.
She often took me on her knee
And told entrancing tales to me.

The grandma that I never knew
Could not have loved me more,
Or happier seem to be to do
What children hunger for.
No sweeter smiles I should have known,
Had I been grandson of her own.

'Tis very late this tribute now,
Since long has she been gone;
And there is silver on my brow,
For I am getting on.
But lucky was I born to be
To have a grandma such as she.

Warm were the welcomes when we went
To grandma's for a day;
Now, all the happy hours I spent
With her in memory stay.
I never learned, 'til late in life,
That she was grandpa's second wife.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Sept. 8th., 1930

Mr. and Mrs. George Clarke of Jacksonville, Florida, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Spence Clarke, Trent Road.

Miss E. Wiseman has returned home from Toronto where she spent a vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone Chapin have returned to their home in Peterborough, after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Evans, Moira Street west.

Mr. Leo Barlow has returned home from Rochester, N. Y., where he visited relatives.

Mr. Edgar Ogilvie of Toronto is here to spend the weekend with friends.

Mr. Philip Horton, teller in the Bank of Montreal here, has been transferred to the bank's branch at Thorold.

Mrs. Agnes Curry, Foster Avenue, has returned home after a visit to Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 8th., 1920

The following members of the First Belleville Troop Boy Scouts spent two days recently at the Toronto Exhibition and had a great time: C. Hayes, B. Wells, R. Buskard, F. Follwell, W. Soules, C. Harris, C. Facer, W. Carter, B. Jordon, H. Redfern, R. Bird, P. Fleming, W. George, J. Redfern, M. Connors, T. Byrons, J. Baker, F. Clair, J. Muny, C. Rigby, W. Wilbur, J. Fleming, R. Forrester, W. Doherty, J. Welsh, B. Ives and C. Kennedy.

Mr. Charles Keeber has been appointed Physical Director at the Y. M. C. A. here and will enter upon his duties in a few days.

Mr. P. F. Brockel, Secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., has returned home from Toronto where he attended a conference of Y. M. C. A. secretaries.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 8th., 1910

Mr. John Lally is spending a few days in Toronto.

50 YEARS AGO

Sept. 8th., 1900

Mr. J. W. Dickey of Trenton was in town today.

It would be a good idea to form a rugby team in Belleville; there is plenty of good material. Get busy boys.

Mrs. Hugh Hendrick left today to join her husband at Spokane, Wash., where they will in future reside.

Mr. W. J. Hudson has left on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Dr. McKeown is spending a few days in Montreal.

Mr. S. J. Cooley of Marmora was a visitor in town today.

Mrs. G. H. Tickell has presented to the city council an excellent enlarged picture of her late husband, who was Mayor of this city in the year 1890. The picture will be placed in the council chamber along with the pictures of other former mayors of the city.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

You settle down before the victrola for a quiet little evening feast of your own—not some professionally chosen — music. You put on Mozart's fortieth symphony, which some say is the most perfect composition ever written. Or Brahm's third, which despite a certain German blah about it, has short passages of quite incredible beauty.

Then the door bell rings, and in walks a couple of your dear friends, the lady leading, tip-toe.

The music is flooding the house.

Tippy-toe, hands clasped under her chin, she whispers:

"Oh, I love this!"

And tippy-toes over to the chesterfield and sits down beside your wife. Her husband hangs up his hat and walks decorously to a chair and sits quietly down.

The music marches devinely.

"How's everybody?" comes a sibilant whisper from behind you on the chesterfield.

Your wife smiles and nods reassuringly.

The music lifts, expands.

"I just love this passage," says the lady newcomer, in almost her full voice, but still slightly hushed with emotion.

The symphony builds to the climax with which one side of the record usually concludes.

"I saw Mabel today," announces the lady, this time a little better than full voice because of the climax.

That side of the record ends. You get up. You click it off. You turn, heartily, rubbing your hands, and cry:

"Hello folks!"

"Oh, don't turn it off!" exclaims the lady piteously. "Don't turn it off! I love that symphony."

"Yeah?" you don't say, though you should.

And, of course, you don't turn it on.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SO WATCH YOUR STEP

"I am going to teach my son to drink like a gentleman."

Perhaps. But there are 750,000 alcoholics in this country—broken, ruined men and women, utterly unable to cope with a strong passion— and many of these were raised in homes where the ideal of moderation existed. There are 6500 people killed by automobile accidents and fatalities are seldom caused by drunken drivers but are caused usually by drinking drivers—folks who had been imbibing moderately and who just got throttle happy.

No one can be taught to regulate in his life the growth of a habit-forming drug—and that alcohol is. If a person drinks moderately, it is because he has a well-balanced nervous system, or because he was not placed in circumstances which encouraged indulgence, or because he never met a stiff crisis which tempted him to seek "comfort" in alcohol.

The only way one can be sure of being able to deal satisfactorily with alcohol is by staying away from it. It has a way of creeping up on folks. Even when taken in small quantities and in the form of mild liquors, it paralyzes the moral inhibitions and invites every variety of unsatisfactory conduct. It's highly dangerous.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

DOUBLE-HEADER

As I've reported in this column before, I was born September 6, 1899. On the same date two years later, President McKinley was shot, and there are plenty of fellows on Broadway who will tell you they shot the wrong man.

Anyhow, be that as it may, when I woke up on the morning of September 6, 1950, my two heads began to argue with each other.

What's that? You didn't know I had two heads? Of course I have. When I was born on a kitchen table on the lower East Side 51 years ago, I had only one, but 15 years later, day and date with my first pay check, I began to sprout another.

In recent years, as readers of this column know, I've been a badly confused man—my two brains seldom agree on anything, and as a result I seldom know whose corner I'm in what team I'm rooting for, which cheering section I belong to.

When I got up Wednesday, both heads yawned, blinked and then remembered what day it was.

"Happy birthday," said Head No. 1.

"What's happy about it?" said Head No. 2. "A birthday is just a comma between crib-and crypt."

"Bad alliteration and worse logic," said No. 1. "A man is as old as he feels."

"Think so?" said No. 2. "Well, try touching your toes and you'll find that a man is as old as he is old."

I reached out for my usual getting-up cigarette.

"That's another thing I've been meaning to take up with you," Head No. 2 went on. "Now that your lungs are 51, don't you think it's time you cut down on your smoking? And while you're at it, how about doing something about that waistline? This Hallowe'en some kid is liable to think you're a pumpkin and start cutting holes in it."

"Save your breath," said Head No. 1. "I get a lot of pleasure out of tobacco and T-bones, and I'm not giving them up for you or any other head."

"Okay, it's your funeral," said No. 2. "And incidentally, speaking of funerals, what's this I read in the papers about your doing a television show this fall? I thought you were through scrounging around for an additional hot buck."

"Bucks have little to do with it," said No. 1. "TV is an interesting medium and I'd like to take a crack at it."

"My guess is you'll fall on your fat face and wind up owing Hooper a few points," said No. 2. "This isn't a one-shot thing, you know—you've got to be good week after week. And, as I see it, that's like the vaudevillian who steps down to the footlights and says, 'My next trick, ladies and gentlemen, is im-possible.'"

"I'm inclined to agree," said Head No. 1, "and I so pointed out to my sponsor. I told him I'd be plenty tickled if I came up with five good shows out of the first twenty-six. And not to brood about it—chances are that five would put me four up on the other Joe McGeniuses."

"How does your missus feel about this new chore?" asked No. 2. "As it is, what with the theatre, column and night club, you only get to see her weekends. What are you going to do when you're up to your ear-lobes in coaxial cable—see her every New Year's Eve?"

Just then Eleanor bounced into my bedroom. "Happy birthday, Methuselah," she said. "I've invited a few people in for dinner tonight. How do you want me to fix the birthday cake—one candle or one for each year?"

"One candle," I said, "unless you aim to pass out smoked glasses to the guests. By the way, did you buy me a present?"

"Yes—a deep-freeze," said Eleanor. "We've needed one for a long time. And for good measure, six handkerchiefs monogramed 'E. H. R.'"

"That's my girl," I said. "Always doing the right and proper by her old man."

My wife grinned, walked out of the room and came back with one of those fancy wrist watches which have separate dials for the days and months of the year.

"Wear it in good health, darling," she said.

"What did I tell you?" enthused Head No. 1 when Eleanor had gone downstairs. "She's a girl in a zillion."

"That's one thing we agree on," said Head No. 2, "but the calendar on that wrist watch should worry you plenty. Maybe the little woman is trying to tell you that it's later than you think."

Court of Appeal Considers Word Used by Judge

Toronto, Sept. 8 (CP)— The Ontario Court of Appeal today considered a defence contention that Chief Justice J. C. McRuer wrongly used the word "and" instead of "or" in his charge to the jury at the murder trial of James Fosbraey at Napanee.

The defence claim that the Chief Justice used the wrong word in reading to the jury the legal definition of insanity was put before the court yesterday. Crown Counsel W. B. Common was asked to submit his argument on the question today.

The court is hearing an appeal against Fosbraey's conviction in the knife-slaying of his wife, Marie. The air force veteran was sentenced to be hanged Sept. 21.

The defence argued that the legal definition of insanity is that, in committing an illegal offence such as murder, the accused "did not appreciate the nature and quality of his act in doing or did not appreciate that it was wrong." The trial record shows that four times in his charge the chief justice used the word "and" instead of "or," the defence contends.

Whether the misuse of the word will affect the conviction may be settled by the court today.

CANCER SOCIETY CAMPAIGN

Port Stanley, Sept. 8—(CP)— The Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society will hold its first provincial campaign meeting here Sept. 9 and 10. It will lay plans for the division's 1951 fund-raising campaign, scheduled for April.

Money raised is used to support the 80 research projects at 13 Canadian universities, as well as to carry on the society's welfare and educational programs.

Mackenzie's Column: Kremlin's Aim Regimentation Of Whole Populations

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

There's one aspect of the cold war between the isms regarding which a lot of folk are making what could be a disastrous mistake.

This is in harboring the belief that the argument is purely political. That's about as far off the beam as anybody could get.

The communist ideology comprises a way of life, dealing with every phase of human activity from the cradle to the grave.

It is a regimentation which aims at complete uniformity of ideological viewpoint by whole populations.

It envisages world conversion, with Moscow as the seat of guidance.

Work of Generations

But, somebody asks, isn't that the work of generations? It certainly is—and all indications are that Russia so regards it.

The Kremlin clearly is planning far beyond the time of Stalin or any of his captains. Jakob Malik, Soviet delegate to the United Nations, has declared that the program will be carried out if it takes 100 years.

This fits in with the conclusion being drawn by Washington diplomats from the manner in which Moscow has dealt with the recent destruction of a Soviet bomber by U.N. forces over Korean waters. The Soviet procedure of dealing with the affair by note is taken as meaning that the Kremlin still wants to limit its conflict with the United States to diplomatic clashes.

Since this also is the American aim, it encourages the belief that another major war isn't likely in the near future, though obviously there are dangers as long as open powder-kegs are standing around. However, the drive for world communization will continue with increasing force.

Therefore the question arises as to how this ideological crusade is to be met. It's no good pursuing the negative defence of merely arguing that communism is contrary to our way of life. The challenge must be met by demonstrating that the democratic ideology is what the world needs.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

BASIC HEALTH DIET

Reader who speaks of her angina, gall bladder trouble and arteriosclerosis, says her physcians would tell her only what they thought was good for her, so she sent two bits and a stamped self-addressed envelope to the grasping charlatan who conducts this column, for his CVD booklet. CVD is short for cardiovascular degeneration. Now don't blame me for calling it degeneration. Every one of us who lives long enough must begin to decline the instant he or she attains the peak of growth and development—at just what age depends on how one lives—and the downhill journey is degeneration, that is, gradual replacement of functioning cells with inert fibrous tissue. Slow death, if you prefer the shorter words.

The reader goes on to say that she followed as nearly as possible (because away from home) the basic health diet outlined on p. 45 of the CVD booklet. The diet is given also in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite (for copy send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope)—I call it the corrective, protective, regeneration, rejuvenation, reduction diet.

I am already feeling so much better that I feel like saying 100 percent, but I guess that will come with time. I am in my 66th year and I owe you many thanks for the benefits we receive from your research humanity... (Mrs. W. M.)

Come, come, now if we pour it on too thick a lot of people will cry "What! Without shots?" Besides, we can't brush aside as of no consequence the treatment the doctors gave you — the doctors who told you only what they thought was good for you.

From many painful experiences I am reluctant to try it again, but I don't want to get your expectations aroused and then disappoint you, so I'll take a chance and print here the menu for breakfast—if it doesn't win your approval just forget the whole thing, for the menu for lunch and for dinner is little or no more attractive.

BREAKFAST

Glass of orange juice	100 calories
Two eggs (cooked as you like)	166 "
Fresh Fruit (with cream or milk if necessary, but without sugar)	80 "
Glass of milk	160 "
That's all—four items	526 calories

Remember, this breakfast menu just as it is (without cream on the fruit) is suitable for a reduction diet.

The entire basic health regeneration, rejuvenation diet is a kind of framework on which to build or pattern your own everyday diet.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Crooked Legs

Can crooked legs be corrected? Daughter, 20, is becoming antisocial. (P. B. A.)

Answer—As a rule, yes. Consult orthopedic surgeon. Your family physician or any physician in your vicinity will recommend one.

Benzedrine

Your views on taking Benzedrine to lose weight. (Mrs. K. L.)

Answer—In some circumstances it may be a great aid, provided it is used only under the constant supervision of the physician.

Hemorrhoids and Fissures

One doctor told me I have hemorrhoids. Another said I have fissures. (B. W. A.)

Answer—Both may be right. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing—do not use a clipping—for pamphlet It is Stupid to Suffer From Piles.

Black Strap

What kind of molasses should one take? Is the kind that contains sulfur dioxide injurious? (Mrs. W. G. W.)

Answer—No particular harm in the sulfur dioxide—it is the residue from the chemical bleach used to whiten sugar. Dark molasses, called blackstrap, is the best for infant, child or adult.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

VARIETY

Every time I look into a brilliant starlit sky I wonder over the variety of stars and planets. And there are probably billions of them that no eye has ever seen, not even with the most powerful telescope.

In nature there is an endless variety of flowers, birds and animals, as well as minerals, trees, hills, mountains, streams and bodies of water, each upon a separate mission. Human beings are apt to become restless and dissatisfied if they do not have a variety of interests to stimulate their minds. Variety has been called the spice of life—and who can dispute it?

The happiest people are those who have a variety of things to do. They are not in the bored class, nor do they invite bores! They go about their work, tuned by an inward song. Variety gives incentive, desire, and the will to inquire, experiment, and achieve.

Take the bird kingdom. I have always wondered why there were so many varieties of the same type of bird—each one to be distinguished by some minor marking or color. Then there are varieties in different localities, for example Florida has its type of Jay, so does Nova Scotia, and nearly everyone is familiar with the scrappy Blue Jay. And there are endless varieties of Sparrows and Warblers.

There are millions of human beings, yet not a single one exactly the same as another. Our Creator didn't want any of us to run out of the desire to know more! He planted curiosity within us all, the urge to know more, and thus to take on new interest in life. Nothing leads to happiness and personal contentment, like a variety of interests. A person could devote a lifetime to the study of a single animal or bird, and still die with things yet to know about it.

Fabre gave a lifetime to the study of insects, yet he did not exhaust the subject. Others, following him, are adding to the knowledge that he left behind. It is learning about many things that stimulates our imagination, and makes educated people of us.

East Berlin's Reds Begin Razing Old Castle Ruins

Berlin, Sept. 8 — (AP) — East Berlin's communists Thurs. began razing one of the city's most famous landmarks — the war-ruined Imperial Castle — to make room for a big Moscow-style red square.

An anguished howl went up from anti-communist West Berliners — who demanded that the castle be preserved and eventually reconstructed as an enduring link with what Germans like to call their "herrliche zeiten," (glorious times.)

BARGES TAKE FIRE

London, Sept. 8 — (Reuters)— Burning hot fat showered down on firemen and dock workers as they fought a blaze in a Thames riverfront warehouse Thurs. The flames spread to food-laden barges marooned in the river mud nearby and set them alight. Several men were burned and others overcome by smoke fumes.

Overcrowding in Schools Taxing Ingenuity of Teachers

Trenton — (Special) — Overcrowding in Trenton schools is taxing the ingenuity of both teachers and the school board but by making maximum use of available space, the school principals report they are making out "as best they can" with this year's record enrolment of nearly 2,000 students.

"I don't think we can do our best job with overcrowded rooms but apparently it can't be helped at the present time and we will do the best we can," said V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of public schools.

Original plans which called for a $216,000 eight-room public school east of the river and a $42,000 two-room addition to North Trenton School have been altered slightly. Only two tenders were received for the proposed addition to North Trenton and both were considered too high. As a result, the Board of Education now plans on constructing the two rooms in connection with the new eight-room school east of the river.

The remainder of the school building program which has been endorsed by council calls for a four-room addition to the present high school which will be converted to a public school when a new $720,000 high school is completed in 1954.

Construction of the new public school will be started as soon as possible and the Board of Education states that every effort will be made to have it ready by next September. Plans are being drawn up now, and when the expenditure is finally approved, tenders will be called for.

Rotary Governor To Visit Club On Official Visit

Trenton (Special) — Trenton Rotary Club will have as their guest Monday evening, Arthur R. Ferguson, Governor of the 274th District, Rotary International. Mr. Ferguson is making his annual visit to each of the 45 Rotary clubs in Ontario and Quebec.

The District Governor will confer with President Orloff May, Secretary A. J. Boorne and other Rotary officials on matters of club administration and Rotary service activities.

Mr. Ferguson who lives in Gravenhurst, is one of the 201 Rotary District Governors who supervise the activities of some 7,100 Rotary clubs having a membership of 342,000 business and professional men in 83 countries throughout the world.

This world-wide service organization is continuing to grow every year. During last year, 293 Rotary clubs were organized in 36 countries of North, South and Central America, Europe, Asia, Africa and islands of the Pacific.

Kingston Rink Wins Tournament

Trenton (Special) — Shirt sleeve summer weather and perfect greens combined to make the lawn bowling tournament at Trenton Country Club Wednesday afternoon one of the outstanding bowling events of the season.

Rinks from Cobourg, Brighton, Stirling, Campbellford, Belleville, Kingston and Trenton competed for the Trenton Country Club trophy which was won by Mr. and Mrs. Morley Galt of Kingston who were high three-game winners. An additional prize of blankets went along with the trophy which was presented by Mr. R. S. Hubel. Last year, the Country Club lawn bowling trophy was won by Belleville.

High three game second place was awarded to Harry Curtis and Mrs. Armstrong, also of Kingston. Cobourg won third place for high - three games. The Cobourg rink was skipped by Mrs. Hircock.

The Belleville rink skipped by Ernest Boulton came through with a consolation prize as high game winners.

Six Million Bushels of Wheat Has to be Dumped on Ground

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 8 (AP)—There's no place to store it and no place to ship it, so farmers in this rich wheat - producing area have had to dump more than 6,100,000 bushels out on the ground.

They have had to dump wheat before, but never in piles like the ones that dot the inland empire of Eastern Washington, Eastern Oregon and Northern Idaho today. The biggest before was 5,000,000 bushels in 1946.

It sits out in the wind, the sun and the rain. It might even be there when it snows. It sits alongside warehouses already bulging with wheat. Unless prolonged wet weather sets in, much of it can be salvaged.

The Pacific Northwest Grain Dealers' Association got out a report on the situation yesterday, and took a dim view.

The harvest in the three-state area is estimated at 107,000,000 bushels, a 12 per-cent increase over last year. That goes in with 32,000,000 bushels carried over from 1949.

"We now have 139,000,000 bushels of wheat in the area," said Peter Stalloop, managing secretary of the Association. "The most wheat that the Pacific Northwest can use for feed, seed and human consumption during the next 12 months is 25,000,000 bushels.

"The Commodity Credit Corporation has promised to move 10,000,000 bushels before the end of the year. It's beginning to look like we'll have to move 70,000,000 bushels out of the Pacific northwest between Jan. 1 and the harvest next year to be in as good position as we were this year. Frankly I don't think we can do it."

He didn't say what would happen to all the wheat if it can't be moved.

The boxcar shortage, bumper crops and prices and freight rates that make it difficult for northwest wheat to compete in the east and south are regarded as the big factors in the situation.

The biggest opening for the wheat is at Pacific coast shipping points 300 to 400 miles away.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE BIG 'WHY'

Petawawa Military Camp, Ont.—I came up here from Ottawa in an Army staff car to have a look at the lads who will fight our next war and to find out, if I could, why they will do it.

According to the Bureau of Statistics there are in Canada 2,527,100 men between the ages of 20 and 44 years and, thus, eligible for the so-called Canadian Army Special Force.

I was interested in the 5000 or more who responded to the call and particularly in those veterans who, having gone through one period of global insanity, are stepping forward voluntarily to go through another.

A doggerel that I once heard chanted by some Tommies in Germany had come back to my mind as we drove up the Ottawa Valley. It went:

Why did we join the Army, boys?
Why did we join the Army?
Why did we come to France to fight?
We must have been bloody well barmy!

It was "Why" I wanted to get at. Were these Johnnies, getting their guns to fight "where required" out to save the world from Communism? Or bloody well barmy? Looking for adventure? Security? Or what compulsion did they feel that apparently was not felt by two-and-a-half million other Canadians?

The headquarters officers with me weren't sure, either. They spoke of getting "a good quality of man" with about half veterans, half civilians. Of a realistic approach to training "in the shortest possible time." But what manner of man had come forward was a mystery, the kind of question that might not be asked or answered until the first Canadian casualty list is published.

Familiar Scene

It was a dismal day with a pelting rain, but as our car went through the old familiar tar-paper barracks I saw ahead of me, on a concrete parade square, a platoon of soldiers going through a rifle drill.

They were husky men with black berets and summer drill uniform, and they went through their chorus line ritual with the snap and dash that mean training and discipline. I asked my companions if these were members of the special brigade, Canada's better-late-than-never contribution to the United Nations.

No, one officer said, they were members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons of the Permanent Force. Then some activity across the parade caught his eye. "Here are some of the boys you want to see now," he said.

They were in threes, a long column of them, straggling down to the mess halls for lunch. They wore civilian clothes, many of them in cotton shirts without protection from the rain, one or two with extreme tailoring of the zoot-suiter, a few in faded blue denim trousers and work shirts.

I noticed a wiry, red-faced man who seemed to be about 50 years of age, walking beside a sallow-complexioned youth who looked no older than 15, a few who swung along with the exaggerated gait of the ex-soldier back on parade.

The officer next to me said, under his breath, "September, 1939."

That was it exactly. It was like looking back at an old newsreel. The strongest impression I had was of raw new men entering a strange life and the expression on most of those faces was the same, too, a kind of stoic patience or resignation.

Each man carried only one Army issue. In his hand or stuck in a hip pocket each had a knife, fork and spoon.

On Paper

This whole camp was in a kind of mild chaos or, in the Army phrase, "a snafu" because of the railway strike. From many parts of eastern Canada new recruits had come by truck and plane to Petawawa to wait here until the trains were running again Shilo, Wainwright, Dundurn, Chilliwack and the other camps where men of the brigade will be trained.

More than 2000 of them were here and quartermaster stores had run out of clothing. Hundreds of men arrived with only the summer wear they had on their backs, many without so much as a toothbrush or towel.

In the bare barracks they lay about on the grey palliasses, sleeping or reading pocket books or swapping stories, already getting back to the ripe Army language. In the administrative buildings, officers worked in seeming confusion and the men and boys lounged in the hallways in that monumental boredom every ex-soldier remembers.

I stopped to talk to one, an ex-corporal, and he said, without malice, "The Army hasn't changed a bit. Still the same old bloody hurry-and-wait system."

An officer had arranged that I could look over some of the forms that one group of men had filled out. One question was: State briefly why you wish to enlist in the special Canadian force."

I began to leaf through the forms looking at the answers. One man had written, "I believe Army life is good for a person. A 21-year-old Ukranian wrote, "It is my duty to serve my country at a time like this."

Another: "I want to try to learn something." And another: "I like the security Army offers plus comradeship. And, in a scrawl barely decipherable, was this "For the sole purpose of helping to wipe out this red scourage in our eastern countries."

(This is the first of two reports from Petawawa.)

WEDDINGS

DUNLOP—WILLIAMS

Wilholme Farm, Bloomfield, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Williams, attractively decorated with ferns and baskets of brilliant Autumn flowers was the scene of a pretty wedding on Sunday, September 3rd., at 2:30 p.m., when their daughter, Betty Lorraine, became the bride of John Russell Dunlop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dunlop, of Belleville.

Mr. Stephen Spurrell, of Bloomfield, was the officiating clergyman. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Vera Ostrander, of Picton, and Mrs. Willard Drew, of Beamsville, sister of the bride, sang "O Promise Me", before the ceremony and "Because", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white French nylon marquisette with cape collar edged with French lace, and inserts of the same lace through the skirt which fell in a short train. She wore a beaded satin headdress with long veil and pearl jewellery. She carried a white Bible with scarlet rosebuds.

Miss Shirley Williams, of Hamilton, younger sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore blue nylon lace and marquisette with mitts and poke bonnet of the same materials as gown. She carried a nosegay of pink roses.

The flower girl was little three-year-old Anne Jeffery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Jeffery, who wore floor-length dress of pink net over pink satin and carried a nosegay of blue flowers.

Mr. Ken Staples of Belleville, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Don Harvey, of Tillsonburg, and Mr. Willard Drew, of Beamsville.

A reception for sixty-five guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered, pillared cake set in a nest of tulle and rosebuds. Pink and white streamers rose to a white wedding bell over the table. Those serving were Miss Merle Matthie, Bloomfield; Miss Marilyn Purdy, and Miss Isabel Munro, of Belleville.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the bride, received her guests in a dress of plum crepe with navy accessories and corsage of white roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Dunlop, the groom's mother, who wore navy crepe in two-piece style with matching accessories and corsage of white roses.

For a wedding trip to Torpit Lodge, Muskoka, the bride donned a two-piece dress of black velveteen and scarlet wool, a black velvet beret with scarlet feathers, black accessories and corsage of white roses.

Out-of-town guests were present from Honeye Falls, N.Y., Toronto, Hamilton, Beamsville, Tillsonburg, and Belleville.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Dunlop will reside in this city.

CASTLE BLOWN UP

Berlin, Sept. 8 (Reuters) — East German demolition squads yesterday blew up Berlin's Imperial Castle—one of the last links with Germany's kings and emperors—to make room for a political parade ground. The castle ruins were all that remained after allied bombing of Berlin during the Second World War. The castle, built in 1443, housed the Prussian kings Frederick I and Frederick William I, and all the German emperors.

Abroad With Me

By Dorothy E. Futcher

(The author of these articles, Mrs. J. R. Futcher, of St. Thomas, is accompanying the Canadian members of the Women's Institute on a trip to Copenhagen, where they will attend the triennial convention of the Associated Countrywomen of the World. She is president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, and this series of articles is written to keep the members of the W.I. and all interested informed of the highlights of the trip.)

Monday, Aug. 28,

En route to Chester, England.

We are on our way to Chester to take a train to Lakeside on Lake Windermere in the English Lake District, which has the reputation of the finest scenery in England. Country lanes are winding and so are English highways.

On the curves are rounds of red glass called spotters, set into the curb. At short intervals in the centre of the highway are what they call cat's eyes. These are rubber studs with glass eyes in them each way, which show up marvelously well at night and are especially necessary in the heavy English fog.

At Chester we board our first English train. The coaches are smaller than ours and are very different. On one side small doors open into compartments which seat eight. If the station is on this side of the coach, then you enter by these doors—if on the opposite side, you enter by rear of coach and pass along a narrow aisle until you find an empty seat. We all think they are terribly dirty and the stations are the same way. One couldn't travel far without getting grimy.

We've decided that the proper way to see England in a party, is by bus—then you can choose the route you want to take and can spend extra minutes at interesting and historic places. We have made decisions also about clothes I know you are wondering if we were wise in our choice. If one was just sight-seeing, you could manage with very limited wardrobe—a suit, two or three blouses, warm sweater, top coat, and serviceable shoes and hat, plus an afternoon dress. Unfortunately we couldn't limit ourselves to this as we are being entertained along the way and as we must have 'dress-up' clothes for the Copenhagen conference, we are all carrying at least two large bags, an overnight bag, a topcoat and raincoat. Add to this a large handbag, bulging with directions, reservations, passport, papers, and odds and ends picked up everywhere. Then multiply the above by 23 and you can visualize the huge pile of luggage that has to be moved every time we move on. But porters are always near and without exception have been courteous and helpful and, as always, a generous tip accomplishes miracles.

The engine has a shrill toot, toot, for a whistle and the caboose is patterned after the Toonerville Trolley. Of course we were going across country and not taking through trains, which I know are modern and quite luxurious.

Because of a faulty schedule, we are stranded on station platforms for hours, and it is rather a bedraggled group that reaches Lakeside at 8.30 p.m. Then it is a hurried, warmed-over dinner and a vain attempt to beautify, as Lady Gowan, president of the village Institute, and the Institute members are entertaining us in their hall. In spite of pouring rain, we have a wonderful evening together. They tell us about themselves and we tell them about our provinces and Canada.

No one can ever again tell any of us that the English are stiff and formal. We have had a genuine and sincere welcome everywhere and a hospitality that is completely overwhelming. Everyone knows the word "Institute" here—even to the "left" man in the hotels. It is a word that commands respect and is just like a fairy wand in opening doors that would otherwise be closed.

We have all Tuesday morning in the Lake District and although it is still drizzling we manage to get a few good color pictures. The hotel manager told us the weather has been "hopeless" all August, cold and wet.

We pass through the quaint Hawkshed, a 16th century village where William Wordsworth went to school. It has been taken over by the National Trust and no building in it can be torn down. Beautiful Conniston Water comes next, the shadows of the hillsides mirrored in the clear water. This is the lake where Donald Campbell, son of Sir Malcolm Campbell, practices for the world speed boat record. Nearly all the houses here are built of slate, as quarries are common. We pause a minute at the burial place of John Ruskin.

In Yew Tree Valley we see a row of yew trees planted by a country squire, one for each son born, and there were 17 in the row. Two-wheeled carts pulled by one horse, are everywhere. I have a beautiful picture of a Lake District farm home over 400 years old. Age of a dwelling here is told by the type of chimney-pot. Hellvellyn Mountain now comes into view, the second highest mountain in England (3,118 feet), and from it are narrow mountain roads where only the smallest cars can go. Barns and houses are of stone. For gates in the stone walls, they place poles across in crevices. Hikers are all along, the very whole families carrying their knapsacks and mackintoshes. I wish I was 25 years younger—this is the ideal way to see this beautiful region of lakes and hills.

We see a small stone house built by a Scott, over a stream, to avoid taxes. On Rydal Water is Rydal Park, where sheep dog trials are made, and as we pass three black and white Scotch collies are doing a masterly job of keeping a large flock intact.

Then at Grasmere is the church where Wordsworth attended, and his grave is in the little churchyard at the back—just a flat slab on the ground. The church is quaint and lovely, its timbers are old and black, in all likelihood salvaged from abandoned ships. A short distance ahead is Rose Cottage, Wordsworth's home. The lady in charge is an Institute member and when she hears who we are, is kindness itself in showing us everything. I wish I could go into detail, but it is impossible. The cottage is small and dark with stone floors (downstairs), stone walls plastered, window-seats in front of small casement windows, and is built on a hillside. Thus, from the upper floor, you can walk right out into a delightful hillside garden with stone walls. An old garden bench under the trees could well have been the place where Wordsworth gained the inspiration that made him immortal.

Active at 70, Nurse Reviews 50-Year Career

Brantford, Ont., (CP)—Seventy-year-old Mrs. Tom Kirby has been a nurse for 50 years and loved every minute of it. In fact, she expects to continue nursing for many years to come.

Mrs. Kirby who celebrated her 70th birthday recently has worked at Brant Sanatorium for the last four years and during that time had her first experience of eight-hour duty.

"I had wanted to be a nurse ever since I was knee high to a grasshopper," said the tall woman who is now a great-grandmother. "If I had my life to live over again I would certainly take up nursing as a career.

Mrs. Kirby was born in Irishtown, N.B., and as a child moved with her family to New England. She became a student nurse in Laconia, N.H., in 1900 and two years later was the third nurse to be graduated at the hospital there.

At that time nursing was not the desirable profession it is today and her Scottish father at first refused to allow her to train. She tried her hand at dressmaking and then learned weaving in a woollen mill. Again her father objected to the type of work and finally consented to her becoming a nurse.

At the turn of the century a graduate's pay was $15 for a seven-day week, 16-hour duty, she said.

Joins Victorian Order

After doing public health work in Boston she joined the Victorian Order of Nurses at Toronto. Much of her work was with maternity cases, few expectant mothers going to hospital.

"We collected a small fee when the people could afford it, usually about 10 cents, and never more than 25 cents," Mrs. Kirby recalled. "That removed the sting of charity. We were allotted an hour for each case, but we sometimes had to get meals ready and that took longer."

About 1909 she became nurse in a tent hospital on the Six Nations Indian Reserve near here and moved to Brantford toward the end of the First World War.

While nursing 'flu patients here she met Tom Kirby, a disabled war veteran. Her husband became ill and after nursing him for six month in a Toronto hospital the couple went to the Isle of Pines, near Cuba, to speed Mr. Kirby's convalescence. They were there 13 years when their home was wiped out by a cyclone and they moved to Havana where Mrs. Kirby was employed as a nurse at $10 a day.

MUST CONTINUE PAYMENTS

Los Angeles, Sept. 8 (AP) — Xavier Cugat, the rumba man, must continue alimony payments of $2,000 a month until his estranged wife's suit for separate maintenance comes to trial. Superior Court yesterday rejected a plea from Cugat's lawyer to set aside the alimony order, on the ground the band leader had not been properly served with the suit of acrtess Lorraine Allen. The wife contends Cugat is deliberately staying on the road to avoid legal processes in her suit.

BANANA TREES DESTROYED

Santa Marta, Colombia, Sept. 8 (AP)—Hurricane winds which struck nearby plantations Tuesday destroyed an estimated 100,000 banana trees. Virtually all plantations in the Riofrio and Sevilla regions were affected.

Canada is Like Troops Promised Says Mrs. Bailey

Toronto, Sept. 8 — (CP) — "Canada is just like the wee laddies said it would be."

The speaker was a sturdy Scots woman, Mrs. Ella Bailey, one of the world's foremost authorities on Scottish tartans and lineage and "Mum Bailey" to thousands of Canadian servicemen during the Second World War.

With the frugal, canny business acumen for which her race is renowned, Mum Bailey is combining business with pleasure on her first visit to this country. She is operating a concession at the Canadian National Exhibition.

There was nothing frugal, however, in the welcome Canadian servicemen received between 1939 and 1945 in her gift shop on Edinburgh's Princes Street.

And the scores of phone calls and letters she has received since arriving here about two weeks ago provide ample proof her "wee laddies" haven't forgotten the woman who often closed her busy shop to show a group of Canadians around Edinburgh's historic spots; who, despite rationing, managed to serve afternoon tea to sometimes a score of men at a sitting; who turned her apartment over to men recuperating from war wounds; who lent them money when they were broke; and who, most important of all, gave them the kind of advice and encouragement she felt their own mothers would have given.

"I've been intending to visit Canada ever since the war ended but never seemed able to manage it until now," Mrs. Bailey said in an interview.

She operates a concession displaying Scottish tartans, bagpipes and clan emblems.

First of the "wee laddies" to get in touch with Mrs. Bailey on her arrival was Curtis Ross, formerly of Calgary and now living in Toronto, who heard her speaking on a radio broadcast. He has phoned daily to see if he can be of any assistance to "Mum."

Once the Exhibition ends Saturday, Mrs. Bailey plans to visit the prairies and British Columbia. At Edmonton she will stay with her uncle, Maurice Hunter, and also plans trips to Claresholm, Alta., and Calgary.

Corn and Wiener Roast at Hame Of Mrs. Windover

Mrs. Windover's Women Group of C.N.R. A.A.L.A., held a very successful corn, wiener and marshmallow party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Windover, on Trent Road.

About forty adults and ten children attended to take part in the evening of much merriment. A bright fire was glowing in the stone barbecue. On the spacious lawn were tables and benches making everyone comfortable.

The first part of the evening was spent in games and contests with many good prizes being won. Benson Kilpatrick took his prize of onions home for a sandwich; Agnes Hurst passed her tomatoes around and Leva Eggleton surely enjoyed her carrots.

All then decided it was time to eat. The corn was delicious, some liked theirs roasted and the wieners with relish, soon disappeared. Then came the marshmallows toasted to a delicate brown.

Everyone thanked Mr. and Mrs. Windover for a grand evening and went home feeling very happy they were able to attend.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her fiance is of a different faith

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been planning to be married before long to a young man of a different faith than my own. We have had many discussions on which of us should change to the other's church. He says that a wife always joins the husband's church, and that if I loved him enough, I would be willing to come into his, but that he won't insist on it. He did ask me if I wanted him to join my church, but I told him I didn't think he'd be happy giving up his own.

His parents are very religious, and are eager for me to come into their church, and I am afraid they might not even speak to me again if I don't, as has happened on other occasions. My own parents haven't said much about it, but they don't really want me to leave my own church.

Do you think it is up to me or my parents to make the decision? What should I do on this point? We love each other very much, and I would hate to see anything come between us. Don't you think I could just go to his church without belonging to it, and have him come to mine sometimes, and raise our children the way he wishes?

L. C.

Dear L. C.:

I certainly don't think your parents should make the decision in this very important matter for you. It is your problem, and you should go into every phase of it with the greatest care; then, make up your mind and stick by your decision.

I think the best way for you to attack the problem is for you and your fiance to go together to the local heads of both your churches, so that each of you would fully understand what would be involved if you were to go into a church other than your own. There are a great many basic things to be considered in this type of situation, and you should thoroughly inform yourself about them before going any further.

Thirty-one is too old for seventeen

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and deeply interested in a young man of 31. Although he is a wonderful fellow and a very good friend of our family, my mother disapproves of my interest in him because of his age. She would like to know what you think about this, and we are both relying on your answering.

Karen

Dear Karen:

I agree with your mother. A girl of 17 should be having her good times with boys of her own age. I might add to that by saying "wonderful" young men of 31 should find theirs with girls at least in the middle twenties.

It's perfectly natural for teenage girls to indulge in a little hero-worship of older men, but be sensible enough to realize that that's probably what you're doing, and don't day-dream too much about this one.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

King Henry IV of France called himself the King of Bread.

Henry chose this title for himself because he realized that if a man controlled a nation's food, he might also control their souls.

Although women in general don't bake bread regularly as they did generations ago, there are still some who think enough of warm home made rolls to bake a batch at home now and then.

For small quantities one can prepare the dough and then use it piecemeal as needed. So-called refrigerator rolls are merely rolls made from a dough that can be stored for a week in the refrigerator without harm.

One of the best of the soft roll recipes includes mashed potatoes as an ingredient. Potatoes don't make the dough heavy, as anyone can testify who has eaten old fashion potato doughnuts.

While cake batters rise during baking, yeast doughs rise before baking. The ideal temperature for this is 85 degrees. If this is not practical in your kitchen, you may place the bowl of dough over a pan of warm water, cover it with a cloth and it will soon rise.

Today's recipe is one of the refrigerator type doughs which can be used as needed.

Potato Rolls—Makes 24

Dissolve 2 packages of yeast or 2 envelopes granular yeast in 1-4 cup lukewarm water. Heat 1 1-2 cups milk until bubbles appear around edge of saucepan. Remove from flame. Add 2-3 cup butter or vegetable fat, 1-4 cup sugar and 1 1-2 teaspoons salt. Stir until butter melts. Cool milk to lukewarm. Add yeast.

Add 1 cup mashed potatoes.
Sift 5 cups all purpose flour.
Beat 2 eggs well.

Add about 1-2 the flour gradually to the milk mixture stirring until smooth. Add eggs. Beat well. Gradually add rest of flour beating well until dough does not stick to the hands. Use as much flour as necessary to make the dough of this consistency. Turn dough onto a floured board. Knead 5 to 7 minutes or until smooth.

This batch of dough will make about 24 rolls. Take as much as needed and put the rest in the refrigerator for future use. Place dough in a greased bowl. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk. Punch down. Let dough stand 10 minutes. Shape into balls 1 1-2 inches thick—or any other desired shape. Place balls in a large greased muffin pan. Cover with a cloth and let stand in a warm place until double in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees 15-20 minutes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Write bread-an-butter letter at once

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How soon after a visit must one write a bread-and-butter letter?

Amy A.

The bread-and-butter letter should be written a day or so after your return from the visit. At most it should be written five days after the visit. If you wait longer than that, you should apologize for the delay. A prompt letter of thanks for a gesture of hospitality naturally carries a more convincing feeling of appreciation.

Groom proposes toast to bride's mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Isn't it customary to toast the bride's mother at a wedding reception? If so, who proposes this toast?

George T.

Yes, there usually is . . .and should be . . .a toast to the bride's mother, who is the hostess of the wedding. And it is the groom who should propose this toast, with graciousness and with a courtly touch of ceremony.

Needn't wait until everyone has been served

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one is dining in a private home, either formally or informally, is it a 'must' that he or she should not begin eating until everyone has been served?

Reader

No. This was an ironclad rule of yesterday. . . a rule made to avoid the appearance of being greedy. But today it has been relaxed, and it is entirely correct to begin eating after one or two others have been served.

When mother and stepfather issue wedding invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father died about ten years ago, my mother remarried about five years ago, my stepfather and I are extremely good friends, and he would like to join with my mother in giving and in paying for my large, formal church wedding and reception. Would it be correct to have both names on the engraved invitations? And will you please give the whole form of a correctly-worded invitation in this circumstance?

Vera S.

Yes, the invitations may correctly be issued in both names. And they may read:

Mr. and Mrs. George Ward Allen request the honor of your presence
at the marriage of her daughter
Vera Brown Sage
to
Mr. Charles Norman

Women's Institute

HUNTINGDON EAST W.I.

The annual girls' meeting of the Huntingdon East Institute was held at the home of Miss Iva Thompson. The opening ode was sung after which the president, Mrs. Don Holbert, gave a reading. Following the business the roll call was answered by telling: "My Girlhood Ambition". "Happy Birthday" was sung to all those having a birthday in August.

A reading was given by Miss Dorothy Thompson and a solo, "There's a New Moon Over My Shoulder", by Pauline Holbert, followed by another reading by Miss Iva Thompson. Lola Emerson gave the highlights of her trip to Guelph as a delegate of the Junior Institute. Louanne Foster contributed a piano solo, "Slumber Song". Mrs. Howard Countryman, of Tweed, then gave a very interesting flower demonstration, showing different arrangements of dining-room and living-room bouquets of flowers from her own garden. Mrs. Countryman who has had considerable experience arranging flowers for exhibitions and fairs, was tendered a hearty vote of thanks. Dainty refreshments were then served by the girls.

MARMORA W.I.

Marmora—The regular monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Percy Gray, with a small attendance of members. The meeting opened in the customary manner.

The financial report given by Mrs. Eugene Brady showed finances to be in good condition. Plans were made for the operation of the refreshment booth at Marmora Fair.

Commencing the program, the motto announced for the meeting was "The only way to keep education is to give it away." A duet "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" was then rendered by Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Rundle. This was followed by a duet by Mesdames P. Gray and L. R. Rundle, "Come to the Fair". For these two numbers Mrs. L. R. Rundle was accompanist. Playing her own accompaniment, Mrs. E. Belanger sang "Stars Are The Windows of Heaven."

Refreshments were served. The October meeting to be featured with a pumpkin pie contest, to be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Eamer on No. 14 Highway.

Catholic Women's League

The September meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Brady, occupied the chair. The president stated that Jean Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook was eligible for the scholarship of $25 donated by the League to the outstanding pupil obtaining senior matriculation. Mrs. W. A. Shannon reported three visits made by Mrs. Carl Heath and herself to the sick and shut-ins. Miss Mary Hughes reported that the quilt blocks had been handed in by the members and a quilting would be held in the school in the near future. Mrs. Charles Crawford reported for Social Welfare The president welcomed a visitor, Miss Lee, who is a new resident of the parish.

It was decided to operate again a booth at the Marmora Fair. Mrs. Black offered to make a cake on which tickets would be sold at the fair.

It was decided to hold a bake sale in the legion room of the Memorial Building on September 16 and the holding of a bingo was also discussed.

The director, the Rev. J. A. O'Neill, then addressed the meeting. He spoke of group monthly communion by the members. He also discussed plans for getting funds to furnish the kitchen in the new parish hall, which is expected to be in readiness for the annual bazaar. It was decided for group conveners to contact members regarding articles to be sold at the fancy good table, and they were asked to bring the articles a few days previous to the bazaar, that they might be marked and be in readiness.

The program directed by Mrs. Black then took place. Mrs. C. Cook gave a reading entitled "Our Sorrowful Mother". Mrs. Carl McCoy contributed a pianoforte solo.

Miss Mary Hughes gave a reading "Catholic Education." Mrs. Black gave a comic reading, "Too Utterly Utter", and Mrs. Charles Brady read a poem "First Day of School."

A few games of bingo were enjoyed and a delicious lunch was served by the ladies of Group 6.

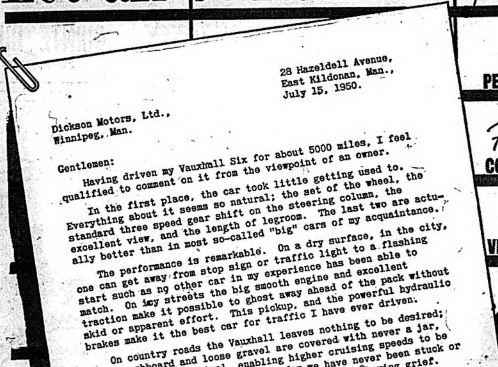
Let an owner tell you about Vauxhall!



28 Hazeldell Avenue,
East Kildonan, Man.,
July 15, 1950.

Dickson Motors, Ltd.,
Winnipeg, Man.

Gentlemen:

Having driven my Vauxhall Six for about 5000 miles, I feel qualified to comment on it from the viewpoint of an owner.

In the first place, the car took little getting used to. Everything about it seems so natural; the set of the wheel, the standard three speed gear shift on the steering column, the excellent view, and the length of legroom. The last two are actually better than in most so-called "big" cars of my acquaintance.

The performance is remarkable. On a dry surface, in the city, one can get away from stop sign or traffic light to a flashing start such as no other car in my experience has been able to match. On icy streets the big smooth engine and excellent traction make it possible to ghost away ahead of the pack without skid or apparent effort. This pickup, and the powerful hydraulic brakes make it the best car for traffic I have ever driven.

On country roads the Vauxhall leaves nothing to be desired; ruts, washboard and loose gravel are covered with never a jar, and with perfect control, enabling higher cruising speeds to be maintained with more comfort. So far we have never been stuck or ditched, although we have seen plenty of others having grief.

The engine has so far started with alacrity, even after standing out all night at below zero temperatures without heat of any kind . . . one can venture into heavy traffic from a cold start without qualms.

To sum up, I have been driving cars for over twenty years around Western Canada, but have never had one to compare with the Vauxhall for performance, comfort, economy, and sheer handiness. When driving it I feel as safe as houses and as relaxed as if sitting at home in an easy chair.

Yours very truly,

A. A. Eadie

FINANCE MINISTER

Levies High at Present

Mr. Abbott did not extend his tax-tapping to tobacco because these levies already were "very high", but he did boost those on lighters, matches and smokers' accessories.

Here is the new tax line-up:

1. Corporation income taxes are increased to 15 per cent from 10 per cent on the first $10,000 and to 38 per cent from 33 per cent on income of more than $10,000, retroactive to Sept. 1, 1950.

2. The existing 10-per-cent excise tax is increased to 15 per cent on motor cars, tires and tubes, cameras and photographic equipment, fountain pens and pencils, furs, jewelry, watches, clocks and ornaments, cigaret lighters, matches, radios and phonographs, slot machines, smokers' accessories, toilet articles and trucks, purses and luggage—all effective immediately.

3. A new 15-per-cent excise tax is levied on electrical household appliances, including blankets, chafing dishes, coffee makers, curling irons or tongs, dishwashers, food and drink mixers, food choppers and grinders, floor waxers and polishers, garbage disposal units, hair driers, irons and ironers, juice extractors, kettles, portable humidifiers, razors and shavers, toasters of all kinds, vacuum cleaners and attachments, and waffle irons—all effective immediately.

Effective Immediately

4. A new 15-per-cent excise tax also is levied on motorcycles and other two or three-wheeled motor-driven vehicles, motors for attachment to bicycles, golf clubs and balls, fishing rods and reels, and firearms and ammunition, except for military and police use—all effective immediately.

5. A new 30-per-cent tax is levied on bottled soft drinks, candy and chewing gum, plus a tax of 50 cents a pound on carbonic acid gas used in fountain drinks—all effective immediately.

6. Excise duties on spirits go to $12 from $11 a proof gallon and the tax on malt used in beer goes to 21 cents a pound from 16—both effective immediately.

There are no changes in the eight-per-cent sales tax or in tariff rates.

J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood), Progressive Conservative financial critic, promptly opened the traditional budget debate with the criticism, that Mr. Abbott's accounting did nothing to "create that sense of urgency that I believe we need."

"The tone of the budget, he suggested, was that "we're going to insist on a rigorous standard of essentiality—next year."

Pay-as-you Go

Mr. Abbott, stressing that the budget was anti-inflationary in character, said the fundamental policy against this type of economic force was to "maximize output, minimize waste and follow a pay-as-you-go policy." That was what the government was doing.

It was moving to curb its expenditure program, over and above defence, and, if others did the same, "these new inflationary pressures can and will be neutralized."

Meantime, the government had other anti-inflationary weapons up its sleeve. He would, as already announced, ask for power to limit the used of consumer credit, which had undergone, "very rapid" expansion during the last two years.

Also, Trade Minister Howe would seek "stand-by" powers to direct the distribution of essential materials, if and when necessary, to "meet both increasing defence requirements and essential civilian needs."

Stiffening Terms of Loans

In another step in that direction, the government is stiffening the terms of farm improvement loans. Generally, Mr. Abbott indicated, this means farmers will be able to borrow less money than at present and will have to pay it back sooner.

The so-called anti-inflationary program also extends into the housing field.

Mr. Abbott noted with approval that the government's Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation has already taken action to limit the dollar value of its housing loans "by not recognizing recent increases in costs when establishing the lending values on new houses."

This means that the home builder or buyer, financed by the corporation, now has to provide in a higher-down payment the increased cost of building materials and labor that has developed in the last few months. In some cases, this may mean a decision to postpone building and, thus, an easing of the pressure on labor and construction materials.

COMMONS TOLD

Heavy Batteries

3. Two new heavy anti-aircraft batteries are coming into being in the regular army and will team up with reserve units as part of that network.

4. Canada's rearmament program can be handled by factories now in the arms and aircraft production business. She is offering European Allies from existing stocks enough equipment to arm nearly a division. She will have more than that left in stocks from the last war but the offer is considered, Defence Minister Claxton said, a commentary on the government's confidence about defence of Canada.

Interrupted only by Finance Minister Abbott's introduction of the budget to finance the program, the defence debate saw two of the government's major measures for this special session clear their first big obstacles.

Resolution Approved

After three days of debate, the resolution embracing the $850,000,000 rearmament program was approved and the bill that will be its legislative basis was given first reading.

In short order, the resolution on the army's special force was passed, and the bill that would authorize constitution and maintenance was also given first reading.

It was a parliamentary day dogged by the ghosts of both Charles I and Karl Marx.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, fell back on procedure dating back to the far-distant days of King Charles to get a recorded vote on his request for a secret session of the House on defence. He simply said "I spy strangers" and the Speaker had to call a vote to see if the House wanted the strangers expelled.

The House voted 156 to 64 to sustain the government in its refusal to hold a secret session. The "strangers" in the galleries remained.

Batters at Government

The ghost of Karl Marx stalked the chamber when Mr. Drew said members of the Canadian Peace Congress, part of a group who swarmed over Parliament Hill and entered the galleries, had been circulating messages "again repeating the despicable communist line."

It also was a day in which opposition members battered away steadily at the government benches, accusing them of refusing to give adequate information, doubting that present defence plans are enough in the light of modern circumstances, attacking the absence of any plans to buy tanks in the whole money appropriation. Back from the government benches came many replies.

Canada, said External Affairs Minister Pearson, would be unwise to seek extension of the North Atlantic Pact all around the world. But Korea was an indication that Canada, without prior commitments, recognized obligations in the Pacific area.

Mr. Claxton said a maritime squadron will soon be based in British Columbia by the R.C.A.F., that the reserve fighter squadron at Vancouver is to be greatly strengthened, radar stations built in British Columbia, three more destroyers based there to double Canada's destroyer strength in the Pacific.

On the east coast, the coastal defences around St. John's Nfld., were being increased and local defence problems taken care of.

1. That the duty of excise on spirits, distilled in Canada be increased from $11 to $12 per proof gallon.

2. That the duty of excise on Canadian brandy be increased from $9 to $10 per proof gallon.

3. That the duty of excise on malt be increased from 16 cents per pound to 21 cents per pound.

4. That any enactment founded upon this resolution shall come into force on Sept. 8, 1950.

Customs Tariff

Resolved that it is expedient to introduce a measure to amend the customs tariff, and to provide:

1. That Schedule A to the customs tariff be amended by deleting therefrom the following enumerations of goods and rates of additional duties of customs:

Whiskey, brandy, rum, gin and all other goods specified in customs tariff item 156 and 156B . . . $7 per gallon of the strength of proof.

Ale, beer, porter and stout 30 cents per gallon. And by substituting therefore the following enumerations of goods and rates of additional duties of customs:

Whiskey, brandy, rum, gin and all other goods specified in the various subitems of tariff item 156. . .$8 per gallon of the strength of proof.

Ale, beer, porter and stout 40 cents per gallon.

2. That any enactment founded upon this resolution shall be deemed to have come into force on Sept. 8, 1950, and to have applied to all goods mentioned in this resolution imported or taken out of warehouse for consumption on and after that date, and to have applied to goods previously imported for which no entry for consumption was made before that date.

Chrysler Gives Wage Increase To All Employees

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 8 (CP) — Employees of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada Limited have been given something new in the history of the unionized automotive industry in Canada — a healthy wage increase to add to an already-established union contract.

An agreement for a pay boost of eight cents an hour to production workers and 11 cents an hour to skilled tradesmen was swiftly concluded yesterday between the company and the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

A union spokesman said that the increase, made to offset rising living costs, will not affect other provisions of the present two-year company-union contract signed last June.

Similar wage demands have been put to the Ford Motor Company of Canada and it is expected that the demands will be repeated by the U.A.W. in nearly 150 other Canadian plants where it has contracts.

The U.A.W. Chrysler agreement covers more than 5,000 employees in the company's four plants—three in Windsor and one in Chatham, Ont. The increase becomes effective next Sunday.

The union's request—for a fifth post war increase— was made by letter last week. It brought prompt results.

Officials of the company and union met briefly Tuesday morning and they came together again yesterday and the agreement was forged within eight hours.

Leading the talks were E. C. Row, Chrysler general manager and George Burt, the union's Canadian director.

Moscow Radio Says British Ex-M.P. Finds Russian Life Gay, Full

London, Sept. 8 (Reuters) — Moscow radio Thurs., carried a recorded broadcast of a former British Member of Parliament who said that he found no policy of "guns before butter" in Russia.

The broadcast was made by D. N. Pritt of London, former Independent Labor M.P. Pritt and his wife are in Moscow for a month's study of Soviet court procedure. He is president of the British Society for cultural relations with the Soviet Union.

Pritt said "there is plenty of butter (in Russia) and as many guns as they really need to defend themselves."

"I found life gayer and fuller," he added.

$250,000 Loss In Apt.-Building Fire in Montreal

Montreal, Sept. 8, (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin last night razed six partly-completed apartmen houses—some 225 apartments—in suburban Ville St. Laurent, leaving only cracked brick chimneys standing amid the rubble.

Heavy damage was also caused to four other half-finished buildings in the development as wind-borne embers were carried freely about the area.

Although official figures were not available, early estimates said damages may run to more than $250,000.

More than 20,000 people jammed the development opposite the Canadair Aviation plant to watch the spectacular blaze.

Lack of water pressure in the area hindered fire-fighters until pumps were brought in to increase the water pressure.

The fire is believed to have started around 7 p.m. in the centre of one of the apartment blocks and at the height of the blaze one hour later, flames shot high in the air.

A strong northwest wind carried cinders to other buildings. One building across the street from where the fire started was set ablaze and reduced to ruins in a matter of minutes.

Fire-fighters battled the conflagration for 3 1-2 hours before bringing it under control.

Residents of nearby houses, fearful of seeing their homes set on fire by the flying cinders, moved their furniture onto the streets until fire officials announced the blaze was under control.

Construction of some of the four-storey blocks had just reached the framework stage. Some were almost completed.

400 Refugees Come To Help on Harvest, Will Become Settlers

Geneva, Sept. 8—(AP)—Four hundred refugees were on the Atlantic Thurs., heading for new homes in Canada, because of the urgent need of harvest hands in the Dominion.

The Canadian government advised the International Refugee Organization Aug. 4, that if 400 farm laborers could be sent to Canada by Sept. 15, they would be accepted for immigration. Selection teams from Canada started examining candidates one week later.

The Canadian government has agreed to accept the dependents of the farm hands chosen and approximately 600 women and children will be following the immigrants on other ships.

HEADS UP, CUBS!

There was nothing ignominous in the manner in which the Belleville Cubs bowed out of the Belleville District Baseball League picture.

Contrary to some voiced opinions, the Cubs gave up the ghost, so to speak, at the proper moment. Their ranks riddled with losses through injury and forced absenteeism, the Cubs were unable to field a squad to finish their league finals series with the Trenton 6 Repair Depot team.

But, though forced out of further play through the above-mentioned reasons, the Cubs hung up their spikes and gloves with a distinctly pleasant taste hovering around their baseball tonsils. They handed the proud Sixardee squad which rampaged through an undefeated schedule, and lost but two games during the season, its worst shellacking of the campaign.

A keen and sometimes slightly bitter rivalry existed between the two teams all season. Rhubarbs threatened to flare into open warfare on a couple of occasions, but no gore was spilled nor anyone hospitalized.

* * *

There are some who hold the opinion that the Cubs, playing the baseball of which they were capable, and with full seasonal strength could have "taken" the vaunted air force crew over a playoff series. The Sixardee team boasted balance with good pitching and a fairly consistent batting squad. They played steady baseball throughout the season, but it must be admitted that at times the wide - open smiles of Lady Luck beamed in all its glory on them. Point Anne and the Cubs threw a scare into the boys-in-blue supporters on more than one occasion. But these things do not count. It is the score at the end of the game that goes in the records.

* * *

To get back to the Cubs. The team started the season with the figurative two strikes against them. Organized just in time to get under the entry wire, the team was composed of the "remnants" and refusees left behind after out-of-town team raiders had taken what they could get.

* * *

Speedy St. Louis, Bill Lockyer, Frank Grandame, Jack McNab, "Boiler" Lloyd and a few others, rather than see baseball die a lingering death in the city, fanned the dying flame with financial breath and brought it back to some semblance of life.

They gathered up what players they could, most of them youngsters, and not "worn-out veterans of several years experience", as some quarters would have them, and the result was a squad that finished in the runner-up position, and a distinct threat for the league title.

Coach St. Louis molded a team of juniors around a nucleus of veterans of the ilk of "Chuck" Barriage, "Cuffer" Noakes and Jack Elliott. He bolstered this team with Elder Neilson, a baseball - playing Mormon missionary who developed easily into the best all-round player in the B and D League, bar none. He had his troubles as does any baseball coach. Players did not turn up at times; injuries crept into the picture and finances, the consistent bugbear of any baseball team, did not step out of character.

* * *

But like the fabulous King Solomon, he of the thousand wives, he did what he could with what he had. And the effort was a proud one Disheartened, discouraged at times, St. Louis never left the baseball ship. He stood by the helm until the latter part of the seeason when his ragamuffins struck their stride and surged to second slot in the league standing. Then the blow fell. Gary Schreider and Al. Galbraith left the squad to atteend college. Regular catcher Russ Soules departed for Oshawa. Second string catcher Jack Elliott suffered a fractured thumb. No reserves were available.

* * *

The important league finals series with the 6 R. D. team was in progress — and help was needed. Under erroneaus impressions of OBA regulations, the Cub management commandeered the services of a Point Anne catcher, and proceeded to shellac the daylights out of the league leaders. They won by a 20-4 score—under 6 R. D. protest. The air force management was perfectly right in protesting the game under these circumstances. At a subsequent meeting of the league executive, the Cubs withdrew from further participation in the league.

* * *

Despite all this, the Cubs can hold their heads high with their management for a job well done. The box-office support the team received during the summer was a little short of disgraceful. Receipts scarcely paid expenses. In fact on several occasions, the official pockets had to be resorted to.

* * *

But Messieurs St. Louis, Lockyer, Grandame, Lloyd et al achieved their objective. They kept the spark of baseball life at least sputtering in the city. Had they received the moral and financial support of some of their "loudest" critics earlier in the season, there would not have been the exodus of several outstanding city players to out of town teams.

It is the opinion of fair - minded baseball men of the city that had the Cubs had the services of such players as Bush, Fitzpatrick, Wardhaugh, Vern Goyer, and others who cavorted in the faraway pastures, perhaps the laurel leaves of league champions would now be resting on Cub brows.

CALL FOR THE COURT

Pappas Billiards, Intermediate B representatives for Belleville in the Ontario Basketball Association start working kinks out of their muscles Saturday night at 7:30 at the Y. The team is reorganizing for the fall and winter grind and an open invitation is extended to basketball players in the city and district to drop around and join the fun. High school students unfortunately, will not be able to play with the squad as a league regulation forbids their use. All others bring your own shoes . . .

BOWLERS WANTED

The Major "A" Bowling League, crack kegling loop of the city has vacancies for two teams on its roster this season, due to the withdrawal of a like number of last years squads. In an effort to maintain its eight - team status, officials of the league have issued invitations to teams of the city to join the organization. Members of the Major "A" loop squads are fine friendly fellows and will extend a cordial welcome to potential member teams. Any team or teams desirous of associating themselves with the Major "A" should contact Secretary Cecil Hardwick, phone 4389W in the evening or 99 during the daytime, or Jack Devine, president, phone 4025J. This should be done immediately as the seasonal activities of the league get under way at the Bowl-O-Drome Thursday evening next.

Detroit Regains First Place In Tight American Loop Race, Red Sox Hottest in Loop

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit Tigers are back on top in the pulse-pounding American League pennant race, but they have one eye cocked on Steve O'Neill's Boston Red Sox, moving up fast on the outside.

The Red Sox, who polished off New York Yankees yesterday for the second straight day, are the hottest team in the league. The Sox have won 20 out of their last 23 games, including 18 out of 19 in their own Fenway Park.

Their two victories over the Yanks knocked the New Yorkers out of the lead and restored Detroit to the top by the skimpy margin of two percentage points. The snorting Sox are third, 1½ games behind. Cleveland is fourth, four games off the pace.

Creating almost as much furore as the Red Sox are Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League chase. The Brooks have knocked off the league-leading Philadelphia Phils three straight times to move to within 4½ games of Eddie Sawyer's whiz kids.

Sox and Yanks Idle

The Sox and Yanks are idle today while the Tigers take on the sixth-place White Sox in Chicago. Dizzy Trout (11-4) was to pitch for the Tigers against lefty Bob Cain (7-10).

Both the Red Sox and Tigers had on their hitting clothes yesterday. The Sox outslugged the Yanks 10-8, while the Tigers battled Cleveland to a 13-13 10-inning tie that was halted because of darkness.

The Red Sox pounded four Yankee pitchers for 12 hits with big Walt Dropo leading the way. Dropo drove home five runs on a double and his 31st and 32nd home runs. The Sox employed six pitchers to stem the bombers with Walt Masterson gaining the victory.

Ted Williams of the Sox made his first appearance since he was injured in the All-Star game. He batted for Mickey McDermott in the fifth and was intentionally walked.

Wage Uphill Fight

The Tigers waged an uphill battle to tie the Indians. The Indians jumped on Art Houtteman for seven runs in the first inning with Al Rosen and Bob Feller highlighting the uprising with homers.

Detroit came right back and disposed of Feller in their half with four runs and squared matters at 7-7 at the end of the fifth. After that neither side could hold the lead.

In other American League games, Dick Starr pitched St. Louis Browns to a 6-0 victory over Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics downed Washington Senators 4-2.

A brilliant relief stint by Ralph Branca featured the Dodgers' 3-2 conquest over the Phils.

Branca relieved winner Carl Erskine in the eighth inning after Richie Ashburn tripled to begin the frame, and promptly struck out Willie Jones and Del Ennis and got Jack Mayo to foul out. He nailed the Phils in order in the ninth.

The third-place Boston Braves also gained ground by stopping New York Giants 6-4. The Braves scored all of their runs in the seventh inning.

Cincinnati edged Pittsburg Pirates 6-4, on Ted Kluszewski's 10th-inning home run off Red Barrett. Ralph Kiner slugged his 43rd homer for the Pirates.

Bob Rush pitcher Chicago to a 4-2 victory over the Cards in a night game at St. Louis.

May be Unveiling At Arena When Yuke Meets Hood

Tonight may see the official unveiling of the Masked Marvel otherwise known as the Hooded Horror of the wrestling ring at Memorial Arena. And the principal actor in the undraping ceremony will be, if it takes place, none other than Yukon Eric, he of the mighty physique who cut his teeth on six-inch logs during his baby days up around the Yukon.

The Horror, who may be anything from Gargantua to Mr. America has built himself an unenviable reputation as a gent who fears nothing and does not hesitate to use anything outside of a mortar-mounted bulldozer in order to achieve his purpose.

He is about as gentle with the opposition as a jungle-juiced wildcat with a pet rabbit and stops at nothing to pin the opposition to the mat. But tonight things might be different. The Yime does not "throw" easy. The stalker from Fairbanks isn't exactly a pushover as his string of victories will prove, and the brawl between these heavies should provide some of the best wrestling fireworks of the season.

Brantford Sox Drop First Game In Round Robin

(By The Canadian Press)

Brantford Red Sox bumped into a 14-hit barrage by St. Thomas Legion last night and dropped their first game in five straight to the hard-hitting Legionnaires 16-10.

Elsewhere in the intercounty senior round-robin playoffs a patched up Stratford Nationals squad registered their first victory in six games by defeating London Majors 7-3. Kitchener and Waterloo did not play.

Over 1,700 fans watched the free-hitting, free-scoring Brantford-St. Thomas game that consumed two hours and 35 minutes.

Lefty Boo Whitcher went the route for Brantford while Dick Long who came in in the second was credited with the win for St. Thomas.

Red Sox committed seven errors giving St. Thomas 10 unearned runs. Jim Burns with a homer, two doubles and a single was the big gun for the losers. Jimmy Myers hit three times for the Legionnaires.

In the Stratford contest, the bulk of the credit went to Roly Challifoux, Nat Southpaw, who let London down with 10 hits, giving up five in the second and three more in the eighth.

Don Edwards, starting hurler for London. was yanked for a pinch hitter in the seventh, and Stan Slack succeeded him, giving up but one single to the Nats in the last two innings, and that by Challifoux, who drove in Stratford's seventh run in the eighth.

In intercounty baseball association statistics released yesterday, Alex Kvasnak of Waterloo Tigers was voted most valuable player in the league.

Batting Champ

Kvasnak was named batting champion earlier in the week.

Brantford edged London .959 to .958 to take down fielding honors during the leagues regular season, statistics showed. Galt, through a late season spurt, led in double-plays with 64.

Bob Schnurr, Kitchener, emerged as double winner during the regular season. He led the pitchers in percentage with .800, through eight wins and two losses, and had the best earned run average of 1.57. Duane Gottschall, London, had the second best E.R.A., 1.75, and Ted Alexander, London, had the second best win-loss record.

In the viaduct major baseball league last night Oshawa Merchants defeated Peterborough 4-3 to take the lead in the best-of-seven final.

In the Niagara senior baseball league playoffs Welland Stokes trimmed West Seneca Druggists 6-4, for their fourth win in five games with the South Buffalo Club.

Remember When

Johnny Mize, Cardinal first baseman, set a major league record 10 years ago today when he hit three home runs in a game for the fourth time in his career. Mize, now holding first base for New York Yankees, got his homers in successive trips to the plate in a game against Pittsburg Pirates, but the Pirates won, 16-14.

Annis Stukus Threatening To Steal Spotlight In Western Football Conference

Edmonton, Sept. 8—(CP)— A 35-year-old playing coach who ambles onto the gridiron only for point-kicking attempts without benefit of pads or a helmet is stealing the spotlight in the western football conference this season.

Now in his second year at the helm of the conference's leading Edmonton Eskimos, Annis Stukus is also threatening to steal the scoring title without making a single touchdown.

Back in 1945 with Toronto Indians, one year before he retired for four years, the lanky Lithuanian won a league scoring championship solely by booting placements and converts. Some western fans see a repeat performance in the offing.

There are few thrills in the western game today to match the sight of the bareheaded, padless coach—looking mighty frail in a game of padded gladiators—going in at a crucial moment to help his team with his peerless kicking.

Stukus has made good in 11 of these 14 appearances in four league games to date. Official scoring statistics show him in second place in the point race with eight converts and two placements, one point from the top. His placement kicks turned the tide in two of Edmonton's four victories in league and exhibition action.

Faked a Play

In a league game at Calgary, big Stuke pulled off a masterpiece of deception. Once he came on the field Stampeders got set to block what they thought would be an attempted placement. Instead, Stukus faked his kick and Bob Paffrath, holding the ball, jumped up and heaved a touchdown pass.

"When I go in there I remind my boys that I have no pads and tell them for gosh sakes don't let anyone through or I'll get killed. So far I've managed to come out in one piece.

"Not wearing any pads, I'm not tempted to stay in for more than the one kicking play. I was hit by three tacklers once and had to throw a block on that deception play at Calgary. If ever I had any idea of staying in there longer, those plays ended it. I let my quarterback run his own game.

"Getting in there like that I feel more a part of the game. I used to get the butterflies from just standing on the sidelines. It's a good morale booster — for the gang and myself."

Stukus, who turns 36 next month, has had his share of grief in 12 active years of organized football—three bones broken in his back, nose fractured four times jaw dislocated once and all but four teeth knocked out.

But his Eskimos, who average 25 years, are a hustling gang headed by four top-drawer "hungry college boys" recruited from Texas Christian University. And for a spirited team like that, "old" Annis is willing to risk personal injury if his kicking means the difference between victory and defeat.

Toronto Argos In Key Game Of Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Alouettes' clash with Toronto Argos tomorrow is shaping up as Eastern football's key game this weekend.

On the basis of two lop-sided wins last weekend, the undefeated Hamilton Tiger-Cats are favored to beat the winless Ottawa Rough Riders.

That would put the winner of the Toronto - Montreal game all alone in second place in the Big Four.

In the West, both Saskatchewan Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers each make road trips into Calgary and Edmonton. Either Winnipeg or Saskatchewan could take over first place in the Western Conference from Edmonton Eskimos with a pair of wins.

In the other Eastern game, Windsor Rockets open their Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union season against Sarnia Imperials.

One Import Dropped

Coach Frank Clair of Argos last night dropped from the squad Bill McCormick of Hamilton, O., a man Clair has described as the "outstanding lineman in Canada."

McCormick was dropped to permit Argos to get within the seven-imports limit and Clair—with such stalwart Canadian front-wallers as Les Ascott, Pete Bennett and Shanty MacKenzie on the squad — decided he needed a good end like Marvin Whaley more than he needed another lineman.

In Montreal, Coach Lew Hayman's Alouettes are reported in far better condition than they were when they took a 25-6 licking from Argos a week ago. Despite an injury, ace back Bob Cunningham is expected to play. And fans are hoping that Virgil Wagner, leading scorer last year, will finally hit his scoring stride against Argos tomorrow.

Coach Carl Voyles of Hamilton last night put Merle Hapes, dropped last week as a halfback, into an assistant-coaching spot. Hapes was released as a player when an injured ankle slowed him down. Voyles reported his squad in top shape. His two ace running backs, Edgar Jones and Bill Gregus, appeared to have recovered from minor injuries last weekend.

Coach Butch Larson was worried meanwhile about a quarterback for his Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Jack Jacobs, who with Tom Casey has scored all of Winnipeg's points this year, picked up an injured shoulder against Regina Monday. It is expected to keep him out of action for at least a week. Pete Petrow, Winnipeg quarter playing his second year of senior ball, likely will fill in for the game at Edmonton tomorrow.

Regina, too, had injury troubles but the Roughriders' star end, Johnny Bell, will be dressed for the road trip. Roughriders play Calgary Saturday and Edmonton Monday.

Sandy Saddler Favored to Win Over Willie Pep

New York, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Sandy Saddler predicts: "I'm going to catch him and knock him out."

Featherweight champion Willie Pep says confidently: "I'll win."

Tonight in Yankee Stadium these top-flight 126-pounders will get their chance to back up their words in their third and rubber bout for the world title.

For this 15 - round encore, a bumper turnout of between 30,000 and 40,000 fans is expected to contribute to a record gate for "little men" — featherweights down.

The mark of $134,416 was set in 1923 when France's Eugene Criqui and Johnny Dundee fought for the featherweight title at New York's Polo Grounds.

Tonight's show may do $250,000. There will be no radio or television broadcasts. The weatherman predicts fair skies.

Once again the odds favor Saddler. The bookmakers have established the 24-year-old, hard-hitting New York Negro as the 5-8 choice to recapture the crown from the canny, 28-year-old champion from Hartford, Conn.

Slasher Sandy was the 5-7 favorite in their second clash 19 months ago. Pep won that 15 - round thriller and took back his title.

Three and a half months before, Sandy pulled a major upset by knocking out wiley Willie in the fourth round. Slashing left hooks and jolting left uppercuts put Pep down and out for the first time in his long career. It was his second loss since he turned pro 10 years ago.

The next time, in February, 1949, it was the old Will O' The Wisp in action. The elusive little guy won decisively over the 15-round route.

But the betting boys doubt whether Pep can be as fast at 28 as he was 19 months ago. At 24 Saddler is at his peak.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 8 (AP)—It's all in the records, but, gosh, we can't tell what they mean . . . here, you take a look at that American League pennant race . . . next week the eastern clubs start a 10-day western swing which should settle the whole argument. . .on three previous western expeditions, New York Yankees bowled over Cleveland Indians, who are hottest in their big home park, but couldn't do a thing in Detroit. . . Boston Red Sox, conversely, took their thumpings in Cleveland but managed to escape from the Tigers' lair with almost an even break . . .naturally, they've all made out pretty well with only a few minor mishaps against the second division clubs. . .a little more consistency would help in figuring out what they're likely to do. . .of course, Philadelphia Phillies and Brooklyn Dodgers will be at home to the National League's western clubs at the same time, but that doesn't look too troublesome since St. Louis Cards folded. . . if anything happens to them, it will be their own fault.

Beast Gags of the Season

Andy Mooradian, who once trained dogs in the army and now trains halfbacks for the University of New Hampshire, claims: "It just takes halfbacks a little longer to get the idea." . . .head coach Chief Boston was inclined to agree with him after his squad visited an animal farm for some "gag" publicity photos. . . an elephant trainer attempted to teach one of the pachyderms (elephants, that is, not tackles) to pick up a football and hand it off. . . on the second attempt, the hand-off was perfect. . . "My gosh," yelled the Chief, "in six weeks of spring practice I couldn't teach one of my quarterbacks to do that."

Peoples Win Dominion Title In Softball

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Peoples won the first east - west Dominion softball championship with an 11-inning 3-2 victory over Vancouver Firemen at the Canadian National Exhibition Thursday night. The victory gave the Toronto Club the best-of-five series in three straight games.

An error by Vancouver shortstop Frank Ambler put the winning run on base in the 11th. Leftfielder Jimmy Rhodes followed with his first hit of the game, driving home Bill Kelly with the tie-breaker.

Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., shot a record-equalling 64 Thursday to take a two-stroke lead in the $15,000 Reading Open golf tournament. Kroll put together a 30 and a 34 to tie the 18-hole competitive course record set two years ago by Ben Hogan.

His 64 was good for a two-stroke edge on Glenn Teal of Jacksonville, Fla.

Brian Kelly of Niagara Falls, Ont., Thursday night retained his Canadian amateur featherweight boxing title by knocking out Dave Craddock of Windsor, in a St. Catharines fight card.

In the semi-final, Gene Poirier of Niagara Falls decisioned Andy Hefel of Kitchener.

A pitcher's duel between Norm Bagnell of Oshawa Pedlars and Gordie Wright of Toronto's Ideal Hustlers ended in a 15-inning 1-1 deadlock when the Canadian National Exhibition championship semi-final game was called after midnight, to be resumed Saturday.

Bagnell fanned 29 men and gave up only three hits in the diamond marathon. Wright struck out 24 and yielded nine safeties.

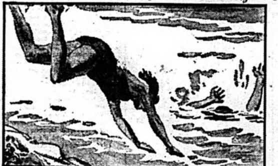
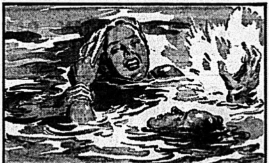
SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL SAVES NON-SWIMMING BOY FRIEND

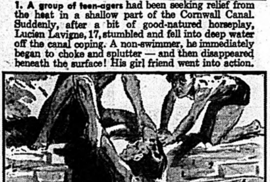
96-pound Loretta Leger, of Cornwall, Ont., dives into canal to rescue drowning youth



1. A group of teen-agers had been seeking relief from the heat in a shallow part of the Cornwall Canal. Suddenly, after a bit of good-natured horseplay, Lucien Lavigne, 17, stumbled and fell into deep water off the canal coping. A non-swimmer, he immediately began to choke and splutter — and then disappeared beneath the surface! His girl friend went into action.



2. Pretty, blonde Loretta Leger dove into the canal and succeeded in getting a hold on the young man under water. But she was in for a struggle. The frantic victim, as so often happens, didn't cooperate. Grasping his rescuer by the hair, he thrashed about—making Loretta's task all the harder. Finally, however, she managed to bring him to the surface.



3. It was not easy for the 96-pound girl to get the youth — who weighed around 150 pounds — in to the canal bank. But she succeeded. He was grabbed by another non-swimmer on the bank and, after much pulling and pushing, was hauled up to safety. We are indeed proud to present THE DOW AWARD to this brave young Canadian girl.

THE Dow AWARD

THE DOW AWARD is a citation presented for acts of outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Canada Savings Bond. The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Canadian daily newspapers, selects Award winners from recommendations made by a nationally known news organization.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Rule says: Don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king; from what is left, follow the order of choice in tops, longies, shorts.

If you have an ace or a king in each unbid suit, lead a trump. Therefore, the basic meaning of a trump lead is that you have either an ace or a king in each suit that has not been bid.

In expert play a trump is also led for other purposes. One such is when you have four or more seemingly worthless trumps. As in the case where it is your lead from the west hand shown here:

♠9 7 4 2
♥A Q 9
♦6 4 3
♣9 6 2

South	North
1	2 S
4 S	Pass

The main value of dummy hand may be in using trumps for ruffing south losers. Cut down these possibilities by leading a trump at once. Continue leading trumps every time you get into the lead.

To defeat the contract you must hope partner can develop some tricks. By the time he can take them, prevent their being ruffed if you can. Leading dummy out of trumps may do this.

Since south was the first bidder of spades, he has at least four of them. Since north assisted spades at once he has at least three of them; probably more. Between them are seven or more trumps.

With four trumps in your hand, partner could have no more than two; probably less; possibly none. Therefore, leading a trump from your hand will not hurt, what trumps, if any, partner holds.

Leading trumps, therefore, will distress only your opponents. If they are depending on trumps for ruffing, it will cut down their aims. If ungood, you still love it. No harm can come of it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 8. (AP)—Are movies really better than ever?

The film industry—producers and theatre men alike—are putting on a big campaign to interest the public in the new crop of pictures. The blast is keyed to the tune of "movies are better than ever". Since I was taught not to write anything that isn't provable true I decided to analyze the slogan.

Movies better than ever, hmm? Well, let's see. That covers a lot of ground. Certainly movies are better than they were 20 or more years ago. With only a few exceptions (notably the great comedies), any picture made over two decades ago would be hooted by today's audiences.

Lillian's Plight

Your ma and pa wept over the plight of fragile Lillian Gish when she was beaten by Donald Crisp in "Broken Blossoms". But today that film's sentimental moments would bring snickers.

We can also say that movies are better than they were five years ago. In that heyday of the pin-up girl, any film with actors, scenery and dialogue could make a profit. It was the hangover from those days that almost ruined the industry.

Let's pick another year, say 1939. These were the big pictures of that year: "Gone With the Wind", "Goodbye Mr. Chips", "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington", "Wuthering Heights", "Pygmalion", 'Stagecoach", "The Wizard of Oz", "The Women", "Dark Victory", "Juarez", "Stanley and Livingstone."

Not Favorable

Now compare those with the current crop. The comparison is not too favorable. Today's pictures are good.

But the pictures of 1939, seen through the sentiment of memory, seem more basic and more important.

In Hollywood's defence, I can say that the general quality of films is better than in 1939. We forget the duds of that year, the vast number of program pictures that are best forgotten. So maybe the slogan would be more truthful thusly:

"Movies, as a whole, are better than ever".

Cementmen Take Game Lead Over Warehouse Crew

Point Anne Cementmen, almost victors in their first game with Brewers Warehouse last Tuesday, made it official last evening when they clubbed the sudsmen 10-7 to take a one-game edge in their best-of-five series.

The Cementmen came up with a pile-driving attack, including two home runs by Perry Everett and one by Doug Sword, triples by Pat Maracle, and Jack Hunter, and doubles by Everett and Logue, to blitz two Brewers pitchers and beat the warehousemen at their own style of game.

It was Perry Everett's heavy hitting that scuttled the Brewers. His two tremendous home runs to centrefield accounted for five of the Cementmen's ten runs. His double also set up a sixth run.

The game was the heaviest bombardment of pitchers that the 'A' section has seen in a long time, with no respect being shown on either side.

Point Anne started the slugfest in the bottom of the first inning with lead-off man Doug Sword blasting a home run to left field. He was followed by Jack Hunter who singled. Hunter took second on a parsed ball and romped all the way home when the throw from the plate went loose into centrefield.

Pat Maracle started the second frame with a triple and came in as Finlan grounded out short to first. Brant walked with one away in the third, went to third on Everett's double, and came scampering in on a perfect sacrifice bunt by Keith Baldwin.

Five-Run Outburst

Brewers got back into the ball-game with a five run outburst in the top of the fourth frame. Halsey singled and was sacrificed to second by Jack Whiting. Jim Barriage swung at a wild pitch for his third strike beating the relay to first. Lum Carson grounded out pitcher to first and Nolan strolled to load the bases. Carl Wood uncorked a double to left field to plate Halsey and Barriage. John Hurrie banged one into left field to score Nolan and Leo Goyer planted a long one in centrefield to score Wood and Hurrie. Reid popped to first to end the inning.

The Brewers jumped into a three-run lead in the fifth scoring twice on two hits and an error to chase Pat Maracle. Big Jim Hunter came on to douse the blaze and escaped for the rest of the game with a two-hitter.

With one away in the bottom of the fifth Brant singled and Everett homered to put the Cementmen back in the running. They tied the score in the sixth when Jack Hunter tripled to score Logue, who had doubled. In the bottom of the eighth Perry Everett cleaned up for the Cementmen with a towering home run to centrefield to score Logue and Brant who had walked.

One Double Play

Point Anne pulled the only twin killing in the game—Baldwin to Logue to Doug Sword in the eighth inning.

Lum Carson started on the hill for the losers, walking two, striking out three, and giving up nine hits for seven runs in five and two thirds innings. Rex Young went the rest of the way in relief walking two, striking out two and being nailed for three hits for three runs and the ball game.

Maracle toiled four and one third frames for Point Anne walking four, whiffing four, and surrendering eight hits for all the runs. Jim Hunter claimed the win in relief striking out four, walking none, and giving up but two hits.

Line Up:

Brewers Warehouse: Nolan ss; Wood 2b; Hurrie rf; Goyer c; Reid 1b, replaced by Locke in 5th; Halsey cf; Whiting 3b; Fitzgibbon lf, replaced by Barriage in 2nd; Carson p, replaced by Young in 6th.

Point Anne: Sword 3b; Jack Hunter lf; Brant c; Everett cf; Baldwin ss; G. Horwood 2b, replaced by Jim Hunter, p, in 5th; Maracle p, 2b; Finlan rf; Logue 1b.

AT THE BELLE

Great Love Story in "Song of Surrender"

A romantic love story and music of irresistible appeal have been blended into Paramount's "Song of Surrender", a tenderly beautiful film which opened at the Belle Theatre yesterday.

Lovely Wanda Hendrix has her biggest starring role to date as Abby Hunt, a girl of nineteen married to a man past fifty. Claude Rains co-stars as her husband, a man who judges his wife's devotion by the amount of work she does on the farm. Abby never questions whether hers is a happy marriage until the day young and handsome Bruce Eldridge comes upon the scene to remind her of the years she is wasting. MacDonald Carey completes the star roster with his assignment as Abby's ardent suitor who offers her the love she has always wanted.

This dramatic triangle is set in New England shortly after the turn of the century. The story, told with the delicate grace of its picturesque setting, builds in intensity to a powerfully stirring conclusion.

The title song, incidentally, a new ballad written by the team responsible for "To Each His Own," seems destined for the same widespread popularity. Mitchell Leisen, who directed that powerful love drama, repeats his success here. For dramatic and musical thrills I strongly recommend "Song of Surrender."

A 2nd charming comedy feature, "Saints and Sinners" completes the program showing with Warner Pathe News for the last times tonight at the Belle theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — Walter Brennan, who co-stars with William Elliott in the smash action hit "THE SHOWDOWN", showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre for its first showing. On the same program, "The Lone Wolf and His Lady." Continuous show Saturday from 1.00, doors open at 12.30.

.... AND BRING THE FAMILY!
Dear Folks:—
I'd like to tell you about a picture we've made at M-G-M, "Stars In My Crown." It's what a newspaper friend of mine calls a human interest story ... it's not the story of one man or one family—it's about all the folks in this town or any town ... the good and the bad ... the dramatic things and funny things that happen to them.
Like pretty Ellen Drew—she's my wife in the story. She sort of runs the whole shebang from the sidelines. And there's young Dean Stockwell as John. Watching him is like growing up all over again. Then there's Alan Hale, a man who loves a fight or a prank, and Lewis Stone who's the old Doc and handsome James Mitchell who's the young Doc. And well, there's characters like Uncle Famous and Chloroform and the bully—every town has them, for better or for worse.
It's different and it's real.
I sincerely hope you like it.

After supper pop was smoking the ferst half of his ferst cigar, and I said, You better not get too comfortable yet, pop. I heard ma talking to herself, I said.

Heh? What about? pop said, and I said, About the ferniture. She was talking about getting you to move the bookcase and the sofa, so they'd change places, I said.

She was, heh? pop said. Well, I'm not a ferniture mover by preferance, but by gollies your mother has been a good wife and I think I'll give her a pleasant serprise. I think I'll get bizzy rite now and shift the things around before she even has a chance to mention the subject. I'll be the only husband on record who ever moved ferniture of his own accord. But then on the other hand she mite have thawt it over and decided that she doesn't want the stuff shifted after all. Women have been known to change their minds at rare intervals in the coarse of history, he said.

And he kept on smoking comfortable, and ma came in, saying, William, I've been wondering how the bookcase would look where the sofa is, and vice virtue. Of course it mite involve shifting a few chairs and things accordingly, she said, and pop said, Now that's an odd coincidence. I was just thinking what a sense of peace and permanence it gives a man to come home of an evening to find his own ferniture affectionately awaiting him like the rock of Jibralter, just where he left it, in a crumbling and changing world where ancient boundary lines disappear in the nite, and a Checko Slav wakes up in the morning to find himself a Yoogo Slav, he said.

Oh well, maybe I'll put it off a while, ma said, and pop said By gollies, I told Benny you'd change your mind.

Being the werst thing for himself he could of said, on account of making ma change it rite back again.

CHURCH SERVICES FAVORED

Toronto, Sept. 8 — (CP)—Now that some Sunday sports are permitted in Toronto, Parks Commissioner Walter Love told the Civic Parks Committee Thursday, the ban on religious services in parks on Sunday should be lifted.

HOMELY HUMOR

"Say, Lady — have you heard how SILLS insulation can make your house warmer in Winter and Cooler in Summer?"

That's right Lady — without proper insulation air sifts through the walls of your house almost as it does through a broken window. Insulation will actually save you enough in heating bills over a period of time to pay the cost. You are paying for insulation if you don't have it— so you might as well be enjoying it.

Work on Six-Mile Stretch of Road Is Continuing

Work on the six-mile stretch of new road in Rawdon township is continuing despite the vagaries of weather. Wind and rain have been the biggest deterrents to date.

Construction of the road is being accomplished with three large earth removers which first tear up a portion of the roadway so as to make a new road bed. First move was to level the stretch of road from the hill at James Menzies property along to the Bird property, to the new cement bridge.

During the days of oppressive heat, a film of dust spread all over the machines, the fields and the houses in the vicinity. The roadway to the new cement bridge was completed Tuesday. Several of the stumps which were along the sides of the old road have been pulled from the earth. They have been buried, and the brush from the ditches has been burned.

Construction officials estimate that about 14,000 yards of fill will be removed from the Menzies hill before the job is completed. After this fill is put on the road, trucks are covering it with gravel transported from the Rollins farm at Stirling.

Despite road conditions and tampering with detour signs by eager drivers, there have been no accidents as yet. Practically all the curves have been eliminated from the route, and district residents are beginning to realize what their new road will be like.

British Liberals Decline Offer Political Union

London, Sept. 8 (Reuters) — British Liberal party leaders Thursday declined an offer of political marriage with the Conservatives. Winston Churchill's five-year courtship toward a Conservative-Liberal Union was turned down by a resolution. The executive announced it would submit to a party conference late this month.

The Liberals are led by Clement Davies.

Though they suffered a trouncing at the last general election in February, the Liberals have shown no signs of clinging to any other party for support. The party then gained only nine seats out of a total of 625 in the House of Commons.

But the Liberal vote of 2,621,489 represented 9.1 percent of the total votes cast.

The Liberal executive Thursday published the text of a resolution to be moved on its behalf at the party assembly in Scarborough, Yorkshire, Sept. 27-30.

It urged the maintenance of an independent Liberal party, opposed to Conservatives and Labor alike.

"The Socialist and Conservative parties are each dependent upon the support of powerful interests and are pursuing policies which can only end in either Marxist or capitalist collectivism," the resolution declared.

Blood on the Stars

By Brett Halliday

"Oh, that's wonderful, Mark," she cried, and rushed into his arms.

Mark put her away from him saying, "I'll take a quick shower and be ready to sign when the bracelet comes," and went into the bathroom. He returned to the living room in a few minutes clothed in formal evening attire.

The buzzer sounded while Celia was in the tub. She listened to a mumble of voices in the outer room when Dustin answered it. She heard the door close firmly, and Mark came into the bathroom with the jewel case open.

The bracelet was more beautiful than Celia remembered. Tears of joy filled her blue eyes and spilled out to join the trickle of water on her face. Mark bent down to kiss her damp and flushed cheek.

Celia dressed carefully in a new ice-blue evening gown she had chosen especially to wear with the bracelet. A clinging, lustrous gown, its strapless bodice supported only by her breasts, molding itself daringly about her hips. Her braids were a bright crown around her small head her lips as red as the rubies themselves. She arose from the dressing table and went over to the full-length mirror to clasp the bracelet on her wrist then moved sedately into the living room for Mark's approval.

Mark was sitting in a deep chair his head back, staring at the ceiling. Celia cleared her throat delicately. He looked at her, then sprang up and came to her to take both her outstretched hands. "You are beautiful. The bracelet was made just for you."

He wanted her to wear it to dinner, but Celia flatly refused "I'm going to be sensible about wearing it, even if you aren't," she declared. Her tone was mature She removed the jewel lingeringly and they went into the bedroom together to place it in the case. "I'm even afraid to leave it here while we go out to dinner," she told him in a small, dismayed voice.

Mark Dustin laughed indulgently and took the tooled leather casket from her hands. "We're going to put it right here in the top drawer of your dressing table and forget about it. Good Lord, Ceil, you act as though you think a gang of international jewel thieves is lurking in the corridors outside just waiting for a chance to snatch it."

"You don't know but what they are," she defended. "I don't care how rich you are, we can't afford to be careless with the bracelet. I think we should lock it in the hotel safe while we're out to dinner."

"Nonsense. Get your wrap. Doing a thing like that would only draw attention to its value. We'll put it in the safe after we come home tonight if that will make you happier."

Celia had to be content with that promise, though the pleasure of having dinner at a table beside the ocean with Mark was spoiled Neither the stars nor the faint moonlight nor the gay chatter all around her on the board-walk cafe could dispel her fierce desire to get back upstairs and assure herself that her beautiful bracelet was safe in the drawer.

When they returned to the hotel suite, Celia ran swiftly to her dressing table and breathed a long sigh of relief when she snapped the box open and saw the jewel inside the chest, just as Mark had placed it there.

Mark stood in the doorway grinning at her, but she knew he was secretly pleased that she cared so much for her anniversary gift. He said, "Well, put it on. It's time we started to the concert." He crossed over to her and took the bracelet from the case and fastened it around her arm.

She looked up and smiled and said, "Thanks for putting it on for me the very first time I wear it." She picked up her white velvet evening wrap and put it around her shoulders. The shirred collar stood up around the back of her head, tapering down to form lapels in front. Celia looked in the mirror, her arm extended slightly, and decided she looked the prettiest she had ever looked in all her life. A joyous thrill ran through her when she saw Mark's admiring eyes reflected in the mirror. He was proud of her proud to walk beside her and have her recognized as Mrs. Mark Dustin.

As they passed through the main lobby downstairs, people turned their heads to watch them. Celia walked slowly and sedately beside her husband her right hand lightly touching his arm the evening wrap open in front to display the bracelet on her left wrist.

In the car, she relaxed with a happy little sigh, and could scarcely wait until they were beyond earshot of the doorman to say ecstatically, "Mr. Voorland was certainly right, darling. Did you see the way they stared at the bracelet as though they had never seen a star ruby before?"

"They were looking at you," he told her with an indulgent chuckle as he swung onto Colline Avenue.

There was little southbound traffic and a round moon hung low in the sky shedding its silvery sheen over the ocean and the tropical verdure linning both sides of the avenue.

An automobile came up behind them swiftly. Dustin was driving far over in the right-hand lane, loafing along a twenty miles an hour, his left hand loosely on the steering wheel and his right arm around Celia.

The oncoming car came abreast of them much closer than was necessary on the almost deserted avenue, then swerved abruptly as though out of control to crash into the left front wheel of Dustin's roadster.

The impact of the heavy limousine drove the roadster off the pavement to smash head-on into the trunk of a royal palm on the edge of the right-of-way.

Celia screamed and Mark Dustin cursed angrily as the steering wheel spun out if his lax hand.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Some Faults Are Not Fatal

By ROY L. SMITH

It sometimes happens that a very serious sin may not be fatal. It is a part of our humanity that we are able to improve. It is one aspect of the image of God in which we were created.

Nothing is more unfair than to judge all of a person's life and character by one act, one habit, one attitude. It usually happens that every vice can be matched by some virtue. The world has never seen but one perfect individual. Every fine and splendid thing that has ever been accomplished has been brought to pass by someone who had faults, and even the greatest are small in some matters.

A Promising Young Man

One member of one of the first Christian families was a youth named John Mark. His mother, it seems, was a woman of prominence in the Church who was possessed of some means. At any rate her home was the gathering place of the followers of Jesus, and a centre from which the missionaries and evangelists went out.

Something about young Mark attracted the attention of the leaders of the new sect, some of whom prophesied for him an unusually bright future. Two of the prominent leaders of the Christian Church at Ephesus, visiting in Jerusalem, were so impressed by the youngster that they invited him to return with them to their city, evidently with the intention of using him in some official or professional capacity.

A Companion of the Great

These leaders decided to set out on an extended missionary tour of some of the more important and populous cities of the eastern Mediterranean area. In their plans they included the young man, for he seems to have been a capable youth to whom considerable responsibility could be assigned.

It was no tourist adventure upon which the three set out. On the contrary, it was a mission marked by desperation. The travel was difficult, actual dangers lay ahead, the life of each was dependent upon the fidelity of the others.

The two older men were statesmen of the highest order, bent on taking the world for their faith. They planned their strategy with care and drove themselves unrelentingly. Neither timidity, compromise, nor carelessness was tolerated.

Both evangelists were destined to achieve immortality, and whoever the youth might be who was chosen to accompany them would share in that eternal good name or go down to lasting shame and humiliation. One cannot share life with the great without sharing great responsibility.

John Mark Stumbled

For some reason which will never be known, John Mark came to the place in the enterprise where he broke under the strain. He came one day pleading that he might be released, and allowed to return to Ephesus, and perhaps Jerusalem.

> The Sunday School lesson for September 10: "John Mark, Who Made Good," Mark 14:51-52; Acts 12:12,25; 13:4-5, 13; 15:36-40; Colossians 4:10; II Timothy 4:11; Philemon 24; I Peter 5:13.

The older of the two preachers, and the leader of the little party, accepted the young man's plea in good faith and excused him in goodwill. The younger one became highly incensed. The youth's failure to proceed was quite evidently a bitter disappointment.

It is impossible to decide the issues of the case with complete impartiality. Perhaps the blame was somewhat mixed. At any rate the young man returned to his home a wash-out, a failure, thoroughly discredited.

One Man Went On Believing

One of the preachers, a man named Barnabas, continued to believe in John Mark. He refused to accept the verdict of one failure. The other preacher, a man named Saul (later known as Paul), was thoroughly disgusted. His confidence in the young man was so completely shaken it could not be restored.

When therefore the two began planning their second missionary tour, Paul declared quite flatly that they would not take John Mark with them. Barnabas, on the other hand, stood by his guns. The dispute waged so determinedly between them that they finally agreed to separate and each go it alone. With that Barnabas set off with Mark, leaving Paul to his own devices.

At Last He Emerged

The scripture record is very fragmentary, and nothing in the way of a complete story remains to us. But we do know that years afterward the young man turned up as a secretary to Peter, the great Apostle, whom he served as interpreter, companion, and amanuensis.

When the great disciple died, after a tumultuous and glorious career, it was John Mark—seasoned now and entirely dependable—who wrote a book containing the gist of Peter's preaching. That book we have today in the New Testament.

In the opinion of the early Church, the young man made good after a bad start. It can be done. One fault may not be fatal.

RED ATTACK HURLED BACK IN HEAVY FIGHTING

Wall of Gas Bars Way to Surface For Trapped Miners

Fears Expressed For Safety Of Ten of the Trapped Men

New Cumnock, Scotland, Sept. 9 — (AP) — The first of 118 men trapped in the Knockshinnock Castle mine since Thursday was brought through a gas-filled escape tunnel to safety shortly after noon today.

New Cumnock, Scotland, Sept. 9 (CP) —Rescue workers, toiling to disperse a 1,000-foot wall of deadly gas blocking the escape of 128 miners trapped in tomb-like blackness 720 feet below ground, decided this morning to bring the miners out wearing masks instead of waiting to clear the gas.

A National Coal Board spokesman said the new rescue effort would take some time and would "provoke some risk."

The miners were trapped by a sea of mud when a field caved in Thursday above their workings.

Fears were expressed for the safety of 10 of the trapped men, isolated from the main party, no word has been heard from the 10 since their exit route was cut off by the cave-in.

Some of the trapped men slept—knocked out by weariness after nearly 40 hours in their dark dungeon. Some sang Scottish folk songs. Others munched sandwiches and drank beer passed to them by rescue workers wearing special breathing apparatus.

Work in Relays

The gas-masked rescue team, worked in relays of five, drilled their way upward through a 30-foot wall of coal from a nearby abandoned mine last night to reach the trapped men. They opened a hole big enough for a man to crawl through. But the exit was blocked by a 1,000-foot layer of colorless, odorless black damp gas.

Giant fans were set to work clearing the escape hatch but it was a slow job. Colliery officials said it might be hours before the men could be brought out safely.

In some respects, the circumstances were similar to the Centralia, Ill., disaster March 25, 1947, when 111 men died after being trapped by an explosion in a gas filled mine.

Mine officials were hopeful, however, of saving the 128 men caught in the Knockshinnoch workings by the cave-in— the size of a football field. The one known casualty was a rescue worker, Hugh Blackwood, 45, who died after a heart attack.

Sportsmen Think Moose Attracted By Engine Siren

Toronto, Sept. 9— (CP)—Is the clarion call of the diesel locomotives a fatal siren song to romantic male moose in Ontario's northland?

Game enthusiasts think it is; railroad men and lands department experts are inclined to scoff.

Sudbury delegates to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters Association, meeting at North Bay this week, said bull moose are being killed on the railroad tracks. They are attracted, it is said, by the moaning whistles of the diesels which resemble the "love call" of the cow moose.

The association approved a motion asking the lands department to obtain statistics on the number of moose killed on the rail lines. One delegate said 11 moose were killed in a week on one stretch between Capreol and Hornpayne.

In Toronto, however, a lands department official, said Friday that romance had nothing to do with it. The mating season for moose lasts for three weeks in September, yet moose are killed all the year round on the tracks.

He said most of the deaths are at night. Moose wander on the rail lines, are dazed by the brilliant headlights and, often, charge head-on into locomotives, steam as well as diesel.

First British Soldier Killed In Korean War

Tokyo, Sept. 9 (CP) — First death in action of a British soldier in Korea was reported in dispatches reaching here today.

A correspondent with the British troops reported that the soldier, a member of the Middlesex Regiment, was buried today with full military honors under the United Nations flag at the cemetery of the United States 1st Cavalry Division. He was killed on patrol in communist territory.

In Tokyo Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters today listed British casualties as two missing and 14 wounded. The announcement gave no news of the death of the Tommy.

Meanwhile, British patrols today directed heavy artillery fire on roving bands of North Koreans who had infiltrated allied lines along the Naktong River.

SETTING RECORDS

Washington, Sept. 9 — (AP) — Rubber prices and world production of natural rubber are both setting records. The United States Commerce Department reported yesterday that prices were at the highest level in 25 years and that production set a new record in July for the second straight month. July production was estimated at 167,500 long tons, 10,000 more than in June.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 9 — (CP) — Synopsis: The Florida hurricane is now but a shadow of its former intensity and even near centre there is very little rain. It is causing rather cloudy skies as far north as Southwestern Ontario but the sun will break through frequently today and Sunday. Central and Northern Ontario are clear and will remain so.

Temperatures will be little changed in Southern Ontario but are becoming cooler in northern regions.

CRUSHED BY PRESS

Detroit, Sept. 8. (CP)—Factory worker George Howard, 40, was crushed to death by a 4,500-pound press yesterday, apparently because he pushed the wrong button.

FINAL DECISION WHERE FORCE GOES UP TO COMMONS

At Present Time Force Is Bound For Korea

Ottawa, Sept. 9 (CP)—Parliament will make the final decision about the destination of Canada's special army force, Prime Minister St. Laurent said last night, and it might or might not be Korea.

No step taken by this special session will authorize cabinet to send the force anywhere but Korea, he assured the Commons. If it goes elsewhere, the final decision will be parliament's at a later session.

He spoke late in a three-sitting day that saw the Commons approve the second and third of the major measures placed before members less than two weeks ago.

The first bill approved was the one that got the railways running. The second was one to authorize the government to spend $580,000,000 in this and future years to rearm Canada, to build up the forces and to ship arms to Europe.

The third, passed late last night, was the bill to authorize the government to place any part of the armed forces on active service — roughly a war footing — to fulfill Canada's obligations to the United Nations.

That left members still confronted with Trade Minister Howe's bill to give stand-by powers over prices and direction of strategic materials, with Finance Minister Abbott's budget and certain less-important measures.

Mr. St. Laurent intervened in debate on the active service measure to tell how the government plans to authorize dispatch of the army's special force.

Under present circumstances, he said, Korea still is assumed to be the theatre where the brigade will fight when it is ready.

Bill To Be Placed

Orders-in-council covering the legal step to place it on active service and the authorization to dispatch it to Korea would be placed before this special session.

But if events indicated it could serve the United Nations' cause better elsewhere cabinet would make its decisions and submit it to parliament.

No step taken by this session would authorize the cabinet to send the force anywhere but to Korea.

The prime minister's intervention came after Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo) and Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) asked for clarification of the situation arising from the fact that it is the law that parilament must be recalled within 10 days after the forces are placed on active service.

Fear of Impending War Driving Some 27,000 Baltic Refugees Across Ocean

Stockholm, Sept. 9 (Reuters) — Fear of impending war is driving some of Sweden's 27,000 Baltic refugees across the Atlantic in search of safety.

No country in Europe will be safe if the Red flood breaks loose, they claim.

They are homeless today because Russia annexed their countries — Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania — in 1940 after signing treaties of military assistance and friendship with them.

The United States is the favorite refuge among the few who have money or relations already settled there. Pioneering types choose Canada — when they can get visas.

The queue of applicants at Canada's legation is a political barometer here. The darker the international situation, the longer the queue.

Others go to South America. One group of about 60 Baltic refugees bought an old steamer last month. They have loaded seven lorries on to her decks and are setting out for Buenos Aires in the hope of going inland and starting a motor transport business.

Sweden treats the Balts well. They work here on the same terms as Swedes. Their children go to Swedish schools and universities. All enjoy Sweden's far-reaching system of social service on the same terms as Swedes.

They can become Swedish subjects after eight years' residence, or earlier if they marry Swedes—as many of them have done.

Their big fear is that Russia will one day ask Sweden to hand them over as "Soviet citizens." But Sweden shows no signs of this. On the contrary, she protects them from the Soviet embassy here by making their addresses a state secret.

Church May Ask Ministers To Point Out Tax Evasion Is Immoral and Illegal

Toronto, Sept. 9 (CP) — The United Church of Canada may ask its ministers to tell their congregations that tax evasion is immoral—as well as illegal.

A resolution to be presented to the 14th meeting of the church's General Council next week will express concern with such examples of "social dishonesty" as income tax evasion by individuals and companies; violation of foreign exchange regulations and reported expenditures of unnecessarily large amounts of money during election campaigns.

The resolution was drafted by the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service. It will be considered when the meeting opens Tuesday.

It calls for a greater willingness by individuals and corporations to pay taxes, a more thorough supervision of unemployment insurance payments and a declaration by all political leaders that their organizations have been told not to accept campaign funds from liquor companies and gambling syndicates.

Other resolutions to be considered are: a suggestion that all Canadians receive a pension of $40 a month without means test after 70; endorsation of a resolution passed by the World Council of Churches that the use of the hydrogen bomb would be a sin against God; and that members of the church should be asked to take oaths to refrain from the use of alcohol.

20 Stitches Required to Close Cuts on Little Girl's Face Caused by Dog, Animal Shot

Viciously attacked by a strange dog which had entered the backyard where the child was playing with her own pet, Janice McFarland, 2½ years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McFarland, 3rd concession Tyendinaga, was seriously bitten about the face Friday afternoon.

The little girl was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where 20 stitches were necessary to close the cuts on the little girl's face.

Police stated that the little McFarland girl had been playing in her father's backyard with the family dog when a strange collie entered the yard. The McFarland's called their own dog into the house only to have the strange dog turn on the little girl and seriously bite her about the face.

A next-door neighbor grabbed his rifle and shot the strange dog.

A second incident of the same nature on Friday afternoon saw the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, Kingston Road, two miles east of the city, bitten by a dog. In this case it was a neighbor's dog which is said to have bitten the small boy in the legs.

Testimony Given About Wild Ride Before Shooting

Simcoe, Sept. 9 (CP) — Testimony about the wild, bullet-punctured chase that ended with the machine-gunning of two men highlighted Friday's third day of the trial of Joseph Herbert McAuliffe, charged with a double murder.

While McAuliffe, wartime arms expert, sat impassively taking notes, Crown Counsel D. E. W. Tisdale called witnesses to describe the wild ride that began with a bank robbery in nearby Langton and ended with the June 21 death of Arthur Lierman, 31, and William Goddyn, 24.

Previously seven witnesses had identified McAuliffe as the lone bandit who held up the branch of the Imperial Bank at Langton and escaped with $23,000.

Robert Nobel, 16, who was working in a tobacco field near the scene of the fatal shooting, testified he heard a shot and saw two cars coming from the east. He said the first car went into a ditch and the second stopped right behind it.

Heard Ten Shots

A few seconds later, Nobel said, he heard a burst of about ten shots come from the first car. Then he saw one man wearing a "dark suit coat and with brown hair" standing beside the ditched car. By that time Nobel "was crawling home."

During a court recess McAuliffe's father and sister from North Bay arrived at the jail to visit him. McAuliffe's defence counsel said the accused advised them not to attend the trial.

President of Striking Union Injured in Clash

Hamilton, Sept. 9 (CP)—In a picket line clash between police and civic workers on strike at an east-end garbage dump, William Patterson, president of the striking Union, today was injured about the head. Two other strikers were arrested.

About 1,000 civic workers, including garbage collectors and grave diggers, have been on strike for more than four weeks to back wage-hours demands, including a request for a 40-hour week.

Russians Want Tax Exemption On L.I. Estate

Glen Cove, N.Y. Sept. 9 (AP)—Glen Cove is having trouble with its Russians again.

This time they want a tax exemption on their 45-room, $350,000 Long Island estate "Killenworth."

Ever since Soviet officials — plus their families and staffs—have swarmed into this millionaire community, Glen Cove has had a Russian problem all its own.

Usually it's been sanitation and overcrowding. But this time it's dollars.

Three years ago the Russian trading agency Amtorg bought the estate and began paying taxes. But last June it transferred the place to the Soviet embassy in Washington, which has certain tax privileges.

The embassy has now asked Glen Cove to forego the $14,880 revenue it collects on Killenworth every year.

Glen Cove took this request hard.

In fact Mayor Luke A. Mercadante wouldn't even think of it.

He gave his reasons in a letter back to the state department — "The 'house and lot' referred to by the Soviet embassy . . is adjudged the most beautiful country home in America.

London Taximen Claim Fare Boost Cuts Business

London, Sept. 9 — (CP) London's taxi-drivers are bemoaning a recent order that boosted fares by 33 per cent. The increase, they say, has resulted in a drop of more than 12,000 passengers a day and a disastrous slump in tips.

Journeyman H. Whelan says:—"My daily average of jobs has dropped from 24 to 16. The new schedule means a loss of 30s. ($4.65) a week to me and I am having to work overtime to make it up."

TWO WINDSOR MEN ARE WOUNDED IN RESTAURANT

Manager Finds Three Men in His Shop

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 9 (CP)—Two Windsor brothers were shot today by the manager of an east side restaurant when he discovered three men robbing his shop.

Sidney Bell, manager of the Dot Restaurant, Walker and Tecumseh Roads, using a .22 rifle, fired three shots into windows of the restaurant and wounded two of the three men who were inside attempting to rob the restaurant.

Police were on the scene moments after the shooting and they smashed down a door to get inside and arrested the men who were trapped in the kitchen.

In Metropolitan General Hospital under police guard are the two wounded men identified as James and William Cosgrove, 1847 Albert Road.

One Man Questioned

The third man involved in the attempted robbery was taken to police headquarters for questioning and his name was not disclosed.

Most seriously wounded was William Cosgrove who was shot through the thick part of the neck. His brother James Cosgrove was struck in the arm and thigh.

A burglar alarm system on a swinging door in the Dot Restaurant sounded a buzzer in the adjacent office building where Mr. Bell was resting.

He grabbed up his .22 rifle and went outside in time to see a man inside the front part of the restaurant taking items from a counter.

Mr. Bell called police and then went back outside and fired a warning shot through a side window into the front of the store.

Three Men In Kitchen

This sent the one man scurrying back into the kitchen. Mr. Bell then went to the rear, looked into the kitchen of the restaurant and spotted three men inside the kitchen.

He let fly with two more shots, firing through the glass.

At this moment a police cruiser arrived with police constables C. S. "Butch" Collins and Ray Wyley. Collins went to a back window where he spotted the three men inside.

In the front part of the restaurant, lying on the floor beside a counter police found a potato sack partly filled with butter, ham, a clock, cigarettes and cigarette papers.

SOAP RATION ENDS IN U. K.

London, Sept. 9 — (AP) — Soap rationing, which went into effect in Britain in February, 1942, ends tonight.

Shortages of fats and oils had limited each person to 21 ounces of soap every eight weeks.

American Troops Forced to Leave Battle Mountain

Height Has Changed Hands Five Times in Two Days

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, Sept. 9 (AP) —Allied troops closed a dangerously big hole in the northeastern Korea warfront today. But they lost scarred Battle Mountain again in the southwest to superior North Korean forces.

The five mile gap in the northeastern front was closed by South Korean troops, backed by American planes. They linked forces in moves between Yongchon and Kyongju, road junction towns east of Taegu, central front city imperilled by 50,000 communists from the north. The closing of the rupture in the line eased some of the pressure on Taegu.

On the red-hot southwestern front a full north Korean regiment drove outnumbered American troops off Battle Mountain Saturday in a battle that raged all day. The heights has changed hands five times in two days, 12 times in three weeks.

A spokesman said American forces failed to recapture outpost lines lost yesterday two miles southwest of Haman, in the southwest sector.

On the northeast front he said two south Korean attacks were made near Yongchon. One was seven miles north of the rubbled city and the other was four miles southeast of Yongchon.

Skies cleared late Saturday and U.S. fighters and bombers flew 140 sorties in close support of allied troops in the Yongchon-Kyongju area. Other sectors were so quiet the U.S. 8th Army in Korea omitted its Saturday night communique.

While the Yongchon troops drove eastward, another allied force pushed northwest and west from Kyongju, road junction 25 miles east of Yongchon.

In the southwest, Battle Mountain changed hands twice but wound up in American possession tonight.

Another allied force pushed northwest and west from Kyongju, road junction 18 miles southwest of red-held Pohang on the east coast.

CONSTABLES ATTACKED

Bombay, Sept. 9 (Reuters) — Police fired on striking cotton textile workers who attacked constables and passers-by and disrupted traffic today in Parel, Bombay's industrial district.

A person watching from an upper floor was killed by a stray bullet.

The disturbance began when strikers, following a violent demonstration last night, formed a procession and attempted to hold a meeting.

Cretan Juliet Awaits Release Of Her Romeo to Begin Honeymoon

Athens, Greece, Sept. 9 (AP)—With tears and heavy heart, Tassoula Petracogeorgi, the 'Juliet" of Crete, today awaited her imprisoned Romeo's release for the beginning of their ill-starred honeymoon.

Whatever possibility there was that her fiercely - mustachioed bridegroom of one week, Constantine Kephaloyannis, would be freed today was dashed after a three-minute court hearing.

Arraigned before an examining magistrate, Kephaloyannis was charged formally with abduction, seduction, unlawfully carrying arms, and heading a band of armed men with intent to attack or resist authorities. The prisoner asked 48 hours in which to prepare his defence and was returned to his cell.

It was six days ago that Kephaloyannis, emerging with the girl he carried off to a hideout on Mount Ida and then married in a monastery, was thrown into jail here on various charges growing out of a family feud.

Now, new bitterness and fears were tormenting Tassoula.

Responding to his daughter's pleadings yesterday for his blessing to her marriage, George Petracogeorgi, Liberal parliamentarian and clan leader, was reported to have spat:

"I give you my curse."

Adding to Tassoula's worries was the pistols-to-the-death challenge flung from prison by her husband to Manuel Bandovas, another Cretan "Capetano," accused by Kephaloyannis of being responsible for his troubles.

Tassoula today remained in the home of her husband's uncle. She was under heavy police guard to protect her against possible efforts her.

The ordeal of her romance was reported to have affected Tassoula's health.

According to relatives, she complained during the night of acute pains around her heart. Doctors were summoned, but the police would not permit them to enter until this morning on instructions from the prosecutor. Tassoula was said to be ill and highly nervous.

Canadians Take Last Look At Exhibition

Toronto, Sept. 9 (CP)—Canadians took their last look today at the 1950 edition of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The big fair, in full swing since Aug. 25, ends tonight with a monster fireworks display, parades and speeches.

More than 1,000 Navy, Army and Air Force cadets throughout Ontario were on hand to participate in the closing-day ceremonies with every cadet corps in the province represented.

The Cadets were scheduled to parade to the grounds in the afternoon and to parade a second time during the evening grandstand performance.

A big sports program also was lined up for the last day of the 71st annual fair, including the finals of the C.N.E. softball championships and powerboat races.

Play was continuing in the Canadian checker championships that yesterday saw defending champion M. F. Tinsley, Columbus, O., advance into the semi-finals by eliminating G. McCritichie, Hamilton, and J. C. MacFarlane, Montreal.

A day-long program was scheduled at the C.N.E. Horse Show with no less than 23 events being run off.

In a spectacular performance last night, Wheat Sheaf, owned by Dr. J. N. Stratus, Toronto, won the Sam Harris challenge trophy and the Touch and Out Jumpers Stake against a field of 26 entries. Youthful Jim Pogue guided the six-year-old brown gelding over eight difficult jumps for the only clean performance out of the big entry list.

Three Sentenced On Lesser Counts

Stratford, Sept. 9—(CP)—Three Dublin district men were acquitted of a charge of manslaughter by a supreme court jury here last night, but were found guilty on lesser counts and sentenced to prison terms.

John K. Krauskopf, 21, was sentenced to six months definite and six months indefinite on conviction of breaking and entering, three months for being found in a house by night with intent to commit an indictable offence and one month for common assault. The terms will run concurrently.

Thomas Gormley, 39, and Ryan Jordan, 26, were each sentenced to three months in jail for being found in a house by night with intent to commit an indictable offence.

The trio were charged in connection with the death of 69-year-old Bernard McDonnell following an alleged scuffle at his home in nearby Mitchell April 9.

Three Injured As Car Crashes Into Phone Pole

Three persons were admitted to Belleville General Hospital Friday afternoon, one in serious condition, result of a car crashing into a telephone pole after it went out of control, while passing a truck four miles east of the city.

In hospital are Mrs. Dora Windover, 69, of 309 Albert St., who suffered a compound fracture of the leg, a broken arm and facial cuts; Mr. Wesley Bradshaw, 73, Plainford, back injuries, and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Bradshaw, 67, with facial injury. A fourth occupant and driver of the car, Mr. Windover, suffered injury to his knee and lip but was not admitted to hospital.

The accident occurred shortly after the noon hour as the eastbound car driven by Mr. Windover attempted to pass a truck loaded with tomatoes. The auto wheels dropped off the pavement and the car went out of control crashing into the telephone pole.

The injured were taken to hospital in Bush's Ambulance while Provincial Constable Ivan Tinkness investigated the accident.

Sub Post Office To be Opened At 225 Station St.

As an additional postal convenience to residents living in the area adjacent to the Canadian National Railway Station, the Post Office Department has authorized the establishment of a new Sub Post Office at 225 Station Street (Collins' Groceteria), to be known as Belleville, Sub Post Office No. 4, with Mr. J. D. Collins as postmaster.

Postage stamps will be sold as well as money orders up to the value of $15.99. Letters may be registered and parcels will be accepted for insurance or C.O.D. collection.

The new Sub Post Office, which will be opened on September 12, is replacing the old Belleville Station Post Office, closed a number of years ago, and it is expected that the many residents in the area will make every use of the Postal facilities again being provided.

Paint, Wallpaper Dealers Form New Association

A meeting of the "Paint and Wallpaper Dealers" of the City of Belleville was held Friday, with a view to forming a local trade association.

Mr. W. J. Dougherty was elected chairman of the newly-formed Paint and Wallpaper Dealers Association and Mr. C. H. Farr was elected secretary.

Store hours and other matters were discussed and agreed upon by the representatives. The chairman, Mr. W. J. Dougherty, was elected as representative of the group on the Retail Merchants Committee of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce. He will attend their next regular meeting on Tuesday, September 12.

Frankford Edges Brookline In 4th Round Playdown

Frankford (Special) —Frankford Merchants took the first game of the fourth round OASA playdowns last night when they defeated Brookline 9-8 on the latter's diamond.

The second game of the series will be played in Frankford Monday night. The winners of this series will be the Zone 4 Intermediate C champions.

Garnet Rosenplott started on the mound for Frankford but weakened in the seventh when Brookline scored five runs to come within striking distance. Don Boyle came in to choke off the rally. He held them scoreless for the rest of the game.

TO HONOR MINISTER

Owen Sound, Ont., Sept. 9 — (CP) — A parade and speeches by government ministers will pay tribute here Saturday to Ontario Health Minister MacKinnon Phillips, Mayor E. C. Sargent said Friday.

Chamber of Commerce Will Operate Booths for Tourists' Information

Tourist information booths to bring attention to the beauties and other attractions of the city and of the Bay of Quinte district will be operated next year at both the east and west ends of the city by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Buildings for use as information booths are being made available by city council from the former city tourist park and the city tourist and publicity committee will be asked to include an item in their budget to cover the expense of operating the booths.

The matter in question was discussed by directors of the Chamber of Commerce at their first meeting of the autumn season held Thursday noon at the Shrine Club. Directors attending the luncheon meeting included H. N. Becker, R. Boyce, W. Brown, J. Buchan, A. M. Haig, Bruce Lattimer and H. C. Seldon. Hugh Murray, of the Hugh Murray Company, concrete contractors, was guest at the luncheon, and was welcomed as a new member.

Directors Move Up

Mr. J. Buchan was named second vice-president of the Chamber, succeeding W. J. Brown who moved up to first vice-president. Mr. Thornbury was named treasurer, replacing C. L. Jewell who has retired from the Board.

Directors suggested that the effectiveness of night school classes at the Belleville Collegiate would be increased in effectiveness if there was a course to prepare students to take their place in local industries and trades. H. C. Seldon, as member of the school board said the board was ready to commence night school classes in any subject in which a group of 12 or more was interested. Before such a course could be included in the curriculum the views of superintendents of local industries should be obtained to determine what subjects should be included, it was suggested.

No further action was taken on the matter but a letter will be written to the school board asking for their full night school curriculum and the names of instructors for each course.

Will Assist in Program

Directors acceded to the request of W. C. Mikel to assist in preparing the program for the unveiling of the monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell and the secretary was instructed to refer the matter of securing a speaker to city council and to offer all assistance in making detailed arrangements.

A Fighting Beaver

Tin Pants for Game Overseer On Order After This Experience

Perhaps the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests should equip its game overseers with tin pants.

After what happened the other day to Overseer Sam Shields, it might be a good idea.

Shields, it seems, was removing six "nuisance" beaver for transfer to where colonies were needed.

The king of the colony objected to the removal of his household and came out fighting when Shields attempted to remove him from the trap to the container.

Sharp teeth ripped into Shields' gloves. Not content the infuriated animal turned his attack on the overseer's waders, tearing them to shreds.

But that is not all.

The next day, when the beaver was being released in its new quarters, it launched another savage attack on the overseer. This time it concentrated its razor - toothed fury on Shield's pants, ripping the trousers to pieces before being brought under control.

Three Kiwanians To Represent Club At Convention

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville will be represented at the 1950 convention of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime Kiwanis District to be held at Toronto, ~~Ont. September 10 to 13,~~ Club President Taylor Franklin announced today.

More than 100 clubs, comprising a membership of 7,000 business and professional leaders, are expected to send delegates to the 4-day meeting, T. Franklin said.

The speaking program will feature the appearance of three prominent officials of Kiwanis International, including Claude B. Hellmann, Baltimore, Md., utilities executive and vice-president of the community service organization; Fred G. McAlister, K.C., London, Ont., barrister and a former International president and Harvey R. Doane, Halifax, Nova Scotia, business leader and an International trustee.

Kenneth B. Loheed, Toronto merchant and governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district, will preside at the convention, which will highlight committee conferences, a discussion of plans for the coming year, and election of officers.

Hellmann, who will serve as official representative of Kiwanis International at the convention is a member of the national committee of the Edison Electric Institute, vice president of the Maryland Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, a director of the Baltimore YMCA and has been division chairman for both the Community Chest and Red Cross drives in his home city.

Delegates who will represent the Kiwanis Club of Belleville at the convention will include Director Dr. Harold Craig, Past President Norm Edwards and President Taylor Franklin.

Council Will Ask Govt. Approval Of Report on Sewage Treatment

Trenton—(Special) — Council passed a resolution at a special meeting Thursday night giving Gore and Storrie a Toronto firm of engineering consultants, authority to ask the Department of Health to approve the report on sewers and sewage treatment which the firm recently completed and presented to council.

Another resolution was passed, asking the health department to approve the immediate installation of sanitary sewers in the lower Dufferin Avenue and North Sydney Street areas.

Mr. William Storrie represented the firm which made the survey and told council it would be advisable "to take a vote on the whole thing because this project is probably the heaviest the town has ever undertaken and in the final analysis the people have to pay the cost."

$726,950 Estimate

The report calls for a sewage disposal plant, three pumping stations and storm and sanitary sewer installations costing an estimated $726,950. The sanitary sewage system recommended in the report would cost $536,050. Three hundred and ten thousand dollars of this amount would be required to erect the sewage treatment plant. If all the recommendations contained in the report are carried out, the report states that the system would provide "complete sewage treatment for a town of 12,000."

Mayor Couch agreed that it was essential to submit the program to the voters for their approval. Council had indicated at a previous meeting that the proposed sewage improvements would probably be carried out over a period of years.

Mr. Storrie suggested a five-year program. In reply to a question from councillor Ross Burtt as to whether the program could be extended over ten years, Mr. Storrie said, "There is nothing to prevent a ten-year program providing the treatment plant is one of the first items. I would say that five years is the limit as far as being allowed to continue dumping raw sewage into the bay," continued Mr. Storrie.

Mr. Storrie pointed out to council that Sewers Rental Act passed by the Ontario legislature last year permitted municipalities carrying out large scale sewage improvements such as advocated in the report could transfer a "large proportion of the cost from the mill rate and put it on the water bill, where it would appear as a sewer service rate and be collected by the Utilities Commission."

Storm Sewers Later

In summary the sewage report states "until, the sanitary system is put in good shape, we do not recommend construction of an extensive program of storm sewers, but only those necessary to relieve the sanitary system of excessive storm water."

The annual cost of operating the system recommended in the report is estimated at $55,681.30, "assuming the work to be financed by the issue of 20-year debentures bearing three and one-half per cent interest.

It was pointed out to council by Mr. Storrie, that in the event the voters rejected the scheme, the Department of Health could step in and issue a mandatory order that the sewage system be improved according to the department's specifications.

ONE FIFTY-THOUSANDTH OF AN OUNCE
In these days of precise measurement extremely fine tolerances are commonplace. Machine-shop practice sometimes allows for errors of but one ten-thousandth of an inch. Your pharmacist, however, is often required to measure doses as infinitesimal as one fifty-thousandth of an ounce . . . or even less. He must weigh amounts so minute that they could easily be placed on the head of a pin.
If your pharmacist compounds for you a prescription containing atropine sulfate the usual dose is 0.00001736 apothecaries' ounce! Scopolamine, strychnine and colchicine are among other drugs that are likewise employed in exceedingly small doses.
Your pharmacist measures these amounts with accuracy because long and rigid scientific training has accustomed him to working with uncommon delicacy.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company.

~ THE RUSTIC CEDAR PERGOLA IN GARDEN DESIGN ~

This drawing illustrates the application of Canadian cedar in construction of a garden pergola. This is drawn from the completed structure at the northern studio of the author of this series. It will be one of a series of four issues showing details of construction to produce at low cost a garden feature of outstanding beauty.

Ontario abounds in wooded areas where cedars grow in abundance. No wood is more durable and adapts itself so well for rustic work. There will be a series of three drawings following to show details of construction.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

THE UNITED EMPIRE LOYALISTS, 1784-1816

(2nd Instalment)

But for the outbreak of the Revolution in the old Colonies, all of Canada beyond the Ottawa might have long been left to the traders and Indians. The war brought increased activity along the route from Niagara to Montreal. The established garrisons became military bases for operations to the south and some new posts were set up. There may have been a detachment on the Bay of Quinte for a time, but the main post at this end of the lake was on Carleton Island. The upper forts and posts came to be garrisoned chiefly by the regiments recruited from the loyal inhabitants of the colonies, and usually referred to by the authorities as the "provincial" regiments. The task of guarding the Ontario posts fell principally on the corps formed in Canada by refugees from the "back parts" of the Province of New York.

The first units of these corps consisted of colonists whose constant opposition to the revolutionary party had made them so "obnoxious" that they had been forced to leave their homes at the beginning of the troubles. They were continually being joined by others as the persecution became more widespread and intolerable. A large number of Loyalists joined Burgoyne's forces in 1777 and were permitted to go to Canada by the terms of the surrender at Saratoga. Every withdrawal of British troops from occupied territory produced a new crop of refugees, and recruiting for Loyalist regiments was constantly going on even in areas under Revolutionary control. Prominent Loyalists were given commissions in these corps and permitted to make trips into enemy territory for the purpose of recruiting their companies, gathering intelligence and encouraging whatever underground resistance was possible. The families of the recruits were sooner or later subjected to persecution, frequently imprisoned and forced eventually to take refuge within the British lines. By 1780 thousands of "displaced persons" of both sexes were living in Canada and receiving subsistence from the Government.

The idea that many of these people would be unable or unwilling to return to their homes at the end of the war was forced upon the authorities while the issue was still doubtful. A few of the more fortunate had already acquired property in what is now the Province of Quebec, but most still hoped to be able to return to the States and recover their possessions. Those who had taken up arms for the Crown had had their real estate confiscated. Even those who had remained quietly at home had had their goods sold at "public vendue" if they refused to pay forced contributions to the Revolutionary war-chest or to take the oaths of neutrality. Almost all were dependent on government support in the form of military pay, pensions or ration and would eventually have heavy claims for compensation, which the British government was anxious to recognize as generously as possible. The most obvious way to provide for those who were not on active service was to grant them land on which they could support their families.

A beginning, intended to be temporary, had been made at Niagara as early as 1778. A number of Loyalists had been granted lands near the fort, partly as a means of providing the garrison with fresh food. By 1780 Governor Haldimand, who had been active in protecting the interests of the refugees, had plans under way for dividing the lake region from the Ottawa to the St. Clair into a number of district, each subdivided into "seignories" in which Loyalists could be settled. (The Loyalists disliked the term "seignories" as suggestive of the French feudal tenure which they refused to accept. They called the "seignories" townships or "towns" from the first.)

Little could be done to carry out this plan while the war continued, but the surrender of Cornwallis increased the need for immediate action. The various provincial corps were anxious for early demobilization, and it was obvious that the number of Loyalists in Canada would soon be increased, both from the newly-formed States and from Nova Scotia.

As soon as the provisional agreement was signed in 1783, Haldimand took steps to carry out the plans for the settlements along the St. Lawrence and on Lake Ontario. Since Carleton Island seemed likely to be within the territory of the New United States, it was decided to rebuild Old Fort Frontenac, and found a town beside it, called Cataraqui to serve as the base for a settlement designed to secure this end of the lake.

The country from Cataraqui to Gananoque was found on examination to be rugged and poor, so the townships of the "Cataraqui" settlement were to be laid out to the west, along both sides of the Bay of Quinte as far as the Trent. (Settlers at first gave their residence as "Cataraqui" or "at the Bay of Quinte" without much distinction. But gradually two separate districts came to be recognized. The spelling of Quinte varied widely as evidently did the pronunciation.)

On July 30, 1783, Major Ross, the commandant at Carleton Island, went to Cataraqui with a detachment of troops and artificers and began to restore the fort and storehouses, to explore the surrounding country and select sites for two grist and sawmills which would serve the new settlement. The Government's intention to place Loyalists in the Cataraqui region was still officially secret, but it was obvious that some rumor of it would soon leak out and there was need to hasten the preparations; for the "provincial corps" were eager for their discharge and for the chance to establish new homes for their families. There was danger that some would attempt to start settlements elsewhere, if lands were not soon made available in the positions which the authorities wished to protect from possible occupation by "disaffected" settlers in the future. The preparations were pushed as rapidly as possible; masons and millwrights were sent from Niagara and from Montreal. Major Holland's scheme for the townships had been forwarded to Ross in July and in September deputy surveyor Geberak and John Collins arrived with a party of surveyors to run the boundaries and lay out at least some concessions in each. An assembly of Mississauga Indians was called in order to conclude a treaty of purchase for the lands from the Gananoque westwards. On the ninth of October 1783, Captain Crawford successfully carried out the purchase of all the land from the Gananoque to the Trent and for a day's journey from the lake. (The purchase of the lands beyond the Trent had to be postponed as the chiefs concerned were not all present at this meeting.)

Groups of settlers began to arrive at Cataraqui in the spring of 1784. Land was distributed by lot, even before the surveys were completed. With a few exceptions only one lot of 200 acres was granted to any one claimant in the first concession of a township. The townships were numbered in the order in which they were laid out. Starting from the west bank of the Cataraqui the fronts of townships 1 to 4 stretched to the narrows of Adolphus Reach. (Kingston, Ernestown, Fredericksburgh, Adolphustown. Adolphustown was at first intended to be part of No. 3, but was separated to provide a company with a township to themselves. The names were given later in honor King George and his fifth, second and seventh sons.) The surveyors then crossed to the peninsula and laid out three townships along the northern shores of what is now Prince Edward County. The eighth and ninth townships, (Sidney and Thurlow), extended from the Trent to the western boundary of the Mohawk Tract at the mouth of the Salmon River and a tenth township, (Richmond), was laid out east of this tract along the right bank of the Napanee, behind the "Third Township."

By spring, the boundaries of these townships had been sufficiently fixed to allow of the lots being drawn for, but the actual survey of the concessions took time and the settlers soon become impatient. On May 7th, 1784, Ross reported that they were distressed because "they could not see their lands," which were not yet surveyed, but expressed the hope that they might be able to get their holdings in time to plant fall wheat. On July 5th he reported that no settlers have yet located on their lands, though some had "removed to their townships," apparently to camp there till their lots were surveyed. Meanwhile the numbers of refugees at Cataraqui were growing steadily and supplies were running short. On the seventh day of July, Ross reported that he had been forced to reduce rations, to the distress and discontent of the Loyalists, and on the same day seventeen officers signed a memorial to the Governor protesting against the reduction. It was proposed to reduce the ration to two-thirds until May 1st, 1785, and to one-third until May, 1786. The signers emphasize the hardship this will bring on their families and remark that if it is carried out "very few will stay." Among the signatures appear those of one or two men who later received grants in the Moira "watershed" or later settled there. The most notable is that of Lieutenant Isaac Ferguson. (Ontario Historical Society Transactions and Papers Vol. XVII. Ferguson's signature is given as "T. Ferguson," but there is no record of any Lieutenant "T" Ferguson and to take capital I for capital T is a common mistake when reading handwriting of this period.)

Tempers were getting frayed in the refuge camps and Ross reported disputes among the Loyalists, chiefly "between master and servant." He remarked that "a strange collection of people" was assembled at Cataraqui.

The units of this "strange collection" exhibited a wide range of character and background. They varied greatly in racial origin, though Scots and "Dutch" probably predominated. Most had been born in the colonies, but natives of all the British Isles and a few Europeans were also to be found. The "Dutch" included both Hollanders from New York and some German Americans from the Mohawk and elsewhere. They had mostly been men of moderate or small means. Hardly any members of the great landed families of the middle or southern colonies came direct to Canada and only a small proportion of Upper Canada Loyalists could be said to have been rich.

The average settlers in the Quinte region however had probably lost more by their loyalty than the general statements of some recent writers would indicate. (Reacting from the romanticism of some early writers, it was for a time the practice to represent the Upper Canada Loyalists as almost all "log cabin" pioneers, who exchanged a recent bush farm in the States for a similar one in Canada. This was as much exaggeration as the former attitude.) Since they came mostly from the inland counties of New York State, where it was difficult to obtain freehold land, they had usually been tenants on the large estates — "patents" or "patroonships." However, unlike the bulk of the Highlanders of Glengarry and the St. Lawrence townships, they were not new settlers on small bush holdings, but had bought leases "for life" or "forever" on improved farms and were practically in the position of freeholders. The ground landlord collected a small portion of the produce each year as a quit-rent, but the improvements belonged to the tenant. (This refers to the newer "patents." On the older Dutch "patroonships" the burdens on the tenant were heavier and his position was less good.) In many cases the Quinte Loyalists had paid a fairly substantial sum to the former tenant for his improvements. They had mostly taken their farms at the end of the French and Indian Wars, (1760-1770) and in ten or fifteen years of peaceful occupation had increased the value of their rights in the farms to double or treble this purchase price. They had greatly increased the amount of cleared land, built houses, planted orchards, got together a good deal of stock, "utensils" ("utensils" is used in the claims to cover farm implements and the apparatus of domestic manufactures), and furniture. They had seemed secure of a comfortable living and some were even achieving a degree of affluence.

The story of the effects of the Revolution on the Quinte Loyalists will appear in next week's issue.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO POLICY

Finance Minister Douglass Abbott, in presenting his "baby budget" to the House Thursday night, levied further taxes on the Canadian people. The new load on semi-luxury goods and business, Mr. Abbott said, is one that the country's economy can and must support. Individuals have been spared, for the moment, from any greater contribution on a personal scale, to the country's tax funds.

The net effect of the new tax schedule will be that an estimated deficit of $44,000,000 for next March has been wiped out, and a surplus of $15,000,000 can reasonably be expected. The reason for the move is a greater expenditure for defence; Mr. Abbott, carrying on J. L. Ilsley's principles, is determined that Canada's defence bill will be looked after on a pay-as-you-go basis.

In short, business and luxuries will bear the brunt of defence costs. Alcoholic beverages, sweets, household and automobile appliances and accessories, corporations and many other facets of business are lumped together to provide the additional revenue the country's defence machines must have.

Each of the items in the budget, when viewed as a unit, seems to be a heavy blow to the consumer. On the overall, however, the picture appears to be one of deserved taxing. The government, through Mr. Abbott, has attempted to keep the cost of living within reasonable limits by putting excise taxes only on commodities which are not absolutely essential to the maintenance of a household.

For example, it is estimated that the price of liquors will jump only 12 to 15 cents on a 26-ounce bottle; one cent on a pint of beer; one cent on soft drinks, chewing gum and chocolate bars; electrical goods such as radios and phonographs will increase $3 for every $100 in the purchase price. Stoves, refrigerators and washing machines are excluded.

Such revenues as these will contribute a share to the total tax budget which is estimated by Mr. Abbott at $2,669,000,000 for the fiscal year. Expenditures will amount to approximately $2,654,000,000, it is expected. Of this total, the government has decided to spend $1,000,000,000 on defence measures. This money will be spent for direct Canadian measures and in association with other North Atlantic Treaty countries.

The Abbott budget will serve as a warning to Canadians that their country has reached the adult stage, and that appropriate measures must be taken for its defence. Not only will such actions help to insure the safety of every man, woman and child in the Dominion, but they will provide for, in Mr. Abbott's words, "national security, political and personal freedom, and economic strength and stability."

The increased excise taxes constitute a small price to pay for the continuance of our well-being as a country and as individuals. But by the same token, the government must be expected to carry out its end of the bargain by practising economy within its own walls. If the people are to be asked to shoulder a further tax burden, it is only fair that civil service policies, as well as actual governmental spending, should be economically regimented.

Only then will the sacrifice be worth it, and only then will Canadians realize that the new taxes are the cornerstones of safety and security in a precarious world.

BAREFOOT BOY

The young, brown, barefoot clan have become legion in suburb and city. Now comes a British specialist on child health who urges that children be encouraged to go without shoes and stockings as much as possible. It is good for them and ensures their having trouble-free feet in the years ahead, says Dr. Margaret Emslie.

She contends that those races which do not wear shoes have the most beautiful and strongest feet of all humans. Every young person should have opportunities to walk barefoot on shingle, rocks, pine needles and heather. She strongly recommends mattresses filled with broken corks to strengthen the bare feet of children and prevent foot ailments later in life.

Dr. Emslie believes that the correct length of shoes is more important than the width. She advises that a child should never sit on its mother's knee when being fitted for shoes. Big brother's cast-offs should never be worn by a younger child. Low chairs are essential so that a child's feet rest on the floor.

Whittier and his Barefoot Boy thus appear to have been years ahead of the social restraints of their time.

"All too soon these feet must hide
In the prison cells of pride,
Lose the freedom of the sod,
Like a colt's for work be shod . . .
Ah! that thou couldst know thy joy,
Ere it passes, barefoot boy!"
—Hamilton Spectator.

LOOKING BACKWARDS
GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO
Sept. 9th., 1930.

Warden R. Vanderwater and the members of the Hastings County Council were hosts last evening at Hotel Quinte to the Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Provincial Highways, and a few invited friends. Mr. Henry was here to officially open the new highway leading to Point Anne which function he performed during the afternoon. Mr. W. H. Nugent, County Clerk, presided in a capable and pleasing manner. During his address the Hon. Minister of Highways referred to the level double track crossing west of the city on the provincial highway and he expressed hope that this condition would be eliminated by providing an overhead crossing.

30 YEARS AGO

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

Probably everybody knows it but me: but if you put a few pails of water standing around your garden the night you expect a frost, your late flowers will be spared. It was in the spring the idea worked to my complete conviction. Two neighbors had small vegetable gardens of about the same size and content. The beans, peas, tomato plants and other items were up only a few inches when the radio one evening predicted frost.

The one man got five pails and filled them with ordinary tap water. These he stood around his garden at nicely spaced intervals. The frost came. And next morning when the sun shone, the man who had taken no precautions had nothing but wilted and frost-bitten sprouts, while the man who had set out the water pails had not lost a single shoot.

It is hard to say goodbye to the last of the flowers, but we have to do it in the next two or three weeks in all parts of Canada except that sag of Ontario which dips down to the level of northern California; and in British Columbia.

Most of us will spend what little time and inclination we have for our gardens raking and burning. But among us always are some few who have a talent for gardens. And they will have the zinnias, the dahlias, salvia and other autumn glories far into October. To tell the truth it is a little hard to say which gives the most intense aethetic sensation: the first blaze of tulips and daffodils in spring: or the last majestic flaunt of asters, mums, dahlias and zinnias in a well-kept autumn garden.

The one is full of the sentiment of welcome; the other of farewell. And both sentiments bite fairly deep into the elementary perceptions of Tom, Dick, Harry, and their womenfolk.

Wrote His Play In P.O.W. Camp

London (CP)—Londoners have been given a new play, "Sayonara," appearing at the New Lindsey Theatre, which its author Ken Attiwill admits was written "under somewhat trying circumstances.

At the close of the opening performance, he gave members of the case some of the details. The play, he said, had been written in secret during 3½ years he was held a prisoner-of-war in Japan.

"I had three difficulties to overcome," he said. What to write the play on—as paper was almost unobtainable; how to write it without being detected by the Japanese guards; where to hide the script."

Attiwill found a solution for each problem. The play was written on the back of soup can labels. All the work was done at night by the light of the moon. The script was hidden inside a model yacht he carved with a razor blade from a piece of teak wood.

Pipeline Brings Temporary Boom To Prairie Towns

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somerset, Man. — (CP) — A 1,190-mile-long magic wand is waving over the southern prairies, creating a temporary boom wherever it rests.

It is the pipeline, which will bring the oil riches of the west to buyers in the east.

Just now the head of one "leg" of the pipeline is at Somerset, normally a town of 500 persons whose chief concern is the crops and the weather. There are two other "legs" in the Gretna, Man.-Regina stretch.

But three miles south gigantic machines burrow, scrape, test, lay and bury their part of the $90,000,000 duct.

The little town is crammed with new faces, strange accents, and the whirring, restless hubbub of a major engineering depot. Thirty-eight American families fill every available room and parking lot.

Dozens of Canadians also move with the pipe.

Rents have gone up, food is higher, dry-goods stores have doubled their sales in work clothes, the beer parlor is booming, and everything centres around the pipeline.

For the Americans — most of them veterans of similar jobs in Louisiana, Panama, and Venezuela — it is much the same old story. They say they are overcharged, but consider themselves lucky to find any accommodation.

Monthly Move

This month it is Somerset, last month it was Morden, Man., and next month it will be somewhere farther along the line from Gretna, to Regina.

They bring their children — most are under school age — and many live in trailers luxurious as a tiny bungalow. The wives hope to be "somewhere near home" when the kids are old enough to go to school.

They like Canada, on the whole. Meat is better and cheaper — the butcher can't keep up with the demand for pork chops —and the nights get cool.

The men are pleased, too. Southern Manitoba's soil is soft and easy on the equipment. Their chief obstacle is rain, which prevents wrapping the pipe in its coating of fibreglass soaked in creosote.

They don't like paying $5 a week for trailer space in a vacant lot, and $4 monthly for electricity, but they figure it's all part of the life.

Many, like Bill Embree of Holdemville, Okla. — a bronzed, white-haired veteran of dozens of similar jobs — work on a free-lance basis. They choose their construction company with new scenery and experience in view, and leave it when something better crops up.

Embree has been on the job since 1923. Three years married, he plans someday to settle down in his own South country and raise a family.

"But," he drawled ruefully, "that's what they all say, and some have been at it for 40 years."

Egypt Makes Bid For Foreign Aid To Develop Oil

By GILBERT SEDBON

Cairo — (Reuters) — Egypt is again encouraging foreign aid in the search for oil.

For about two years the Egyptian government had refused to issue new prospecting licences. Now permission has been given to continue the task of seeking new sources of supply.

Much oil is believed to lie beneath the wind-blown sands of the Sinai Desert on the eastern shore of the Gulf of Suez and in the Eastern Desert stretching from the Suez down to the Red Sea frontier between Egypt and the Sudan.

Exploitation of this wealth could give Egypt petroleum products she needs urgently and help materially in the country's industrial development.

Oil production in Egypt is at present about 2,250,000 tons a year.

The government's quota is 15 per cent of the total annual oil extract and it has also the right to purchase the remainder.

Contracts already concluded between the government and oil companies operating in certain areas provide that the government can buy one-tenth of the quantities extracted at 10 per cent less than the market value.

The quantity which can be purchased by the government amounts in other areas to 20 per cent as a similarly reduced price.

Handicapped by Delay

The leading foreign oil companies in Egypt — Anglo-Egyptian Oilfields Limited, and the Socony - Vacuum Oil Company—have been recently greatly handicapped in their activities by government delays in issuing prospecting licences. The companies applied more than 15 months ago. There was danger, in fact, that Anglo-Egyptian Oilfields would follow the example of Standard Oil Company and withdraw their exploration teams from Egypt.

Such a decision resulting from the non-co-operative attitude of the government would virtually have meant the end of major oil exploration in Egypt.

The foreign oil companies have begun urging the Egyptian government to extend their prospecting area in the hope of increased advantages both to the government and the companies themselves. Officials of the companies state that they have spent millions of dollars on exploration and prospecting, and their demands on the government were two-fold:

1. They asked to be allowed to transfer at least part of their profits to their headquarters outside Egypt.

2. They asked to be allowed to export oil in excess of Egyptian domestic requirement.

So far, the Egyptian government has refused to accede to both these demands but now there are signs of a relaxation in this attitude.

Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

HI! AND HI TO YOU!

Three years ago you wrote the fairest article I have ever read, pertaining to Osteopathy. I clipped the article at the time, feeling that it warranted a letter of thanks from osteopathic physicians.

At this late date I thank you sir. It thrilled and amazed me to find a medical man expressing such broad views publicly, and it does today, after re-reading it many times.

I have practiced osteopathy for twenty-two years. I have been treated with courtesy by medical practitioners here, with one or two exceptions. In fact some of the medical men have sent patients to me. I feel that this is exceptional, for there seems to be great lack of understanding generally.

In the last paragraph of your article you said: "I salute the osteopaths..."

I, sir, salute you, and may you have many, many years of health to continue your work of helping humanity to understand themselves.

(Signed) ———, D. O.

It will make a good many medical practitioners, particularly trick specialists and clinic racketeers, hate me more than ever—but I believe osteopaths who are legally licensed to practice should be invited to become members of the county, state and national medical organization and accepted as colleagues in the practice of medicine, healing or whatever you prefer to call the doctor business.

Years ago when I was serving time in the mines I joined with another young doctor in persuading a young osteopath to apply for membership in the county medical society. We constituted the majority of the three-man board of sensors at the time, so we thought we might throw our weight about. But we were at least twenty years premature. It was really funny the way the old timers frothed at the mouth when we recommended that the society elect the osteopath to membership. They nearly threw us out for our temerity. So we had to return the osteopath's fee and tell him his application had been rejected. Thank goodness he had sufficient character to laugh it off with us. I still believe that if he had cared to take the trouble he could have forced the county medical society to accept him as a member—under the law.

That osteopath we tried to bring into the medical society had passed the same state board examination, in every subject, as we had passed to get a license to practise in the state. Who were we, or any other medical practitioners, to say he could or could not avail himself of membership in the county medical society and the state and national organizations, if he wished?

With all the bombastic pretensions of the profession about "rapid strides" and "modern methods" and "scientific developments" we are still pretty narrow and quaint in our attitude with respect to osteopathy. We are sorely in need of modernization.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Geographic

One doctor says my daughter, nine, has geographic tongue. Another says it is glosytis (maybe not spelled correctly). It will clear up for a month and then return in a week or two. (Mrs. D. E.)

Answer—Neither "geographic tongue" nor "glossitis" (inflammation of tongue) means anything. See that your daughter gets an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Wheat to Eat.

Sot

Husband will drink a pint of whiskey from the time he is through work (4 p.m.) until 8 or 9 p.m., 3 or 4 nights a week or lately nearly every night. He claims it is the only way he can get rested, when he is so tired. (Mrs. W. R.)

Answer—If he keeps that up much longer he will get a long, long rest—at your expense, of course. Is his conscience so bad that he can't face up to the facts of life without being doped? Is his family so well provided for that he can afford to squander so much for self-indulgence? If you can persuade him to get in touch with the local group of Alcoholics Anonymous (telephone directory or classified columns), that may prove a blessing.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Collectors of old vases and crockeryware look to the colorings. And so do they in the selection of many other varieties of things that take upon color over the years. They gain a divine patina.

Perhaps Nature is the greatest colorist of all. She distributes colors in lavish fashion all over the earth. Especially is this true in her minerals and stones. Reading in Anthony Trollope's "Barchester Towers"—a great book by the way—I came across this description of the stones in an old castle home. Said the author: "It is all of that delicious tawny hue which no stone can give, unless it has on it the vegetable richness of centuries—no colorist that ever yet worked from the palette has been able to come up to this rich coloring of years crowding themselves on years!"

You cannot pick up the commonest stone without noting its coloring, or a combination of colors. Great paintings take upon themselves a richness that only years have added. Our famous works of the world's masters in painting prove this fact. People hunt out the old things that they may contact the story of the years, sleeping in fabrics, woods and metals.

A friend took me through the research laboratory of his great plant. He took a piece of steel and put it under pressure and photographed the colors that played before my eyes like the colorings of sunset! When I held that steel in my hand I saw no colors, but they were still there!

I have an old ship's clock, that was rescued from a wreck. It ticks before me as I write. It still has touches of gold upon its frame, and there are browns and creamy colors to it. I wouldn't change it under any conditions, for everything about it keeps telling me something of its story of the years. It keeps ticking them off!

Lovers of tapestries and rugs want the old ones—the ones that have volumes of histroy within each thread, growing richer in color, mellowed and beautified by the count of the years.

Strength for the Day
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE COMFORT OLOI SLOIS

A year or two ago when we built a cupboard in our study, it seemed that all problems relative to a disordered desk were solved. And many of them were, for now when it is necessary to clean up the desk in a hurry, correspondence can be stuffed in big manila envelopes and put out of sight in the cupboard. But letters are not answered any better than they ever were, and business is no more efficiently done. The outward appearance has been bettered, but the problem of how to get a lot of unpleasant work done without actually doing it has not been solved.

F THE CUPBOARD

And this, of course, reminds one of the housewife who sweeps the dust under the rug. We call her slovenly, and yet there is hardly a person who does not practice that sort of thing almost every day. The business executive puts aside the letter with a big problem in it and declares he must have a day or so for reflection. The statesman convinces himself that experts had better give more study to some pressing problem before he institutes reform. The minister tells himself that he has neglected a certain family and should call on them, but he will do it next week when his schedule opens up a little better.

All this is hiding from reality. We are locking away in a cupboard what we do not want to confront.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

THE FIGHTERS

Petawawa Military Camp, Ont. —Soldiers are traditionally inarticulate about why they serve, but one thing is sure about those Canadians who have come forward now to join the brigade which may fight under the UN flag in Korea, "or where required":

Not one in a hundred is joining in a patriotic fervor. Indeed, the bulk of this special force will be made up of men who are running away from boredom or insecurity.

It's interesting to note that an Army statement a few days ago emphasizes that these troops will be thoroughly indoctrinated . . . to make absolutely sure that (they) know what they're fighting for—and against."

I spent an afternoon here talking to these new recruits and found that they fall into three general categories:

1—Men with steady employment or earning an income too small to cope with inflation. Most of these men would be in the permanent force but lack the educational requirements or are married and thus ineligible.

2—Men who were too young or short on the requirements for the Second World War forces and felt that they missed something enlisted immediately in this brigade, in which the requirements are as low as any since the American Revolution.

3—Combat veterans of the Second World War who found civilian life boring, want no part of the static life of the permanent force soldier, but joined up at the prospect of being in a fighting army.

A very small percentage are men who had good jobs in "civvy street". This explains the serious shortage now of technicians and men with the special skills the force will require.

Without Jobs

When I made my visit only one new officer was in the camp, a 30-year-old underground shift boss for International Nickel named Ivan Coady.

Coady, who comes originally from Leduc, Alberta, had been an anti-tank officer with the Calgary Highlanders in the last war and came out a captain. He is a serious-faced, intense type of person and when I asked him his reasons for enlisting he thought a moment or two before answering.

"I think I'll have to be in it sooner or later," he said. "I stipulated that I wouldn't serve under the rank of captain and in the Princess Patricias with my old commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Stone. We went through the ranks together. They accepted these terms, but it wouldn't have bothered me if they hadn't. I just felt I ought to make the gesture. Besides, I'm a bachelor. I've got no desire to be a peacetime soldier, but I like the comradeship of the Army when there's action."

In a nearby barracks I talked to four men who were still in their civilian clothes.

Everett "Ted" Mitchell, a 23-year-old truck driver from Mount Stewart, Prince Edward Island, said: "I was too young to get in last time. I felt I missed something and I sure wasn't going to miss it again. Couldn't get into the regular army because I haven't the education they need. Couldn't pass the tests. There's nothing doing on the island. It's hard to get a job that really pays. I figured this was my chance."

"Same goes for me," said Charlie Doyle, 25, who also comes from the island and is a veteran. "Worked a while in the gold mines in northern Ontario, but I found it tough to make a living when I got back home. I'll be better off this way and so will the wife."

A big, raw-boned, 24-year-old from Kitchener, Clarence Wallace, laughed and said: "With me it's just a plain case of itchy feet. I have been restless ever since I got out of the Army. Couldn't seem to settle down. I got practically no sight in one eye so I couldn't get in the regulars."

Another veteran, Pete Mews, of Yarmouth, said: "I was getting 50 cents an hour in the rock mine at Yarmouth. You can't live on that these days."

For Adventure

Already in training here, as part of the brigade, is the second battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment and officers are pleased with the way they're shaping up. "We've got some good tough cookies in this outfit," one said. "They'll do all right."

An officer picked three of these men at random for me to meet.

The first was Jack Slutsky, a 42-year-old Montrealer who served in the engineers in the last war and fought in Palestine in 1948. "I sold my sandwich shop in Montreal and got in quick. Why? Same reason any old soldier has, I guess. Adventure and serving his country. I always missed the comradeship of the army when I was out."

Corporal Fred Johnston, a six-foot-three, 27-year-old Toronto garbage collector, said: "I'll tell you honestly, I missed this life. I like the excitement of it and the adventure. I've got a pretty good job, a wife and a daughter, but I get that urge to go into action."

Another Toronto man, Herbert Partridge, 26 who was wounded at Ortona, said: "I've got a pretty good job. I make $45 a week with the Toronto street cleaning department. But I always missed the Army life. Would have been in it, but the wife wouldn't let me. With this, she knows I'm not signed up for life. We're really better off financially. So she gave her okay."

RAWDON

Rawdon—Mr. Keith Williams attended the C.N.E. and visited his brother Ronnie near Newmarket.

Mr. Alex Park, Stirling, spent a couple of days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard.

A large number of Rawdonians spent Sunday at Ivanhoe and attended the Holiness camp meetings.

Born on Saturday September 2nd at general hospital, Belleville to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer, Jr. (nee Merle Glenn) Mount Pleasant, a son.

Mrs. Gilbert Smith who has been ill for several months was taken by ambulance to the Green Nursing Home last Monday. She died there on Sunday evening, September 3rd and her funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon at her home with burial in Mount Pleasant cemetery in the family plot with her husband and son Roy. She leaves to mourn one son Osborne, Peterborough, two daughters (Esther) Mrs. Ray Williams, Hoard's and (Helen) Mrs. Elgie Joblin, Muncey, Ontario. Mrs. Smith was a valued member of Mount Pleasant United Church as long as health permitted.

The various schools re-opened Tuesday morning September 5th bringing summer vacation to an end. At Mount Pleasant, Miss Doris Pollock is again in charge of the Allan School and Mrs. Harvey Couch at the William's School

Rev. Elgie Joblin, Muncey, Ontario, spent a few days at Mount Pleasant.

Mrs. J. E. Beckel, Kingston and Rev. Boyd Beckel, Ivanhoe, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes Wednesday evening.

The heavy rain Monday evening August 28th put part of the Anson road out of order for motor travel Tuesday morning as the mud on the Menzie Hill was inches deep, as well as part of the other new road. However, by afternoon a few trucks were travelling and on Wednesday some cars went over the road.

Thursday morning all was on the move again. The passenger train from Belleville went up the Anson track at 7.30 a.m. and was probably one of the first trains to start travelling after the strike.

The mail courier Mr. Fred McDonnell made his daily trip up, the Anson road after a two-day absence, picking up the mail and bringing the two daily newspapers. On Tuesday several folks got their mail at the post office while the bread man delivered some on his afternoon route. The folks from the Green Nursing Home to Arthur Phillip's Corner are having their road overhauled hence the inconvenience of no mail on a summer day.

Mrs. Irvin Potts and baby son were transferred on Friday by ambulance from Belleville hospital and will spend a week at the Sine Maternity Home.

On Saturday September 2nd the South Cemetery at Mount Pleasant was given a final mowing for the season by Mr. Clarence Scott.

Mrs. James Sharpe, Ridge Road spent several days with Mrs. Elgie Joblin at Anson.

Miss Edith Stone and her brother Mr. Kenneth Stone, Holloway, spent a few days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White.

Miss Lavella Scriber, Keene and a friend from Peterborough, visited her sister Mrs. Eric Summers at Mount Pleasant and they all attended camp meeting at Ivanhoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Stapley and children Guelph, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hagerman and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Smith, Peterborough, spent a few days at Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Mount Pleasant, Mr. and Mrs. Ormel MacMullen and children, Belleville, spent Sunday at Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White entertained Mr. and Mrs. Elam Wescott, Oshawa, and Mr. Will Scott, Mount Pleasant on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell spent the weekend with friends near Newmarket.

Mr. Clifford Sine visited Mr. Ed. Patrick, Frankford, at Belleville hospital one day recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Golding, Toronto, have been holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

POINTING SOUTH

There has been much speculation as to exactly why birds migrate, but as we are unable to understand their language we shall probably never know the whole answer. However, it seems evident that one of the chief reasons for fall migration is that the food supply begins to peter out now, at a time when there are many more mouths to feed than there were on their arrival north, when food was plentiful.

Barn swallows, being consumers of flying insects only, start gathering in flocks by mid-August, and leave us about the end of the month, before there is danger of a food shortage. All the various species of vireos live mainly on insects also, but they prefer ones that can be found on leaves throughout September. Consequently, these close-peering birds are able to remain here longer, some into October. But by the middle of September the ruby-throated hummingbird is having difficulty in finding enough blossoms full of nectar and minute insects. Off it goes to the tropics.

After small bodies of water have frozen over, some fish eating birds manage to survive by moving to our large lakes or rivers, or even to the ocean. This is true of herring gulls and some ducks. In fact a few may stay in Canada all winter. But as a general rule, kingfishers, loons, ospreys, herons, and other birds which live either entirely or largely on fish can remain only as long as their home streams, ponds, or small lakes have open water.

A few seed eaters, as redpolls, and snow buntings, are clever at discovering sufficient food sticking up above the snow throughout the whole winter, and crossbills confine their attentions to seeds of pine, hemlock and cedar up on the trees. But the majority of seed eaters must go once the weed seeds are covered up. And so the dates of departure for song, white-crowned, and white-throated sparrows depend on the depth of the snow.

Birds like the scarlet tanager which are fond of wild berries leave before the crop falls or the fruit shrivels up; but waxwings seem to prefer the dried fruit, and are therefore in no hurry to move away. Some even brave the coldest weather.

As birds prepare for their long semi-annual flight by fattening themselves, it would never do to "take a chance" on their special food lasting longer than usual. And so most migrants are now pointing south.

The McFarland Construction Co., are busy digging out the hill along Mr. James Menzie's property. It is understood it will be lowered twenty - three feet and approximately fourteen thousand yards of fill will be removed. The men had a holiday August 22nd due to the rain so they worked on Labor Day. On Monday afternoon and Tuesday several trucks were busy carrying away the fill and the shovel did a roaring business as it was fairly easy digging in the new location from the east side half way to the centre. Late Tuesday afternoon they struck a belt of gravel, which was much harder to dig.

Mr. and Mrs. Elam Wescott, Oshawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey, Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard, Mount Pleasant and Mrs. George White and Mildred in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunham visited at the home of their daughter Mrs. Ira Althouse and Mr. Althouse at Peterborough.

NORTHPORT

Northport—Miss Helene Mallett left on Sunday to enter Victoria Hospital, London, as nurse-in-training. Mr and Mrs. Mallett accompanied her and spent the holiday with Mrs. Mallett's sister, Mrs. Smith, returning home on Monday evening.

Mrs. George Eggleton is spending sometime with her brother, Mr. G. Hough and Mrs. Hough.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Clow and Mrs. W. Creeper attended the Holiness Movement service at Ivanhoe on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Poynter, Brockville are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W Clow this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Broadbridge, Mr. and Mrs. S. Broadbridge, Mrs. Fred Hawley, Demorestville. Mr. Travers Collier, Toronto, were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs J. Collier.

Mrs. Walter Ruggles has returned to her home in Montreal after a month's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Barker.

Mr. Jack Norton visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Norton over the holiday.

The tourist season seems to be drawing to a close. Many tourists left for home on Labor Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Norton attended the C.N.E. Toronto on Saturday.

The re-decorating of the church is nearly completed and will be re-opened soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Lambert, Toronto, visited Mrs. Hazel Lambert over the holiday.

Mrs. G. Hough spent Tuesday afternoon with Misses Edith and Myrtle Hough at their cottage, Big Island.

Mrs. George Baldwin and Ronnie are spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Rabbie.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kotchepaw accompanied Mr. and Mrs. H. Robinson, Belleville, on a delightful motor trip to Oswego and attended the Gideon picnic and service there.

School re-opened on Monday with Miss Marjorie Foster as teacher. As this is her first school friends wish her success in her new venture

Sunday callers of Mr. and Mrs. Hough were Mr. and Mrs. Darling, Demorestville, Mr. and Mrs. S. Clarke and family and Mr. and Mrs. C. Hough and family, Burr's.

Mrs. Wm. Belnap is recovering from a severe attack of flu.

Mrs. Bill Wills and Beverly visited Mrs. Hough on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mills and family attended a family re-union in Ottawa on Sunday.

Golden Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

On Sunday, September 3, a gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Twiddy, Madoc, to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Fifty years ago at Ivanhoe United Church, Mabel Jane Willis and Mason Twiddy were joined in holy wedlock. The attendants were the sister of the bride, Mary Jane Willis, and David Allen, who were married the following January and are now residing in California.

While the bride and groom of fifty years ago were attending church services at Hart's United church a large gathering was assembled at their home to completely surprise them on their return from church.

After all were seated with the bride and groom before the dainty wedding cake, a toast was tendered the happy couple by their son and daughter. The groom graciously replied expressing his many thanks.

A sumptuous repast, prepared by their children, Mrs. Perce Landry of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. Foster Twiddy, of Belleville, was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Everyone sang "Happy Birthday", to Mr. Harford Twiddy, brother of the groom, who celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday that day.

The gifts were presented by their minister, the Rev. Gordon Mackenzie.

Later in the afternoon the youngest grandchild, Wayne Twiddy, was christened. Many pictures were taken to commemorate this happy occasion.

The guests were, their daughter, Mrs. Perc Landry, of Cleveland, Ohio; their son, Mr. Foster Twiddy, wife and family, of Belleville; the groom's brothers, Mr. Harford Twiddy, and Mrs. Twiddy, of Belleville, and Mr. Ed. Twiddy, of Harold; the bride's sister, Mrs. Rebecca Allore, of Madoc; the bride's brother, Mr. James Willis, and Mrs. Willis, of Campbellford; their nieces, Mrs. Wilfred Belch, husband and family, of Belleville, and Miss Pearl Allore, of Madoc, their nephews, Albert Twiddy, wife and family, of Harold and John Allore, of Madoc, and Oliver Willis of Campbellford.

WEDDINGS

PRESTON—SEXSMITH

In Ebenezer United Church recently Norma Marie Sexsmith became the bride of David Thomas Preston. Baskets of gladioli in pastel shades adorned the church and the guest pews were designated by white ribbon bows. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Frank Yardley. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Sexsmith, Belleville, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Preston, of Bowmanville. The organist was Mrs. Lloyd Down, who also accompanied the soloist, Miss Louise Pearce, who sang "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" after the ceremony and "Through the Years", during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of blush-satin with a long train. The sweetheart yoke and sleeves were of lace. Her long veil fell from a lace brim trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquets of Briar Hill roses and fern.

She was attended by her cousin, Mrs. George Dobbins, Leamington, as matron of honor; her cousin, Mrs. Charles Bottomely, Whitby, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Eric Colwell, of Bowmanville, as bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in old rose satin, styled with bustle backs and large bows and shirred picture hats and mittens. They wore rhinestone necklaces and earrings to match, and carried bouquets of Queen Elizabeth roses and Fairy Queen gladioli florets. The flower girl, little Miss Sharon Preston was gowned in pale organdie with a Dutch hat and carried Rapture roses and yellow gladioli.

Mr. Harold Metcalfe, Cookstown, ably acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Gordon Trull, Toronto, and Mr. Lloyd Preston, Bowmanville.

A reception followed at the home of Mr. Jay Trull, "The Grange", the ancestral home of the Trull family. To receive her guests the bride's mother was attired in powder blue faille with matching lace, a black hat, black mink neckpiece and black accessories. Her corsage was pink feathered Talisman roses. Assisting her the bridegroom's mother wore steel grey crepe, squirrel neckpiece and a black hat and accessories. Her corsage was grey feathered Talisman roses.

Dr. W. H. Birks, Bowmanville, acted as master of ceremonies, and proposed the toast to the bride. The bridegroom responded and proposed the toast to attendants with the best man responding. The toast to the mothers was given by Mr. Fred Preston, Elmira, uncle of the bridegroom, and the bride's father, Mr. Sexsmith, responded.

Later the couple left for the New England States, where the honeymoon is to be spent. As they left the bride was wearing a black chiffon velvet dress and silver mink furs. On their return they will take up residence in Bowmanville.

The bride presented her attendants with pearl sunbursts and the little flower girl with a gold locket and chain. The bridegroom presented his attendants with leather wallets and his bride with a pair of leather travelling bags. Over a hundred guests attended the reception and among those serving were four girl friends of the bride, the Misses Elizabeth and Margaret Henry, and the Misses Lorraine and Muriel Tink. Assisting in the receiving line with the bride and groom were their parents and attendants.

Wedge Shoe

By ALICE ALDEN

FOND MOTHERS getting daughters ready for school, are wise mothers, if they start the pleasant task by selecting the right footwear. Ideal for wear with this plaid wool coat dress is a good-looking sabot wedge shoe. A new soft textured leather in camel color with a high polish is smartly suitable for a teen-aged growing foot, and the strong but flexible leather soles assure the proper support, an ease in motion.

She is president of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Ontario, and this series of articles is written to keep the members of the W.I. and all interested informed of the highlights of the trip.)

Wednesday, August 30
Edinburgh, Scotland.

Today has been a wonderful day. It started with an excellent breakfast at the Central Hotel, Glasgow, and the best dish of "porridge" I have ever tasted. We drove from Glasgow to Edinburgh, a distance of 40 miles, but we came over 175 miles. It is now 11:30 p.m. and we have just come in from walking along beautiful Princes Street, with throngs of people, for this is Festival time and the big city is jammed. Flowers are everywhere high up on the light standards and on the roofs below the street. We can't get a good view of the famous floral clock because of the crowd, but no one can shut off the view of Edinburgh Castle, illuminated, as it towers over the city. We saw these dirty grey walls and turrets when we entered the city, but it has been transformed into a castle almost ethereal in beauty. Severe lines have disappeared and the whole of it is bathed in soft golden light.

But I must go back to the beginning of the day, as it has been a momentous one. We left Glasgow at 9 in the morning for Edinburgh via Loch Lomond and the Trossacks. We were in Glasgow just overnight but saw something of this industrial city from a double-decker tram (my first ride on one). You may be sure we climbed the narrow curved stairway to the upper deck. It was too dark to see much but we now have some idea of the lay-out of this important, busy city.

Clydebank is a burgh on the outskirts of Glasgow and here are John Brown's shipyards where the famous Queens, Mary and Elizabeth, were built. During the war, because of its importance, this region was heavily bombed, and although the debris is cleared away, there are many empty sites. But nature has a way of taking over, and the fire-weed, a tall rosy-colored weed, thrives here and softens the ugliness of these burned-out areas. Our guide tells us that in the Glasgow Art Gallery nearby, although treasures were unharmed, every window was broken and that 51 tons of glass were swept up. The huge plant of the Singer Sewing Machine Company is on the right, employing 8,000 people. The neat cottages of their employees and those working at ship-building, stretch along the highway for miles.

We pass through Barnby, where an armored train was kept during the war, to knock off any enemy submarines that might get this far up the Clyde. The Clyde is not wide here. When ships are launched they wait until high tide and then dozens of little tugs pull it slowly down the river.

The farmers are cutting their grain. The season here is a full three weeks later than ours in Southern Ontario. Hay fields are covered with perfectly shaped hay cocks, wired or roped at the top to keep them intact. Barns are not in evidence and I'm sure they feed from these stacks. They stack their grain also, only in much larger stacks. These are also wired to keep in place and are perfect in contour. There is no scarcity of help. One small field has seven men working.

We are approaching Loch Lomond and our guide explains the difference in meaning between loch and lake in Scotland. A loch always has a stream running from it. A lake has none. The heirs of Sir Ian Colquhoun own the property around Loch Lomond and I have a good picture of the gates entering their estate, with its coat of arms. Balloch, a small village, stands at the head of the Loch, and it is choked with small pleasure craft. Loch Lomond is 26 miles long and seven miles wide at its widest point. We drive for miles along its "bonnie, bonnie banks" and my Scottish blood thrills to be really on the "spot" of a song I have sung all my life. Trailer camps and flat bottomed house boats are here and there along the shore. We are right at the water's edge as we drive along, no high banks or stone walls to obscure the view—the Low Road, and it is truly bonnie.

Towering behind the Loch and across from us is Ben (meaning mountain) Lomond, its summit hidden by Scottish mist. The road is narrow and when we meet a bus, both come practically to a standstill, mostly from necessity and partly from courtesy. A trailer passes us and we read "hoot and pass".

Woodsmen are all over the place, for during the war trees were ruthlessly slaughtered for fuel and now the Government has embarked on a huge reforestation scheme, that leaves me speechless. They are reforesting right up to the heather line of these high hills. These are the Grampian Hills of Scotland. You can follow the long perpendicular lines of young trees from the Loch up to the summit. Sometimes the Bonnie Banks widen and cattle and sheep graze quietly in fields yellow with goldenrod. (Yes, they have it here, and thistles too, in abundance.) Here, they are mending the highway and the warning sign is abrupt, "Road up". We pass a shepherd with his crook, herding his sheep down the road with the agile help of a couple of Scotch collies.

two-part harmony as we drive along and leave its bonnie banks with reluctance, but the beautiful Trossacks are just ahead. It is noon but mists still obscure the hill tops. Here and there we see highland cattle, small, brown, woolly creatures with long horns. The guide points out the ruins of Rob Roy's home, the famous Scottish outlaw of history, and I get a good picture of it with a highland cow and calf alongside. Sheep folds are numerous, some of stone, some of poles, and all the hills are dotted with grazing sheep. Men are uncocking the hay and spreading it out to dry as the season is wet and farmers are worried. All is not well always, even in Scotland, for on large, flat stones, near the highway, is chalked "Home Rule for Scotland".

Trossack means the meeting place of hills and waters, and the scenery here is unparalleled in beauty. We stop at Callander for lunch and the gorgeous bouquet of dozens of gladioli in the hotel lobby takes one's breath. Gladioli have been with us all the way, and have added immeasurably to our pleasure. Roses, too, are at their best in this district and every humble cottage spills out in a riot of color. Loch Katrine is just ahead, made immortal by Scott's "Lady of the Lake". It is a beautiful spot and is Glasgow's water supply. Here again the hills are mirrored in the wonderfully clear water and the white and purple heather is everywhere, covering every low hummock. Ellen's Isle is here, of Scott's "Lady of the Lake". All of this is historic country, Rob Roy's country, and I made a resolve to brush up on Scott's works when I reach home.

Leaving the Trossacks, we are in splendid farming lands again. School children are now our companions on the road, for school started yesterday. School sacks are slung across the shoulders and kilted skirts are swinging. The heaviest field of wheat I have ever seen is on my right—one shock literally on the next.

Away across on a high hill etched against the sky stands the memorial to William Wallace. Stirling Castle is on the right and it is all the bus can do to labor up its steep, uneven road. All castles are pretty much the same, of dark grey stone, standing high on a promontory. The town of Stirling lies at its feet and here the battle of Bannockburn was fought. A statue of Robert Bruce stands beside the castle. We are called back all too soon by the horn. We can't lose ourselves in ancient lore too long. As we near Edinburgh it starts to rain and I'm amazed to see golfers carrying on with their game under striped umbrellas.

Fashion Flashes

STAYING HOME is going to be fine if the negligee and hostess gown manufacturers continue to turn out handsome interior togs. Smart separates include tapering, peg-topped velvet slacks and various tops to go with them. One top is a shallow-necked blouse of black wool jersey with brilliant pink touches; another is of silver lame with velvet bandings.

LINKING UP separates are handsome new belts. Satin in various colors with rhinestone studded buckles, and fur belts with velvet accents are all well represented in the order books of store buyers.

COMING BACK with other revivals, is fringe. Not the all-over fringe skirts, but fringe used in smart, but sparing fashion. For instance, a dolman-sleeved dress of black silk crepe has tassels of silk fringe dotting the overskirt.

HERE IS IMPORTANT NEWS...
Finance Minister Abbott will soon make a House announcement regarding CONTROLS ON INSTALMENT BUYING.
During the last War, the Government ordered that purchasers on the Instalment Plan provide a down payment of one-third. On purchases of less than $500.00, the time limit of payment was 12 months.
However, until such time as Government Legislation introduces the new controls, Dobbs Appliances will continue selling Electrical Household Appliances on their present convenient Budget Plan. A down payment of only 10 per cent, and the time limit of payment to 24 months.
If you have been contemplating the purchase of any Electrical Household Appliances on Dobbs Convenient Budget Plan, DO SO NOW. It is expected that the House announcement regarding controls in Instalment Buying will be made soon.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There's danger in your dreams

When life isn't going the way we want it, it's often a great temptation to build ourselves a dream world in which to live. With such a refuge handy, we're able at any moment to comfort ourselves, and outwit the world of every day by retiring into one of our own making, where everything suits us exactly.

Sometimes we do this because our lives seem so dull and uninteresting that we've simply got to brighten them up somehow if we're to go on at all. So we cheer ourselves up by creating an existence in which all the exciting things we'd like to do really happen. We acquire, in imagination, all the gay and stimulating friends we'd like to have; enjoy all the experiences that the real world has denied us; visit all the fascinating places we've always longed to see.

I met a man like that once. In every way, he seemed just a nice average person who had had the good luck—and the money—to be able to travel extensively in all parts of the world. Whole evenings long he could hold people spellbound with thrilling tales of his adventure in faraway places the usual tourist doesn't get to see.

In the course of time, one of those who had often listened eagerly to his narratives got curious enough about him to do a little quiet research into his background. It developed that he had never been out of this country; that everything he knew about all those fascinating places had been acquired through reading in the public library.

Circumstances had forced his life into a drab routine that had become intolerable to him, and from which he could escape only by creating a dream world. In time, his dream world became so real that he believed in it himself.

Or we invent a dream world because we've been hurt and disappointed. Perhaps someone we love, and in whom all our hopes of happiness were wrapped up, has broken our hearts, and life has collapsed like a pricked balloon. It hardly seems worthwhile to go on loving, the way things have turned out, so we begin trying to pretend inside ourselves that it isn't so; that they haven't really turned out that way at all. Instead, we let our thoughts tell us, the one we love, still loves us. By constantly reliving our memories we keep the happy past alive and avoid having to accept the unbearable fact of the present.

And then a third reason why we dream up an imaginary world in which to live is because we want to appear to other people different from the way we actually are. It gives us a feeling of inferiority to hear them talking about experiences they'd had that we lack. So to make ourselves seem just as fortunate as they are, we do some talking ourselves about the glamorous things that have happaned to us—in our daydreams. In other words, even though we have to invent all the moves ourselves, we play the old game of trying to "keep up with the Joneses" because we don't want the Joneses to look down on us.

Almost certainly the situation which has produced most of the dream worlds built by perfectly normal people is the one concerned with romance. And almost certainly, too, most of the romantic dream worlds are built by members of the feminine sex—the young woman with her heart set on a man who pays little or no attention to her; the girl who has never in all her life had a date with a boy.

Typical of the first sort of thing is a letter from a girl who writes:

"About a year and a half ago I met a very nice fellow of whom I grew very fond. I have never been out with him, but once in awhile when we have met at various parties he has taken me home. Several people have told me that he has said he liked me a lot, and while I will not say that I am in love with him, I find myself thinking of him constantly.

"A few months ago, he went back into service, and promised to write me while he was away. So far, he never has written.

"Now there is another fellow who wants to take me out, but he says if I go with him I must stop thinking about the first one. I don't want to lose this new man; but I don't want to give up my dreams, either."

Sounds silly, doesn't it, when you see it down in black and white? Can't imagine a girl who would rather have a romance that's real only in her dreams than an honest-to-goodness one, can you? You'd never waste any time in a romantic dream world like that! Are you sure?

As for the girl who turns to a dream world in the effort to "keep up with the Joneses" romantically speaking, she writes a letter like this:

"Every time I'm out with my girl friends, they talk about the men they go out with, and that's when I tell my lies. I talk about imaginary men, the men in my dearms, for I live in a world of dreams."

Living in a dream world can be very pleasant, there's no doubt about that. But it's dangerous business.

It's dangerous because every hour you spend in your dream world is keeping you away from the happiness you can find, if you will, in real life. Maybe it's a little harder, at first; takes more will power, more energy, more determination to hunt for happiness right where you are than to float off on a rosy cloud into a never-never land of your imagining. But right where you are is the only place you'll ever discover it.

Save Time for Care of Hands

If you're planning to do a paint job or work in the garden, rub nails over a cake of laundry soap. Later, dirt will be easily dislodged

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONLY a little time need be devoted to the care of your hands every day; considering that they are ever on display, that you cannot hide them, those few minutes seem worth while. It is a wonderful satisfaction to have the skin surface soft and smooth, finger nails in apple-pie order. Also, one must not forget that hands can suddenly look older than anything.

In the first place, you must be fussy about the soap you use, not only on your hands, but for housework, if you happen to be boss of the commissary department. Harsh cleansing agents can flay the skin, cause it to become rough, chapped and red. If such products must be used, protect your mitts with rubber gloves. Don't say you find them clumsy. Evidently you haven't seen the new ones that are almost as thin as tissue, do not interfere with the movements of the fingers. Wear cotton gloves when cleaning silver or polishing furniture.

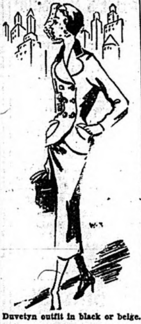
When washing the hands, rinse them well and dry thoroughly. Friction in a hand lotion. Those semi-fluid, milky preparations are just dandy, as they dry quickly. Once a week you should use a cream to make up for the natural oils that you are continually washing away.

Stains that appear after preparing vegetables or putting up fruit will vanish if lemon juice is applied. Have a cut lemon at hand, so you will not overlook this good looks rite, If your nails are soiled after doing heavy work, plunge your fingertips into the lemon pulp. The eaves of your nails will come out as white as snow.

Hands that seems abnormally red may be that way because of poor circulation. Exercise, deep breathing, plenty of fresh air will help.

Perspiring palms are a bother. This trouble is due to nervousness. If you are among the afflicted, try to take life a bit easier and remember that mental hygiene is as necessary as physical care.

Town Suit



Duvetyn outfit in black or beige.

By VERA WINSTON

DEFT handling of fabrics and fine tailoring marks many of the suits destined for a busy career in town this Fall. Black or beige velour duvetyn is used for this striking suit. It has a black velvet collar above the double-breasted jacket that is sharply curved at the hem, and has melon pockets to point up the slightly padded hips. This is a good suit for street wear, but ready for almost any occasion with the right accessories and complements.

GOOD MANNERS

Girl visitor writes bread-and-butter letter to her hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my teen-age daughter has visited in the home of her teen-age girl friend, should her bread-and-butter letter be addressed to the girl or to the girl's mother?

B. L.

Your daughter's first letter, the most important one, should definitely be written to the girl's mother, who was her hostess. Then she writes a thank-you note too to the girl.

Wedding given by family in house of friends

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very dear and long-time friends of my parents. . . they were, as a matter of fact, the chief attendants at my parents' wedding. . . have offered their beautiful house to me for my wedding. My parents insist, of course, on paying for practically all the expenses, but we have accepted their wonderful offer of their house. We live in a quite small apartment, and they live in a house not very far away from where we live. Will you please give me the correct form for the formal invitations under this circumstance?

G. T.

This is the form:

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ford Todd request the honor of your presence
at the marriage of their daughter
Grace
to
Mr. Edward Grayson
on Tuesday, the first of November at four o'clock at the residence of
Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Friendly
1234 Fifth Square
Haven, New York

Formal newspaper announcement of engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please publish for us a brief formal announcement of our daughter's engagement, to be sent to the newspapers?

C. and D.

This is the briefest form of announcement:

"Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peter Armstrong of Pleasantville, Connecticut, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Armstrong, to Mr. Arthur Royalton Eliot, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Browne Eliot of Columbus, Ohio."

How to eat pickles

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way to eat pickles?

D. A.

When pickles are served with a sandwich, they are eaten in the fingers. But when they are served they should be eaten with a fork.

Form of name for wife to use with meat at the dining table,

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a husband and wife are separated, should she continue to use his name. . .Mrs. Henry Smith, for example. . .or Mrs. Robinson Smith (Robinson being her maiden surname)?

W.

She should continue to use the name of Mrs. Henry Smith.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Oranges are the second most valuable fruit in California. Last year grapes brought more cash than oranges to the West coast state. Perhaps this is why California is known as the grape State, among its many names, while Florida still proudly calls itself the Orange Blossom State.

If all grape juice were served in the same style as orange juice, the crop wouldn't be so valuable. But the juice of the grape passes through the stage of processing which stimulates its value in a remarkable way, especially when the product is sold in fancy fifths, quarts, half gallons and gallons.

Red or white wine are not only beverages, but are becoming more and more staple items on kitchen shelves everywhere. Even during prohibition wine was legally sold to restaurants and hotels for cooking purposes. Salt was added by the wineries to keep it from becoming a popular drink, but it was used constantly by both American and European chefs in this country.

Autumn with nippy temperatures means the return of hearty cold weather dishes such as spareribs and sauerkraut. Use dry white wine and apples in today's recipe for sauerkraut.

Spareribs and Sauerkraut
4 Servings

Melt 2 tablespoons butter or vegetable fat in a large saucepan. Chop fine 1 medium size onion and 2 cloves of garlic. Add the onion and the garlic to the pan and simmer until onion turns slightly yellow.

Add 1-2 teaspoon dried rosemary leaves chopped fine, 1 No. 2 1-2 can of sauerkraut, 1 1-2 cups water and 1-2 cup dry white wine, mixing well.

Peel 6 medium size carrots. Cut into 1 inch crosswise slices. Add to the saucepan.

Peel and core 2 medium size cooking apples. Cut into thin strips. Add to pan.

Add 2 pounds fresh spareribs which have been cut by the butcher into serving size pieces.

Cover pan with a tight lid. Simmer slowly until spareribs are tender, about 2 hours.

To cook potatoes with the spareribs, peel 4 medium size potatoes and add to pan after 1 hour's cooking. Continue to cook until meat and potatoes are done.

SMART AS CAN BE are the new Alaska sealskin coats. Black seal for a 36-inch coat with straight fronts and jutting funnel pockets. Rounded shoulders, shawl collar, and slits on either side of the hem.

EXERCISE AND DIET ahead if one wants to look well in the new clothes, many of which are cut on sheath lines and are very form-revealing. A handsome evening dress is of ruby red silk velvet spiraled and wrapped for a very slim, side-draped line.

DRESSED UP tweed dresses are a feature of the new season. Black tweed with a bright red check for a sheath dress with black silk braid edging the narrow, scooped-out neckline and the slight, rising collar, as well as the brief sleeves. Flower clusters of jet beads mark the bodice and continue to below the slim, self-belted waist.

IDEAL for children's wear are the wool and velveteen plaids so much to the fore this year. Red, green and white plaid woollen for a pretty little suit with green velveteen for the double collar and notched pocket flaps. Side belts, held by gilt buckles, give a slight blousing.

TOWN TWEEDS include some charming suits. A black and fuchsia mixture for a trim suit its low collar and notched revers edged with black braid which also simulates a cuff line on the sleeves. Double-breasted closing starts at waist, and buttons continue to edge of jacket.

U.S. Pressed For Quick Action On Joint Army

Washington, Sept. 8 — (AP) — The United States is being urged by some of its top advisers overseas to press for quick action on early formation of a joint army under a single supreme commander for defence of Western Europe.

Diplomatic and administration officials, getting ready for the Foreign Ministers Conference opening in New York next week, have been told the matter is urgent in light of the military build-up in communist East Germany.
